Carlsson wrote, ''It is the view of the Swedish government that it is not only Kuwait which has been occupied by foreign troops. There is also the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Syria, as well as the Israeli and Syrian troops in Lebanon.''

''It is our sincere belief that the fundamental conflict in the region is the Palestinian issue, and lasting peace can never be acheived in the region until this problem has been solved.''

To State Department officials, this sounded like Carlsson was trying to curry favor with Saddam at the expense of the international feeling of solidarity against the invasion.

After an initial flash of American diplomatic anger, Carlsson clarified on Dec. 1 before the Swedish parliament that his country supported all the U.N. resolutions condemning the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, including the one authorizing the use of force.

On Monday, U.S. Ambassador to Sweden Charles Redman met Sweden Deputy Foreign Minister Pierre Schori, and after an exchange of statements, according to Swedish officials, ''mutually declared the incident closed. ''

But the suggestion of irritation remained in the State Department Tuesday over the Swedish government's breaking ranks on the hostage issue and linking the Palestinian and Lebanese issue to the gulf crisis, something that Saddam Hussein first suggested in August.

Spokesman Richard Boucher said, ''We believe that we must continue to take care to ensure that this (hostage) issue is not handled in a way which undercuts the international solidarity on the gulf crisis.''

On the connection to the Palestinian issue and a possible international conference on the Middle East, Boucher said, ''We are not now recommending that an international conference on the Arab-Israeli conflict be held, nor are we supporting a resolution in the Security Council that would seek to convene such a conference.

WARSAW, POLAND (DEC. 11) UPI - Outgoing President Wojciech Jaruzelski apologized Tuesday for imposing martial law in 1981 and President-elect Lech Walesa, once the victim of the general's actions, vowed to serve the nation and defend its freedom.

In a televised farewell speech to the nation, Jaruzelski said martial law was neccessary to spare Poland further suffering, an allusion to the Soviet Union's threat to invade if Poland did not pull the independent Solidarity union into line.

By an irony of history, Solidarity's leader, who along with 5,000 activists were arrested and detained under martial law, succeeds him as president Dec. 21.

Walesa won Poland's first general presidential election Sunday over Canadian emigre businessman Stanislaw Tyminski.

''Erring is a human thing to do,'' the general said. ''I have also erred (but) I have not erred into tractlessness. I have always been guided by the good of this country, of its prestige, stability and the inviolability of its borders, by the will to spare Poland a tragedy and its people, excessive suffering.''

Jaruzelski stressed that he was guided by the feeling of responsibility for Poland while taking vital decisions, including that one which dealt with martial law.

The general, wearing civilian clothing during his five-minute speech, apparently referred to martial law when he talked of the ''harm, pain and injustice'' that has been inflicted on Poland.

''This is stuck in me like a thorn,'' he said.

Jaruzelski said he hailed Walesa on taking over his job. ''I wish the fruitful discharge of this weighty and greatly responsible mission,'' he said.

Hours before Jaruzelski's evening speech, Walesa flew to the holy shrine of Czestochowa from his hometown of Gdansk and prayed in front of the 14th Century icon of the Black Madonna, the most revered holy painting in Poland.

It has been a tradition for centuries that Polish kings and presidents - except Jaruzelski - traveled to Czestochowa before coronation or taking presidential office.

''I am kneeling in front of you, Holy Mother, taking up the post of the president of the most illustrious Poland because such is the wish of the nation,'' Walesa prayed.

His prayer was broadcast live by Polish radio nationwide.

''I swear to unfailingly defend the honor of Poland, its sovereignty and the safety of the state,'' he said.

(DEC. 11) UPI - Armand Hammer is dead... the space shuttle returns home... and 156 Americans freed by Iraq are back in the United States. Those stories and more, next from U-P-I.

Brilliantly successful international financier and well-known philanthropist Armand Hammer died last night at the age of 92. Hammer was a friend of Soviet leaders and advisor to 10 U-S presidents.

Hammer's death at his Los Angeles home followed a brief illness. It came just one day before he was to undergo his bar mitzvah... the Jewish ceremony of manhood normally undergone in the early teens.

Hammer is credited with saving Russian peasants from starvation and was the first American to send aid to the Soviet Union following the Chernobyl nuclear disaster in 1986.

The multi-Millionaire was so trusted by the Kremlin that they allowed him to enter Russian air space in his private jet... a rare privilege.

In 1973 he negotiated a 20-year 20-BILLION-dollar chemical fertilizer barter deal with the Soviet Union. At the time, it was the largest single transaction ever between a nation and a private company.

But his greatest single American business achievement was the rescue of Occidental Petroleum, which was a 34-thousand-dollar company when Hammer took the reins in 1957. By 1982, it was the 10th largest oil company in the world, worth more than eight-BILLION dollars. That same year, he masterminded the Occidental Petroleum takeover of Cities Service Company for four-BILLION dollars.

Hammer also was known for having one of the greatest personal art collections in the world... valued at between 250-Million and 400- Million dollars. In 1971, he willed 12-Million dollars worth of masterpieces to the Los Angeles County Museum of Art and the National Gallery in Washington.

After a lifetime of friendly involvement in the economic life of Communist nations, Hammer prophetically told an interviewer in 1982 that- ''socialism will be replaced in time by more private ventures... because communism just DOESN'T work.''

Dr. Ray Irani, president and chief operating officer of Occidental, was named late last night to succeed Hammer as chairman and chief executive officer.

The 55-year-old Irani was named after a resolution adopted by Occidental's board of directors in February at Hammer's request. Irani has been president of Occidental since 1984.

(DEC. 11) UPI - Another planeload of Americans is due to leave Iraq today, heading for a joyful reunion with family and friends.

Yesterday, hundreds of family members cheered as a U-S-chartered Pan Am 747 jumbo jet carrying 156 Americans landed at Andrews Air Force Base.

Many of those waiting waaved American flags and wore yellow ribbons.

The airlift was the first major wave of U-S hostages to be released since Iraqi President Saddam Hussein decided Thursday to allow all hostages to leave Iraq and occupied Kuwait. The hostages were held against their will since August 2nd when Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait.

U-S officials estimated that 575 Americans are still in Iraq and Kuwait, waiting for clearance to leave. Another freedom flight is scheduled for today.

The former hostages were initially greeted on the plane by State Department officials and were then taken by bus to an athletic complex at the Air Force base. They are spending the night at area hotels.

The hostages were flown from Baghdad to Frankfurt, Germany, where they spent the night Sunday before completing the journey home.

An additional 123 British, Australian and Irish citizens arrived in London aboard two flights from Rome and Frankfurt.

Also, 384 Westerners, many of them believed to be Britons, left Baghdad yesterday aboard a British-chartered flight. Diplomats said some Americans were believed to be on board.

President Bush last week proposed high-level talks with Iraq to discuss the gulf crisis.

Iraq requested a meeting in Washington December 17th between President Bush and Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz, and a similar meeting January 12th in Baghdad between Secretary of State Baker and Saddam.

But U-S officials rejected the dates, saying they would like the timing of the two meetings to be closer together.

Yesterday, Aziz said Iraq is willing to change the dates to suit U-S officials.

(DEC. 11) UPI - Texas Assistant Attorney General Steve Gardner says the winners of the annual ''lemons'' awards display show what he calls a ''primary adage in the advertising business.'' In Gardner's words- ''if you caN'T make it better, make it up.''

Philip Morris and General Motors each scored double whammies as consumer groups awarded their ''lemons'' for the 10 most deceptive or misleading ads.

The giant tobacco company and the car maker, along with six other firms, were cited for what was called the ''most misleading, unfair or irresponsible'' ad campaigns of 1990.

A coalition of national consumer, public health and environmental groups handed out the awards that consists of a victory statuette holding a lemon.

In one of the ads, G-M claimed to have ''pioneered the air bag.'' However, in awarding the auto maker a lemon, the Center for Auto Safety says the company only briefly produced some full-size cars with air bags in the 1970's. G-M went on to lobby against government regulations requiring air bags.

The group says G-M now equips fewer of its models with airbags than either the Ford or Chrysler.

The coalition cites Philip Morris print ads for implying that the Virginia Slims Superslims cigarette can help women stay thin. It also points to print and T-V commercials championing the Bill of Rights ''as part of a public relations effort to defeat governmental restrictions on tobacco promotion.''

NEW YORK (DEC. 11) UPI - The dollar strengthened for the second straight day in thin New York trading on reports from Europe that the Group of Seven, a monetary policy panel, might meet in January to discuss the dollar's decline.

An Italian central bank official told journalists in Basel, Switzerland, the home of the Bank for International Settlements, that a G-7 meeting was likely to focus on the weakness of the dollar and Eastern Europe.

That suggested monetary authorities, who until now haven't shown much concern about the U.S. unit, might be ready to brake its fall, and bolstered emerging sentiment that the dollar could stage a comeback in early 1991.

"It's a much more benevolent picture for the dollar," said Credit Suisse Vice President Francoise Soares-Kemp, noting that the German mark may be challenged as the full scope of East European problems is revealed. "A year ago, we were so imbued with this massive euphoria, with the (Berlin) Wall coming down," she said. "This winter we're not doing that any more.

"We know that this is a serious, serious problem and people are beginning to pale at the problems" in the former East Bloc, she said. "Portfolio managers may be thinking about adjusting (investments) a little bit."

Late in the New York session, the dollar was trading at 1.4780 German marks, up from 1.4720 marks Monday, and at 132.25 Japanese yen, up from 132.20. The British pound fell back to $1.9375 from $1.9435.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2650 Swiss francs, up from 1.2610; 5.0200 French francs, up from 5.0050; and 1,113.75 Italian lire, up from 1,112.

In Europe, the dollar also gained at the prospect of dollar talks by finance ministers and central bank governors of the Group of Seven, which includes the United States, Japan, German, France, Italy, Britain, and Canada.

"The market's been buying dollars in a reaction to the call by the Italians for a meeting of the G-7 to discuss the dollar," said Wayne Andrews, a currency economist with the Barclays de Zoete Wedd investment bank in London.

Earlier in the session, comments from Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein, indicating reluctance to disgorge Kuwait, also boosted the dollar.

In Frankfurt, the dollar closed up at 1.4757 German marks, vs. 1.4696 marks Monday. In Zurich, the dollar rose to 1.2605 Swiss francs from 1.2580. In London, the pound closed lower at $1.9405 from $1.9455.

The dollar gained in Paris and Milan, to 5.0060 French francs from 4.9950. It was unchanged in Brussels, at 30.46 Belgian francs.

In Tokyo earlier, the dollar climbed sharply to 131.75 Japanese yen, from the previous day's close as 130.55 - a gain of 1.20 yen.

Traders said the gain stemmed from mark-yen activity, with the high-yielding German currency attracting Japanese investors. The dollar, which serves as an intermediary between yen and mark, benefited.

In Zurich, gold closed lower $372.50 an ounce from $373.65. In London, gold also lost ground, falling to $371.50 an ounce from $374.25.

Silver in Zurich closed higher at $4.15 an ounce vs. $4.04 Monday. In London, silver closed lower at $4.07 an ounce vs. $4.15.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $371.25 an ounce, down from $373.50 Monday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled gold contracts at $372 an ounce, also a decline from $374.20.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.09 an ounce, up from $4.065. Comex silver ended trading at $4.067 an ounce, ahead from $4.05.

NEW YORK (DEC. 11) UPI - Stocks closed lower Tuesday in light trading, dragged down by weakness in high-technology issues in an otherwise quiet market.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 6.68 Monday, lost 10.64 to close at 2586.14.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 1.16 to 178.42 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 2.47 to 326.42. The price of an average share slid 20 cents.

Declines outpaced advances 983-566 among the 2,029 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Volume amounted to 145,330,000 shares, compared with the 138,650,000 traded Monday.

Analysts said weakness in the technology sector and profit taking after last week's advance kept the market in check Tuesday. High-tech stocks were pressured by news the book-to-bill ratio - a key indicator of the health of the semiconductor industry - fell during November. The industry group that reports the statistic said the drop reflected "general economic trends."

The book-to-bill ratio compares the dollar value of products shipped to the dollar value of new orders received. So a ratio of less than 1 indicates that business is shrinking. The ratio was 0.9 last month.

"It means backlogs are declining and thumbs down on future growth," said Ron Doran, director of institutional trading at C.L. King & Associates in Albany, N.Y. "Everybody is wishing they were 'short' tech stocks," meaning they would have been betting the prices of these issues would fall.

Program selling, used to profit on price differences between stocks and stock-index futures, extended the early losses, analysts said. Market watchers also said the perception that the market has run up as far as it can on hopes for lower interest rates sparked profit taking. "There are concerns about the economy, and even if we get lower rates it's going to be tough to get the market going again," said Doran.

On the trading floor, Occidental Petroleum was the most active issue, up 1 7/8 to 22 5/8 after the news of the death of Dr. Armand Hammer, the company's chairman, at the age of 92. With the international financier and well-known philanthropist who was a friend of Soviet leaders and adviser to 10 U.S. presidents gone, more than a few market participants feel the company may be more willing to restructure.

IBP, Occidental's 51 percent-owned beef processing unit, followed, surging 2 5/8 to 19. Analysts speculated Occidental may sell its controlling stake in the company in the wake of Hammer's death. AT&T was third, off 3/8 to 29 1/2.

Texas Instruments was next, up 1/2 to 34 3/4, bucking the weakness in the technology sector. The company announced an agreement with Toshiba on a semiconductor patent cross-license agreement.

But elsewhere in the sector, IBM lost 5/8 to 112 7/8, Hewlett-Packard slid 1 1/8 to 31 7/8, and Digital Equipment fell 1 3/8 to 54 5/8.

Among other blue chips, American Express fell 1/2 to 21 1/4, and Philip Morris rose 1/2 to 50 3/4. General Motors tumbled 1 1/8 to 35 5/8 as its Hughes Aircraft unit, trying to diversify out of the defense industry, Tuesday announced plans to enter the cellular telephone and communications business.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 181,787,340 shares, compared with 170,809,980 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices fell in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex

Market Value index lost 0.50 to 306.11. Declines topped advances 343-227 among the 842 issues traded. The price of an average share lost two cents. Composite volume totaled 14,016,530 shares vs. 12,114,500 traded Monday. Alza led the Amex issues, up 1 7/8 to 46 7/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index fell 3.49 to 367.98.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 11) UPI - An increasing number of women are using infertility services but the popular perception that more women today are unable to have children is inaccurate, the government said Tuesday.

The report by the National Center for Health Statistics, based on interviews with 8,450 women in 1988, presents the first national estimates of trends in the childbearing status of women of reproductive age.

In 1988, the report said, about 4.9 million women ages 15-44 had an impaired ability to have children, called impaired fecundity - 8.4 percent, or about one in 12 women in this age category. The figures are virtually the same for 1982.

In 1988, about 2.3 million married couples with wives ages 15-44 were infertile - 7.9 percent, or slightly less than one in 12. Again, the figures virtually mirror 1982 data.

Impaired fecundity describes difficulty in conceiving and difficulty or danger in carrying a baby to term. Infertility describes a woman's inability to conceive after 12 months of intercourse without contraception.

The report sought to debunk what it called ''popular descriptions of infertility,'' that suggest an epidemic of infertility among as many as 10 million couples.

''The findings of this report indicate that these perceptions are inaccurate, but the increased use of infertility services, the increased number of childless older women with impaired fecundity and other factors may help to account for the perception that infertility is increasing or that it is more common than it actually is,'' it said.

The report said the misperception is the result of a trend toward delayed childbearing and the aging of the ''baby boom'' generation, which has increased the number of childless women ages 25-44; new drugs and techniques for treating infertility; and an increase in the number of physicians trained to treat infertility.

About 2.2 million childless women had impaired fecundity in 1988, along with about 2.7 million women with one birth or more. In 1982, these figures were 1.9 million and 2.6 million, respectively.

Also, in 1988, as in 1976 and 1982, the percent of couples surgically sterilized increased with age and was greater among couples with children. In 1988, one-half of all married couples with at least one child were surgically sterilized.

About two-thirds of couples with at least one child in which the wife was 35-44 years old were sterlized.

MOSCOW (DEC. 11) UPI - KGB chief Vladimir Kryuchkov warned against ''the danger of the Soviet Union's disintegration'' late Tuesday in a television appearance he said was ordered by President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Kryuchkov, in his unusual TV speech after the ''Vremya'' evening news program, said the secret police would use all their powers to prevent the nation from breaking apart.

''Now, when our country needs unity more than ever, we face actions that are splintering our society and undermining the fraternity and nations and peoples '' he said.

In an address marked by language typical of the pre-perestroika era, Kryuchkov even spoke in dark tones of external interference in Soviet domestic affairs by unnamed foreign organizations.

But the KGB head directed most of his ire at internal groups he said are trying to destroy central authority.

''The danger of the Soviet Union's disintegration has developed,'' Kryuchkov warned. ''National chauvinism is being fanned up and mass rioting and violence are being provoked.''

Kryuchkov's nationally televised appearance ''on instructions from President Mikhail Gorbachev'' are in line with recent steps by the Soviet leader to bolster the government's strength and consolidate his own power.

The Soviet Parliament last week approved Gorbachev's plan to put the government directly under his control and to create three new law enforcement agencies that would base the KGB and other public-order bodies in the president's office.

The moves, part of a recent general stiffening of Gorbachev's policies, coincide with his campaign to persuade the 15 Soviet republics to sign a new unity treaty as the basis of a revamped confederation.

''KGB forces will firmly guard security, legality and law and order,'' Kryuchkov said. ''They have blocked and will block the road of forces that want to push the country to the precipice.''

''Anti-communist forces are scrambling for power and using undemocratic tactics,'' he said.

Nationalists have used elections held under Gorbachev's political reforms to replace communist governments in the three Baltic republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania and more recently in Soviet Georgia. Radicals have also bumped communists from office in Moscow and Leningrad, the country's two largest cities.

''KGB forces will effectively help the efforts by bodies of state power in the U.S.S.R. and the union republics to normalize the situation in the country and pull it out of deep crisis,'' Kryuchkov said.

(DEC. 11) UPI - Dr. Armand Hammer, the head of Occidental Petroleum, died yesterday at the age of 92. The nation's 16th largest industrial company immediately announced that his hand-picked successor, Dr. Ray R. Irani, would take over.

156 released Iraqi hostages returned to the United States yesterday and are spending the night in hotels near Andrews Air Force base. Another flight carrying freed Americans is expected to leave Baghdad today.

The space shuttle Columbia returned to Edwards Air Force Base in California early today, eastern time. The landing was one day earlier than was scheduled because of a cold front approaching the west coast.

North Korean Prime Minister Yon Hyong-muk arrived in Seoul today, voicing skepticism over the scheduled talks with his South Korean counterpart on how to bring the 45-year division of Korea to an end.

Rival factions clashed with hatchets, knives and guns in an eastern black township in South Africa overnight, killing at least 15 people. More than 100 people have died in tribal fighting in the past nine days in South Africa.

MOSCOW (DEC. 11) UPI - Writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn was awarded the 1990 state prize by the Russian republic Tuesday for his history of the Soviet prison camp system, ''The Gulag Archipelago,'' but rejected the award from his exile home in the United States.

The daily Sovetskaya Rossia newspaper, voice of the Russian Republic, announced the prize in the latest bid to persuade Solzhenitsyn to return to his homeland from exile in Cavendish, Vt.

Sergei Zalygin, editor of the prestigious Novy Mir monthly that has been publishing ''Gulag,'' said: ''With all my heart, I congratulate the great writer on receiving this prize.''

Solzhenitsyn was exiled in 1974 by Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev for refusing to compromise with authorities. He has said he will return to the Soviet Union only when all his works are published there.

The writer, in a statement from his Vermont home, offered his ''gratitude'' to the prize committee for its award, but said he could not accept it.

''I would consider it unthinkable and impossible to accept a state award for this book while the majority of our people have still not had the opportunity to obtain and read it.

''The book is being sold on the black market at exorbitant prices. Meanwhile, thousands upon thousands of former zeks (Russian slang for prisoner) are living out their lives either without any pension at all or on a miserable one since hard labor in the gulag camps is not reckoned as work service.

''Under these conditions - for all of them - my receiving an award would be a bitter irony,'' he said.

''But more than that: in our country up to the present day the phenomenon of the gulag has not been overcome, either legally or morally,'' he said.

''This book is about the suffering of millions and I cannot reap an honor from it,'' he said.

Vadim Borisov, who acts as Solzhenitsyn's literary agent in the Soviet Union, has said a seven-volume collection of his works will be published as a supplement by the Novy Mir monthly.

Solzhenitsyn's citizenship was restored this year by decree of President Mikhail Gorbachev, but the Nobel Prize-winner said the treason charges filed against him in 1974 must be dropped before he would consider returning home.

''The Gulag Archipelago,'' which chronicles the history of the Soviet labor camp system, was anathema under Brezhnev because it accused state founder Vladimir Lenin of laying the basis for the gulag.

Now that Lenin himself is fair game for criticism under glasnost, Solzhenitsyn's works have been accepted and the writer has a huge following among Russian nationalists and Soviet liberals.

DALLAS (DEC. 11) UPI - A judge ordered the deadlocked jury in the federal fraud trial of former Vernon Savings and Loan owner Don R. Dixon to continue working on a verdict.

U.S. District Judge Joe Fish reportedly issued the order Monday after receiving a note from the jury saying the panel was unable to reach a verdict after four days of deliberation.

''It is our opinion we cannot return a unanimous verdict on all counts,'' the note said.

Dixon has been charged in a 38-count indictment with misusing Vernon funds to win the favor of regulators and politicians by paying for prostitutes, lavish parties and making illegal political contributions.

If the jury declares it cannot reach a verdict, the court could invoke the so-called Allen charge, instructing them in open court to reconsider their positions and warning that if they don't, the case will have to be retried.

The defense also could move for mistrial, a motion the judge could accept or reject. There have been two mistrials declared in recent Texas savings and loan prosecutions.

If convicted, Dixon could face up to 190 years in prison and a maximum fine of $9.5 million.

Vernon failed in 1987. Its bailout is expected to cost taxpayers at least $1.3 billion.

HOUSTON (DEC. 11) UPI - Secretary of State James Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze held the first of five planned sessions to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis, humanitarian aid for the Soviet Union and possible dates for a superpower summit.

The talks, which began on Monday, primarily are aimed at setting the groundwork for an arms pact to be signed next year by President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Speaking with reporters, Shevardnadze said humanitarian aid for his economically struggling nation will be discussed during face-to-face talks with Baker, which will end a day earlier than planned. The two diplomats will fly to Washington Tuesday night for a meeting with Bush on Wednesday.

''We would appreciate it, probably some food supplies. That is the most key problem and, of course, efficient economic operations,'' Shevardnadze said through an interpreter.

Baker said Bush has been considering food and medical aid to the Soviets.

''He (Bush) also has expressed an interest, and indeed a willingness, to be of assistance to the Soviet Union as they make this transition from one (economic) system to another,'' Baker said. ''It's a transition that's not simple. It's indeed quite difficult. It's something that hasn't been done before.

''I know the president will be very forthcoming in assistance and trying to help.''

But Baker noted legal restrictions dating back to just after World War II limit economic aid the United States can provide to the Soviets.

At the White House Monday, Bush signed measures to implement treaties between the United States and the Soviet Union to limit underground nuclear weapons tests.

Bush expressed hope that the action will ''lead to even more important advances in arms control and the preservation of world peace and security.''

Bush and Gorbachev signed the treaties at their summit in Washington last spring, and Baker and Shevardnadze are to exchange the so-called instruments of ratification Tuesday, thus putting the pacts into effect.

''We have a lot of work ahead of us,'' Shevardnadze said Sunday. ''We have to discuss the Persian Gulf situation and to seek ways for a peaceful settlement of this most acute conflict in our time.

''In this city, which was the birthplace of U.S.-Soviet cooperation in space, I hope we shall further solidify our cooperation on Earth.''

The Washington Post reported Tuesday that Baker's urgings of even a small, symbolic Soviet military force in the Persian Gulf were rejected by Shevardnadze.

Citing informed Soviet sources, the Post said Baker told Shevardnadze that such a Soviet military presence in the gulf area would enhance the credibility of the threat against Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

But the sources told the Post that Shevardnadze replied that public opinion in the Soviet Union would not allow Gorbachev to make such a deployment.

If Baker and Shevardnadze agree on the arms treaty, which would reduce U.S. and Soviet long-range nuclear bombers, missiles and submarines, a date for the next superpower summit could be announced.

But high-level diplomacy to get Iraq to leave Kuwait, including a possible

Baker trip to Baghdad in January, has made the proposed January date for the next Gorbachev-Bush meeting in Moscow unlikely.

Iraq has told the United States it wants Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz to travel to Washington to meet Bush Dec. 17, and Baker to meet with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad Jan. 12 - three days before a U.N.-imposed Jan. 15 deadline for Iraq to leave Kuwait or face the possibility of removal by force.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the administration rejected the Jan. 12 date, and that it wants Baker and Saddam to meet in late December or early January. The United States has recommended Baker and Saddam get together Dec. 20, Dec. 21, Dec. 22, or Jan. 3.

NEW YORK (DEC. 11) UPI - The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, the nation's third largest life insurance company, Tuesday said it wants to change its structure from a mutual to a stockholder owned operation.

Equitable would be the first major life insurance company to use New York state's new demutualization law, which took effect in 1988.

By changing its structure, Equitable could raise more capital, publicly and privately, on a more timely basis. For example, it could sell stock in a public offering.

A mutual structure also prohibits Equitable from acquisitions and joint ventures with shareholder-owned institutions. Richard H. Jenrette, Equitable's chairman, said his firm ''wants to be an equal participant on a level playing field.''

Equitable's board, the New York state Insurance Department and some policyholders must approve the demutalization plan, which could take from one year to 18 months. Before then, Equitable could sell subordinated notes to private investors with the notes convertible into onwership shares after demutalization.

Equitable started as a stock company in 1859 and remained that way until it became a mutual firm in 1918. Under that operation, there are no stockholders, but the policyholders are members of the mutual corporation who have certain rights. They include the right to elect the company's board.

Jenrette said the change in structure will probably not significantly affect the marketing of Equitable's family of life insurance, annuities and other products.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (DEC. 11) UPI - The Nicaraguan Supreme Court ordered the arrest of U.S. rancher John Hull after the Costa Rican government requested his extradition on charges of arms and drug trafficking and murder.

Supreme Court secretary Alfonso Genaro Vazquez said a local district court was instructed ''to take Hull into protective custody'' if he is found in Nicaragua.

Presidential Minister Antonio Lacayo said he knew nothing about the Hull case but said the American is not facing criminal charges in Nicaragua.

''Hull is not being pursued for any crimes in Nicaragua. His outstanding accounts are in Costa Rica,'' Lacayo said.

A congressman for the ruling party, who asked not to be identified, said Hull was still in Nicaragua, living on a farm in Chontales province in the central Atlantic region.

The congressman said the farm is protected by armed former Contra rebels in exchange for financial help from Hull.

''Hull has disappeared from the public eye,'' he said. ''He is in Nicaragua and is being protected by Contra rebels.''

Costa Rican Ambassador Carlos Aguilar said his government requested Hull's extradition in accordance with long-standing extradition treaties between the two countries.

Victor Hugo Rojas, charge-d'affaires of the Costa Rican Embassy, said, ''We are filling out all the requirements so that Hull is handed over to us.''

Hull arrived in Nicaragua through Honduras Aug. 31. Immigration officials said he was given a 72-hour visa to stay in the country.

Hull rented a house in Juigalpa, the provincial capital of Chontales 65 miles northeast of Managua, but disappeared.

Hull faces charges of arms and drug trafficking and murder in Costa Rica for involvement in the illegal supply of money and arms to the Nicaragua Contras to help fund their 9-year civil war against the Sandinista government.

Hull is also accused of involvement in the May 30, 1985, bombing of a press conference by former Contra leader Eden Pastora in La Penca, Nicaragua, along the Costa Rican border. Two journalists were killed and several wounded.

The Christic Institute, an independent U.S. research group that has launched a series of cases in U.S. courts against federal officials involved in the Iran-Contra issue, has linked Hull to the drug trafficking trade and illegal supply of arms and money to the Contras when prohibited by the U.S. Congress.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 11) UPI - A Marine stationed in the Persian Gulf died Monday after collapsing on a pier following a run, a Pentagon spokesman said Tuesday.

The Defense Department spokesman said the Marine died at 3:20 p.m. Saudi time Monday after a medical team was unable to revive him. He had been serving aboard the Iwo Jima with Detachment 6, Brigade Service Support Group, 4th Marine Expeditionary Brigade, out of Camp LeJeune, N.C.

MOSCOW (DEC. 11) UPI - Mikhail Gorbachev praised Armand Hammer for being ''associated with some of the most valuable pages in Soviet history.

Gorbachev's spokesman, Vitali Ignatenko, said that Hammer ''met (state founder Vladimir) Lenin and was close to the other Soviet leaders.'' Hammer died Monday in Los Angeles.

''Mr. Hammer is associated with some of the most valuable pages in Soviet history,'' Ignatenko told a news conference.

''Mr. Gorbachev has expresed sincere condolences to the Hammer family.''

Yuri Gremitskikh, a Foreign Ministry spokesman, said Hammer ''was a man that sought to maintain good relations even during the cooler times. ''

''He was not afraid to raise his voice to the leaders of both superpowers to have good relations in all spheres,'' Gremitskikh said.

There was no initial commentary by the official Tass news agency on the death of the philanthropist. It merely reported the death by its correspondent in the United States.

CALHOUN, Tenn. (DEC. 11) UPI - Fog triggered the chain-reaction collisions of 70 cars and trucks on an interstate Tuesday and trapped motorists in flaming wreckage, authorities said. At least 14 people died and 51 were injured.

''It's without question the worst traffic accident in the history of Tennessee '' said Cecil Whaley of the Tennessee Emergency Management Agency. ''It looks like a war zone. They just hit each other going full speed. They were blinded by the fog. They never saw the accident until it was too late.''

The fog rolled out of the Hiwassee River and onto Interstate 75 at about 10 a.m. EST, causing a tractor-trailer rig to jackknife ''and then everybody else just plowed right into the fog bank,'' Whaley said.

The Tennessee Emergency Management Agency confirmed 14 deaths and 51 injuries and reported the toll could rise. Tuesday night, emergency crews using spotlights searched the mangled vehicles for more dead.

''There's tons and tons of twisted metal,'' Whaley said. ''Getting a body out from underneath all that is tough and that's what we're faced with now. It's going to go on all night long.''

In the moments after the accident, firefighters and surviving motorists worked in the fog and fumes to help the injured and to save those trapped by fire, officials said.

''There were lots of heroes,'' said Art Munck, director of emergency management in Bradley County. ''When we got there, it was so foggy you couldn't see anything. People were walking around in disbelief.''

''There's unbelievable stories of tremendous bravery,'' Whaley said. ''Firefighters were dragging out people whose trucks were on fire. They were getting them out just ahead of the flames.

''There were a number of motorists who stopped to help. They were taking off their own clothes to bandage people. People were actually on fire, and they were beating out the flames.''

Medical emergency helicopters joined ambulances in taking the injured to hospitals.

Thirty-five tractor-trailer rigs wrecked and 10 burst into flames, Whaley said. One of the flaming trucks carried the hazardous substance organic peroxide and belched toxic fumes that overcame at least two state troopers, he said.

''The troopers are going to be OK. But many of the injuries are very serious. They had to use 'Jaws of Life' on many of the vehicles to get the injured out '' he said.

The accident stretched for 2 1/2 miles on all four lanes of the interstate between Cleveland and Athens, Tenn. Police blocked off a 5- mile stretch to protect motorists from the toxic cloud until it dissipated after about two hours.

A propane tanker-truck wrecked but firefighters succeeded in keeping flames away, Whaley said.

''If that tanker had caught fire, the explosion would have been terrible and many more would have died,'' he said.

Dispatchers for the Tennessee Highway Patrol reported their switchboards swamped with calls from people seeking information about loved ones who were traveling on the interstate at the time of the accident. In towns near the accident, citizens lined up to donate blood.

Fog has caused problems on the stretch of interstate in the past and the state had erected warning signs and reflectors, state Safety Department spokeswoman Sue Allison said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 11) UPI - President Bush, brushing aside objections by Chief of Staff John Sununu, nominated Robert Clarke on Tuesday to a second five-year term as comptroller of the currency.

The White House, which expressed ''complete confidence'' in Clarke on Monday, announced the action in a one-sentence statement that included no mention of the Sununu's opposition or even Bush's reason for sticking with Clarke.

Just last week, administration officials were quoted as saying Sununu was trying to have Clarke removed. They said Sununu complained that Clarke's oversight of the banks is so tough it has caused a nationwide credit crunch.

Following the White House announcement on the Clarke nomination late Tuesday, Sununu could not be immediately reached for comment.

But Clarke issued a lenghty statement in which he voiced appreciation of Bush's support of him and also appeared to answer Sununu's criticism.

''I appreciate the president's expression of confidence,'' said Clarke. ''I look forward to the confirmation hearings before the Senate. ''

''This is an extremely difficult time for lenders, borrowers and bank regulators,'' the comptroller said. ''However, we can work through the current problems if lenders assume their responsibility to make loans and to take reasonable risks and if regulators follow a responsive, balanced approach.''

Last week, apparently at the request of Sununu, calls were made by the White House to bankers and other business executives to solicit their opinions of how Clarke has handled the job.

Clarke's reappointment was backed by Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, who oversees the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency. The office regulates federally chartered banks, which include most of the nation's biggest.

(DEC. 11) UPI - The second phase of the U-S build-up in Operation Desert Shield moves into a higher gear tomorrow, when about one-thousand Marines will be airlifted to Saudi Arabia every 24 hours.

The parliament in the Soviet Georgia republic voted today to abolish a rebellious region and placed it under the direct control of the government of the southern republic. An independent news agency said its earlier report of a declaration of a state of emergency in the region was wrong. It said the parliament only amended its constitution to give it the power to declare such an emergency.

The government today approved a manufacturer's plan to warn about 23- thousand North Americans of potential defects in the artificial heart valves implanted in their chests. Shiley Company of Irvine, California, decided to notify the recipients of the Bjork-Shiley ''convexo-concave'' heart valves.

A jury in New York City today convicted two more youths in the brutal rape and assault on a 30-year-old woman in Central Park in April 1989. Three other youths already had been convicted in the case, and one more youth faces trial early next year.

Tennessee authorities say at least 12 people were killed and 50 injured in the worst traffic accident in state history... a chain- reaction crash that involved 70 cars and trucks on Interstate 75.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 11) UPI - The new orange crop, led by a robust recovery in Florida from last winter's devastating freeze, will fill 229.7 million boxes, the government forecast Tuesday, a slight decrease from its earlier estimates.

All the same, the new crop would be 23 percent larger than last season's crop, which was slashed dramatically by freeze damage in the South. Texas groves were damaged so severely the government expects little production this season.

Oranges are the dominant U.S. citrus crop and Florida is the No. 1 orange state, producing about two-thirds of the nation's total. Last season's crop totaled 186 million boxes, 11 percent smaller than the 1988-1989 crop.

The new numbers reflect the severity of last winter's cold snap. In one variety of oranges, Florida temples, the forecast ''is more than double last season's freeze-reduced crop,'' the Agriculture Department said.

Temperatures have been milder this year, particularly in Florida, and the department noted ''most of the groves and trees in the state are in good shape due to extensive irrigation in all areas.''

The department projected Florida would harvest 165 million boxes this season, compared to 110.2 million boxes in 1989-1990 and in line with the 165 million projected last month.

Early and mid-season varieties were projected for 95 million boxes, compared to 68.1 million last season. Valencia production, only 42.1 million boxes last season, was pegged at 70 million boxes this season.

California growers were estimated to harvest 63 million boxes, a drop of 14 percent from last season's 73.1 million boxes. The new crop was projected to include 40 million boxes of navel oranges, 9 percent less than last season, and 23 million boxes of Valencias, 21 percent less.

Frozen concentrated juice yield from Florida oranges was estimated at 1.50 gallons per box, a slight change from the 1.52 estimated last month. Freeze losses held last season's yield to 1.23 gallons per box. The record is 1.55 gallons, set in 1987-1988.

Grapefruit production was forecast for 55.1 million boxes, up sharply from the 48.6 million boxes harvested last season.

NEW YORK (DEC. 11) UPI - Standard & Poor's Corp. gave a relatively favorable A-minus credit rating Tuesday to a $1.2 billion New York City bond issue going on sale this week, but left a shadow hanging over city finances by extending a ''credit watch'' warning that a total $15.1 billion in bonds could be downgraded.

The move by S&P's could boost the interest rate the strapped Apple will have to pay to finance operations. Rates were already rising in light of strains on New York's tightening budget and investor skepticism. It could also make a tougher job out of marketing the latest bond issue.

''It's going to be quite a challenge for the city in many respects, because for the municipal market it will be the largest bond issue this year without question,'' said S.E. Canaday Jr., vice president for new issue pricing with John Nuveen & Co., a major municipal market player.

''It's an issue by a city that's having fiscal problems,'' Canaday explained. ''In the last six months or so, investors have been shying away from issues (by cities) that are having fiscal problems.'' Economically distressed New York has pared $1 billion from its budget - and the cuts aren't over.

In the rating agency's grading system, the A-minus rating indicates ''a strong capacity to pay interest and repay principal,'' but qualifies issuers as ''more susceptible to the adverse effects'' of an economic downturn.

That left the Big Apple's new debt issue one full step above the speculative grade of investment, below S&P's BBB level. But the agency's announcement had a sting in its tail: the new issue joins the existing total of $13.9 billion in general obligation debt listed on credit watch.

S&P's put that existing debt on credit watch Oct. 9, explaining this was an ''interim cautionary measure to all users of our ratings.'' The agency said then that it too the step in light of a new contract with city teachers calling for a 5.5 percent salary hike, and higher anti- crime spending.

Maury Cooper, an S&P's vice president, said the city debt would remain on the credit watch until Jan. 16, when city officials have promised to give detailed plans on closing a $1.3 billion gap in the fiscal 1992 budget.

''We've said from the beginning that we were waiting for that issue to be resolved before we took action on the credit watch,'' she said.

''Until you have that (budget) document, all you have is a problem, you don't have the solution,'' Cooper said. ''When that document is issued on the 16th of January, we will reach a conclusion whether it is realistic.''

S&P's said it expected the city to take ''all the necessary actions to achieve fiscal balance.'' But it added that ''in light of the contracting economy that challenge will be more difficult to meet than in prior years.''

To keep its A-minus rating, New York must draft a budget ''that reflects the uncertainty of the economic environment and balances achievable revenue assumptions with necessary service reductions,'' S& P's said.

City officials nonetheless said they were pleased with the S&P's rating, and said they were in talks with Moody's Investors Services Inc. , another leading rating agency, on its grading of New York's creditworthiness.

Deputy Mayor for Finance and Economic Development Sally Hernandez- Pinero said city officials told Moody's that New York's economy ''is going to continue to go down, and the city's problems are severe ones.''

All in all, Candady said, S&P's rating Tuesday was lukewarm - but preferable to a downgrade to one step above speculative-grade.

He said S&P's was ''trying to have their cake and eat it too'' in affirming the A-minus rating but leaving city debt on credit watch.

''What they're saying now is, you could buy these bonds now and a month from now they could downgrade them,'' Canaday said. ''It's serving notice that you still don't love (the credit quality of the issue), but you're going to leave it where it is. I think it should be more clearcut.''

Canaday said First Boston Corp. and other bond issue managers will be pricing the bond issue Wednesday, setting a market interest rate low enough for the city to afford but high enough to draw investors. He said the new issue might need a relatively high 8 3/4 percent yield to sell out.

NEW YORK (DEC. 11) UPI - Detroit Lions running back Barry Sanders and New York Giants linebacker Lawrence Taylor were named the NFC players of the week Tuesday.

Sanders, a second-year player out of Oklahoma State, rushed for 176 yards and two touchdowns in Detroit's 38-31 loss to the Los Angeles Raiders Monday.

Sanders leads the NFC with 1,081 yards on 209 carries and 10 touchdowns. He also leads the conference in scrimmage yards with 1,471 and has 390 yards receiving. Sanders is the 10th NFL player to rush for 1,000 yards in his first two seasons.

His Offensive Player of the Week Award is Sanders' first.

The nine-time Pro Bowler won NFC Defensive Player of the Week honors five times since 1988, twice in the 14 weeks of the current season.

Runners-up in the offensive category were Phoenix's Ricky Prohel, New Orleans' Gil Fenerty and Washington's Earnest Byner. On the defensive side, the also-rans were Chicago's Mark Carrier, Phoenix's Marcus Turner and New Orleans' Brett Maxie.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 11) UPI - The Bush administration has recommended that the U.S. Supreme Court hear an antitrust lawsuit filed by the National Football League Players Association against team owners.

The players argue in the case ''Powell v. NFL'' that limits on their ability to be free agents violate antitrust laws.

In June, the justices asked for the opinion of the solicitor general, who is the administration's advocate before the Supreme Court.

If the court decides to hear the case and rules in favor of the NFLPA, it could alter labor relations in the NFL and other pro sports leagues. Even the entertainment industry could feel the impact.

In a 20-page brief filed Monday, Solicitor General Kenneth Starr told the court that the case presents a ''difficult question'' regarding antitrust law that the justices should resolve.

While the brief gives the NFLPA's complaint a boost, the solicitor general's opinion does not ensure the justices will hear the case.

The NFLPA has not had a collective bargaining agreement with the owners since Aug. 31, 1987. It has not been an official union since decertifying in November 1989 after the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals decided the league's system of free agent compensation was beyond challenge.

Starr said the 8th Circuit's decision gave the NFL an ''overly expansive'' exemption for player restrictions under antitrust laws.

In reaction to the solicitor general's recommendation, NFL spokesman Joe Browne said in a statement: ''We continue to believe that the 8th (Circuit) was correct on its earlier ruling. If the Supreme Court decides to hear the case, we believe the court will also agree and confirm the 8th Circuit decision.''

Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFLPA, said in a statement announcing the solicitor general's filing: ''We are extremely gratified by the U.S. government's support of the players' appeal. We have said for the last year that the 8th Circuit decision was bad law, as it hurts not only the players but employees in the entertainment industry as well.''

''Now the top lawyers of the government, including experts on antitrust law and labor law, have agreed with us that it should be reversed by the Supreme Court.''

(DEC. 11) UPI - Iraq pardoned all of its dissidents and deserters Tuesday, Western hostages who were ordered freed by Saddam Hussein waited to leave, and a published report said Moscow has rejected a U.S. request for a small Soviet military presence in the Persian Gulf.

A Pentagon spokesman said a Marine stationed in the gulf died after collapsing on a pier following a run, boosting the number of military personnel who have died in connection with Operation Desert Shield to 56.

The Washington Post reported that U.S. Secretary of State James Baker's urgings of even a small, symbolic Soviet military force in the gulf region were rejected by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

Citing informed Soviet sources, the Post said Baker told Shevardnadze that such a Soviet military presence would enhance the credibility of the threat against Saddam.

But the sources told the Post that Shevardnadze replied that public opinion in the Soviet Union would not allow Mikhail Gorbachev to make such a deployment.

A British-chartered Iraqi Airways jetliner was waiting to load up with foreign hostages, Baghdad Radio reported, and then fly to London and freedom.

Hundreds of family members, many waving American flags and wearing yellow ribbons, cheered as a U.S.-chartered Pan Am 747 jumbo jet carrying 156 loved ones landed at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., Monday.

The airlift was the first major wave of U.S. hostages to be released since Saddam decided Thursday to allow all hostages to leave Iraq and occupied Kuwait. The hostages had been held against their will since Aug. 2 when Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait.

U.S. officials estimated 575 Americans were still in Iraq and Kuwait, waiting for clearance to leave. Another freedom flight was scheduled for Tuesday.

An additional 123 British, Australian and Irish citizens arrived in London aboard two flights from Rome and Frankfurt.

Also, 384 Westerners, many of them believed to be Britons, left Baghdad Monday aboard a British-chartered flight. Diplomats said some Americans were believed to be on board.

In Washington, Israeli Premier Yitzhak Shamir was scheduled to meet President Bush Tuesday to discuss the gulf crisis.

The Shamir-Bush meeting will take place as the U.N. Security Council postponed yet again discussions on a resolution protecting the rights of Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied territories.

The radio said Israel was opposed to any inclusion in the resolution of a Soviet and Arab-backed clause calling for an international conference on the Middle East. The Bush administration was wary of endorsing such a clause at this stage in case it was seen as proving a link between the Arab-Israeli issue and Iraq's occupation of Kuwait, the radio added.

Saddam has consistently criticized the United States and its allies for mobilizing world opinion on the Kuwait issue but failing to take similar measures against its ally Israel for the Jewish state's violation of U.N. resolutions that call for Israeli withdrawal from the territories it captured during the 1967 Israeli-Arab war.

In Baghdad, Iraq's ruling Revolutionary Command Council issued a pardon for all Iraqi dissidents and army deserters.

Iraq's official INA news agency said the pardon covered both political crimes and those who deserted their posts or went absent without leave since Iraq invaded Kuwait four months ago.

One Cairo-based Western diplomat said a number of Iraqi soldiers were known to have defected to countries neighboring Iraq such as Turkey and Saudi Arabia since Saddam Hussein ordered his armies into tiny, oil-rich Kuwait.

Saddam's pardon would also apparently affect deserters from the Kuwait campaign should they decide to return. The diplomat said, however, those deserters, remembering past instances, might be too frightened to return home despite the pledge of a pardon for fear of execution.

The United States offered political asylum to Iraq seamen after the imposition of a naval blockade on the Arab state, but has not issued official figures for how many Iraqis, if any, have taken up the offer so far.

''The Revolutionary Command Council has decided to pardon all fugitive Iraqis outside Iraq, to order the suspension of all legal measures against the political crimes, desertion and absence without leave,'' the INA said.

''This measure is provided for in Iraqi martial law ... this decision stipulates that those who are included in the pardon should return to Iraq within two months, excluding students who are studying outside the country,'' INA said.

DAVENPORT, Iowa (DEC. 11) UPI - Students gave mixed reactions while Quad Cities business leaders were upbeat Tuesday over the announced takeover of a small Catholic college by a Japanese institution.

The 51-year-old Marycrest College announced it was being taken over by Tokyo-based Teikyo University and will be known as Teikyo Marycrest University in 30 days. The purchase price was not disclosed.

Teikyo has acquired five schools in recent years, including Teikyo Loretto Heights University in Denver and the former Westmar College in LeMars, Iowa.

Nozomu ''Boomer'' Nagata is one of 43 international students among the 400 full-time and 2,500 part-time students at the school. Although he is a native of Japan, he said he was uncomfortable with the takeover and the expected influx of Japanese students.

''If too many Japanese students come to this college, I'll talk to them in Japanese. I won't have the chance to speak English,'' said Nagata, who is learning English as a second language in hopes of settling in the United States.

Ying Xiong, a Chinese student, said an additional 50 to 100 international students might spark an exodus of Americans.

''I'm a little worried,'' Xiong said. ''I think most American students will leave.''

Renee Carlson, a history major from Clinton, said Xiong's fears might come true.

''It's perceived negatively in the community,'' she said. ''One woman in my classes is already considering transferring.''

Carlson also voiced a fear the college would lose its liberal arts mission and become ''a technical school,'' but Marycrest officials said that will not happen.

''All faculty and staff will be retained,'' said Marycrest President Wanda Bingham. ''Teikyo Marycrest intends to remain as a religious liberal arts institution, serving students of all faiths.''

Founded in 1939 by the Congregation of the Humility of Mary order of nuns, Marycrest began as a women's college while nearby St. Ambrose College was a companion school for men. Marycrest became independent in 1954 and turned co-educational in 1969.

The college's finances have deteriorated in recent years and merger conversations with St. Ambrose were held earlier this year until Marycrest broke them off in October, officials said.

Marycrest trustee C. Dana Waterman III said what the college prefers to call a ''merger'' with Teikyo is the ''best alternative.''

In making the announcement of the takeover on Monday, the college provided statements endorsing the move from several large Quad Cities companies and organizations, including Moline-based Deere & Co.

The foriegn investment in Marycrest could help establish ''important new linkages with Europe and Asia that can be crucial to attracting investments, industries and trade from those nations,'' said John Gardner of the Quad City Development Group.

The merger offers several advantages for the community, including ''a distinctly different educational opportunity to residents of the Quad Cities, one that is not locally available,'' said Harry Hoyt Jr., co- chairman of Quad Cities Vision for the Future, a group developing a strategy to improve the area.

Waterman said the school's 27-member board will be ''reconstituted,'' with an expectation Teikyo will assume control of the school's governing body.

TROY, MICH. (DEC. 11) UPI - Police are trying to determine whether LSD or some other drug was placed in the coffee of a high school English teacher who has long been the target of student pranks.

Bob Heffernan began convulsing and hallucinating after drinking from a coffee mug on his desk during a class at Troy Athens High School in suburban Detroit last Friday.

The 46-year-old teacher, who said he never has taken drugs, throught he was having a fatal heart attack.

''I was hearing voices and seeing things far away and then close up,'' he said. ''Everything was distorted.''

Heffernan said he gazed at pictures of his four children and said goodbye.

With help from another teacher, Heffernan made his way to a hospital, where he was treated and released that evening.

Police Lt. Curtis Reynolds said tests are being conducted on the coffee from Heffernan's mug.

Glenn Rexer, president of the Troy Education Association, said the district has interviewed students in Heffernan's third-hour class.

''The principal is working with the police very closely in interviewing students. They have to. it's a life-and-death kind of thing,'' Rexer said.

Heffernan, who has taught English for 20 years, was described by colleagues as a sensitive, soft-spoken man who often is taunted by students.

''He is literally a persecuted man,'' said one teacher, who called some of the pranks played on Heffernan ''really cruel.''

She said students regularly steal tests and graded homework from Heffernan's desk.

The teacher said several students ambushed Heffernan in a hallway in 1976 and cut off one side of an elaborate handlebar mustache he had grown for the nation's bicentennial.

MOSCOW (DEC. 11) UPI - Alexander Solzhenitsyn, the great Russian writer living in exile, has been awarded the 1990 state prize by the Russian republic for his history of the Soviet prison camp system, ''The Gulag Archipelago.''

The daily Sovetskaya Rossia newspaper, voice of the Russian republic, announced the prize Tuesday in the latest enticement to get Solzhenitsyn to return from exile in the United States and live in Russia. Solzhenitsyn lives in Cavendish, Vt.

Sergei Zalygin, editor of the prestigious Novy Mir monthly that has been publishing ''The Gulag Archipelago,'' said: ''With all my heart, I congratulate the great writer on receiving this prize.''

Solzhenitsyn, who was exiled in 1974 by Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev for refusing to compromise with authorities, has said he will return to his homeland only when all his works are published there.

Vadim Borisov, who acts as Solzhenitsyn's literary agent in the Soviet Union, has said that a seven-volume collection of Solzhenitsyn's works will be published as a supplement by the Novy Mir monthly.

Solzhenitsyn had his citizenship restored this year by a decree of Mikhail Gorbachev, but the Nobel Prize-winning writer said that treason charges made against him in 1974 must be dropped before he considers returning to his homeland.

''The Gulag Archipelago,'' which chronicles the history of the Soviet labor camp system, was anathema under Brezhnev because it blamed state founder Vladimir Lenin for laying the basis for the gulag.

Now that Lenin himself has come to be criticized under the glasnost of Gorbachev, Solzhenitsyn's works have been accepted, and the writer has a huge following among both Russian nationalists and Soviet liberals.

OAKLAND, Calif. (DEC. 11) UPI - Dave Henderson, a mainstay on the Oakland Athletics ''threepeat'' American League champions, agreed to terms Tuesday on a three-year contract.

Terms were not announced, but the pact was rumored to be worth in excess of $1 million a season.

Henderson, who was granted ''new look'' free agent status last week as part of the collusion settlement, has been the starting centerfield for the Athletics since joining the team as a free agent in 1988.

He hit .271 with 20 homers and 63 RBIs last year, but missed 27 games late in the year due to knee surgery. Henderson's loss prompted Sandy Alderson, the A's vice president of baseball operations, to trade for Harold Baines and National League batting champion Willie McGee.

Oakland remained committed to Henderson after the season and allowed McGee to be signed away by the neighboring San Francisco Giants.

''David has been an important contributor to our success the past three years and we are happy to have him back,'' Alderson said.

Henderson is a crowd favorite in Oakland where his ''Hendu's Bad Boys Club'' has become a regular fixture in the centerfield bleachers at the A's home games.

Known for his playoff heroics, Henderson is a lifetime .298 hitter in the postseason with seven homers and 20 RBIs. He is best remembered for his ninth inning, game-tying homer in Game 5 of the 1986 ALCS that allowed the Boston Red Sox to remain alive and eventaully go on to the World Series.

NEW YORK (DEC. 11) UPI - Miami quarterback Dan Marino and defensive end Bruce Smith of Buffalo were named AFC players of the week Tuesday.

Marino, who has thrown for more than 30,000 yards and 200 touchdowns in eight seasons, led the Dolphins to a 23-20 overtime win over Philadelphia that ensured Miami its first playoff berth since 1985.

Miami trailed 20-10 with less than six minutes left when Marino hit Mark Duper from 6 yards out to cut the margin to 3 points. He then completed a 12-yarder to Duper that set up the tying field goal, sending the game into overtime. Marino was good on two double-figure passes in the extra period to set up the winning field goal.

It is the eighth time Marino has won player of the week honors since the NFL began offering the recognition in 1985.

Smith, the blue-chipper in the 1985 draft, had four sacks and a deflected pass as the Bills clinched their third straight playoff berth.

It was the seventh time in 14 weeks of play so far that Smith had multiple sacks, putting him in the lead among NFL pass rushers with 19. The record of 22 sacks in a season is held by Mark Gastineau, set in 1984.

Smith also was named AFC Defensive Player of the Week last week after he recorded eight tackles and two sacks against Philadelphia.

PONTIAC, Mich. (DEC. 11) UPI - A county prosecutor said Tuesday there is precedent for filing a first-degree murder charge against retired pathologist Dr. Jack Kevorkian, who is accused of helping an Oregon woman commit suicide.

''There is clear legal precedent to charge Kevorkian'' in the June 4 death of Janet Adkins, 54, of Portland, Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Thompson said in an interview.

Adkins, who suffered from Alzheimer's disease, used a so-called ''suicide machine invented by Kevorkian to give herself fatal doses of poison. Kevorkian said he hooked Adkins up to the intravenous device, but Adkins pushed the button that released the poison into her blood stream.

Kevorkian faces a preliminary hearing Wednesday in District Court before Judge Gerald McNally on the murder charge.

Thompson said the charge against Kevorkian is based on the ''same precedent and statute'' used by the Wayne County Prosecutor in a similar case. Prosecutor John O'Hair filed a murder charge against a man who helped his cancer-stricken and elderly wife commit suicide in a motel near Detroit Metropolitan Airport in late summer.

''Assisting in suicide is against the law. There is absolutely no doubt there is legal precedent,'' Thompson said.

Thompson also said Kevorkian's attorney, Geoffrey Fieger, misinterpreted a prosecution memo that Fieger used to justify Kevorkian's use of the machine.

''He (Fieger) didn't realize we had a copy of that Aug. 28, 1987 memo,'' Thompson said, ''and the memo said the opposite ... assisting someone to commit suicide is a crime.

''Fieger was trying to deceive the public and it (the case) should be tried in court and not the press,'' Thompson said. He shouldn't be allowed to make a circus out of this case, Thompson added.

On Monday, Fieger filed a two-part motion seeking to dismiss charges against Kevorkian.

Fieger said the actions of Kevorkian in helping Adkins, who suffered from Alzheimer's disease, take her own life in the back of a van in Oakland County were not a crime under Michigan law. He also accused Thompson of misconduct which has deprived Kevorkian of his right to a fair trial.

''The dispute is over a legal issue, and not misconduct,'' Thompson said in response. ''We've enforced the law and the courts will utlimately determine if the law should be different.

If any misconduct was done, it was by Fieger by doctoring a memo that claims it says something it does not, Thompson said.

''He's been caught with a smoking gun.''

The case sparked a national debate over medical ethics and the right to die.

Thompson filed a civil action to block Kevorkian from using his machine again and last week announced criminal charges. The Michigan Court of Appeals has sidetracked the civil case while criminal prosecution is pending.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (DEC. 11) UPI - A hot-air balloon drifted into a television tower and crashed in a grove of trees near the downtown area Tuesday, killing all four people aboard, police said.

The balloon, owned by the Bogey Inn restaruant and tavern, took off from an open field in the south side of the city, drifted across Columbus and hit the 1,000-foot WBNS-TV tower.

John Remmy, a reporter for WTVN radio, was driving to work when he saw the balloon hit the tower.

''It was one those nightmares you never expect to see,'' said Remmy. ''I saw the green and white hot air balloon with Bogey Inn written on the side of it. It was too close to the tower and the side the balloon hit the side of the tower and dropped like a rock, at least 800 to 900 feet to the ground.''

Charlotte Bryant, office manager for the Bogey Inn, said she did not know who was in the balloon.

''It was our balloon but I have no other details,'' she said.

Dottie Crabtree, a secretary at a school near the launching area, said she saw the balloon being filled but did not see it take off.

''There's a big field near our school where those balloons take off,'' she said. ''When I came to work they almost had it filled.''

TOKYO (DEC. 11) UPI - Bridgestone/Firestone Inc. has launched production of Bridgestone-brand passenger car tires at the Firestone's manufacturing facility, the Japanese parent company said Tuesday.

Tokyo-based Bridgestone Corp. said production began Monday at the facility in Wilson, N.C., which was opened by Firestone in 1974.

Bridgestone Corp. acquired the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. in 1988 and merged it with its U.S. subsidiary Bridgestone (U.S.A.) Inc. to form Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc., headquartered in Akron, Ohio.

The new company began an expansion and modernization project at Wilson in early 1989, to raise the plant's capacity by about 35 percent, primarily for production of high performance tires, Bridgestone said. The project is to be completed in early 1991.

The company has 16 production facilities in North America which manufacture Bridgestone, Firestone, other brand tires, as well as a wide range of industrial and synthetic rubber goods for sale in North America.

Bridgestone said last month its has agreed with Sears, Roebuck and Co. to sell a new line of tires in the United States through more than 800 auto sales outlets of the U.S. distributor.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (DEC. 11) UPI - Christian Brando, son of actor Marlon Brando, was ordered Tuesday to stand trial next month on a first-degree murder charge in the shooting death of his half-sister's Tahitian lover.

Superior Court Judge Robert Thomas set the trial date during a hearing that had been postponed from last week, because of a miscommunication among lawyers that resulted in Christian's absence from the courtroom.

Christian, 32, appeared in court Tuesday, along with his half-brother Miko, to be ordered to appear for trial Jan. 14.

Also Tuesday, prosecutors said they are awaiting the release of a psychiatric report, expected this week, that will conclude whether Christian's half-sister Cheyenne, 20, is competent to testify in the trial.

Both sides agree Cheyenne's testimony could determine the outcome of the trial. She told police that Christian had spoken several times of killing her lover, Dag Drollet, whom Cheyenne accused of physically abusing her, before the May 16 shooting.

It is unclear whether prosecutors will be able to subpoena Cheyenne, who is in Tahiti recovering from at least two suicide attempts. Cheyenne has been ordered by Tahitian authorities to stay on the South Pacific island while they investigate her role in the shooting. Drollet's father, an influential political figure, had filed a complaint sparking the probe.

Cheyenne's U.S. lawyers said last week that a Tahitian judge has declared her incompetent, and appointed her mother as guardian over her and her baby, who was born after Drollet's death.

But Deputy District Attorney William Clark, one of the prosecutors in the case said Tuesday he believes Cheyenne was only declared incapacitated and her competence to stand trial has not yet been determined.

Christian insists he is innocent of the murder charge, alleging a . 45-caliber pistol went off accidentally during a struggle with Drollet, while they were watching television in Marlon Brando's 12-room mansion in the Hollywood Hills.

Prosecutors do not believe Christian's story, saying Drollet's body was found with a cigarette lighter in one hand and a television remote- control device in the other.

Marlon Brando, the legendary star of the ''Godfather'' movies, was not in court Tuesday.

KEY WEST, Fla. (DEC. 11) UPI - The Navy and Coast Guard searched the Gulf of Mexico Tuesday for two missing pilots whose aircraft collided while on training missions from the carrier USS Lexington.

The in-flight collision of the two TA-4 Skyhawks occurred at 4 p.m. Monday about 85 miles northwest of Key West, said Lt. Cmdr. Ray Kempisty, spokesman for Naval Education and Training in Pensacola, where the carrier is based.

The Navy identified the pilots as Cmdr. Philip F. Palmatier Jr., commanding officer of training squadron VT-25 from Chase Field Naval Air Station in Beeville, Texas, and Ensign Troy A. Moore, a student pilot assigned to training squadron VT-24, also from Chase Field.

Their ages and hometown were unavailable. Palmatier was the flight instructor, Navy spokesman Gregory Stallworth said.

One of the planes was found after the crash but the other was missing, Kempisty said. The two pilots, the only occupants of the aircraft, were on ''routine'' training missions.

It was not known whether the pilots ejected before the planes hit the water, Kempisty said.

Numerous Navy training aircraft were in the air at the time of the collision, Kempisty said. The National Weather Service reported that the weather was clear except for a few low-lying clouds.

TA-4s are twin-seat aircraft used as advanced jet trainers for the Navy. The Lexington is the Navy's only training carrier and plays host to the McDonnell Douglas-built TA-4s on Gulf training missions. During the Vietnam War, the combat version of the Skyhawk was used on missions off Navy carriers.

Navy aviators typically are given six months training, or about 100 hours of flight time, on the TA-4, culminating in two weeks of aircraft take-off and landing runs.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 11) UPI - An almost empty U.S.-chartered Boeing 707 left Baghdad Tuesday, evidence that the evacuation of all American hostages in Kuwait is probably complete, the State Department said.

But because of the remote possibility that some Americans may still be in hiding or had not had access to the Voice of America short-wave announcements about the freedom flights, another charter will be sent to Kuwait and Baghdad on Thursday.

That final flight may carry the last of the American diplomats in the beleagured American Embassy in Kuwait, Ambassador Nathaniel Howell and four others, after which the embassy compound will be effectively closed down.

On Monday, a Boeing 747 with 156 Americans returned to Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Washington after some four months as hostages.

As the State Department and White House went through the final accounting, it appeared that all the Americans who wanted to leave or could leave Kuwait and Iraq will be out on the final flight.

Left behind are somewhere around 500 people entitled to American passports, many of them foreign-born children in families where one of the spouses is an American citizen.

In some cases, according to the State Department, parents decided that they belonged in Iraq or Kuwait and chose to stay.

In others, Kuwaiti or Iraqi-born husbands with dual nationality could not get exit visas from the Iraqi government and their families chose to remain behind with them.

As the 707 flight left Kuwait for Baghdad, no Americans were aboard, but there were three unidentified Europeans who served as ''wardens,'' keeping the American citizens in Kuwait informed about events, and keeping tabs on them.

The plane carried a total of 15 passengers as it left Baghdad, according to the State Department: eight U.S. citizens, three European ''wardens,'' and four other foreign nationals.

Four other Americans were expected to leave aboard a British chartered flight Tuesday from Kuwait.

According to State Department figures, 2,520 American citizens were evacuated on U.S. chartered flights. Another 200 Americans escaped from Iraq and another 600 made their way into Saudi Arabia across the Kuwaiti desert.

In all the confusion, the State Department was given the names of about 30 people by friends or realtives, but it now appears those 30 people had never been hostages.

Just in case, the Voice of America is broadcasting the names of the 30, asking them to show up at Kuwait's airport Thursday for the final flight out.

Spokesman Richard Boucher said, ''We want to be sure we're going through every means possible to ensure that all American citizens in Kuwait are accounted for.''

He said, ''Maintaining accurate accounting under these circumstances has been impossible. However, we believe that all Americans who have desired contact with an American official have found ways to get in touch.''

The exact cost of the 13 chartered flights has not been totaled, but the cost for a 747 to Kuwait and back to the United States is around $200,000. A Boeing 707 would be less.

With the apparent end of the hostage crisis, the focus of U.S. government efforts moved toward maintaining the pressure on the Iraqi government through economic and potential military measures.

The State Department said that the U.S. acting ambassador in Baghdad, Jopseph Wilson, met Tuesday with deputy Foreign Minister Nizar Hamdoub, but there still is no agreement on a date for a trip to Baghdad by Secretary of State James Baker.

MOSCOW (DEC. 11) UPI - Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze is emerging as a contender to replace Nikolai Ryzhkov as premier of the Soviet Union, the official Tass news agency said Tuesday.

Tass indicated that a likely replacement for Shevardnadze should he leave the vital Foreign Ministry slot would be Yevgeny Primakov. Primakov recently undertook two special missions, to Iraq and the Middle East, for President Mikhail Gorbachev.

The Soviet press has swirled with reports that Ryzhkov, blamed for a series of failed economic plans, will soon resign the post he has held for five years.

Ryzhkov, whose position was further undermined by Gorbachev's new government reorganization, has said that only the Congress of People's Deputies, which opens Monday, can mandate his removal.

But Tass said, ''Ryzhkov seem certain to resign,'' and aspirants for his job have already been mentioned in what would be a shakeup at the top.

Tass said Arkady Volsky, a no-nonsense administrator who ran the troubled Nagorno-Karabakh enclave of Azerbaijan for Gorbachev, has strong supporters among the deputies to the upcoming Congress.

''He has the reputation of a tough but very competent person and is unlikely to draw fire from either the right or left,'' Tass said.

''Volsky is popular among industrial managers and has considerable experience in dealing with foreign businessmen,'' it said.

Vadim Bakatin, who was fired this month as interior minister, may also vie for Ryzhkov's job as head of government. Tass said he is very popular with the public and among lawmakers.

''Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze is another likely contender,'' Tass said, adding that his being a Georgian and not an ethnic Russian may even help him.

''He is not an ethnic Russian and this is a plus, since he will not be associated with the old command system,'' Tass said.

Engaging in rare analysis, Tass said that Gorbachev might also be seeking to divert conservative criticism from Shevardnadze.

''The right blames Shevardnadze for undermining the Soviet position in the international arena, Tass said.

But in past domestic forums, Shevardnadze has given as good as he got and generally turned criticism to cheers after finishing speaking. As such, he would not seem to need to hide behind Gorbachev's shield.

More likely is that Shevardnadze, as the former Communist boss of Georgia, could help in bringing to fruition a new unity treaty being proposed that wouldgive greater economic and political rights to the republics.

As the leader in nationalist Georgia before Gorbachev made him foreign minister, Shevardnadze is acquainted with the volatile character of nationalism. That understanding is not one of the strong points of the ethnic Russian Gorbachev.

Tass did not say directly who might replace Shevardnadze, but explained ''Presidential Council Member Yevgeny Primakov's increased involvement in foreign policy is another sign. A rumor in Moscow says that he could become the next foreign minister.''

CHICAGO (DEC. 11) UPI - A woman who took large doses of ginseng while pregnant gave birth to unusually hairy baby, raising further concerns about the safety of the widely available root extract, doctors reported Wednesday.

About nine months before she became pregnant, the 30-year-old Canadian woman started taking twice the daily recommended amount of pure Siberian ginseng tablets to combat irritability and mood swings.

The woman, who was a nurse, continued her self-imposed ginseng regimen during her pregnancy - and to the suprise of her doctors at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children gave birth to a baby boy with hair over his entire forehead and thick black hair over his genitals.

After breast feeding the baby for about two weeks, the mother stopped taking ginseng and the infant's excessive hair started falling out. By the time the baby was seven weeks old, his hair was the scant thickness typical of many babies.

Ginseng, derived from the forked, armoatic roots of several perennial herbs, has long been used as a tonic and restorative in Chinese medicine. An estimated 5 million people in North America regularily use ginseng, which is sold over-the-counter at health stores.

In a letter published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr.

Gideon Koren and his colleagues said they cannot prove that the mother's ginseng use caused her baby's hairy woes. However, they noted the woman experienced increase hair growth on her head, face and genital area while taking the ginseng, and animal tests show ginseng can boost levels of male hormones that spur hair growth.

In any event, the doctors said: ''This case, like reports of serious adverse effects in adults using high doses of ginseng, suggests the need for regulatory control.''

(DEC. 11) UPI - American officials say all the Americans who want to leave Iraq and Kuwait probably are out... but, just in case, another U-S-chartered flight will leave Baghdad on Thursday. White House news secretary Marlin Fitzwater says the flight likely will be the last. One charter flight arrived in Baghdad from Kuwait today with NO Americans on board, and officials said they were NOT concerned... that many Americans left Kuwait ealier on British flights.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze says there is NO possibility that Soviet troops will be sent into the Persian Gulf. Shevardnadze told a news conference in Houston that the possibility of Soviet troops being moved into the region is- his word- ''non-existent.'' Shevardnadze appeared with Secretary of State Baker, and both said they have agreed on some technical aspects of the strategic arms reduction talks. They say the discussions will continue tonight and tomorrow.

The National Association of Purchasing Management says its members are- quoting now- ''extremely pessimistic'' about the economy. They say a semi-annual survey of purchasing managers shows that they believe a recession will hit in the United States in the first half of 1991, with a recovery NOT coming until the last six months of the year.

Officials report NO trouble today with the Iraqi and Kuwaiti delegations sitting next to each other at a semi-annual meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Vienna. The Iranian oil minister called on his counterparts to immediately reduce production, saying the OPEC cartel should cut back 400-thousand barrels a day. But the cartel's secretary-general acknowledged that the 13-nation body canNOT set quotas as this point in time.

The Salvadoran armed forces report a second day of fighting in rural areas of El Salvador. They say rebel forces damaged a helicopter in the latest action. The two days of battles left 44 dead and 50 wounded. The Salvadoran military said the dead included 38 rebels and six government troops.

President Bush re-appointed Robert Clarke as comptroller of the currency today... apparently over the objections of chief of staff John Sununu. The White House announced the decision in a one- sentence statement. A recent report quoted administration officials as saying that Sununu was complaining that Clarke's over-sight of banks was too tough. Sununu reportedly argued that Clarke's toughness was causing a nation-wide credit crunch.

MUNICH (DEC. 11) UPI - Yugoslav Goran Ivanisevic struggled through two tiebreakers Tuesday to defeat American Kevin Curren, 7-6 (7-3), 7-6 (9- 7), in the opening match of the $6 million Grand Slam Cup.

''I knew it would be a tough match,'' said Ivanisevic, who sealed the match with an ace on his seventh match point after a tense 1 hour 50 minute battle.

The second-set tiebreak was the only highlight in a poor quality encounter, in which Ivanisevic took the first set in 44 minutes.

Both players held serve throughout the set, but Curren missed two set points in the ninth game on Ivanisevic's serve.

In the second set, Curren managed an early break to lead 2-1, taking advantage of Ivanisevic's lack of concentration following several controversial line calls.

But the Yugoslav, ranked ninth in the world, recovered, breaking Curren's serve five games later to force a second tiebreak.

Curren had the consolation of taking home $100,000 despite his first round loss.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (DEC. 11) UPI - On the eve of two crucial conferences, a poll showed Tuesday that European Community citizens are overwhelmingly in favor of a central European bank and a common defense policy.

By lesser but still impressive margins, EC citizens favor a common currency and an EC role in foreign policy toward countries outside the Community, according to the autumn Eurobarometer poll published by the EC Executive Commission.

The poll also showed overwhelming support for strengthening the powers of the 518-member European Parliament, which now has only a toothless advisory role within the EC.

On Friday, EC leaders begin a two-day summit in Rome, culminating on Saturday with the launch of twin intergovernmental conferences - on economic and monetary union and on political union.

The EMU conference will discuss creation of a central bank and a common currency, while the conference on political union will deal with forging an EC security role and strengthening EC institutions.

Both conferences, aimed at amending the EC's founding charter, the 1957 Treaty of Rome, were expected to conclude late next year.

By a margin of 56 percent to 18 percent, among those expressing an opinion, EC citizens favored a ''common European Central Bank with the heads of national central banks on its board of directors.''

Asked if they favored a single EC currency to replace national currencies within five or six years, 55 percent of respondents were in favor and 23 percent were opposed.

EC citizens favored by 66-15 percent a ''common EC policy in matters of security and defense,'' while the margin was 51-26 percent in favor of the EC, ''as a political union, being responsible for foreign policy toward countries outside the EC.''

A margin of 64-14 percent wants the European Parliament to have the right to decide on EC legislation along with the Council of Ministers.

A margin of 56-18 percent wants the Parliament to have the right to approve nominations to the EC Commission.

Currently, the European Parliament has only limited power to amend certain EC legislation, while decision-making rests with the Council of Ministers appointed by national governments.

The 17 members of the EC Commission are appointed by national governments, with the Parliament having no say.

Critics of the current EC structure say the Parliament's lack of power creates a ''democratic deficit.'' German Chancellor Helmut Kohl has been outspoken in favor of giving the Parliament more clout.

Only poll respondents in Britain (38 percent to 43 percent) and Denmark (35 percent to 50 percent) oppose a common currency, but both countries endorse the need for a European Central Bank.

Denmark also opposes (40 percent to 45 percent) giving the EC responsibility for foreign policy outside the Community.

Former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was stridently opposed to a single currency and other forms of EC integration, which led to her downfall last month as Conservative Party leader.

The new British prime minister, John Major, also opposes a single currency, but his tone toward European integration is far more conciliatory.

Major has proposed a parallel 13th EC currency that would compete alongside national currencies, acknowledging it may eventually become the sole currency.

The poll said public support for the EC has reached an all-time high, with 69 percent saying their country's membership is ''a good thing'' and 7 percent saying it is ''a bad thing.''

(DEC. 11) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Schevardnadze reportedly has dismissed U-S suggestions that Moscow send a small military force to the Persian Gulf, saying that Soviet public opinion would be against such a move. The published report indicates that the suggestion came from Secretary of State Baker when he met with Schevardnadze in Houston yesterday.

Iraq has tactfully confirmed reports that many of its citizens, and possibly some of its soldiers, want nothing to do with the country. The Revolutionary Command Council has issued a pardon for all dissidents and army deserters, provided they return to Iraq within two months. There have been reports of Iraqi soldiers deserting their posts and fleeing to neighboring countries.

Secretary of State Baker and the Soviet foreign minister are wrapping up their talks in Houston one day earlier than planned. They will fly to Washington, D-C, tonight for a meeting with President Bush at the White House tomorrow.

Industrialist Armand Hammer is dead at the age of 92. The man who built Occidental Petroleum into an industrial giant died last night in Los Angeles following a brief illness. His death came one day before he was to celebrate his bar mitzvah, the Jewish ceremony that young men take part in during their early teens. Family members say the ceremony, planned as a fund-raiser, will be held as scheduled but it will become a tribute to Hammer instead.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 11) UPI - The U.S. current account deficit increased to $25.6 billion in the third quarter from $22.5 billion in the previous quarter, the Commerce Department said Tuesday.

The government said the increase was more than accounted for by an increase in the merchandise trade deficit, which rose to $29.8 billion in the third quarter from $23.1 billion in the second quarter. The increase in the merchandise trade deficit was the first since the third quarter of last year.

Imports increased to $125.9 billion from $119.9 billion largely due to gains in petroleum imports, which accounted for more than 50 percent of the increase. Most of the increase in petroleum imports reflected higher oil prices, the government said. Lower volumes of agricultural exports pushed overall export values down to $96.2 billion from $96.8 billion.

The balance of investment income shifted to a surplus of $2.5 billion during the quarter from a $1 billion deficit in the second quarter. Receipts from U.S. assets abroad increased to $33.1 billion from $30.7 billion. Income from foreign assets in the United States decreased to $30.6 billioon from $31.7 billion.

Foreign purchases of U.S. Treasury securities slowed to $500 million in the third quarter from $3.6 billion in the second quarter. Foreign transactions in other forms of U.S. securities shifted to sales of $1.5 billion from purchases of $2.9 billion.

"Foreign investors were net sellers of U.S. stocks for the fourth consecutive quarter as continued uncertainty about the U.S. economic outlook and lower U.S. stock prices fueled sales," the Commerce Department said.

Foreign direct investment in the United States increased to $7.6 billion in the quarter from $7.2 billion. Purchases of foreign securities by U.S. investors decreased to $900 million from a record $11.2 billion in the second quarter. The government attributed the decrease to "uncertainty in financial markets and sharply lower foreign stock prices."

WILLOW SPRINGS, Ill. (DEC. 11) UPI - Gravediggers using a backhoe Tuesday dug up a potters' field, looking for the remains of a woman who officials suspect may be Helen Vorhees Brach, the candy heiress who has been missing for almost 14 years.

Workmen began digging at Mount Glenwood Memory Gardens in Willow Springs about 6:30 a.m. Jerry Singer, a spokesman for the Department of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said he did not know how long the digging would take because as many as 30 bodies might be buried in the grave.

Brach was 65 when she disappeared in February 1977 after she was released from the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., where she had undergone a physical and was given a clean bill of health.

Singer has said federal investigators obtained a court order to exhume the body based on new information his agency received. The new information was sealed along with the exhumation order, barring public release.

The body that investigators want to study is that of a woman found in 1978 in Wentworth Woods south of Chicago. The body's fingertips and teeth were missing preventing identification at the time.

Scientists hired by the government plan to use DNA testing to determine whether the remains are Brach's.

''The fact that they have gone to all this trouble and have made such a project of it leads me to believe that they have some very solid information '' said Cadwalader Menck, the court-appointed attorney for Brach's estate between 1977 and 1981.

Menck said when the remains originally were found, ''the medical examiner as I recall said, 'No, it wasn't Mrs. Brach.'''

Brach's brother, Charles Vorhees, has said he doubts the remains are those of his sister because the body was several inches shorter than Helen Brach, who was declared legally dead in 1984 and her estate disbursed.

The last confirmed sighting of Brach, the heiress of the Brach candy fortune, was in Minnesota. However, her chauffeur and houseman, John Matlick, told investigators he picked her up from O'Hare International Airport and brought her to her Glenview home. He said he then took her back to O'Hare for a flight to Florida where she was to visit friends.

Investigators have said there was no evidence she took either flight.

It recently has been speculated Brach may have been killed because she was about to release details of a horse trading fraud.

THOKOZA, SOUTH AFRICA (DEC. 11) UPI - Rival tribal factions agreed to work for peace in the battle-torn black township of Thokoza Tuesday after clashes killed at least 37 people and turned the streets into urban combat zones.

Xhosa supporters of the African National Congress and Zulus of the Inkatha movement met through the afternoon under police mediation and said in a joint statement at dusk they would ''appeal to their members'' to stop the black-on-black violence and encourage ''political tolerance. ''

Before the peace talks began, groups of shouting Zulus and Xhosas clashed in roads and open lots of the townships and the neighboring Phola Park squatter camp, wielding crude sharp weapons and firing AK-47 assault rifles at one another, security forces, journalists and residents.

''It's like a military operational area here, it's like the border,'' said an army corporal, referring to South Africa's past bush war in Namibia. Leading a 10-man patrol down an alley strewn with pieces of brick and mortar, he added ''this is the worst day here for weeks.''

Gangs erected burning roadblocks at intersections and angrily warned off motorists with shouts and threats.

''We will drink your blood,'' one man shouted in Zulu at approaching drivers.

Hundreds of soldiers and police poured into the area early Tuesday but were unable to quell the conflict before the peace meeting. Troops resorted to helping the streams of refugees seeking respite from the carnage in fields and along highways bordering the settlements.

More than 90 people have died in Thokoza and Phola Park since fighting flared last week, pushing the death toll in townships around Johannesburg since last Sunday to at least 120.

Police put the number of fatalities since violence flared overnight in the township and squatter camp at 37 and the injured at about 80, but they expected more deaths as patrols continued to discover bodies.

''We're going to be updating these figures, that's for sure,'' a police spokesman said.

The Zulus, who support the Inkatha movement, and Xhosa followers of the African National Congress began the peace talks in the afternoon under mediation of police Chief Operations Officer Gen. Jan Malan.

But spokeswoman Capt. Ida van Zweel said, ''There are no guarantees the violence has ended ... there is still some fighting.''

Minister of Law and Order Adriaan Vlok called on residents to ''stop this senseless feuding'' and said ''violence will not solve any problems ... it will only cause more.''

ANC Deputy President Nelson Mandela plans to go with a delegation of church, political and business leaders to the area Wednesday to examine the situation first-hand but Inkatha leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi rejected an invitation from the South African Council of Churches to join him.

Some of the patrolling troops said they were initially unable to localize the fighting.

''It breaks out here, it breaks out there... there's no set piece, we're not trained for this kind of thing,'' one lieutenant said.

Thokoza was a major flashpoint during South Africa's worst outbreak of urban factional fighting, over six weeks to mid-September, when battles between predominantly Xhosa supporters of the ANC and Zulus killed up to 800 people.

President Frederik de Klerk and Mandela have met twice to discuss the conflict. Their talks Saturday followed a larger-scale meeting Nov. 27 and after both encounters they committed themselves to solving the violence through peaceful negotiations.

NEW YORK (DEC. 11) UPI - Ivana Trump was divorced Tuesday in New York State Supreme Court from financially troubled real estate tycoon Donald Trump following an ten-month separation marked by squabbles over her share of his shrinking estate. In filing for divorce, Mrs. Trump, 41, accused her 44-year-old husband of "verbal abuse and intimidation."

Michael Kennedy, Ivana's attorney, announced that the divorce for which she filed last month, was granted Tuesday morning. Asked for details concerning his client's divorce settlement and custody of the couple's three children, Kennedy replied, "No further comment."

Ivana filed a pre-nuptial agreement with Trump which was updated three times during their 13-year marriage. It provided her with a settlement of about $25 million in case of a divorce, including a lump sum in cash and their mansion in Greenwich, Conn.

Kennedy countered with a claim on her behalf to one-half of Trump's estate, estimated in 1989 at $1.7 billion, on the grounds that she had helped build his fortune as manager of his Atlantic City, N.J., hotel-casinos and president of the Plaza Hotel in New York.

In the past year, Trump's fortune has waned to the point where he probably owes more to creditors than the value of his assets, which have been hit by the declining real estate market, according to Wall Street sources. He recently saved his Taj Mahal casino in Atlantic City from bankruptcy by giving bondholders a say in management.

Also involved in the complexities of the Trump divorce was Donald's romance with model and would-be actress Marla Maples, 26, who was named in Ivana's original claim against Donald's fortune.

Trump admitted his "friendship" with Maples and she proclaimed her love for him, but the affair seems to have cooled in recent weeks as Trump appeared more often with other young models than he did with Maples.

DALLAS (DEC. 11) UPI - Two years after the collapse of First RepublicBank Corp., a federal grand jury has subpoenaed sworn statements from former employees about the ill-fated merger that created Texas' largest banking company, the Dallas Times Herald reported Tuesday.

According to U.S. District Court filings, federal investigators have asked for depositions from at least 11 former midlevel officials of InterFirst Corp. and RepublicBank Corp. The inquiry apparently is in the early stages and no charges have been filed. Investigators declined to discuss the matter.

First Republic's banks were seized by federal regulators in July 1988 and sold to NCNB Corp. of Charlotte, N.C., in a $3 billion bailout, the largest bank rescue in U.S. history.

Investigators are seeking depositions taken by attorneys for investors in a class action against former RepublicBank and InterFirst officers who engineered the merger and their financial advisers, the newspaper said.

Shareholders who bought securities during the merger sued the top executives, claiming they misrepresented the financial condition of RepublicBank's loan portfolio before the deal.

Last week, the executives, including former RepublicBank Chairman Gerald Fronterhouse, former InterFirst Chairman Robert Stewart III and H.R. "Bum" Bright, one of First Republic's largest shareholders and former owner of the Dallas Cowboys, agreed to pay $19.5 million to settle the lawsuit while denying blame.

The Sept. 19 subpoena, signed by Michael Ruggio, a U.S. Justice Department attorney and member of the Dallas Bank Fraud Task Force, ordered the depositions of 11 former midlevel executives, including James Erwin.

Erwin, past InterFirst executive, is now president of Financial Resource Management, the NCNB Texas National Bank unit under contract with federal regulators to sift through First Republic's loan portfolio.

John Ellis and Bill McMurray, former real estate appraisers for InterFirst whose statements also were subpoenaed, would not comment. Erwin and the others included in the subpoena could not be reached, the report said.

Investigators ordered that "all present and future depositions" be turned over to the FBI in Dallas. The FBI earlier this year interviewed former First Republic employees, according to people with knowledge of the investigation.

The grand jury also asked for testimony by John Mercer, a U.S. Comptroller of the Currency official responsible for overseeing First Republic, the newspaper said.

The grand jury did not seek depositions from the top executives involved in the lawsuit. Attorneys for the executives said their clients have not been contacted by investigators.

"We've had absolutely no indication the Justice Department or anyone is looking at my clients," said Robert Crotty, attorney for Stewart and former First Republic Vice Chairmen Harvey Mitchell and Ronald Steinhart, who also are named in the lawsuit. "Our guys have done nothing wrong and there's no reason for anyone to be looking." Other former First Republic officials declined comment personally or through attorneys.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders last month denied a request by the class-action plaintiffs' law firm, Susman Godfrey, to quash the subpoena. At the time of the First RepublicBank merger, officials touted the deal as a way to create a Southwestern banking giant that could withstand the depths of the real estate lending crisis.

Shortly after the transaction, First RepublicBank took a $1.7 billion provision for possible loan losses in recognition of the declining value of its real estate loan portfolio. The newly created bank posted a record $347.8 million loss in the fourth quarter of 1987.

According to the class action, RepublicBank officials failed to properly state the value of the loan portfolio to investors who purchased $200 million in stock to finance the merger.

The lawsuit still is pending against financial advisers Morgan Stanley & Co., Salomon Bros., Goldman Sachs & Co., and Ernst & Young, RepublicBank's accounting firm.

SAN ANTONIO (DEC. 11) UPI - An 86-year-old man outran a would-be bicycle thief, sprinting about 300 yards to save his bike and nab the 11-year- old boy for police.

''He fought back,'' Jose Navarro said Monday after he had reclaimed his bicycle. ''He tried to get loose and I warded off his licks.''

Navarro, a retired test driver, said he had parked his 12-speed bicycle on a street corner so he could purchase a newspaper when the boy tried to steal the bike.

''He took the bike but the old man is very well-built and chased him down,'' Police Detective Dennis Booher said.

The boy was remanded to the Bexar County Juvenile Detention Center.

Navarro said he ''was breathing a little heavy'' but not injured.

''I believe in exercise,'' Navarro said. ''I have since I was young. I ride my bike 10 to 20 miles a day, five days a week. I go all over.''

BRUSSELS (DEC. 11) UPI - Acting in the wake of collapsed trade talks, the European Community has placed the issue of world trade negotiations on the agenda of its summit meeting scheduled for this week in Rome, officials said Tuesday.

At the last EC summit, in Rome Oct. 27-28, Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti rejected calls by Margaret Thatcher, then the British prime minister that the trade talks, which collapsed over the issue of farm subsidies, be discussed.

Andreotti holds the rotating EC presidency until Jan. 1, when it passes to Luxembourg.

''I think we ought to look at the situation of the Uruguay Round, after the decision of the Brussels conference,'' Andreotti said in a letter to EC Commission President Jacques Delors, which also was received in EC capitals.

The Uruguay Round of talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade adjourned in disarray last Friday in Brussels, after the EC resisted calls by the United States and other farm-exporting nations to sharply cut farm subsidies.

An Italian diplomat in Brussels said Andreotti's letter should not be interpreted as seeking a change in the EC position, only that the Italian prime minister felt the issue needed a full discussion by EC leaders. The EC is unwilling to accept the demands of the United States and other nations which want it to lower farm subsidies.

The October EC summit ended with only a vague statement on the need to successfully conclude the GATT talks, but there was no substantive discussion of the EC position.

The United States says it will resist efforts to revive the GATT talks in Geneva next month unless the EC brings new flexibility to the negotiating table.

A meeting is scheduled Friday in Brussels between U.S. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter and EC Agriculture Commissioner Ray MacSharry.

Andreotti's three-page letter says the summit should also discuss progress of the EC's 1992 single-market program, aid to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, efforts to combat drug trafficking, and relations with Latin America and the countries of the European Free Trade Association.

The letter also called for discussion of the Gulf crisis and the Middle East in general, as well as South Africa.

The summit begins Friday morning and ends at midday Saturday, followed by the launch Saturday afternoon of twin intergovernmental conferences, on political union and on economic and monetary union.

NEW YORK (DEC. 11) UPI - The nation's purchasing managers Tuesday predicted the U.S. economy would be in recession during the first half of 1991 and then recover in the second half.

In its semi-annual economic forecast, the National Association of Purchasing Management said overall nominal growth - before adjusting for inflation - will be a ''weak'' 2.2 percent in 1991.

Robert Bretz, chairman of the association's business survey committee and director of corporate purchasing at Pitney Bowes Inc., said ''although pessimistic about a recession in 1991, purchasers expect a recovery to begin in the later half of the year, fueled by continued relatively strong growth in exports and a declining trend in inflation.''

The forecast said members surveyed were ''extremely pessimistic'' about the first six months of 1991. Comparing their outlook for the first half of next year to the last half of 1990, only 22 percent forecast the next six months will be better, while almost twice as many members (43 percent) thought it would be worse.

But the number of purchasing executives who said the second half of l991 should be better than the first six months rose to 51 percent and those who predicted it would be worse dropped to 11 percent.

''To conclude that purchasing executives expect 1991 to be a difficult year would clearly be an understatement,'' the association said.

The NAPM conducts its semi-annual and monthly forecasts based on responses from 300 members to questionnaires. The association represents about 34,000 purchasing executives.

By a ratio of 4-to-1, purchasing executives said they expected to see a recession in 1991. A full 80 percent of members predicted a recession while only 20 percent did not foresee a recession next year.

In the association's last semi-annual survey in May - before Iraq's invasion of Kuwait - only 19 percent anticipated a recession in 1990 and 81 percent did not.

The association forecast ''relatively strong'' growth in exports for at least the first half of next year, while imports were expected to decrease.

The number of members anticipating a moderate increase in exports rose to 56 percent from 53 percent in May.

''This is a clear signal that even in a declining economy expanding exports can again be expected to provide the major component of growth in 1991,'' the association said in its forecast.

But the purchasing executives were bleak in their outlook for Christmas retail sales.

In viewing the prospect for sales in their geographic areas, 34 percent of the members surveyed expected sales to be poor and only 9 percent had optimistic expectations.

The 34 percent was almost six times higher than the number forecasting poor Christmas sales at the same time last year and the largest percentage since December 1982, when the last recession was underway.

On the outlook for the next 12 months a record 12 percent of members were ''worried or pessimistic'' - the highest percentage since December 1982 and substantially above the 2 percent recorded in May.

Members said they expected prices to rise through the end of April by an average of 2 percent.

Bretz said by far the largest factor propelling the increase in prices increase was the oil price rise triggered by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait in August.

The members further predicted an overall increase in prices of 3.2 percent by the end of 1991.

Responding to questions on the reasons for a brighter outlook in the second half of 1991, Bretz said members had not been specifically asked their views but his own view was that the 1991 recession would be relatively mild.

He pointed out that inventory levels are lower than in previous recessions and at their lowest point in the last 10 years to 15 years.

Bretz said exports account for a much bigger percentage of the nation's economy than in the past and exports may be stimulated because foreign economies are in better shape than the U.S. economy.

Asked whether a resolution of the gulf crisis would have a significant impact on the U.S. economy, Bretz said he believes a recession would have occurred anyway and that a settlement in the gulf would not have much effect.

He said the problems of high debt and overconsumption must be overcome before the economy can begin to turn around.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 11) UPI - Israeli settlers, whether ideologues or just people looking for a better life, seem undeterred by the violence of the 3-year-old Palestinian uprising and growing protests over their government's policies in the occupied territories.

"We can't explain it; nobody can explain it," said Ya'acov Eshel, from Kedumim a settlement of 1,800 mostly religious Jews near the West Bank town of Nablus. ''We have long waiting lists of families who are really pressing to join our community.''

Figures from settlement leaders indicate that during the third year of the Palestinian uprising, known in Arabic as the intifada, about 17,000 more settlers joined the 140 Jewish settlements in what they call the ''liberated territories.''

Eshel, an ideological hardliner and member of the religious nationalist Gush Emunim, or Bloc of the Faithful, opposes giving up any of the ''sacred territories'' Israel captured during the 1967 Israeli-Arab war.

But he knows that many of the 95,000 settlers living in the territories came because of better and cheaper housing, not for ideological reasons.

''When the intifada started, one of our fears was that those settlers who are not highly ideologically motivated would say, 'We are not going to endanger our families, our children. Let's go and live somewhere else,''' Eshel said.

Still, to Eshel's suprise, when very few left and more came to stay, ''We very quickly realized that they are no less ideological than the others.''

An image transformation has been a key factor in the settler's success in attracting Israelis to the West Bank and Gaza Strip, despite the danger of daily rock-throwing and occasional shootings.

From a militant religious sect campaigning for the annexation of the territories, settlers have in recent years adopted an image of a ''move to the countryside'' movement advocating a mix of pioneering spirit and suburban quality of life.

''Now is the time to stake your claim to the Jewish homeland, to seek out a better quality of life, to enjoy country living,'' says a brochure that advocates living in the West Bank settlement of Ariel, an island of 9,000 Jews in a sea of Palestinian hostility.

''We are the pioneers of the 1990s,'' said Dina Shalit, Ariel's municipal spokeswoman.

''Many of us, particularly those of us who are immigrants, were brought up on stories of clearing the desert and the swamps and today we have the opportunity to bear mountains of rocky hills into suburban villages,'' Shalit said.

Large settlements like Ariel or Ma''aleh Adumim have been cashing in heavily on this new brand of lifestyle pioneers, especially since hundreds of thousands of Soviet Jews have started immigrating to Israel since 1989.

Less than 1 percent of the 150,000 Soviet immigrants who arrived in Israel since January 1990 have settled in the territories. But a growing shortage of housing and steep rents have driven many Israeli families over the green line -the pre-1967 Israeli border - in search of cheaper housing during the uprising's third year.

''It's not just the price, it's the availability,'' said Ben Greenberger, deputy mayor of Ma'aleh Adumim, a settlement of 13,000 Jews established in the late 1970s near Jerusalem.

Greenberger, a softspoken 41-year-old former law professor from New York, moved to the settlement in 1983 ''because of the lifestyle.'' Greenberger said the intifada has had no visible effect on the stream of Israelis who want to settle in the suburban community and he expects its population to double by 1995.

Israelis moving to settlements like Ma'aleh Adumim are attracted by cheaper prices for appartments and considerable tax benefits. A 2 1/2 room apartment will cost $50,000 to $60,000, 30 percent less than in nearby Jerusalem. In addition they only pay 7 percent income tax and receive free preschooling for their children.

Jewish settlement in the West Bank increased dramatically since 1977, when the right-wing Likud Party came to power, and continued growing during Likud's coalition with the center-left Labor Party. From 5,000 settlers in 1977, the Jewish population in the West Bank reached 67,000 on the eve of the Palestinian uprising in 1987.

Settler leaders claim more than 25,000 Jews have joined their ranks since the start of the intifada. More than 1 million Palestinians live in the West Bank and 700,000 in the Gaza Strip.

(DEC 11) UPI - Clear skies and seasonable temperatures covered much of the nation Tuesday but a blanket of fog in Tennessee contributed to a 100-car pileup that killed six people and injured 50.

Elsewhere, gusty winds made New Englanders shiver and clouds covered parts of the West as a frontal system moved in off the ocean. An arctic air mass moved into Maine during the night bringing strong northwesterly winds and scattered flurries in the mountains, but a high pressure system followed with clear skies.

Nearly all of New England saw the thermometer drop into the low 20s, with Boston reporting winds that moved at 20 to 30 mph. The gusts prompted a small craft advisory from the Merrimack River in Massachusetts to Watch Hill, R.I.

The Tennessee disaster occurred about 10 a.m. EST after a tractor- trailer rig jackknifed between the towns of Cleveland and Athens.

''Then everybody else just plowed right into the fog bank,'' said Cecil Whaley of the Tennessee Emergency Management Agency. ''It's a mess. We've got six dead and 50 injured. They just hit each other going full speed. They were blinded by the fog. They never saw the accident until it was too late.''

Ten tractor-trailer rigs were involved and three burst into flames, Whaley said. One of the flaming trucks carried the hazardous substance organic peroxide, and the fumes overcame at least two state troopers, he said.

The West had a chance for some much needed rain Tuesday with clouds covering Southern California and northwest Nevada as a cold front that forced an early landing for a space shuttle mission moved into the area.

Forecasters said there was a 20 percent chance of showers for Los Angeles, which has suffered drought conditions for the last two years.

Washington state, which has had no shortage of rain recently, had occasional showers and local fog Tuesday morning with lows in the mid 30s.

The South and much of the central third of the nation enjoyed sparkling clear winter skies and seasonal temperatures that ranged from lows just below freezing in northern Florida to the upper 20s in Pittsburgh.

Temperatures were expected to warm up in the next several days as a warm front moved through the Midwest.

Tennessee emergency crews are using spotlights to search the mangled wreckage of 70 cars and trucks involved in chain-reaction collisions on Interstate 75. At least 14 people were killed and 51 others injured in what one official termed- ''without question the worst traffic accident in the history of Tennessee.'' Crews are expected to work into the night looking for more victims in the accidents that began when fog rolled out of the Hiwassee River

PARIS (DEC. 11) UPI - France will send 4,000 more troops to Saudi Arabia by Jan. 15, boosting its contingent in the Persian Gulf area to about 10, 000, official sources said Tuesday.

Defense Minister Jean-Pierre Chevenement said Monday the French force, code-named ''Operation Daguet,'' would be reinforced before Jan. 15 in response to a request by the French commander in the field. But Chevenement gave no details of the reinforcement and initial estimates were for only about 1,000 extra troops, most of them artillery gunners, backed by warplanes and tanks.

But official sources disclosed Tuesday there would be about 4,000 men sent. There are about 6,250 French forces in the area now.

The 4,000 will include an artillery regiment equipped with 155 mm cannon, a regiment of AMX-30 B2 heavy tanks and a regiment of combat helicopters, according to the sources.

French officials have said the increase is necessary because of the change in the character of the Western mission following the passing of a U.N. resolution justifying the use of force to remove Iraq from Kuwait after Jan. 15 if necessary.

VATICAN CITY (DEC. 11) UPI - Pope John Paul II congratulated Lech Walesa on his election as president of Poland, praising the Solidarity leader in a message published Tuesday as a man ''who had faith, hoping against all hope.''

The Polish pope gave his blessing to Walesa, his wife and family and all his ''collaborators, present and future,'' and to ''all those who have the well-being of Poland in their hearts.''

''The Polish people, despite the difficulties of the first free elections since the war, have entrusted itself to the man who had faith, hoping against all hope,'' the pope's message said.

He recalled the long struggle of Walesa and his Solidarity union, which John Paul himself helped to its ultimate triumph with support through the bleak years when Solidarity was outlawed by Poland's communist rulers.

The church in overwhelmingly Catholic Poland openly supported Walesa before his landslide election victory Sunday.

''It is not possible not to recall to memory at this moment the image of the naval shipyards of Gdansk in the year 1980 and all that it has become now under the guidance of yourself, its representative and symbol,'' John Paul told Walesa.

''This image is fixed in the eyes of Poles and the entire world,'' he said. ''It has become a living sign of the aspirations of peoples and nations for freedom and self-determination.

''It has been a cry for respect of the dignity of man,'' the pope said. ''Solidarity, Polish solidarity, has in this way restored this dignity to all those in the world who have struggled for their human rights.

''It is in this light that I see the Nobel Peace Prize which was awarded to you and all the other tributes,'' the pope told Walesa. ''It is in this light also that I see your election as president of the Polish republic.''

The pope described his native land's turbulent 1,000-year history as ''a sea of suffering, of errors and defeats, but also of victories, successes and often of ideas and exemplary accomplishments within the human family.

''It is not possible to receive such a heredity, except on one's knees.'' he said.

John Paul said all men of good will realize that Poland faces ''a very difficult reality which requires the unity of all its forces and a strong reference to the system of values that has formed our nation in the course of the centuries.

''It calls for effective treatment for all the wounds of the nation, including those sustained during the most recent period,'' the pope said.

Expressing his ''cordial congratulations and good wishes'' to Walesa, a devout Catholic, the pope said he entrusted Poland to the Madonna of Czestochowa, regarded by Polish Catholics as the protectress of the nation.

He said was praying to grant Walesa ''the strength and inspiration of which the president of a great nation has need to restore to it dignity and union and place it in peaceful collaboration with all the nations of the world.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 11) UPI - The nation's banks, under steady pressure from deteriorating real estate assets, will cause a loss of $4 billion to the federal bank insurance fund this year, the government's top bank regulator said Tuesday.

L. William Seidman, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., increased to $4 billion from $3 billion his estimate of losses to the insurance fund, which protects depositors when banks fail.

Seidman, at a news conference to detail third-quarter bank performance, said plans should be drawn up to recapitalize the fund. But, he added, the recapitalization is not needed now.

''Definitely, right now, we're not running out (of money),'' he said. ''I think we can handle what we see ahead.''

Seidman said the overall banking system remains solid, despite the steady erosion of bank assets caused by the deteriorating value of real estate assets.

''The overall system, clearly on the numbers, is sound. The system is not collapsing,'' Seidman said. ''I don't think there are any reasons for the average depositor to be concerned.''

So far this year, 134 banks have failed, down from 162 failures the same time a year ago. Regulators expect the number of bank failures this year to drop below 200 for the first time since 1986.

Overall, the nation's banks earned $3.75 billion in the third quarter, down 29 percent from their $5.3 billion profit in the second quarter. In the year-earlier period, however, banks posted a $770 million loss.

For the first nine months of the year, bank earnings totaled $15.4 billion, up 13 percent from the same period the year before. Seidman attributed the improvement to large additions to reserves made last year for losses on loans to developing nations.

Without the drain on last year's profits caused by the additional reserves, overall bank profits would have shown a year-to-year decline, the FDIC said.

Banks set aside $8.3 billion in loss provisions during the quarter. This amount is $4.4 billion less than was set aside in the year-earlier quarter.

Total assets of commercial banks grew by $20 billion during the quarter, but much of this growth came from real estate, which accounts for about one-third of all bank assets.

''We still have far too much risk in the banking industry,'' Seidman said.

The average return on assets during the quarter slipped to 0.45 percent from 0.64 percent in the previous quarter.

Real estate lending continued to be a source of credit-quality problems for commercial banks, primarily at banks in the Northeast and Southeast. The FDIC said banks in the Northeast also are beginning to have problems with other types of commerical loans as well.

''The economy in the Northeast continues to weaken, and this is reflected in declining performance indicators for real estate, commercial and consumer loans,'' the FDIC said.

The value of non-current real estate loans rose 12.6 percent - or $3. 6 billion - to $31.3 billion during the quarter. Banks also added $2.3 billion to their inventory of foreclosed properties.

So far this year, bank losses on real estate loans have increased to $3.9 billion, up 82.7 percent from year-earlier levels.

Non-current commercial and industrial loans are also on the rise, growing to $24.6 billion during the quarter, up $1.2 billion from the second quarter. Losses on commercial loans totaled $1.9 billion during the quarter.

Consumer loan delinquencies increased 10.4 percent, or $1.7 billion, to $14 billion. Losses on consumer loans totaled $1.8 billion in the quarter and $5.1 billion so far this year. Consumer loan losses are 20 percent higher this year than last year.

COUNTRY CLUB HILLS, Ill. (DEC. 11) UPI - The students at Nob Hill Elementary School almost had to sing lines like ''we wish you a merry censored'' and ''oh censored tree.''

The word ''Christmas'' had been banned from the school's choral program but the prohibition was lifted just in time for the Tuesday night performance.

Hoping to keep the presentation secular, District 144 Superintendent Jack Felger had ordered students to substitute a word for ''Christmas'' each time it appeared in a song.

In rehearsals, Nob Hill music teacher Anthony Edison was told to substitute words like ''holiday'' for ''Christmas'' but he also taught students to sing the word ''censored'' whenever ''Christmas'' appeared in a song.

''That (use of 'censored') was the rebel in me,'' Edison said.

Parents protested the ''Christmas'' ban and Assistant Superintendent Cuttie Bacon, who will take over for Felger on Jan. 1, lifted the prohibition.

''We are so delighted (the ban has been lifted) and you should see the kids,'' said Sharon Rybak, a member of the local parent-teacher organization told the Chicago Sun-Times. ''They're jumping up and down because they've got Christmas back.''

Edison said none of the songs he chooses for holiday programs are explicitly religious because he feels they are inappropriate for a public school audience of diverse cultures and religions.

Rybak and others plan to take petitions with more than 170 signatures to the school board meeting Dec. 17. They want a written policy governing Christmas trees and carols.

BERLIN (DEC. 11) UPI - A German property tycoon is giving a historic castle to each of his 12 children - including the 1-year-old - for Christmas, a report said Tuesday.

International property dealer Herbert Hillebrandt has turned his passion for buying up the historic homes of former German nobility into a hobby.

''I am giving each of my 12 children a castle for Christmas,'' he said, according to the daily newspaper Bild Zeitung.

Hillebrand, whose property company is based in the city of Cologne, owns 21 historic castles throughout Germany.

''I consider historic monuments and castles a worthwhile investment,'' the multi-millionaire said.

Hillebrandt has eight children from two marriages and four he adopted from Colombian orphanages. One of the properties he is handing over is a 14th century moated castle, bought for his 1-year-old daughter, Maria Theresa.

CAIRO, EGYPT (DEC. 11) UPI - The 139th attempt to find Alexander the Great has gotten off to a shaky start and many fear it will end like the previous 138 attempts - in futility.

An Islamic history professor is convinced the great Macedonian king, who conquered much of the known world before the age of 30 in the fourth century B.C., is buried in a vault beneath an Alexandria mosque, and he has asked the Department of Antiquities for permission to search for the tomb.

The Egyptian professor, Mohammad Abdulaziz, says he has two witnesses who have seen Alexander's burial place in a cavern deep under the Prophet Daniel Mosque in the historic Mediterranean city founded by the Macedonian king.

However a professor of Greek histroy has dissmissed the claim, saying he personally has explored under the mosque and found nothing more enticing than some water tanks dating to the 5th century A.D.

The dispute has caused something of a flap among Alexandria residents and the international archaeological community. But it is only the latest controversy in an escalating campaign to find the final resting place of Alexander, which is in turn part of a larger campaign to restore Alexandria to its former glory and increase its tourism potential to boot.

Now the Department of Antiquities must decide whether to grant Abdulaziz's request to probe under the mosque, the 139th proposal to Alexander the Great search it has dealt with in recent times, according to Egyptian media reports.

''I am not going to tear down the mosque or the shrine,'' Abdulaziz said recently in answer to critics who fear he will disturb the Islamic holy site. ''I don't mean to search by digging and destroying and scratching. But I am sure the tomb of Alexander the Great exists.''

The Macedonian king, whose empire stretched from Greece to modern-day India to Egypt, died in 323 B.C. at the age of 33 in Babylon and was, by historic accounts, buried in a royal cemetery in Alexandria, the city on the Egyptian Mediterranean he had founded a decade earlier.

Under the Ptolemies, who built the great Alexandria library, Alexandria flourished as the literary and scientific center of the Hellenistic world and, under the Romans, it became a center of commerce.

But archaeologists say that over the centuries of invasions, fires and reconstruction, the exact location of Alexander's tomb became lost to history.

Now archaeologists dispute the exact size of the origninal city and the location of the royal district where Alexander was said to have been buried.

The confusion has bred a small army of explorers, professionals and amateurs of all nationalities and Alexandrians from all walks of life, who have poked and prodded and dug in an as-yet unsuccessful bid to find Alexander's mortal remains.

''Alexander the Great is famous throughout the world so the tourism and news potential of the discovery of his tomb would be considerable,'' one magazine said in explaining the vigorous search.

Egypt has been attempting to restore Alexandria to some of its former glory, planning a new Alexandria library to rival the long-destroyed ancient library and promoting the city as a tourism center.

But so far the search for Alexander has brought more embarrassment than glory. A taxi driver armed with maps almost convinced authorities that the king was located under one of the city's most prominent office buildings.

Others believe he is buried under the Al Ramle metro station and still others think he is interred somewhere in the old Roman cemetery that still exists.

Abdulaziz, a professor of Islamic histry at Alexandria University, said he has approached the search by a new angle, studying the early Islamic period between 600 and 1,000 A.D. when the tomb disappeared from memory. His research has led him to the Prophet Daniel Mosque, which he says is located on the site of a crossroads of two ancient Alexandria thoroughfares.

Fawzi al Fahkarani, a professor of Greek history at the same university, says he believes Alexander is in the Roman cemetery and not under the Islamic mosque.

''We have done excavations beneath the Prophet Daniel Mosque but we have found no tunnels leading to tombs,'' he said. ''On the contrary, we just found some water tanks.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 11) UPI - The tobacco industry Tuesday renewed its campaign aimed at discouraging teenagers from smoking, but anti-smoking forces attacked the effort as a publicity stunt and bid to head off tougher laws.

Brennan Dawson, vice president of The Tobacco Institute, said a ''multi-million dollar'' national advertising program will offer parents educational materials to help dissuade their children from smoking.

''Young people smoke primarily because of peer pressure. We are addressing this directly with a major program to assist parents in reducing that peer pressure,'' Dawson told a news conference.

About 50 million Americans currently smoke, and an estimated 390,000 Americans die each year from lung cancer, heart disease and other illnesses caused by smoking.

Six years ago, with much fanfare, the Tobacco Institute instituted a similar program to ''Help Youth say 'No''' to tobacco. However, since that time, smoking rates have remained level among U.S. teenagers, and have even risen among teenage girls.

''Reducing youth smoking cannot be accomplished by a single action. That's why the tobacco industry is tackling this problem on many fronts, '' Dawson said.

However, Fran Du Melle of the Coalition on Smoking or Health - which represents the American Cancer Society, the American Lung Association and the American Heart Association - called the campaign ''little more than a clever smokescreen.''

''If the tobacco industry were really serious about discouraging tobacco use by children, it would stop its constant barrage of advertising campaigns targeted at young people, such as the recent and ongoing 'Camel Smooth Character' campaign, and its ongoing sponsorship of youth oriented activities such as rock concerts and women's tennis,'' Du Melle said.

In addition to educational material for parents, the guidelines announced Tuesday by the $44 billion-a-year industry include:

-Cigarette samples will not be distributed in or on public streets, sidewalks or parks, except in places that are open only to people of legal age to buy cigarettes. Cigarette advertising on billboards must be at least 500 feet from any secondary school or any children's playground.

-Placement of signs and educational material in all stores selling tobacco will provide information about the age restrictions on buying tobacco. The campaign's theme is ''It's the Law.''

-Support for new state laws that set a minimum age of 18 for cigarette sales, and that require supervision of cigarette vending machines located in places frequented by minors.

Action on Smoking and Health, a legal advocacy group for anti-smoking forces, attacked the industry campaign as ''a cynical attempt to head off even stricter legislation.''

Nearly two dozen cities have passed laws banning the sale of cigarettes through vending machines. Action on Smoking and Health claimed the tobacco industry is trying to block the spread of such laws by promoting cigarette sales through vending machines in ''supervised'' locations like bowling alleys and restaurants.

''We would never tolerate the sale of alcoholic beverages, birth control pills for girls or even 'dirty' magazines through vending machines, and we certainly shouldn't for a product which is far more dangerous to children than all of these combined,'' said John Banzhaf, executive director of the anti-smoking group.

Last session, Congress narrowly defeated a bill that would have limited cigarette ads to pictureless, black-and-white ''tombstone'' format and banned cigarette sponsorship of events appealing to children.

Banzhaf claimed that ''close call,'' coupled with recent bans on cigarette advertising in Canada and France, was the ''real motive prompting the industry to eliminate the most glaring abuses, like cigarette billboards near schools and distribution of cigarettes at rock concerts.''

Thomas Lauria, a spokesman for the Tobacco Institute, denied the industry's action is aimed at averting tougher restrictions on tobacco, saying Congress currently has no anti-smoking bills on its docket.

In addition, the industry's willingness to lobby in 11 states to raise the minimum age for cigarette sales to 18 ''is certainly positive and concrete,'' Lauria said.

HYANNIS, Mass. (DEC. 11) UPI - More than 50 pilot whales beached themselves on Cape Cod Tuesday and stranding teams rushed to the scene to try to save them, aquarium officals said.

The whales beached themselves on Squaw Island, west of Hyannis.

Local police notified the Barnstable harbor master's office shortly before 11 a.m. The New England Aquarium sent a stranding team by van from Boston and a network of local volunteers was mobilized, said Ian McMillan, associate director of the Cape Cod Aquarium in Brewster.

McMillan said the volunteers, under the direction of the New England Aquarium, would examine the whales to determine which need medical attention first.

''Medical teams try to keep each whale comfortable out of the water,'' said McMillan. ''It is important to keep them moist and wet and to keep them rolling from side to side to distribute their weight on their lungs.''

The standing team would also consider trying to move certain whales to deeper water.

On the other side of the Cape in Dennis an individual whale was also found beached Tuesday. ''He is in quite bad condition and probably will be euthanized,'' said McMillan.

McMillan said it was impossible to pinpoint the cause of the stranding. ''There are any number of possible explanations, ranging from illness to magnetic disturbances in the earth's crust that might affect their migration '' he said.

He said the aquarium is currently researching a new theory about whale beachings related to the way whales use current flows to navigate, ''They may become confused during high tide periods and stormy weather,'' he said.

Pilot whales are highly social, traveling in large groups called pods and are smaller than the humpback whales most often seen during whale- watching expeditions, McMillan said. Males can measure up to 25 feet in length, while females are generally 10 to 15 feet long, he said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 11) UPI - All Americans who want to leave Kuwait and Iraq may hopefully do so by Thursday when a third U.S.-chartered evacuation plane will depart Baghdad, the White House said Tuesday.

''Everyone is subject to Saddam Hussein's whims, but he has said everyone who wants to leave may leave,'' said White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater.

Fitzwater said the staff of the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait, which has remained open in defiance of Saddam, will likely also leave Thursday provided no Americans are still being held against their will.

With the return Monday of 156 former American hostages to the United States, among the first foreign nationals freed under Saddam's surprise Dec. 6 release order, there are now an estimated 575 U.S. citizens still in the two countries.

An undisclosed number of these Americans were to depart Baghdad on a second evacuation flight from Baghdad on Tuesday, said Fitzwater. He announced that the third freedom flight was to take off Thursday. ''It is likely to be the last,'' the press secretary said.

Fitzwater said ''at this point it appears'' as if all Americans who want to leave will be able to, but stressed that the administration will not know for sure until Thursday's flight and ''we see who's on the plane and who's left.''

He said, ''We watch this process with a certain amount of caution.''

The press secretary said Bush watched on television Monday as the 156 former American hostages returned to the United States, landing at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., a few miles from Washington.

After landing, many of the released hostages told awaiting family members and reporters of hiding out in Kuwait since Iraq took over the country on Aug. 2. Others told of being held against their will in Iraq as ''human shields.''

''The president is very happy to see the individual hostages released,'' Fitzwater said. But ''the president shares ... everyone's concern and disgust with the stories of harassment and depravation during their captivity.''

Fitzwater said although the United States intends to withdraw its staff from the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait once no more Americans are being held against their will, it will technically keep the facility open.

He acknowledged, however, that no American citizen will be at the embassy to raise and lower the American flag.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 11) UPI - An 8-year-old saved up his earnings from a lemonade stand at a Washington intersection and contributed them to the fund the Pentagon is using to pay for Operation Desert Shield.

David, whose last name was withheld pending a check by the Pentagon with his mother to see if the family name could be released, sent in $20 in $1 bills for what is known as the Defense Cooperation Account.

A total of $6,257.92 in contributions from about 30 private citizens had been received as of Nov. 11. The smallest was $5 and the largest was $1,000.

In the note he sent with the $20 now being held at the Pentagon in a wooden box, David told Defense Secretary Dick Cheney:

''Please take this money to help buy water for the troops in the desert and the men on the boats in the gulf.''

Saudi Arabia is providing water for the troops, but a Pentagon spokesman said David's money will be put to good use.

PARIS (DEC. 11) UPI - Air traffic controllers at Orly and Charles de Gaulle airports began a ''go-slow'' protest Tuesday in pursuit of a pay and manning claim, reducing by up to half the number of flights to and from the facilities airport officials said.

The controllers provided only a ''minimum'' service, meaning there were 16 of them on duty at the two Parisian airports at any time instead 48 as normal. The agitation began at 6 a.m. Tuesday and was scheduled to last until 10 p.m. Wednesday, union sources said.

Traffic was severely disrupted, especially flights between Paris and London. Only 50 percent of foreign and domestic flights were guaranteed.

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA (DEC. 11) UPI - Serbia's communist president Tuesday maintained a comfortable victory margin in returns from the republic's first post-war multi-party polls but the Marxist contender in Montenegro faced a runoff because of an election law technicality.

In the Republic of Macedonia, election officials said results from three rounds of polling that began Nov. 11 gave the largest bloc of seats in the new legislature to a party of extreme nationalists.

The Election Commission of Serbia said President Slobodan Milosevic captured 62.4 percent of the votes Sunday in 143 of 250 districts for which counting was was complete.

Second was author Vuk Draskovic, a former Marxist and leader of the nationalist Serbian Renewal Movement, with 17.5 percent, followed by Ivan Djuric, a history professor and candidate of the Alliance of Reformist Forces, with 7.5 percent.

Milosevic failed in only one district to capture the most votes, with people in Senta-Ada, near the Hungarian border, favoring Djuric.

News reports quoting local election officials said Milosevic, 49, who has been in power since 1987, was leading in most of the 107 electoral districts where vote-counting was still under way.

The Election Commission said candidates of the Socialist Party of Serbia, the name taken by the communists in July, won 34 races for the 250-member unicameral assembly. Five contests went to candidates of an ethnic Hungarian party.

Runoffs will be held Dec. 23 in 181 contests because no candidates won majorities, the commission said. Communists were the top vote- getters in 91 of the races.

About 80 percent of Serbia's 6.8 million voters participated in the first post-war multi-party elections in the largest of Yugoslavia's six republics.

In the Montenegro capital of Titograd, 380 miles south of Belgrade, election officials revised their projections and said Communist Party chief Momir Bulatovic faced a runoff for president because his 163,000 votes were less than 50 percent of the 410,000 registered voters.

Bulatovic, however, captured more than twice the number of ballots than his nearest rival, Ljubisa Stankovic of the Alliance of Reformist Forces, which advocates Western-style economic and political reforms. The runoff will be held Dec. 23.

Officials reiterated that candidates of the ruling League of Communists of Montenegro were ahead in most races for the 125-seat assembly, but withheld vote counts for unknown reasons.

Meanwhile, the completion Sunday of a third round of voting in Macedonia for a 120-member assembly gave the Macedonian Party for Macedonian National Unity - known by the initials VMRO - 37 seats, said the Election Commission in the republic's capital of Skopje, 280 miles southeast of Belgrade.

VMRO advocates autonomy for the republic of about 2 million.

In second place were the communists with 31 seats, followed by the ethnic Albanian Party for Democratic Prosperity with 25 seats and the Alliance of Reformist Forces with 18 seats.

The rest went to smaller parties and independents. The result in one seat was unavailable.

While the elections ended absolute communist rule, no party won a majority of seats, requiring the formation of a coalition. There were no indications as to whether any progress had been made between the parties on forming a new government.

MOSCOW (DEC. 11) UPI - The Russian Federation's legislature agreed Tuesday to help write the final draft of a new compact tying the Soviet republics together in a revitalized federation.

Boris Yeltsin, in effect the Russian president as head of its parliament, urged deputies to vote for the giant republic's involvement in negotiations on the accord.

''We are for the union - a union based not on unitary principles but on equality and the truly free will of each republic,'' Yeltsin told the Congress of People's Deputies.

The Congress, the larger parent body of the permanent Russian Parliament, approved a measure agreeing ''to be a full-fledged subject of a renewed U.S.S.R. on the basis of a new union treaty.''

Lawmakers, responding to pleas from mothers and wives of soldiers who have died in the peacetime army, also passed a resolution asking Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to avoid sending troops to quell ethnic strife in the country's far-flung trouble spots.

Gorbachev is promoting a new treaty to replace the 1922 accord by which the country formally came into being and to serve as the basis of a renamed ''Union of Sovereign Soviet Republics.''

The three Baltic republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania and the Transcaucasian republic of Georgia, all controlled by newly elected nationalist parliaments, have said they will not sign any pact subordinating them to Moscow.

The draft treaty has been distributed to deputies, sent to the 15 republics and published in the Soviet press. Formal negotiations are to begin soon with representatives sent to Moscow from participating republics.

The Soviet Communist Party's Central Committee, meeting at a closed Kremlin plenum near the Russian Congress, endorsed the draft pact at Gorbachev's urging, the official Tass news agency said.

Nursultan Nazarbayev, president of the Central Asian republic of Kazakhstan, told reporters in Moscow that he would head a four-person delegation to the talks on the treaty.

Nazarbayev, widely viewed as a leading contender for the new post of Soviet vice president, said the central government must give up some of its powers in the process of decentralization.

''The center (central government) continues to pretend that the sovereignty of the republics does not exist,'' he said.

Gorbachev has promised the constituent states greatly expanded freedom in the new union but the draft treaty reserves substantial powers for Moscow, including control of the armed forces, borders, money, strategic resources and other traditional functions.

Yeltsin's address Tuesday was milder than past statements in which he said that Russia, which takes up three-quarters of the Soviet Union and is home to half its 290 million people, must be guaranteed control of the oil, gold, diamonds and other raw materials on its vast territory.

Yeltsin has also demanded that the central government recognize the Russian legislature's June declaration of sovereignty, a declaration passed this year by 14 of the 15 republics.

Both Yeltsin and Nazarbayev accused Gorbachev of trying to rush through final signing of the new treaty.

''In signing such an important document as a treaty of sovereign republics or states, one should proceed from the real conditions and opportunities of the republics themselves rather than from calendar terms,'' Yeltsin said.

CAIRO, EGYPT (DEC. 11) UPI - A Kuwait Airways plane left Cairo Tuesday for London and New York to inaugurate the second stage of its operations from its temporary headquarters.

The state-owned airlines, previously the fourth largest in the Arab world, had initially suspended its flights following the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of the oil-rich emirate, but in October it resumed operations on a limited scale with three weekly flights in the Middle East from Cairo to Dubai, Jeddah and Bahrain.

Now the airlines is beginning service to London and New York as well, officials in Cairo said.

''Continuation of Kuwait Airways flights is a determination to keep the Kuwaiti flag high in the sky,'' said an advertisment in Cairo's newspapers announcing the resumption of the overseas service.

Many of the airline's planes were seized by Iraqi forces at Kuwait's international airport and taken to Baghdad, but enough aircraft were out of the country at the time of the invasion to keep the airlines operating now on a limited scale, officials said in Cairo.

Kuwaiti officials have said they will ask for compensation for the blue and white Kuwaiti planes seized by Iraqi authorities, which reportedly were repainted with the green Iraqi Airways insignia.

LONDON (DEC. 11) UPI - Stock prices on the London International Stock Exchange fell Tuesday in the wake of a successful first day of trading on privatized electricity distribution company shares and poor retail sales figures released earlier in the week. Stocks also eased in slow trading in Frankfurt.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which slipped 0.9 points Monday fell 16.7 points to 2,165.8. The narrower top 30 industrial average lost 15.5 points to 1,706.0.

Trading was extended by 90 minutes as activity on the oversuscribed electricity distribution company "discos" swelled volume to 826 million shares compared with only 317 million shares changing hands Monday.

Trading in the 12 electricity company began at 2:30 p.m. local time, as a lacklustre market waited for the anticipated rush. Disco shares averaged profits on the first day of around 51 percent, with many investors rushing to sell the shares, oversubscribed 10.7 times.

The government received 10.2 million applications for shares from private citizens and institutions, making it the most popular privatization scheme in the British government's program.

The 12 companies which began trading included Eastern Electricity, Manweb, Midland Electricity, Northern Electric, Norweb, Seeboard, Southern Electric, South Wales Electricity, South Western Electricity and Yorkshire Electricity.

The most profitable of the companies were South Wales at $3.13, up from the purchase price of $1.90, and Yorkshire at $3.04, up from $1.60 a share.

Meanwhile analysts said retail sales figures released Monday showing a slump of 0.5 percent in November, the second monthly slowdown in sales, hurt investor enthusiam in leading retailers.

In the retailing sector, Sears fell ten cents to $1.56 after a downgrading from a local broker and Kingfisher, parent company of Woolworth's, dipped 33 cents to $7.16 after a similar downgrading.

Meanwhile, stock prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange closed lower in quiet trading. The closely watched 30 stock German Stock Index, which eased 8.04 points Monday, slipped another 12.12 points to 1,492.68.

(DEC. 11) UPI - The White House says all Americans who want to leave Kuwait and Iraq may hopefully have done so by Thursday, when a third U-S-chartered flight will depart from Baghdad. White House news secretary Marlin Fitzwater says the staff of the U-S Embassy in Kuwait also will likely leave on Thursday provided NO more Americans are being held against their will. Fitzwater says an undetermined number of Americans are leaving Baghdad today on a chartered flight.

The nation's purchasing managers are predicting a recession during the first half of 1991 with a recovery coming in the second half of the year. The National Association of Purchasing Management said in it semi- annual economic forecast that overall nominal U-S economic growth next year will be a ''weak'' two-point-two percent, before adjustments for inflation. The report on a survey of 300 purchasing managers said the executives are ''extremely pessimistic'' about the first six months of 1991.

The Commerce Department reports that the nation's current account deficit grew by three-point-one-BILLION dollars in the third quarter when compared with the second. And much of the increase can be traced to higher imports of more costly foreign oil. The figures also tell of a marked decline in foreign purchases of U-S Treasury securities in the July-to-September period. They dropped from three-point-six-BILLION dollars in the second quarter to only 500-Million dollars in the third quarter.

The top government bank regulator says the steady pressure of deteriorating real estate assets is going to cost the federal bank insurance fund about four-BILLION dollars this year. Chairman L. William Seidman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation raised his estimated loss by one-BILLION dollars at a news conference in Washington.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev is one of those sending condolences on word of the death of American industrialist Armand Hammer. The 92-year-old head of Occidental Petroleum died yesterday at his Los Angeles home following a short illness. Hammer's dealings with the Soviet Union date back to 1921 and a meeting with Lenin. He lived to see a 1982 interview come true... one in which he said that communism doesN'T work and that private ventures would some day replace Russian socialism.

Supporters of rival tribal factions in South Africa have finally agreed to work for peace in one battle-torn black township where recent clashes claimed at least 37 lives. The conflicts involve supporters of Nelson Mandela's African National Congress and rival Zulus. And police say they expect the death toll will rise as more bodies are found.

(DEC. 11) UPI - The State Department says another U-S-chartered plane will be sent to Kuwait and Baghdad on Thursday to pick up any Americans still in Kuwait. The department says it believes the evacuation of U-S citizens from the occupied emirate is probably complete. However, it says there is a remote chance that some Americans may still be in hiding or had NOT heard about the flights out.

A Soviet Foreign Ministry source says Eduard Shevardnadze will meet with Israeli Prime Minister Shamir tomorrow in Washington. The meeting would represent the highest diplomatic contact ever between the Soviet Union and Israel. The Soviet foreign minister is flying to the capital tonight after two days of talks with Secretary of State Baker in Houston.

Reputed mobster John Gotti and three associates are expected to spend the night at the Metropolitan Correctional Center in Manhattan. The F-B-I say the four are charged in a sealed federal indictment... and were arrested by agents in New York tonight. The agency says the men were indicted on a variety of charges but- in the words of a spokesman- ''we do NOT know what the charges in it are.''

Marine scientists and volunteers are working to save more than 50 pilot whales that beached themselves on Cape Cod today... not far from the Kennedy family compound. Experts say time is running out for the stranded mammals, who are in danger of going into shock before workers can push them back into the ocean. Three of the 58 whales had already died or been put to death by this afternoon.

One of the nation's most publicized martial splits is official. A New York judge today granted Ivana Trump a divorce from the man she called ''the Donald.'' The marriage ended amicably after 10 months of scandal and squabbling, with Donald Trump issuing a statement wishing his former wife ''the best.'' Neither side revealed how much of Trump's shrunken fortune Ivana will receive.

TOLEDO, OH (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Dana Corporation of Toledo, Ohio, announced today that it has formed a joint venture with Tianjin Auto Filter Factory (TAFF) of Tianjin, People's Republic of China, for the manufacture of Dana's Wix (TM) brand filters.

The announcement was made by Carl H. Hirsch, senior vice president of Dana.

TAFF is one of the 50 factories under the leadership of Tianjin Auto Industry Corporation, which is China's fourth largest manufacturer of automobiles and trucks and one of that country's major producers of light trucks and vans.

Dana Corporation of Toledo, Ohio, is the largest independent manufacturer of components for automobiles and trucks in the United States and the second largest in the world, with total sales of $4.9 billion in 1989. Wix Corporation, a leading manufacturer of filters for the original equipment (OE) and replacement markets, was founded in 1939 in Gastonia, North Carolina, and was acquired by Dana in 1979. In addition to its ten U.S. facilities, Wix works closely with affiliates in Australia, Venezuela and Canada.

The 50/50 joint venture company, which will operate under the name Tianjin Wix Filter Corporation, will begin manufacturing filters at an existing TAFF facility early in 1991. The facility has a manufacturing capacity of two million filters a year. Following improvements in production processes, capacity should rise to five million in five years.

Dana recently increased its equity ownership of its Australian affiliate to 100 percent. Dana Australia, a major distributor of heavy duty truck drivetrain replacement parts with 1989 sales of $50 million, now has moved beyond its traditional distribution focus into the light duty OE truck market. Earlier this year, the division won the aluminum driveshaft business of Ford Australia, and in October it was awarded the Ford Australia axle business. Initially these products will be imported from other Dana locations, but the ultimate goal is to have them manufactured and assembled in facilities near Dana's customers in Australia.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - DEP Corp. (NASDAQ:DEPC) Wednesday reported that 1991 first-quarter net income rose significantly compared with the same period last year.

Net income for the three-month period ended Oct. 31, 1990, was $1,594,000, or 27 cents per share, compared with $502,000, or 9 cents per share, for the comparable period of fiscal 1990. First-quarter results were impacted favorably by a $752,000 net gain, or 13 cents per share, from the repurchase of a portion of the company's convertible subordinated debentures.

Net income from operations for the first quarter was $842,000, or 14 cents per share, compared with $502,000, or 9 cents per share, for the comparable period one year ago. A lower cost of goods -- reflecting a favorable sales mix -- and lower selling and delivery expenses contributed to the 68 percent increase in income. The company also did not incur losses from its United Kingdom operation, which was closed in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990.

Net sales were $24,615,000 for the first quarter 1991, compared with $27,746,000 for the comparable quarter last year. Sales for the first quarter 1990 included approximately $1.1 million generated by the United Kingdom operations and reflected a one-time inventory buildup by retailers following the launch of new shampoos.

''We currently are watching the purchasing patterns of our retailer customers and of consumers with concern,'' said DEP Corp. chairman and president, Robert Berglass. ''On the positive side, we believe our strategy of price, value and quality positions DEP Corp. well even in difficult economic times. We will continue monitoring present operations closely while we build for the future.''

DEP Corp. is a consumer products company engaged in the development, manufacture, and sale of a wide range of niche' market personal care products, principally sold at drug stores, supermarkets and mass merchandisers throughout the United States. CONCORD, CA (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Citing improved gross margins, SBE Inc. (NASDAQ:SBEI), a manufacturer of communications and computer products, reported increased sales for 1990, the eighth consecutive year the company has reported sales growth.

For the year ended Oct. 31, 1990, sales were $19,363,000, a 4 percent increase from $18,553,000 a year earlier. Operating income rose from $1,141,000 to $1,809,000, an increase of 59 percent. Earnings per share rose from 33 cents to $1.07.

For the fourth quarter, sales dropped from $5,038,000 to $4,793,000, a 5 percent decrease. Operating income was $452,000, down 29 percent over $633,000 for the fourth quarter of 1989.

Earnings per share increased from 13 cents to 18 cents from year to year. Fourth quarter 1989 earnings per share included a $315,000 write-down of software costs as a non-operating expense. At the end of the fourth quarter 1990, SBE effected a one-for-ten stock split. All share data reflect the reverse split.

''Despite a drop in sales in the fourth quarter, 1990 marks SBE's most successful year yet,'' said Chief Executive Officer William R. Gage. ''It is our eighth consecutive year of sales growth.

''Excluding a one-time insurance benefit, SBE's net income increased 140 percent, from $601,000 to $1.44 million in fiscal 1990. This is the first year since we entered the computer business in 1982 that we've experienced an annual profit of more than $1 million.

''The drop in sales during the fourth quarter is a direct result of the uncertain economy, which has prompted many of our customers to delay product shipments,'' said Gage. ''This trend should continue into the first quarter of 1991, with sales comparable to the first quarter of 1990. We expect sales to improve in the second quarter, barring any significant economic downturns.

''SBE's increased profits in 1990 can be attributed to better gross margins,'' said Gage. ''During the year, SBE pursued an aggressive product development schedule, with 10 new products coming to market. This included one of our most successful product introductions ever -- the Token Ring product line, which allows VMEbus and Multibus I systems to access Token Ring LANs.

''Because of their uniqueness on the market, the VCOM-33 and MLAN-T were very well-received,'' said Gage.

''During 1990 we invested heavily in our sales and marketing programs to broaden our customer base. We also significantly improved our engineering and manufacturing capabilities,'' said Gage. ''We are optimistic that our aggressive product introduction schedule and the growing breadth of our customer base have prepared us well for the challenges of 1991.''

SBE designs, manufactures and markets high-performance standard and custom-designed communications products for OEMs and systems integrators. Products include high-speed communications controllers and 680x0-based single-board computers for VMEbus and Multibus I applications.

BELLEVUE, WASH. (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Esterline Corporation (NYSE) today reported net earnings of $7.1 million, or $1.08 per share, for fiscal 1990 (ended October 31).

Prior year net earnings, before an extraordinary credit from a tax loss carryforward, were $7.9 million, or $.94 per share on more shares than in 1990. (There were 6.5 million average shares outstanding in 1990 vs. 8.4 million in 1989 as the result of a buy-in of stock from a major shareholder in September 1989.) The tax credit in fiscal 1989 was $723,000 or $.09 per share, bringing that year's net earnings after the extraordinary item to $8.6 million or $1.03 per share.

Earnings for fiscal 1990 reflect $17.4 million of interest expense, compared with only $3.5 million the previous year. The increase is primarily from interest on debt incurred for the purchase of shares and the simultaneous acquisition of six former Criton Technologies operations. The company reduced its total debt by $21 million during fiscal 1990 to a total of $151.1 million at year-end. Fiscal 1990 sales, which included sales from the acquired companies, were $389.1 million. This compares with $284.2 million in fiscal 1989, which included only one month of sales from the acquisition.

Fourth quarter net earnings in fiscal 1990 were $1.6 million, or $.25 per share. Net earnings in the same year-ago quarter, which included only one month of earnings from the acquired companies, were also $1.6 million before a tax loss carryforward benefit of $347,000. Earnings per share in the fiscal 1989 quarter, based on the higher number of shares outstanding, were $.20 before the extraordinary item, which added $.05 per share for a net earnings per share of $.25.

PHOENIX (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - DATAPHAZ Inc. (NASDAQ:DPHZ) Wednesday announced operating results for the third quarter and nine month period ended Oct. 31, 1990.

Sales and revenue for the third quarter of fiscal 1991 declined 31.7 percent to $17,832,000 from the $26,126,000 reported in the year earlier period. Net income of $104,000, or 3 cents per share, was reported for the current quarter compared to a loss of ($122,000), or (3 cents) per share, reported in the third quarter of the prior year.

Sales and revenue for the nine months ended Oct. 31, 1990, declined 28.2 percent to $57,760,000 from the $80,397,000 reported in the prior year period. Net income of $319,000, or 9 cents per share, was reported for the current nine month period, compared to a net loss of ($991,000), or (26 cents) per share, for the comparable prior year period.

Commenting on sales and revenue, Thomas C. Niccoli, president and chief operating officer, noted that the prior year quarter and nine month period included $4.3 and $14.8 million, respectively in sales and revenue from the Albuquerque and Dallas/Ft. Worth ComputerLand stores which were sold during the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990. The company did, however, experience a decline in same store sales and revenue of $4 and $7.8 million, repectively, between the comparable quarter and nine month period.

Management attributes these declines to the present recessionary conditions, closure of company's retail storefront operations, and the winding down of operations in Las Vegas prior to the sale of that store on Oct. 31, 1990. In addition, the company shifted more than $2.7 and $6.5 million in low-margin business during the current quarter and nine month period, respectively, to the ComputerLand Assisted Sales program.

These sales do not appear in the consolidated financial statements; rather, the company received fees for arranging the sale and delivery of this equipment.

The net income reported for the current quarter and nine month period results from the company's implementation of a Super Value Added Reseller marketing strategy. This strategy, which emphasizes service and support rather than price and volume, has partially offset declining hardware margins and improved overall gross profit by increasing the mix of ''value-added'' revenue generated from network consulting, installation, training and maintenance.

Further, the operating results for the current periods have been positively impacted by the disposition of the Albuquerque and Dallas/Ft. Worth operations and decreases in same store SG&A expense and interest. The decrease in same store SG&A expense results from the downsizing of operations and the establishment of additional cost controls in response to the revised marketing strategy.

Interest expense declined between the comparable periods due to the significant reduction in average short-term borrowings.

Thomas C. Niccoli added, ''In today's tough economic environment, businesses have real connectivity needs and concerns. DATAPHAZ has the expertise to provide solutions to these problems through our Advanced Systems Group. This group specializes in systems analysis and design, installation, training and AMERICAN FORK, UT (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - TEL electronics inc. (NASDAQ:TELS) reported the largest sales quarter in its history, with net sales of $780,334, up 9 percent over the same period in 1989.

Net income for the quarter of $63,328 was down by approximately $44,000 over the same period in 1989, due to expenses related to the introduction and distribution of several new products.

Net sales for the first nine months totaled $2,088,370, an increase of almost 12 percent over the same period in 1989, as the company continued to increase its dealer base. Net income for the first three quarters totaled $41,132, down from 1989 as a result of major start-up expenses and lower margins on new products, and also due to ongoing long-term marketing and sales activities.

Sales, general and administrative expenses were $1,252,585 for the first nine months, representing 60 percent of net sales, compared to 59 percent of sales for the same period in 1989. This increase was due to increased sales expenses. Research and Development expenses of $134,622 for the first nine months of 1990 compared with $204,139 for the same period in 1989, reductions occurring in order to emphasize the introduction and marketing of 1990's new products.

''This has been a major diversification year for TEL, since most new products and new processes have been involved with new markets. The diversification is going well and sales growth has been realized form the onset in these new areas. The real fruits of these efforts, including major sales increases and increased profits, should be realized in the near future,'' according to company President Dr. John Gunter.

TEL electronics inc. designs, produces and sells proprietary microprocessor-based telephone call accounting, telephone management, line scanner, voice processing and other systems for use by the lodging industry, professional firms, government and military agencies, as well as general business organizations.

NEWBURY PARK, CA (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Semtech Corp. (ASE:SMH) Wednesday announced results for the third quarter ended Oct. 28, 1990.

Revenues were $5,473,000, compared with the previous year of $4,901,000. The company reported a one-time non-operating expense of $300,000, for the discontinuance of operations of Polycore Electronics. Overall, Semtech reported a net loss of $152,000, for the third quarter, compared with a profit of $251,000, in the previous year.

During the quarter, Semtech reported the acquisition of Lambda Semiconductors in Corpus Christi, Texas. The decision to close Polycore Electronics stemmed from Semtech's desire to utilize the Corpus Christi and Reynosa, Mexico, manufacturing sites in the future. Semtech will operate the Corpus Christi business as a wholly owned subsidiary called Semtech Corpus Christi. Semtech stated that it expects to return to profitability in the fourth quarter.

New orders of $5,911,000 were reported in the third quarter compared with $5,260,000, in the second quarter and $4,177,000, in the third quarter of the previous year. Semtech announced that its book-to-bill ratio for the first nine months was 1.14. A spokesman for the company noted the company has seen a substantial change in product mix for new orders.

Commercial and industrial product orders have decreased while military and aerospace products have increased. Semtech stated that starting in the fourth quarter it intends to place greater emphasis on commercial and industrial product sales to highlight the products manufactured in Corpus Christi. The company said it expects to be shipping at a substantially higher rate than incoming new orders from the Corpus Christi facility during the fourth quarter.

Semtech announced it has nearly completed a restructuring of its sales organization. Semtech's customer base has more than doubled in the past two months and the company has established a network of manufacturers' representatives and distributors to provide the necessary sales coverage.

Semtech reported it spent nearly $1.2 million on the Lambda Semiconductors acquisition, including the purchase price, in the third quarter and expects to spend, approximately, an additional $200,000 in the fourth quarter. Overall, however, the company expects to generate positive cash flow for the fourth quarter.

Semtech was founded in 1960 and is a leading international manufacturer of high quality power rectifiers, transient voltage suppressors, high voltage monolithic capacitors, voltage regulators, analog integrated circuits, power hybrids and related devices. Semtech focuses its efforts on producing these precision components for military and commercial customers.

Available at an affordable price, this interactive graphics product offers six different programs that graphically present, in stunning high-resolution color and sound, many of the chaotic systems discussed in Gleick's book.

''The ideas and discoveries of chaos benefit from a kind of illustration that can't be put into a conventional book,'' said James Gleick. ''This program will let people explore chaos for themselves in an interactive, hands-on way.'' Owners can customize each program, tweaking and fine-tuning constantly changing graphical patterns that model various applications of chaos theory in nature.

''CHAOS can be viewed as an educational activity that lets customers recreate the computer experiments that led to the discoveries of chaos theory,'' said Cynthia Harris, manager of Autodesk's Science Series products.

''In addition to being a powerful tool for scientists and educators, CHAOS is a fun, interactive experience for everyone.''

CHAOS images can also be used as graphics in multimedia presentations created with Autodesk Animator, Autodesk 3D Studio and other programs that support the .GIF file format.

James Gleick's CHAOS: The Software lets customers play with the chaotic dance of magnets attracting and repelling a pendulum, create fractal images of mountains, clouds and planets, and explore the strange chaotic patterns discovered by scientists Lorenz, Henon, Yorke and Mandelbrot such as The Butterfly Effect, Strange Attractors and theories of Self Similarity and Repeated Geometry.

Available for a suggested retail price of $59.95, James Gleick's CHAOS: The Software joins Rudy Rucker's Cellular Automata Lab as the second of a new family of inexpensive, science-related products from Autodesk. International prices for the product may vary.

LONGMONT, CO (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - PrairieTek Corp., inventor and manufacturer of the first 2.5-inch hard disk drive, and Kobe Steel Ltd. of Japan, announce that Kobe has made a second major investment in PrairieTek.

Kobe made its first investment of $5 million in June 1990. This most recent agreement brings the total investment to $19 million and gives Kobe a 24 percent interest in outstanding voting securities of the company as well as a seat on PrairieTek's board of directors.

As a result of this investment, PrairieTek will be able to maintain its position as a market leader in 2.5-inch disk drives and strengthen its production capabilities during a period of rapid growth including the establishment of a Singapore operation early in 1991.

Demand for small drives is expected to triple over the next two years as more system manufacturers announce notebook size computers with built-in hard disk drives.

PrairieTek drives are particularly suited for battery powered portable systems because of the ruggedness provided by a patented ramp head loading mechanism, exceptional light weight and low power requirements of less than one watt.

For Kobe Steel the capital investment further strengthens their commitment to the data storage equipment business, which the company regards as one of the key areas for its diversification strategy.

Kobe Steel Ltd. is a multi-billion dollar Japanese company and one of the world's largest producers of iron, aluminum and copper. It is also a highly diversified enterprise, with products and services ranging from machinery and plant engineering to new materials and a growing array of electronic products.

DENVER (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Crown Resources Corp. (NASDAQ/NMS:CRRS; VcSE:CRO) Wednesday reported spectacular drilling results on the Crown Jewel property in northeastern Washington.

Core hole D-46 intersected 130 feet grading 1.257 ounces gold/ton starting at the surface. This hole was drilled 40 feet west of an earlier hole that intersected 75 feet grading 0.577 ounces gold/ton from 25 to 100 feet in depth.

It now appears that the previously reported high-grade results, located approximately 1,000 feet to the southwest, join with the published geologic gold reserve of 8.3 million tons grading 0.102 ounces gold/ton to form a single, large mineralized system.

Drill holes 373 and 394, which intersected 125 feet grading 0.397 ounces gold/ton and 35 feet grading 0.727 ounces gold/ton, confirm the connection of these two areas.

The southwest extension zone is higher grade than the original reserve area and is entirely open over a 1,500-foot length, to the south, southwest and west. Drill hole 407, which is a 300-foot step-out to the south, intersected 30 feet grading 0.477 ounces gold/ton.

The attached table highlights previously unreported in-fill and step-out drilling results that will be incorporated into new ore reserve calculations currently in progress.

The 9,000-acre Crown Jewel property is currently optioned to Battle Mountain Gold Co. Under this agreement, Battle Mountain has until Jan. 4, 1991, to exercise its option to acquire a 51 percent interest in the Crown Jewel property by paying Crown a further $5 million and by bringing the property into production.

According to ICT President W. Thomas Oliver: ''We are delighted to welcome these new affiliates to the growing DMX family. As of this year's Western Cable Show, ICT now has MSO affiliation agreements representing more than 17 million subscribers across the country.''

Terms of these agreements call for DMX to be launched initially by Western Communications in its San Francisco Bay Area system complex, which includes South San Francisco and Concord, Calif., and Bresnan's Escanaba, Mich., system.

According to Oliver, the addition of the Western Communications systems adds to the DMX presence in the Bay Area where it is also launching in Viacom's San Francisco system and UAE's Walnut Creek system.

Western Communications is a wholly owned subsidiary of The Chronicle Co., owners of the San Francisco Chronicle. Bresnan Communications, a medium-sized MSO, is currently an affiliate of Superadio, the basic cable audio venture of ICT and Jones International.

MARLBORO, MA (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Damark International, a major catalog mail order company has chosen a Sequoia Series 300 computer system to improve customer service and meet rapid growth requirements.

The Sequoia system will be used in nearly all facets of Damark's $200 million mail order catalog business, including on-line order entry, credit card verification, distribution, inventory control and billing. About 370 Damark users will be on-line at its national headquarters in Minneapolis.

DeMarquis Walls, Damark's vice president of MIS, explained that rapid customer response and the ability to meet the expected greater demands of future sales were the overriding factors in the consideration of a new computer system. He said, ''When you have nearly 400 people depending on an on-line system there's no question that performance and continuous availability in our Pick environment are key, and Sequoia won hands down on both issues.

Sequoia won the bid for the sale in a competitive series of benchmarks designed to simulate Damark's requirements. Damark previously used a Stratus computer system, which they have replaced with the Sequoia system. With all of Damark's applications now transferred onto the multiprocessing Sequoia system, Walls reports that exceptional performance levels have been achieved.

Sequoia's flexible networking capabilities allowed the easy integration into Darmark's existing communications system. The Sequoia system will be connected via bisynchronous communications lines to IBM mainframes at a service bureau for credit card verifications. The Sequoia system is also based on the UNIX operating system and runs Pick as a database application.

About 70 percent of Damark's sales are taken over the phone. The company sells a wide variety of consumer and electronic products through a 64-page catalog and ads in national periodicals. Customers use 800 number lines, and Damark customer service representatives capture the orders using terminals. They are able to determine whether the selected items are in stock and verify delivery schedules. Credit card sales are also verified and the orders are sent to the distribution department for delivery. The computer system is the hub of nearly all company operations.

Sequoia Systems Inc. designs, manufactures and markets fault-tolerant systems to serve the on-line transaction processing (OLTP) needs of companies. Sequoia's sytems have an open architecture adhering to industry standards and a UNIX operating system. The company is also a significant provider of systems with the Pick Open Architecture. Sequoia provides on-line service and maintenance support to its worldwide customer base. Major customers include manufacturers, distributors, banks and financial institutions, insurance companies, telecommunications operations, and federal agencies. Sequoia (SEQS) is a publicly-held company which is traded on NASDAQ.

CAMBRIDGE, MA (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Lotus Development Corp. Wednesday announced it will ship a fully translated Russian version of Lotus 1-2-3 in the U.S.S.R. by the end of the year.

The company also made several announcements regarding its market activities in the Soviet Union.

Lotus has appointed VNIPI StatInform as its first Soviet distributor. In addition, the Leningrad International Management Institute has been named the first Lotus Authorized Training Center in the U.S.S.R. Lotus also announced it will open a Soviet sales office in the first quarter of 1991. It will be managed by Jane Kitson, who was recently appointed business development manager for the U.S.S.R.

''The Soviet market represents both a significant opportunity and a challenge for Lotus,'' said Steve Crummey, senior vice president of Lotus' International Business Group. ''Currently there are an estimated 300,000 PC users in the Soviet Union. As the price of PCs in the U.S.S.R. drop and their availability increases, the number of users is expected to grow significantly.

''At the same time, the country's economy is in upheaval and conducting business under these conditions is difficult, especially for a foreign company. VNIPI StatInform's existing infrastructure will assist us in making this transition easier.''

According to Esther Dyson, a leading U.S. expert on the Soviet computer industry, spreadsheets will be a fast-growing segment of the Soviet PC software market. ''Until now, word processing and databases had a higher share of the software applications market in the Soviet Union than spreadsheets. As the economy loosens up and the need for financial analysis grows, the demand for spreadsheets will increase significantly,'' Dyson said.

Product to be Distributed Through State Organization

VNIPI StatInform, formally known as the All-Union Research, Development and Project Institute of the Statistical Information System of the U.S.S.R. State Committee for Statistics, is a leader in applications development, database management systems, and telecommunications projects in statistical, accounting and financial areas for all sectors of the Soviet economy.

With more than 5,000 employees, VNIPI StatInform has fully developed infrastructure for distributing Lotus products throughout the Soviet Union. In addition to reselling the Russian version of Lotus 1-2-3 Release 2.2, the Institute will work with Soviet computer manufacturers to bundle 1-2-3 with Soviet-produced computers. VNIPI StatInform will also use 1-2-3 for the development of specific functions and applications.

''Lotus fully understands the business climate and the cultural differences of our market,'' said J.A. Micheev, director of VNIPI StatInform. ''By developing a full language version that allows users to work in their language Lotus has met the needs and demands of the Soviet market.'' First Lotus Authorized Training Center in USSR

The Leningrad International Management Institute (LIMI) will use Lotus 1-2-3 as the basis for a training program for both Soviet and international business professionals in the fields of international business economics, management and finance.

''We are excited to be working with Lotus, the leading vendor of business software solutions worldwide,'' said Dr. Anton O. Artemyev, deputy director of programs for LIMI. ''The establishment of the first Lotus Authorized Training Center in the U.S.S.R. is an important initial step in training the growing number of PC users in the Soviet Union.''

Lotus Development Corp. (NASDAQ:LOTS), founded in 1982, develops, markets and supports business software and CD-ROM databases that helps users access, analyze, communicate and share information. The company's first product, Lotus 1-2-3, is the most popular personal computer software program in the world with more than 14 million users.

Lotus markets its broad range of products in more than 65 countries and offers users comprehensive support options, including 24-hour-a-day, 7-day-a-week support in the U.S. for PC versions of its 1-2-3 spreadsheet.

NEW YORK (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - American Body Armor & Equipment (NASDAQ:ABAE), a leading manufacturer of protective equipment of ''body armor'', Wednesday announced that another law enforcement agent has been saved by one of its bullet-resistant vests.

On Dec. 6, Danny Norton, an agent at the Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics, was saved by his ABA vest during a drug arrest in which he was shot from a range of approximately 5 feet with a .22-caliber Magnum.

American Body Armor vests have saved the lives of approximately 200 officers nationwide. ABA also reports that in all incidents in which ABA vests have been shot by bullets in real life situations, ABA vests have never failed to perform and in some cases, have exceeded their ballistic capabilities.

ABA manufactures two basic types of body armor; concealable armor, which is generally intended to be worn beneath the user's clothing, and tactical armor, which is worn externally and is designed to protect against more serious ballistic threats. The model of vest worn in this latest incident is made of multiple layers of Kevlar ballistic fabric, the strongest synthetic fiber available.

In addition to numerous types of bullet-resistant vests, ABA manufactures ballistic raincoats, police jackets, protective face masks and hand-held practical shields, barrier systems, armored vehicles and a new line of high speed patrol boats. ABA also produces bomb suppression pouches, blankets, E.O.D. suits and many other products.

The company's products are sold nationally and internationally, primarily to law enforcement, military and government agencies. ABA has sold products in 5 continents to clients such as:

- A military force involved in the Persian Gulf crisis
- Customs operations worldwide
- An Elite Marine Corps of a European country
- The army and police of a South American country
- Supreme Court Justices of a Latin American country
- Police Units of countries in the Far East and South East Asia

ABA became a publicly traded company in 1989. Currently, ABA is projecting the fourth quarter of 1990 to be the biggest revenue quarter in the company's 20-year history. ABA also has a recorded backlog of orders for its products exceeding $3 million.

All ABA products meet industry standards and criteria set by the federal standards-setting agency, the National Institute of Justice (NIJ).

Hugh Downe, chairman of ABA, and Steve Giordanella, president, are available to comment on ABA, its product line or any questions you may have about the body armor industry.

PARAMUS, NJ (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Drivefone Inc. (NASDAQ:DFON) announced that the company received Federal Communications Commission (FCC) approval to develop Personal Communications Networks (PCN's) in the cities of New York, Philadelphia and Boston.

The experimental licenses extend through July, 1992. The company expects initial construction and testing of its system during the second half of 1991.

Michael A. Pfeffer, president and chief executive officer of Drivefone, stated ''The potential impact of PCN's is tremendous, and this is where the future is headed. FCC licensing approval places Drivefone among the small number of companies in the forefront of this new form of wireless communications.

''PCN's offer solutions to many of the problems and limitations encountered with present cellular communications,'' Pfeffer continued. ''The plan is to develop PCN's with high transmitter density within sites as small as a few hundred feet, to allow for many times more calls, simultaneously, in a given area.

''The close proximity of cell sites, and the fact that PCN transmission will be at a higher frequency, will provide for a far greater number of subscribers wihtin each network without interference. We expect the costs of PCN equipment and service will eventually be substantially less than current systems, and that the monthly usage cost could be about half that of cellular '' he stated.

A pioneer in cellular phones since 1984, Drivefone Inc. is a national distributor of cellular telephones, accessories and pagers, and manufactures and distributes the LuxCel line of transportable phones, antennas and accessories.

CLEVELAND (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Following on its $50,000 donation to the Summit on Manpower in May, 1990, Picker International has announced ''In Support of the Summit,'' a profit donation program designed to provide operating funds to the Summit on Manpower.

The Summit on Manpower is a consortium of 18 national health care organizations formed to develop a long-range solution to the growing shortage of technologists in radiology and sonography.

The current rate of increase in technologists -- about 4,000 to 5,000 per year -- falls well short of the projected 6,000 per year needed, according to the Summit on Manpower.

''We support the Summit strongly because its mission is focused and its goals are based upon solid research. This shortage is real and it its affecting our health care system now. Imaging systems are idle because trained personnel are not available to operate them,'' said Joseph A. Largey, president, Picker Health Care Products Division.

''In Support of the Summit'' encourages Picker customers to become actively involved by requiring them to request that a portion of profit on select products be directed to the Summit.

On a quarterly basis, Picker will make donations to the Summit on Manpower on behalf of customers who participate. The Summit on Manpower will then send an acknowledgement to each customer donor.

''We are excited about this program not only because it will generate operating income for our education programs, but also because it will help generate awareness about the Summit and its goals,'' said Loretta Hanwell, chairman of the Summit.

Initially, a portion of profits will be donated from the sale of these products:

o laser cameras
o remanufactured film processors
o FVS illuminators
o Capintec dose callibrators
o Black Belt lead aprons

Donation amounts vary by product, and range from $5 for Black Belt lead aprons to $300 for laser cameras. Equipment prices are not affected by the program.

Picker was the first company to support the Summit on Manpower with a $50,000 donation in May, 1990. That donation provided the seed money for education programs on careers in radiologic technology and sonography.

Picker is also the sole sponsor of the Resident Education Program, in which the company donates textbooks to over 1,000 first-year radiology residents across the United States.

Picker International, based in Cleveland, is a $750 million global innovator in the design and manufacture of diagnostic imaging systems including computed tomography (CT), magnetic resonance (MR), nuclear medicine, X-ray and vascular and is North America's largest supplier of radiologic health care products. Picker International is a subsidiary of the General Electric Co. (GEC) p.l.c., of the United Kingdom, a diversified, multi-national corporation with annual sales of $16 billion.

DAYTON, OH (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Super Food Services Inc. (NYSE:SFS) Wednesday held its annual meeting of shareholders in Dayton.

The Class II directors were re-elected for a three-year term to expire at the annual meeting in 1993.

Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer Jack Twyman announced the results of the past fiscal year which showed a 5 percent increase in sales and an 8 percent increase in earnings per share as previously announced.

Twyman stated he anticipated that net earnings for the first quarter ended Nov. 17, which are to be released next week would be slightly lower than the comparable period last year. Twyman stated that while earnings for the first quarter have not yet been determined, it is apparent that net earnings for the first quarter will be reduced primarily because of higher fuel costs which have not been passed through to the company's customers, a larger provision for LIFO and smaller than expected sales growth.

Twyman expressed optimism that Super Foods would have a good year and he anticipates continued growth by obtaining new customers and related store development activity. He also announced that the company was going to begin construction of an addition to its Cincinnati distribution center.

On Dec. 12, the company's board of directors approved the regular quarterly dividend on the common shares of eight and one-half cents ($.085) per share payable March 15, 1991, to shareholders of record Feb. 19, 1991.

LITTLETON, MA (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Alliant Computer Systems Corp. (NASDAQ/ALNT) has achieved the highest LINPACK 1000 rating of any supercomputer in the under $2 million price range.

LINPACK ratings measure and compare the performance of computer systems used primarily in scientific and engineering disciplines. According to the LINPACK benchmark's founder, Jack J. Dongarra of the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, LINPACK measurements have a high percentage of floating- point arithmetic operations which are common to these types of applications.

The LINPACK 1000 is often used on larger computing problems typically solved with supercomputers, since it requires solving over 1000 different variables in 1000 simultaneous equations.

A $1.4 million 14-processor Alliant FX/2800 RISC-based, parallel supercomputer achieved a rating of 295 MFLOPS (millions of floating point operations a second) on the LINPACK 1000 tests published in Dongarra's November 6, 1990 report, Performance of Various Computers Using Standard Linear Equations Software. This compares to 166 MFLOPS for a hl'k-end $2.2 million Convex Computer Corp. C240. Both the Alliant and Convex systems have memory sizes of 256 MBYTES.

Alliant's system achieved 91 percent of the performance of a $3 million Cray Y-MP with one processor, and 25 percent of a $13 million Cray Y-MP four processor model. Results published in the same report indicated 282 MFLOPS and 284 MFLOPS, respectively, on IBM 3090/380J and 3090/300J systems, both with vector processors, both of which are list priced at a minimum of $7 million.

''The LINPACK results prove that supercomputers powered by today's standard RISC microprocessors meet or exceed the performance of traditional proprietary supercomputers. Our FX/2800, using standard 64-bit Intel 860 microprocessors, costs less than $2 million and solves supercomputer-class problems very quickly,'' said John Scanlon, Alliant's vice president of marketing. ''The cost of achieving results is being reduced dramatically.''

Alliant Computer Systems Corp. manufactures standards-based parallel supercomputers with visualization tools that enable scientists and engineew3 to quickly interpret and solve complex problems.

WOBURN, MA (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - NYNEX Mobile Communications, the largest cellular provider in the Northeast, has introduced plans to attract new users to its network through several special offers which are tailored for both business and casual users.

Once considered an amenity strictly for business executives and the wealthy, cellular telephone equipment and service is now becoming affordable to individuals and smaller companies. Although the cost of cellular equipment has dropped significantly since its introduction in 1984, many consumers maintain the original perception that this technology is expensive.

A recent survey, conducted on behalf of NYNEX Mobile, reported that out of the adults living in the Greater Boston area, 75 percent of potential cellular telephone buyers believe that cellular service costs more than double the actual retail prices offered today.

Gerard P. McEleney, director of marketing for NYNEX Mobile Communications, outlined the company's strategy. ''Research tells us that a substantial number of people want the convenience of cellular communications, but have a false perception that costs are very high. NYNEX Mobile has always been committed to providing quality, affordable cellular equipment and service. These special offers are just our way of introducing cellular to customers at an exceptional price.''

One of NYNEX Mobile's special offers includes a state of the art cellular NYNEX Mobile 832 Plus telephone with standard installation, activation fee, antenna and six months of Plan C service for just $385. NEW YORK (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - B+H Bulk Carriers Ltd. (NASDAQ: BULKF) announced that at the Annual Meeting of shareholders on December 11, 1990, shareholders voted to amend the Company's bylaws, enabling it to convert from a self- liquidating company to an ongoing entity able to engage in all aspects of the ocean shipping industry. Shareholders cast 1,381,808 votes in favor of management's proposal and 131,825 votes in opposition.

Shareholders of the Company, which owns and operates seven bulkcarriers, also voted to increase the number of authorized shares of common stock from 2,350,000 to 30,000,000 shares.

Subject to the payment of an additional dividend of $.30 per share, the Company will issue 1,921,165 shares to an affiliate of its management in exchange for the termination of management's incentive fee, which is presently 30% of the Company's distributable cash flow and is scheduled to increase to 50% of distributable cash flow upon the payment of additional dividends equal to $.30 per share.

Michael S. Hudner, President of the Company, said that the shareholders' action is expected to result in an enhancement of the value of the shareholders' investment in the Company. Future cash flow of the Company, he noted, could be partially utilized to acquire interests in additional vessels and the amendment to the bylaws will enable the Company to raise debt and develop other sources of capital.

Furthermore, the conversion to a permanent entity will give the Company the flexibility to increase revenues and diversify operating risks by entering into areas presently closed to it under its current, self-liquidating status.

Hudner added that the vote of the Company's shareholders at the Annual Meeting reflected the confidence of the shareholders in management's ability to lead the Company into new areas in the 1990's.

MERIDEN, CT (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Cenvest Inc. (NASDAQ:CBCT), the bank holding company for Central Bank, First Central Bank, and Meriden Trust and Safe Deposit Co., announced Wednesday that it expects to report a loss in the fourth quarter which ends Dec. 31, 1990, due primarily to anticipated loan charge-offs and a subsequent loan loss provision in excess of $13 million that is plans to record.

This would be the third additional provision Cenvest banks have had to record due to the depressed real estate market and the current economic recession. As long as the current conditions continue, further increases in nonperforming assets could result in additional loan loss provisions.

Earnings of Cenvest before charge-offs and loan loss provisions have declined significantly due to substantial increases in nonperforming loans and are expected to decline further in future fiscal quarters. Management continues to review the loan portfolio and its reserve adequacy based on the current market conditions. In view of the continuing losses, management has cut nonprofitable or nonessential banking services and reduced staff by approximately 6 percent.

Cenvest currently meets or exceeds all regulatory capital requirements, including the new risk-based capital guidelines which go into effect on Dec. 31, 1990. However, as previously announced, Cenvest's largest subsidiary, Central Bank, entered into a memorandum of understanding with regulators which requires Central Bank, among other things, to increase its capital ratios and to significantly improve its ratio of non-performing loans to total assets.

NEW YORK (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - AmBase Corp. (NYSE: ABC) Wednesday announced that its board of directors had approved an amendment to the Stock Purchase Agreement under which it has agreed to sell The Home Insurance Co. and its subsidiaries to TVH Acquisition Corp. consisting principally of Trygg-Hansa Holding AB, a major Swedish insurer and Industrial Mutual Insurance Co. of Helsinki, Finland.

A special meeting of AmBase stockholders has been scheduled for Jan. 29, 1991, to approve the sale. The record date for the meeting is Dec. 21, 1990.

The major provisions of the amendment include:

- AmBase will receive $477 million in cash for the outstanding common stock of The Home and AmBase's holding of 6,227,180 shares of $2.95 Cumulative Preferred Stock, Series A, issued by The Home.

- TVH will assume all of AmBase's 14-7/8 percent Senior Subordinated Notes due 1998 and Home Group Funding Corp.'s 14-7/8 percent Debentures due 1999 not purchased in the debt tender offers described below. TVH also will assume approximately $102 million of AmBase's outstanding 11-3/4 percent Sinking Fund Debentures Due 2008, as previously agreed. - TVH has agreed to pay AmBase up to $78 million to allow AmBase to meet its contingent liabilities. These include an obligation under a capital maintenance agreement to contribute up to $30 million to the capital of Carteret Savings Bank, and certain liabilities relating to litigation, taxes and AmBase's ongoing general and administrative expenses after closing.

- The amended agreement requires a minimum policyholder surplus at closing of $735 million.

As previously announced, the sale of The Home is subject to among other things the approval of AmBase's stockholders, various regulatory approvals and financing.

Under the agreement to purchase The Home, the sale is also subject to the successful completion of both debt tender offers. AmBase intends to commence tender offers to purchase 51 percent, or approximately $76.5 million of its 14-7/8 percent Senior Subordinated Notes Due 1998 (NYSE - ABC.RB) and 51 percent, or approximately $38.6 million of its 14-7/8 percent Debentures (NYSE - HME.RA) due June 1, 1999, of Home Group Funding Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of AmBase, which debentures are guaranteed on a subordinated basis by AmBAse. The offers will be made at prices which have not yet been determined, but which are anticipated to be at very substantial discounts to par. The tender offers will commence promptly and will be conditioned on, among other things, the simultaneous consummation of the sale of The Home, a portion of the cash proceeds of which will be used by AmBase to purchase such securities in the offers. As a result of TVH's assumption of the 14-7/8 percent Senior Subordinated Notes not purchased in the tender offer, neither AmBase nor TVH is required by the indenture to make an offer to purchase them at par.

AmBase also stated it was confident that TVH would soon receive commitment letters from a bank group led by Chase Manhattan Bank, N.A. with respect to the debt financing required to consummate TVH's purchase of The Home. On Nov. 27, 1990, TVH provided AmBase with commitment letters for $180 million of equity to support the transaction.

AmBase and TVH stated they will seek to consummate the sale of The Home expeditiously.

LIVERPOOL, N.Y. (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Pico Products Inc. (AMEX:PPI) Wednesday reported a net loss for the fiscal year ended July 31, 1990, of $2.7 million, or 75 cents per share compared with a loss of $5.7 million, or $1.61 per share for fiscal 1989.

The weighted average common shares outstanding were 3,560,000 for fiscal 1990 and 3,539,000 for fiscal 1989.

Sales for fiscal 1990 were $22.6 million compared to $29.0 million for fiscal 1989, a decrease of 22 percent. The sales decline was primarily due to the slower-than-planned introduction of an improved product line in both Pico Macom and the CATV division and loss of sales from the largest customer of Pico Macom.

Unusual and non-recurring charges for fiscal 1990 were $963,000 which were primarily due to charges resulting from the settlement of litigation, a writedown of accounts receivable resulting from the bankruptcy of a customer and a reduction of inventory as a result of a dispute with a foreign vendor. The company's annual report on Form 10-K will be released by Dec. 18, 1990.

Subsequent to the end of fiscal 1990, the company did not pay the November and December installments of its $3.2 million mortgage on its facility in Liverpool. Discussions with the mortgage lienholders regarding this default have commenced and are scheduled to continue. The company has reached a tentative settlement on the mortgage with the primary lienholder, which is subject to satisfaction of certain conditions and the execution of a definitive agreement.

Because of the company's financial condition, the company has retained the investment banking firm of Philadelphia First Group Inc. and the services of Everett Keech, former Under Secretary of the Air Force and former Vice Dean of the Wharton School, to advise the company on formulating a restructuring plan.

Both Philadelphia First Group and Keech has extensive experience in financial restructuring of small and medium-sized companies. The company will announce its formal plan of restructuring upon completion of Philadelphia First Group's and Keech's analysis and acceptance of the plan by the board of directors of the company.

NEW YORK (DEC. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Bowne & Co. Inc. (ASE:BNE) Wednesday announced results for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31.

Fourth quarter net sales were $50,047,000 compared with $50,120,000 in the fourth quarter of last year. Net income declined to $1,303,000 from $3,532,000 last year. On a per share basis, net earnings for the fourth quarter were 8 cents in 1990 vs. 20 cents in 1989.

Net sales for the fiscal year totaled $201,217,000, an increase of 6% from $189,577,000 for last year. Net income for the year increased 3% to $8,416,000 from $8,162,000. On a per share basis, net earnings were 49 cents compared with 46 cents a year ago.

''While our full year results are an improvement over last year's,'' said Richard H. Koontz, president and CEO, ''our fourth quarter results were impacted unfavorably by some extraordinary events. First, the Mid-East crisis turned what had been a moderately active climate for financial printing work into one where both debt and equity issuers took a wait and see attitude toward new offerings. Secondly, our fourth quarter results include increased expenses due to the purchase of the Packard insurance division and the hiring of a number of former Pandick sales and service people in the wake of that financial printer's demise.''

''The new Bowne Insurance Division is the nation's leading printer of insurance company statutory reports, and the former Pandick people we hired have helped bring many of Pandick's accounts to Bowne. Both moves will strengthen our 1991 performance,'' Koontz added.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows on approximately Nov. 21, 1990, Laventhol & Horwath, the former principal accountant for Omni Films International Inc.(TICKER: OFII), filed for bankruptcy protection.

Concurrently, certain former personnel of Laventhol & Horwath in the Tampa, Florida, office, decided to continue their individual practices in a new firm under the name of Aidman, Piser & Co., P.A.

The board of directors of Omni, on Dec. 4, 1990, discharged Laventhol & Horwath from its responsibilities and engaged Aidman as its new accountant.

For the previous two fiscal years, audits performed by those former auditors contained no adverse opinion or disclaimer of opinion nor were they modified as to uncertainty, audit scope, or accounting principles.

However, Laventhol & Horwath's report on Omni's financial statements for the year ended Sept. 30, 1989, reported both management's uncertainty as to recoverability of approximately $305,000 of capitalized film production costs, and the uncertainty of Laventhol & Horwath as to the company's ability to recover these costs.

Management acknowledged this uncertainty, and $155,000 of such costs were written down, Omni reports.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows in a letter dated April 30, 1990, the general partner of the limited partnership of Forest 1980 Drilling Program advised the limited partners it had determined liquidation and termination of the Forest 1980 program was, based on economic analyses, in the best interests of the limited partners.

Additionally on that date, the managing general partners of the general partnerships appointed the general partner of the limited partnership to serve as liquidating agent of the drilling partnerships, and to wind up and terminate the business and affairs of the drilling partnerships.

Forest 1980 reports its producing oil and gas wells and undeveloped acreage was offered for sale to over 350 companies on May 18, 1990.

Of those, 110 responded by asking for additional information.

A total of 14 bids were received for all or a portion of the program's properties.

The company states that initially, none was acceptable because they did not meet or exceed the properties' estimated market values, but that buyers have now been identified for all the program's properties.

The Henry Unit in Wyoming and the program's wells in Oklahoma were sold to Thermal Exploration and Natural Gas exploration, respectively.

Forest Oil Corp.(TICKER: FOIL) purchased the remaining properties.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows J.W. Gant Financial Inc.(TICKER: JWGF) reported that on Nov. 30, 1990, its certifying auditors, Spicer & Oppenheim, dissolved their business effective on that date. Therefore, Gant is soliciting proposals from other accounting firms.

Gant reports, however, that Spicer reported a modification regarding the period ended June 30, 1990, in regard to Gant's legal proceedings and disputes in which large or indeterminate amounts were being sought.

Spicer also noted a modification for the period ended June 30, 1989, in regard to the financial statements of one of the company's subsidiaries.

That subsidiary, reports Gant, was involved in various legal proceedings and disputes, and "no provision for any liability that may result has been made in the accompanying consolidated financial statements," Spicer concludes.

COLOMBO (DEC. 12) - At least 26 people, including an officer and seven soldiers, have died in a new upsurge of violence by Tamil guerrillas in Sri Lanka's troubled northeast, a military spokesman here said Wednesday.

The attacks are believed carried out by the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) all in the eastern part of the island Tuesday and Wednesday.

A defence ministry statement said at least six LTTE men were killed in a clash with troops and two more committed suicide during a police commando search of a Tamil refugee camp in eastern Ampara district.

The LTTE is continuing a bloody separatist campaign for the island's two million Tamil minority concentrated in Sri Lanka's northern and eastern regions.

The group has also tried to drive out Sinhalese and Moslems living in the two areas. Sinhalese are the majority community in Sri Lanka, but they form a minority in the Tamil-dominated north and east.

The militants abruptly ended 14 months of peace talks with Colombo to resume fighting from June 11. Since then, more than 5,000 people have died in bitter fighting involving government forces, rival Tamil militants and the LTTE.

London (DEC. 12) - Britons flown out of Kuwait had a thin, pale look to them early Wednesday as they arrived at Gatwick Airport near London: many had spent the last four months in hiding and short of food.

Among those who had seen little daylight since August 2 was Brian Hogg, a resident of Kuwait for 12 years. He hollowed out a hidey-hole in the floor. Whenever Iraqi soldiers turned up in his district, he would disappear under the carpet with water and a tube to breathe by.

Often he spent an hour or more huddled in the 40-centimetre deep hole. More than four or five hours would have been fatal, he said.

''The biggest danger was looting soldiers,'' said Christopher Bell, who hid in his eighth-storey flat. To minimise the risk, he altered the wiring of the apartment house lift so that it would not stop on the eighth floor.

Gerald Murthwaite, 61, barricaded himself with a friend in a flat. When soldiers came, we tried to frighten them away with animal noises,'' he said. ''Five times we chased them away with sticks.''

Many Britons held out in apartment buildings where all the other residents had fled. Telephones and broadcasts by the British Broadcasting Corporation (Bbc) World Service were their only contact with the outside world.

A few dressed up as Arabs to venture out on the streets.

WARSAW (DEC. 12) - President-elect Lech Walesa was expected Wednesday to name Jan Olszewski, a 60-year-old lawyer and former Solidarity adviser as Poland's next prime minister.

Mr. Olszewski would replace Tadeusz Mazowiecki, eastern Europe's first non-communist post-war government leader, who resigned after being beaten into third place in presidential elections here.

Walesa aides in Gdansk said the next government would be made up almost entirely of new faces and there was no question, at least for the time being, of forming any political coalition with the Mazowiecki faction.

Finance Minister Leszek Balcerowicz, 43 and Finance Minister Krzysztof Skubiszewski, 64 may however retain their portfolios, several reports said.

Mr. Olszewski is a former adviser to the Solidarity union leadership and is close to the Catholic Church authorities.

He acted as lawyer for opponents of the former communist regime at several political trials. He is reputed to be a good organiser and served as deputy president of the Lech Walesa support committee. He is appreciated for his integrity and readiness to enter into dialogue.

Gazeta, a newspaper close to Mr. Mazowiecki, said Wednesday that the ministries of industry, construction, labour, privatisation, education and culture were "certain" to change hands.

NIAMEY (DEC. 12) - About 5,000 Chadians have sought refuge at N'Guigmi, a border town 1,500 kilometers (930 miles) east of here on the shores of Lake Chad, the daily newspaper "Le Sahel" reported Tuesday.

The first refugees started arriving December 2 as rebel leader Idriss Deby advanced on the Chadian capital, Ndjamena, to seize power from former president Hissein Habre.

The refugees, including former Chadian military and civil officials, most of whom came from three border districts in Chad, are living with Niger's local population or in abandoned buildings.

Niger's President Ali Saibou announced December 4 that the armed Chadian refugees had surrendered their weapons to Niger's army.

Emergency supplies of food, medicine and blankets have been sent to the region but a major relief effort is needed, the paper said.

"We have shared bread and blankets with the N'Guigmi people. We want to thank them infinitely," the paper quoted one refugee as saying.

The government has called on the international community for relief assistance to help the financially-strapped country cope with the refugee influx.

Organizations including the International Committee of the Red Cross, the U.N. World Food Program (WFP) and the French Medicins Sans Frontieres (MSF-Doctors without Borders) have visited the refugees, Le Sahel reported.

TOKYO (DEC. 12) - Bank of Japan governor Yasushi Mieno said Wednesday that the central bank would maintain its tight monetary policy for the time being due to lingering uncertainty in the Gulf and upward pressure on prices.

"There is no turnaround in the economy which would require any change in monetary policy," Mr. Mieno told a news conference.

The central bank governor said that Japanese companies were still "cautious" about the situation in the Gulf. "There is no guarantee that crude oil prices will stay at the present 25 to 26 dollars a barrel," he added.

Mr. Mieno noted that recent declines in oil prices had reduced inflationary pressures although this was offset by upward pressure on wages arising from Japan's acute labour shortage. A recent decline in Japanese business confidence is "natural" as the Gulf crisis is "confusing," he said.

The central bank released a quarterly report Tuesday showing that Japanese business confidence deteriorated slightly in the three months to November amid growing pessimism in the paper, chemical, ceramic and steel sectors.

But the overall outlook for business conditions was "fairly high" among big manufacturers despite fears of higher input, distribution and financial costs, the bank said.

TOKYO (DEC. 12) - Japan's Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu indicated Wednesday that his government would not yield to foreign demands to liberalise imports of rice, despite being deeply divided on the issue.

"We will earnestly explain Japan's position and hold talks in accordance with the principle of self-sufficiency," he told parliament, referring to the Uruguay Round of talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

The four-year Uruguay Round was supposed to have ended with a ministerial meeting in Brussels last week but the talks were suspended after the European Community (EC) refused to accept a Swedish compromise on agriculture. Japan and South Korea were also blamed for contributing to the stalemate.

But International Trade and Industry Minister Kabun Muto indicated that Japan should modify its tough stance. "Japan must reach a fair compromise on issues including agriculture," he told the parliament.

PRETORIA (DEC. 12) - Prospects for South Africa's wheat crop are so poor that it could come in under the Wheat Board's downwardly revised estimate of 1.75 million tonnes, Wheat Board chairman Eddie Pienaar said here Wednesday.

South Africa would have to import as much as half a million tonnes of wheat for domestic human consumption, Winter Grain Producers' Organisation chairman Japie Neethling told state-run radio.

Drought in grain-producing areas of northern and western Transvaal and the Orange Free State could push farmers nationwide some 15 billion rands (six billion dollars) into the red, the financial daily Business Day reported Wednesday.

National Maize Producers' Organisation economist Kit le Clus told the paper maize farmers invested around two billion rands (800 million dollars) in the current harvest, and crop failure would mean the sequestration of farms.

He also warned that South Africa's domestic maize requirements of 6.5 million tonnes would be met only if there were good, regular rains for the next three months. Maize porridge is the staple of black South Africans.

Economists have warned that maize, as well as wheat, may have to be imported in 1991 for the first time in years.

Oslo (DEC. 12) - Helicopters Wednesday took off 37 crew from a hurricane-lashed British oil rig in the North Sea.

The decision to evacuate some of the crew was taken after winds and waves had smashed all lifeboats on the rig, Glomar Artic 3, some 40 sea miles northwest of Stavanger.

No further evacuations were planned at the moment, Norwegian coastguards said.

A danish rig, Maersk Vinlander, was adrift Wednesday in the North Sea with a mostly-British crew of 56. The rig had been on tow towards Stavanger when a cable snapped in heavy seas.

Coastguards said the storm was abating and a new cable was soon expected to be attached to the rig. There was no need to evacuate the crew.

JOHANNESBURG (DEC. 12) - The million-strong mainly black Congress of South African Trade Unions (COSATU) said here Wednesday it had lobbied Italian premier Guilio Andreotti in Rome against dropping sanctions.

Italy currently holds the six-month rotating presidency of the 12-nation European Community (EC), whose summit in Rome on Thursday is to discuss policy on South Africa.

A statement issued here on behalf of COSATU said its delegates had told Mr. Andreotti that "the much-publicised changes in South Africa have not had a real impact on the lives of black workers."

This compared with a deficit of 4.91 billion pounds in the previous quarter.

The trade balance showed a deficit of 3.79 billion pounds, and trade in so-called invisibles such as tourism and insurance showed a surplus of 280 million pounds.

In the second quarter the trade balance showed a deficit of 5.18 billion pounds, and invisible trade showed a surplus of 266 million pounds.

The deficit so far this year was 12.93 billion pounds (25 billion dollars) compared with 19.1 billion pounds in 1989.

PARIS (DEC. 12) - France is poised to ban tobacco advertising and severely curtail alcohol publicity in what will be a victory for health minister Claude Evin in the teeth of a powerful tobacco and drinks lobby.

If the Senate votes as expected in favour of the measure Thursday, the law will be in force by January 1, 1993.

French deputies at the National Assembly voted 321 to 234 in favour Tuesday.

In support of the measure Mr. Evin and his team of five leading doctors countered a wave of protest by stressing that alcohol and tobacco are responsible for 100,000 premature deaths a year in France at a cost to society of some 70 billion francs (14 billion dollars).

But Georges Hage, a communist deputy, said "we'll smoke as much, we won't drink less, but what we buy will be less French and more American."

The new law would mean a total ban on any form of direct or indirect advertising or propaganda by tobacco companies. It would also forbid them and alcohol companies from sponsoring sports or other events.

Alcohol publicity would still be allowed in the written press except in childrens' or adolescents' press. Advertising would also be allowed by commercial radio stations at times when youngsters were not expected to be listening.

Alcohol companies would have to pay a tax the equivalent of 10 per cent of their advertising budget to fund a drinking education and prevention programme.

Smoking, which is already banned in public places such as the post office and other state administrations, would also be banned in places where people meet collectively (offices, schools) except in areas reserved exclusively for smokers.

Service stations would be forbidden from selling alcoholic drinks to take away between 10:00 p.m. and 6:00 a.m.

The advertising ban on tobacco would be introduced gradually. In the written press space for tobacco advertising would in 1991 be cut by a third compared to the average space occupied between 1974-75 and by two thirds in 1992.

Jean-Marie Balestre, president of the International Federation of Automobile Sports said the sponsoring ban would cost his sport 350 million francs (70 million dollars) in lost support.

But health ministry officials argue that there is enough potential money from other companies to more than compensate for the loss from the tobacco and alcohol firms.

LAGOS (DEC. 12) - Nigeria and Britain have signed an agreement on protection of existing and future investments, British minister of state for trade Tim Sainsbury stated here Wednesday.

The accord, known as the Investment Promotion and Promotion Agreement, signed Tuesday in Abuja, Nigeria's future capital, by Mr Sainsbury and the Nigerian minister of industries, retired air vice marshal Mohammed Yahaya, will provide reassurance for foreign investors concerned about the risk of having their investments confiscated without adequate compensation, the British minister told journalists.

Britain has signed such agreements with more than 50 countries, said Mr. Sainsbury, who arrived here Sunday accompanied by five senior British business directors, all of whom have an interest in trading or investing in Nigeria, he also said.

Britain imported goods worth at least 168.37 million pounds sterling in the first 10 months of this year as against the 96.77 million pounds worth in the same period last year, the minister added.

The volume of trade between the two nations was officially valued at 518 million pounds last year, but Nigerian trade officials complain of trade imbalance which, they say, is in favour of Britain.

The imbalance is due to the fact that Britain also produces oil, Nigeria's number one foreign exchange earner, said the minister, whose team leaves Lagos Wednesday for Accra for a two-day visit.

BANGKOK (DEC. 12) - The French government has started a feasibility study on setting up an aviation maintenance centre in Thailand, an official with French aircraft maker Aerospatiale said here Wednesday.

The study is being undertaken by SOGERMA, an Aerospatiale subsidiary which does aircraft maintenance and repair work, and could take up to six months, said Francois David, vice president for international affairs with Aerospatiale.

It will also consider whether Thailand is the only possible market for the centre or whether other countries could also be serviced, Mr. David told a news conference here.

Aerospatiale is represented at the Asian Defense Services Exhibition and Conference '90 - an international defense exhibition - which opened here Wednesday.

The French aircraft-maker had also proposed building French Super-Puma helicopters in cooperation with Thailand, but had not yet heard from the Thai government, Mr. David said.

French Secretary of State for Defense Gerard Renon was also here to attend the defense exhibition and to meet senior Thai military officials, the French Embassy here said.

Mr. Renon, who arrived Tuesday, was to meet the supreme commander of the Thai armed forces, General Sunthorn Kongsompong, and the defense ministry secretary general, General Wanchai Ruangtrakul, the embassy said.

INVERNESS, Scotland (DEC. 12) - Six members of a Scottish fishing vessel went missing Wednesday during a storm in the North Sea which also forced the evacuation of several offshore oil platforms, coast guard officials said.

Weather officials, meanwhile, issued a flood warning for Britain's entire east coast.

According to a coast guard spokesman, an Inverness-based fishing vessel, the Premier, capsized during a storm off the Shetland Islands in 120 kilometer per hour (75 mile per hour) winds and 30 meter (100-foot) waves.

A British Royal Air Force Nimrod reconnaissance plane and three coast guard helicopters had sighted the overturned hull of the boat and an empty lifeboat.

Coast guard officials also said that more than 100 "non-essential" offshore oil workers were evacuated by helicopter on Wednesday from six platforms in the North Sea which broke loose from their moorings.

One of the platforms, the Glomar Arctic 3, was hit by a huge wave which slightly injured five workers and swept away two life-boats.

A nearby rescue ship, the Seaboard Swallow, was also having difficulties in the heavy seas because of an electricity failure.

ANKARA (DEC. 12) - Visiting Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akhbar Velayati and Turkish officials voiced hopes for a peaceful end to the Gulf crisis at the first round of official talks here Wednesday.

Following a 90-minute private meeting with Velayati, Turkish Foreign Minister Ahmet Kurtcebe Alptemocin noted the two countries' location in an important region, saying ''the peace and stability of this region is of utmost importance for the world peace''.

Velayati expressed hopes that the crisis will be resolved peacefully with the withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait and the U.S.-led ''foreign forces'' would leave the area.

Foreign ministry sources said at the official talks, the two sides expressed similar views as to the ''future of the region'' and agreed on the need for a peaceful solution ''on the basis of U.N. resolutions''.

They also stressed the importance of cooperation between Iran, Pakistan and Turkey within the Economic Cooperation Organisation they have set up.

Velayati also met President Turgut Ozal and Premier Yildirim Akbulut. Recalling his talks with Iranian leaders in Teheran last month, Ozal praised the steady development of ties between the two countries through such contacts.

Velayeti leaves Thursday following a second round of talks with Alptemocin and other Turkish officials.

HARARE (DEC. 12) - The Zimbabwe parliament Wednesday aproved legislation it hopes will quench the land thirst of thousands of peasant families by what legal experts see as the nationalisation of white farmers' land.

After President Robert Mugabe signs the bill into law, the government will be able to seize land, and pay compensation at the rate it chooses. The legislation expressly prevents aggrieved landowners from appealing to the courts.

The government sees the impending law as a tool by which it plans to absorb five million hectares of white-owned farm land, most of it in the fertile maize and tobacco belt in the northeast, and distribute it among 110,000 peasant farming families.

Since independence in 1980 the government has bought three million hectares from white farmers, who now own 12 million hectares, or 29 percent of the country's land. Six million peasants live on 49 percent of the land.

The government's action has been condemned by local and international human rights groups, including by Enock Dumbutshena, Zimbabwe's first black chief justice, who said it ''flies in the face of all accepted norms of modern society, and the rule of law.''

Observers also predict it will have a negative effect on overseas aid as well as on a major foreign investment drive the government is embarking on.

GHOR, Jordan (DEC. 12) - Jordan is taking steps to halt commando raids from its territory into Israel in order to avert punishing Israeli retaliatory strikes, Jordanian army officials have reported.

"We're trying to prevent infiltrations, as Jordan cannot cope with the fallout from such operations under the current circumstances," an army captain said.

The officer, entrenched in his observation post overlooking the Jordan River and the fertile Ghor Valley, said Jordan had bolstered security along the 380-kilometer (236-mile) cease-fire line with Israel.

Infiltration operations have surged from eight in 1989 to 16 in 1990 and have coincided with an upsurge in Moslem fundamentalism, which advocates martyrdom for the Palestinian cause.

The Jordanian army must also ensure that the 100,000 Ghor residents, including farmers, agricultural workers and shepherds, respect security directives.

To reach the Jordan River from the highway crossing the Ghor, a visitor must first allow his vehicle to be searched and hand over his identity card to Jordanian soldiers in return for a pass specifying precisely when he plans to leave the border region.

Soldiers have set up 13 fixed checkpoints and several mobile barricades on the 104-kilometer (65-mile) stretch of road from the northern Dead Sea to a point just south of Lake Tiberias.

Jordanian troops also conduct foot patrols and bar the parking of vehicles along the east bank of the Jordan River.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) - President George Bush Wednesday was set to suspend temporarily the Jackson-Vanik amendment, resuming normal trade relations between the Soviet Union and the United States and paving the way for U.S. aid to Moscow.

Mr. Bush's decision should reinforce generally the U.S.-Soviet trade agreement signed in Washington last May 3 at the summit between Mr. Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

The amendment, which became law in 1974, restricts granting the coveted "most favored nation" (MFN) trading status to socialist countries which do not permit free emigration.

A bill to liberalize emigration policy has stalled in the Soviet parliament, but Mr. Bush has stressed that the Soviet Union already has allowed vast numbers of Soviet Jews to emigrate.

U.S. Jewish groups have supported the waiver of the Jackson-Vanik law in light of the record numbers of Jews authorized to leave the Soviet Union. Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir on an official visit to Washington this week said he favored suspending the amendment for at least a year.

The law, which affects about 10 other countries accused of failing to respect the basic rights of their nationals, sets restrictions including high tariffs on products from those countries imported into the United States.

Mr. Gorbachev was awaiting the amendment's suspension in hopes of a prompt concession of U.S. agricultural credits which would enable Moscow to purchase the basic foodstuffs it needs to address serious food shortages in the Soviet Union.

U.S. businesses are enthusiastic about trade liberalization with the Soviet Union due to the enormous perceived potential of its markets, in which European and particularly German firms already have stepped up their operations.

LISBON (DEC. 12) - Next year will bring austerity to Portugal, following parliamentary approval Wednesday of a budget marked by what the government calls necessary adjustments due to the Gulf crisis and preparing the economy for changes in the European Community (EC).

Following a marathon debate, Portuguese deputies approved the major guidelines for the economy next year, with only minor changes by comparison with the approval on first reading given in November.

The budget is the work of the ruling Social Democratic Party (PSD) of Prime Minister Anibal Cavaco Silva, which has an absolute majority in Parliament and was the only party voting for the 1991 budget.

The leftist opposition (Socialists and Communists) voted against the new budget, as did the rightist Christians of the Social democratic Center (CDS) and the Democratic Renovation Party, which follows former President General Ramalho Eanes.

Finance Minister Miguel Beleza referred to the need for budgetary "austerity", stressing that the performance of the Portuguese economy must come closer to the standard of its EC partners, particularly in light of the prospect of Portuguese participation in EC economic and monetary union and preparations for the EC single (unified) market of 1993.

The budget is based on the assumption of 3.5 percent real growth of gross domestic product next year, compared with an average of 4.3 percent a year during the last five years, while the average EC rate is on the order of three percent.

The document forecasts an inflation rate for next year of 11 percent, which is called optimistic by both the opposition and the experts. The critics note that in October, the latest month for which information is available, consumer prices rose by 1.3 percent, which extrapolates to 13 percent a year, while last year had 12.7 percent inflation.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) - The United States will give the Soviet Union up to 3 billion dollars in export credits to purchase agricultural produce, congressional sources said Wednesday.

An official announcement was expected later in the day after President George Bush confers with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, who is currently visiting the United States.

The sources said Bush would suspend for one year the Jackson-Vanik amendment, which allows such credits only to countries that observe a policy of free emigration.

Bush indicated earlier in the day that the Soviet Union was liberalising its emigration policy when he pointed out that this year Moscow had allowed 150,000 Soviet citizens to leave.

GENEVA (DEC. 12) - Members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) gathered here on Wednesday for a two-day session five days after the failure of the GATT conference in Brussels that was supposed to conclude the Uruguay Round of multilateral trade talks.

Meeting chairman John Weekes, the Canadian ambassador to GATT, said: "In fact, only a few days distant from the closure of the meeting in Brussels, we share some sense of collective frustration and lost opportunity.

"That said, this is not the time for despondent introspection. Nor, indeed, is it a time for recrimination."

Speakers following Mr. Weekes avoided touching closely on the disputes that caused the failure, at least temporarily, of the four-year Uruguay Round.

The Peruvian representative said: "We should not overemphasize the importance of the Uruguay Round", while European Community ambassador Tran Van-Thinh said "we should not be upset by missing the deadline" of December 7 for ending the trade talks.

The ambassador also said on Wednesday that the EC had obtained the GATT waiver it had requested last October in connection with transition measures taken by Germany to facilitate integration of the former East Germany's economy into the German economy.

The steps had been taken to respect East German trade commitments to its former East Bloc partners.

The required waiver to GATT rules was approved by 56 countries, while three voted no (United States, Japan and Hong Kong), and five abstained.

Germany is replacing trade agreements with the Bloc with import quotas and very low duties for imports of those countries into Germany, with higher duties in case import volumes become too large. The United States wanted the waiver request to be discussed by a specific working group.

In addition, U.S. Canadian conflicts concerning ice-cream, beer and pork might be touched on at the two-day meeting here.

Members will also be asked to vote on El Salvador's application to join GATT.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) - Angolan rebel leader Jonas Savimbi held an unprecedented 30-minute meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze here Wednesday, describing the talks as "a vitally important step" to bring about peace in his war-torn homeland.

Secretary of State James Baker met separately at the State Department with Pedro de Castro Van Dunem, foreign minister of the Moscow-backed Angolan Government. After the meeting, Mr. Van Dunem would only say that the "problems of peace in Angola" had been discussed.

Emerging from his first meeting with a senior Soviet official, Mr. Savimbi, leader of the U.S.-backed rebel Union for the Total Liberation of Angola (UNITA), said it was "a vitally important step to achieving peace and democracy in Angola."

The Soviet foreign minister described the talks as "good and amicable" and said they had touched on the "fundamental approaches of national reconciliation, the conduct of free elections and the ceasefire."

Before conferring with Mr. Savimbi, Mr. Shevardnadze held talks at the Soviet mission with Mr. Van Dunem, who said the "most important issue is an agreement on a political platform so we can create the conditions to sign a ceasefire agreement as soon as possible."

At the end of a two-day meeting in Houston, Texas, Tuesday, Mr. Baker and his Soviet counterpart had issued a joint communique calling for a ceasefire, participation of UNITA in Angola's political life, free and fair elections under international supervision and an end to all arms deliveries to the belligerents as soon as a ceasefire comes into effect.

In recent months, the two superpowers have been urging their respective Angolan allies to wind down their 15-year-old civil war which has claimed 600,000 lives in the oil-rich former Portugese colony.

"If there is an agreement on a ceasefire, it would be easier for us to address the issue of cutting arms supplies...A very interesting process is getting under way," Mr. Shevardnadze said.

HARARE (DEC. 12) - Zimbabwe has deployed additional security forces along the border with Mozambique following the killing of 81 Zimbabweans since January last year, allegedly by the Mozambique National Resistence, Renamo, President Robert Mugabe said on wednesday.

In his third state of the nation address before parliament, carried in Wednesday's edition of The Herald newspaper, Mr. Mugabe accused Renamo of injuring 79 Zimbabweans, abducting a further 79, and committing 59 acts of robbery.

''In addition Renamo has sporadically disrupted our trade routes in Mozambique during the year,'' he said.

The government was concerned that people living in areas open to rebel attacks had to be adequately protected.

''Appropriate steps have therefore been taken in that regard, including the deployment of additional security forces to the affected areas,' said Mr. Mugabe.

He said he was confident that there were signs that peace might soon come to Mozambique and, possibly to the region as a whole, probably resulting in an end to cross-border incursions and destabilising activities.

Mr. Mugabe has vowed never to allow the rebels to take power in Mozambique and stationed 10,000 troops in the country.

In response, Renamo, whose 15-year bush campaign against the socialist Frelimo government has been described by the U.S. state department as particularly brutal, ''declared war'' on Zimbabwe in 1987.

On friday, Zimbabwe's home affairs minister, Moven Mahachi appealed to Renamo to stop brutalising innocent Zimbabweans. He told journalists here that Zimbabwe's 1,000-kilometre (625 miles) border with Mozambique was too long to guard fully but added that Zimbabwe had no intention of following South Africa's example and erecting an electric fence.

In its first official reaction, last week Zimbabwe's foreign minister, Nathan Shamuyarira, said Zimbabwe would honour the partial ceasefire signed between the Mozambican government and Renamo in Rome on December 1, and will shortly begin redeployment the estimated 10,000 troops stationed in Mozambique.

Under the agreement, Zimbabwean troops will be restricted to the rail corridors from the capital Maputo and Beira Port into the southern african interior. The redeployment should be completed by January 5.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) - A group of Israeli citizens have armed and trained professional hit men from Colombia's infamous Medellin drug cartel on the Caribbean island of Antigua, the Washington Post said Wednesday.

The role of the Israelis, some of whom were former senior military officers, was alleged in a report compiled by the Antiguan government that the Post managed to obtain.

It said the author of the report, British lawyer Louis Blom-Cooper, accused the Israeli arms factory Israel Military Industries (Imi) of negligence in not reporting fraud when it noticed irregularities in its arms sales to Antigua.

Blom-Cooper also said in the 300-page report that he had been ''somewhat surprised by the lack of overt interest'' in the matter by U.S. law enforcement officials, who were little help to him in gaining records of U.S. bank transactions in the affair.

The investigation was triggered by the discovery that 500 automatic weapons and 200,000 rounds of ammunition sold by Israel to Antigua in 1988 had wound up in the hands of a Colombian drug baron.

The Israelis named in the report were retired Lieutenant-Colonel Yair Klein, retired Brigadier General Pinchas Shachar, and Maurice Sarfati, an Antigua-based melon farmer.

The paper quoted Danny Naveh, a spokesman of Israeli Defence Ministry Moshe Arens, as rejecting the report's criticism of Imi.

''If there was any negligence,'' he said, ''it was not by Israel Military Industries, but by people in Antigua.''

BRUSSELS (DEC. 12) - The European Commission, in a document to be presented to the European Community (EC) summit in Rome on Saturday, has asked that a future European central bank (Eurofed) be granted total independence.

The document asks for several changes in the European Community's founding Treaty of Rome, which the Commission, executive arm of the EC, thinks necessary for a single European currency and economic and monetary union (EMU).

A diplomat told Agence France-Presse on Wednesday that the document is aimed at facilitating the work of European heads of government and ministers gathered in the Italian capital.

Germany wants an eventual Eurofed to be fully autonomous, like the German Bundesbank, but France wants its activities made "interdependent" on decisions by finance ministers of the EC Twelve.

The Commission document argues that neither Eurofed nor any central bank in an EC member state should ask for or accept instructions from the Community or governments, the diplomat said.

Member states should adopt the same approach to their own central banks.

Under Commission plans, Eurofed would become operational from the start of the second phase of EMU, coordinating monetary policies within the EC and developing the instruments necessary to introduce a single currency.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 12) - The European Community (EC) may agree to renew for one year a commercial accord on corn with the United States, whose expiration threatens to unleash a trade war between the two parties, informed sources said Wednesday.

The treaty is to be discussed here Friday by European Agriculture Commissioner Ray McSharry and U.S. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter, according to the same sources.

The European Commission on Wednesday authorized Mr. McSharry to show some flexibility regarding the agreement, which is favorable to the United States, and to accept its prolongation for one year under certain conditions, the sources indicated.

However, the United States would then be expected to renounce requesting an additional extension after 1991 and to make concessions on other pending bilateral agricultural questions, the sources said.

Primary among these was the U.S. decision to ban until next summer the importation of wine -- mainly French -- containing a fungicide known as procymidone.

The agreement between the EC and the United States authorizes the United States to export some two million tons of corn and 300,000 tons of sorgum to Spain and Portugal under reduced tariffs.

The accord, instituted in 1987 to compensate the United States for its losses caused by Spain and Portugal's adhesion to the Common Market, had been scheduled to expire at the end of this year.

If the accord is not renewed, Washington has threatened to impose duties of 200 per cent on European agricultural exports, according to the British daily Financial Times.

The current U.S.-EC spat follows last week's failure to reach an agreement between the two parties in the Uruguay round of GATT talks on the question of agricultural subsidies.

BOSTON, MASSACHUSSETTS (DEC. 12) - A diet rich in red meat is likely to double the risk of colon cancer, according to a medical study issued here Wednesday.

Conducted by Dr. Walter Willett, of Boston's Brigham and Women's Hospital, among nearly 89,000 nurses from 1980 to 1986, the study confirms what physicians and nutrition experts have long suspected.

The researchers found that eating more beef, pork or lamb, increased the chance of contracting colon cancer, from 40 per cent higher than normal, for those eating red meat between once a month to once a week, to twice the normal rate in those who ate red meat every day.

But Peter Greenwald, of the National Cancer Institute, quickly pointed out after going over the study that people should not stop eating red meat altogether.

"Meat has important nutrient value ... The message should be to cut down, not to cut out."

BRUSSELS (DEC. 12) - The European Commission decided on Wednesday to renew its system of monitoring state subsidies to the automotive industry, according to a statement released here.

The system, which came into effect for a two-year period on January 1, 1989, requires the 12 members of the European Community (EC) to apply to the Commission in advance for approval of plans to give state aid to automobile manufactureres.

When the subsidies are within the framework of a program already approved by Brussels, such as regional assistance, the Commission must be notified if the total cost of the project being subsidized exceeds 12 million European Currency Units (17 million U.S. dollars).

In its statement, the Commission said the recent drop in consumer demand for automobiles made it all the more necessary to closely monitor public subsidies.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) - The United States Wednesday called on rival parties in Bangladesh to reject violence and to respect the law in pursuing charges against President Hussain Mohammad Ershad.

"We urge all parties in Bangladesh, out of respect for the rule of law, to reject violence and to begin the work of rebuilding Bangladesh in a spirit of dialogue and cooperation," said State Department spokesman Richard Boucher.

(In Dhaka, a leftist political party Wednesday filed charges of murder, misappropriation of funds and illegal seizure of power against the deposed Bangladesh president.

(The charges were filed hours after a haggard Mr. Ershad, 60, was formally placed under arrest and was driven with his wife and eight-year-old son under heavy military and police guard from the safety of Dhaka's military cantonment.

(The ousted president, a former general, had been living in his cantonment home under military guard since he was toppled December 4 by weeks of mass demonstrations against his rule in which at least 100 people died.)

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) - President George Bush Wednesday announced a Soviet-U.S. summit in Moscow next February 11 to 13 along with U.S. economic aid to the Soviet Union and the waiving of trade restrictions against that country.

Speaking at a White House press conference after talks with visiting Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, Mr. Bush said progress had been made in the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks (START) and he voiced hope that a START treaty to reduce long-range nuclear weapons could be signed in Moscow.

The U.S. leader also said he had decided to waive temporarily the so-called Jackson-Vanik amendment, a 1974 law tying most favored nation trading status to adoption of more liberal Soviet emigration policies.

He also said he would take steps to provide credit to enable Moscow to buy up to one billion dollars' worth of U.S. farm products ranging from grain to cheese.

"The Soviet Union faces tough times," Mr. Bush told the press conference, also attended by Mr. Shevardnadze and Secretary of State James Baker.

The Soviet forteign minister welcomed Mr. Bush's words as a "very important statement" and said he looked forward to seeing Mr. Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev sign the START treaty, which has been under negotiation for almost nine years.

WASHINGTON, (DEC 12) - U.S. credit guarantees offered to countries for the purchase of U.S. agricultural products have fallen 46 per cent since the start of fiscal 1991, compared to the same period the previous year, an informed source said Wednesday.

The decline was due in part to the suspension of U.S. aid to Iraq, which received 500 million dollars in credit guarantees in fiscal 1990.

The Soviet Union is a candidate for as much as three billion dollars in loan guarantees under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) GSM-102 program, industry sources said.

The USDA extended 2.3 billion dollars in GSM-102 and GSM-103 loan guarantees between October 1 and November 30, compared to about 4.29 billion dollars in the same period in 1989.

The GSM-102 and 103 programs enable the USDA to guarantee short and medium term loans for the purchase of U.S. agricultural products.

From October 1 through November 30, USDA has distributed 2.205 billion dollars through GSM-102 to 15 countries, USDA sources said.

At the same time, the USDA awarded 114 million dollars in loan guarantees to four countries under its GSM-103 program, the sources said.

The USDA's 1991 budget provides for at least 5 billion dollars in loan guarantees under GSM-102 and 500 million dollars in gurantees under GSM-103.

In 1990, about 30 countries benefitted from the programs which granted guarantees of 4.6 billion dollars under GSM-102 and 468 million dollars under GSM-103.

TEGUCIGALPA (DEC. 12) - Some 200 tattered and torn Salvadoran soldiers crossed the border into Honduras apparently after a bloody clash with leftist rebels, the Foreign Ministry said here Wednesday.

Some of the soldiers were seriously wounded and have been taken to hospitals in nearby Honduran towns, a ministry statement said.

The rest of the soldiers, the ministry added, are being held by authorities and the U.N. Observer Group for Central America has been notified.

The U.N. group has been in charge of border surveillance between Honduras and Nicaragua during the last few months the former Nicaraguan contras were operating, before April of this year.

Honduran President Rafael Callejas cut short a visit to the central city of Catacamas and returned to the capital when he was told what had happened.

It was the biggest crossing by Salvadoran military into Honduras, it was pointed out. Previous incidents went no further than complaints by local residents of incursions by Salvadoran military or guerrillas.

Official reports from San Salvador Wednesday indicated that fighting between government troops and leftist rebels had intensified, especially in the northern part of the country, near the Honduran border.

DEARBORN, MI (DEC 12) - The recession which has plagued the automotive industry this year will continue next year with an anticipated five-per-cent drop in sales, Ford Motor Co. said Wednesday.

In a statement to shareholders, Ford president Philip Benton said the Gulf crisis, slow economic growth and the hike in oil prices was partly behind the gloomy forecast.

He predicted that 13.5 million Ford automobiles would be sold next year, down five per cent from this year.

Growing competition by foreign auto makers and pressure to make more environmentally safe cars would further weaken the U.S. auto industry in the coming years, Mr. Benton said.

All three largest U.S. auto makers, General Motors, Ford and Chrysler suffered losses in the fourth quarter of this year for the first time since the 1981 recession.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) - Aerospace weapons spending will continue to slide despite the Gulf crisis -- while the commercial aerospace industry hit a record high this year, an industry executive said Wednesday.

"Aerospace sales to the Department of Defense will dip to the lowest level since 1982, and 1991 will mark the fourth straight year of declining defense business," said Don Fuqua, president of the Aerospace Industries Association.

Along with the drop in aerospace weapons spending, some 70,000 jobs were lost bringing employment in the industry for 1990 down to 1.25 million. Another 30,000 jobs are expected to cut in 1991, Mr. Fuqua said.

"It is not likely that the Middle East situation will appreciably change plans for downsizing the peacetime military establishment," he added.

He said Iraqi President Saddam Hussein gave the industry a boost "by reminding our nation that there is a lot of potential for trouble from sources other than the Soviet Union."

While aerospace weapons spending has been waning, overall industry sales for 1990 will reach a record 131.4 billion dollars -- a 12 per cent increase over the previous year, according to the association.

Exports set a record 36.8 billion dollars, lowering the U.S. trade deficit by 26 billion dollars, Mr. Fuqua said.

Commercial transport aircaft sales were above 22 billion dollars with a 100-billion-dollar backlog in orders, he said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) - The U.S. Export-Import Bank is considering extending the Mexican state oil company Pemex guarantees for a five-year, 5.6 billion dollar line of credit, an Eximbank vice president said Wednesday.

Richard Feeny, Eximbank's vice president for Latin America, said the bank was favorably disposed to extending such a guarantee but noted that talks with Pemex were still "in the very early stages."

Under Eximbank's statutes, any loan guarantee in excess of 100,000 dollars must be approved by the U.S. Congress.

Mr. Feeny said the loans guaranteed by Eximbank could only be used to buy equipment or services in the United States and he noted that some U.S. businesses have expressed interest in the talks.

Pemex has said it plans to invest 6.8 billion dollars over the next six years.

It has obtained 395 million dollars this year from the German, British, Austrian and U.S. capital markets to finance exploration and development of its off-shore oil fields.

WASHINGTON, (DEC 12) - U.S.-Soviet efforts to speed up a settlement of Angola's 15-year-old civil war moved into high gear here Wednesday, including an unprecedented meeting between Angolan rebel leader Jonas Savimbi and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

The 30-minute Savimbi-Shevardnadze meeting at the Soviet Embassy here highlighted a flurry of diplomatic activity that also featured a meeting at the State Department between Secretary of State James Baker and Pedro de Castro Van Dunem, foreign minister of the Moscow-backed Luanda Government.

Thursday, Mr. Savimbi, head of the U.S.-backed National Union for the Total Liberation of Angola (UNITA), will call on President George Bush at the White House, U.S. officials said. Mr. Savimbi is also expected to confer with Mr. Baker.

Also Thursday, a five-party meeting at the State Department will bring together representatives of UNITA, the ruling Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA), the United States, the Soviet Union and Portugal (the former colonial power in Angola), UNITA sources said.

The meeting is aimed at securing agreement on a set of principles that will govern a ceasefire, a political settlement and an end to outside arms deliveries to the belligerents, the sources added.

One source said UNITA would press for a commitment that constitutional changes adopted by the MPLA last weekend and establishing a multiparty system would be implemented as soon as possible.

If the changes are ratified by the Angolan People's Assembly in the coming weeks, this could lead to an agreement on a ceasefire at the next round of Portuguese-mediated peace talks slated for late January in Lisbon, he added.

The two Angolan sides have held several rounds of inconclusive talks in Lisbon since April.

For several months, the superpowers have been prodding the rival Angolan sides to wind down a civil war that has claimed 600,000 lives in the oil-rich

African country.

At the end of a two-day meeting in Houston, Texas, Tuesday, Mr. Baker and Mr. Shevardnadze jointly called for a ceasefire, participation of UNITA in Angola's political life, free and fair elections under international supervision and an end to all arms deliveries to the belligerents as soon as a ceasefire came into effect.

LONDON (DEC. 13) - The political "honeymoon" period for the new British prime minister, John Major, seems to be over, according to an opinion poll published in the Guardian newspaper Thursday showing the Conservative lead over the opposition Labour Party cut to two per cent.

In the period immediately following the election for the Conservative leadership, resulting in a change of prime minister, the Conservatives surged ahead of Labour in the polls, showing an 11-point lead.

The poll published here Thursday puts the parties' standing at 45 per cent for the Conservatives, 43 per cent for Labour, nine per cent for the Liberal Democrats and two per cent for the Greens.

But respondents showed less faith in Labour's economic policies than the party's overall rating might suggest.

Asked which party they thought would produce the most successful economic results, 47 per cent of those questioned said the Conservatives while only 25 per cent placed their hope in Labour. Another 23 per cent said they did not know.

The pollsters ICM interviewed 1,376 people in constituencies across Britain last Friday and Saturday.

FREDERICK, Maryland (DEC. 12) - The U.S. Army has signed an agreement with Soviet scientists to develop a vaccine to combat the deadly hemorrhagic fever, the military said Wednesday.

The disease, which is spread by rodents and produces flu-like symptoms and sometimes death, strikes some 100,000 to 500,000 people annually in the Soviet Union, Asia and elsewhere, the World Health Organization estimates.

The agreement, the first of its kind between U.S. Army medical researchers and a Soviet scientific agency, allows Soviet scientists to work with army researchers to refine the vaccine and test it on thousands of volunteers.

"This kind of collaboration is another confirmation of the openness that is developing and the willingness to draw closer together on scientific matters and other things," said Colonel Thomas Monath, chief of virology at the U.S. Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases.

Army scientists believe they have a vaccine which will combat hemorrhagic fever. In its most serious stages, the disease causes kidney problems and internal bleeding in the brain, lungs and digestive system.

MAPUTO (DEC. 13) - Mozambique's ruling FRELIMO party, faced with the challenge of promised free elections next year, on Wednesday announced it would hold an extraordinary congress in the "near future."

The party's central committee made the announcement at the end of a five-day meeting here. No firm date was given, but analysts said it was likely the congress would be held before the general elections scheduled for 1991 and would discuss the party's electoral strategy.

According to its statutes, the party should hold an ordinary congress every five years. At the last ordinary congress in July 1989, the fifth in Frelimo's history, the party abandoned Marxism-Leninism and redefined itself as the party of "all the people" rather than the "vanguard of the worker-peasant alliance."

Mozambique's new constitution, which came into force less than two weeks ago, ends the one-party state and does away with the concept of FRELIMO's "leading role" in Mozambican society.

SYDNEY (DEC. 13) - Australia's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate soared from 7.6 per cent in October to 8.2 per cent in November, official figures showed Thursday.

The November figure, which compared with a rate of 5.9 per cent in the same month last year, was at the top end of market forecasts ranging from 7.7 to 8.2 per cent.

Employment Minister John Dawkins described the results as "a very grim set of figures" which reflected the economic downturn.

The unemployment figures, the highest since May 1987, co-incide with the release of retail trade figures showing a 1.3 per cent fall between September and October.

The Bureau of Statistics said seasonally adjusted unemployment rose to 698,100 in November from 650,000 in October, compared with 495,500 a year earlier.

The rise was most marked in the depressed eastern state of Victoria where unemployment reached 8.4 per cent.

Queensland had the highest unemployment level at a seasonally adjusted 9.2 per cent.

Analysts say the figures justify another easing in monetary policy, which is being tipped by some commentators as likely this week.

The official figures were released 24 hours after a survey of Australian manufacturing industry forecast an unemployment rate of more than nine per cent next year in the gloomiest prediction so far.

The December quarter survey by the Australian Chamber of Manufactures and State Bank of New South Wales indicated 31,000 manufacturing jobs were likely to be lost nationally in 1991, adding to 65,000 so far in 1990.

Translated across the economy, the unemployment rate could be expected to climb to more than nine per cent, it said.

The survey, of nearly 500 NSW manufacturers, found 52 per cent had shed jobs during 1990 and 24 per cent increased staff, while 30 per cent planned to cut their workforce next year and only 16 per cent expected to hire.

BankAmerica economist Russell Maddox said the employment figures put the government "under immense pressure to cut rates." The figure, he said, was "well in line with the economy being in a recession."

BEIJING (DEC. 12) - China recorded a 900-million-dollar trade surplus in November, assuring that its 1990 trade balance will finish in the black after a big shortfall last year, according to customs figures published Wednesday.

Exports totalled 5.79 billion dollars, outpacing 4.89 billion dollars in imports and bringing the January-November trade surplus to 7.1 billion dollars, the official China Daily reported.

It was the fourth month in a row that China's overall trade turnover had gone up, the newspaper added.

China suffered a 6.5-billion-dollar trade deficit last year and a 3.09-billion-dollar shortfall in 1988. Western analysts link the turn-around to a devalued Chinese yuan currency and a tighter rein on imports.

Besides goods and services, customs import figures also take into account foreign aid receipts, items brought into China as foreign investment, and raw materials exchanged for processing.

Hong Kong remained China's biggest trading partner, with 23.14 billion dollars' worth of exports going into the British colony and 12.43 billion dollars imported.

Observers noted, however, that the export figure includes Chinese products being trans-shipped through Hong Kong for other foreign markets.

Indirect trade between China and Taiwan during the same 11-month period was put at 2.05 billion dollars, with imports from the Nationalist-ruled island outstripping exports by an overwhelming 1.528 billion dollars.

APIA (DEC. 12) - A Japanese construction and real estate firm has signed a purchase agreement to buy Western Samoa's second biggest hotel, the Tusitala, the receiver Peter Howell said Tuesday.

The hotel, put into receivership last year with debts estimated to be around seven million tala (5.7 million dollars U.S), will be sold for 5.5 million tala (4.4 million dollars) to the Tokyo-based Kitano Construction Corporation.

The purchase agreement was signed by Kitano's managing director of overseas construction but final agreement depends on approval of the full Kitano board. The Western Samoa Cabinet has already approved the deal.

The Western Samoa government was the biggest single shareholder of the Tusitala, holding 19 per cent of the interest, with other shares held by the government of Nauru, Western Samoa's National Providence Fund, a local firm, Tusitala Hotels Investment Ltd, and local investors.

The modern 96 room hotel employing 117 staff is on leased government land at the base of Mulinu'u Point on the western side of Apia harbour.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 12) EFE - Palestinian protesters hurled stones at the car of Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens on Wednesday just hours after Israeli troops shot dead a young Palestinian in the Occupied Territories.

As Palestinian students held protests throughout the day in East Jerusalem, demonstrators stoned Arens' official car in the West Bank town of Jericho.

No one was injured in the attack but Israeli state radio said two people were arrested.

Hours earlier, Israeli soldiers shot dead a 16-year-old Palestinian youth as they moved to put down a demonstration in the occupied West Bank.

Israeli security forces claimed Palestinian militants fired at police from inside a mosque during a demonstration in the town of Shuafat. The protesters were dispersed as police fired rubber bullets and tear gas cannisters.

Meanwhile, two Israeli soldiers were injured when Palestinian protesters in the West Bank town of Hebron hurled stones at security forces. One of the two was hospitalized, police said.

The intifada, or uprising, in the Occupied Territories entered its fourth year this week.

Since the intifada began, more than 700 Palestinians have been killed by Israeli security forces.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) EFE - The United States Wednesday accused Iraq of trying to block upcoming talks on the Gulf crisis between Secretary of State James Baker and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein by refusing to agree on the meeting's date.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said Iraqi authorities continue to insist that the talks be held January 12.

Washington has opposed that date, saying it was too close to the deadline set by the United Nations for Iraqi's withdrawal of Kuwait, which it invaded in August.

The U.N. Security Council has given Iraq until January 15 to get out of Kuwait or face possible military action from U.S.-led multinational forces arrayed against it in the Gulf region.

Baker is due in Baghdad for talks with Saddam that were proposed by U.S. President George Bush to discuss the crisis sparked by the Iraqi invasion.

Although the United States has offered 15 alternative dates for the visit, the Iraqi authorities insist on January 12.

U.S. diplomats in Baghdad have failed to break the deadlock, Boucher said.

According to the diplomats, the impasse might threaten the visit of Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz to Washington originally planned for December 17.

BOGOTA (DEC. 12) EFE - Leftist Colombian rebels Wednesday killed five soldiers and a civilian in a series of counter-attacks throughout the country in response to the Army's offensive against guerrilla strongholds, military officials said.

Military sources said Colombian Revolutionary Armed Forces (FARC) rebels also downed an Army helicopter in the eastern region, but that the crew had escaped uninjured.

They said most of the deaths came during FARC assaults on police and Army posts in the attacks launched in reply to the government-ordered offensive begun Sunday.

Two soldiers and a civilian died in the northeastern town of Rionegro when the guerrillas attacked a military patrol.

A corporal died and two soldiers were wounded in the southwestern town of Chaparral when FARC rebels assaulted another patrol.

Guerrillas killed one soldier in the southwestern town of Mesetas and another in the northwestern town of Toledo.

Some 26 soldiers have died since Sunday, including 11 in two helicopter crashes.

Meanwhile, Army Gen. Jorge Correa Castaneda said soldiers had found the bodies of at least 3O leftist rebels killed since Sunday.

Correa Castaneda, who heads the Seventh Brigade, said the Army had razed four FARC strongholds in the Uribe mountains, some 200 km south of the capital.

On Sunday, Air Force jets and helicopter gunships bombed and strafed FARC headquarters in the region, before 400 troops went in and overran the base.

The Army said 40 guerrillas and 11 soldiers died in the attack.

Correa Castaneda said fighting continued in the four beleaguered strongholds as the Army tried to stamp out centres of resistence.

The general said the principal aim of the offensive was "to recover all the mountainous zone of La Uribe and to return to Colombia a territory which was nabbed several years ago by FARC guerrillas".

FARC recently joined forces with National Liberation Army rebels to negotiate with the government terms for their possible demobilization and reintegration into society.

But FARC leaders Monday said the offensive had +squandered the chance to build peace+ although the government said its offer of talks remained valid.

Sunday's attack came as Colombians went to the polls to choose 70 candidates for an assembly to reform the 104-year-old constitution. The former left-wing rebel group M-19 won more votes than any other party.

President Cesar Gaviria's government denied that the offensive was planned to coincide with the elections.

FARC, the oldest and largest of Colombia's five leftist rebel groups, was founded in 1958.

M-19 laid down their arms in March to form a political party.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (DEC. 12) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

IN THE NEWS:

The Nikkei edges up 42 points. ... The FTSE is off one point at midday. ... U.S. stocks are marginally lower in London where DIGITAL is up on news of a cost cutting program. ... The yield on the long Treasury bond is at 8.05% and the dollar is lower. ... Brent North Sea crude is down 60 cents to $26.40. ... The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT says the third-quarter current account deficit was up 13.9% to $25.6 billion in the third-quarter. ... The FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORP. says bank profits fell 29% during the third quarter. ... PRESIDENT BUSH has reappointed ROBERT CLARKE as COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY. mutual company to a stock company. ... TEXAS INSTRUMENTS says it has reached a 10-year agreement with TOSHIBA on patent licensing.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

The GROUP OF SEVEN nations may meet next month to discuss German interest rates and the weak dollar. ... The TREASURY says it will begin auctioning five-year Treasury notes on a monthly basis next year and will discontinue the sale of four-year notes.

FROM THE BULLS:

Look for a 20% or better gain in stocks over the next year, says newly bullish

ELAINE GARZARELLI, director of sector research at SHEARSON LEHMAN. "We're through with the bear market - it took over a year. We bottomed at 2365 on October 11," says Garzarelli, who has only made four major market calls in the past six years. "I think the worst [of the recession] is right now," says Garzarelli. "In the third and fourth quarters [of 1991, GNP] is going to be rising again ... interest rates are down so substantially." (CNN "Business Morning", 12/12)

"The overall [stock market] trend remains up," says JOAN LAPPIN, president of GRAMERCY CAPITAL MANAGEMENT. She says Tuesday's market action was "surface noise." "The market's climbing a wall of worry and most people still feel this is nothing more than a bear market rally." (NYT, 12/12)

FROM THE BEARS:

"The bear [market] isn't over yet in terms of either price or time," says STEVEN EINHORN, chairman of the investment policy committee and the partner in charge of the research team at GOLDMAN, SACHS & CO. He says the stock market has yet to digest the "dark side" of the recession focusing instead on falling interest rates and moderating inflation. But soon investors will have to contend with falling corporate profits. "Analysts have not yet revised downward their estimates [on corporate earnings] to conform to economic reality. That poses a risk for the equity market," says Mr. Einhorn. He says that to turn bullish he needs a clearer picture of how long and deep the recession will be. Corporate earnings estimates need to drop to more reasonable levels, and stocks need to look cheaper when compared with bonds. He says stock prices may have to fall 10% to 12% from current levels before that happens. (WSJ, 12/12)

STOCK MARKET:

"To read too much into these daily and even weekly fluctuations based primarily on news from the Middle East is kind of a dangerous practice," says CHARLES COLSON, editor of "Dow Theory Forecast." He says the market is in a general retracement, and says it needs to re- test the 2365 level before beginning up again. Colson thinks that if war broke out and the market fell to, but held at 2365, "that could be very appealing in terms of laying a very firm bottom." But if the market fell through the 2365 level, "that would signal that the bear market is still intact." ("Investor's Daily", 12/12)

"If we break down through the 2575 level [on the industrial average], we could see an accelerated move back down to the low 2500s," says DALE TILLS, manager of institutional equities trading at CHARLES SCHWAB. He notes that on Tuesday "the market was just drifting all day on extremely light volume." (WSJ, 12/12)

The probabilities are very strong that "the overwhelming majority of stocks have seen their lows," says STAN WEINSTEIN at the "Professional Tape Reader." Weinstein says several of his early warning gauges continue to flash a favorable message. But while the overall pattern continues to improve, Weinstein cautions, "It's still far from bullish ... [it's] not a great sign that there's plenty of supply starting near 2700." (CNBC "World Business", 12/12)

"Our date with reality is coming up real soon," says BRADLEY TURNER, chairman of the investment policy committee at McDONALD & CO. SECURITIES. He says fourth-quarter earnings disappointments or further bank problems could be the catalyst to send stocks sliding further -- perhaps back to their October lows. (WSJ, 12/12)

"Without any real direction from the economy, the Middle East and interest rates, the market is going to blip around on year-end portfolio adjusting -- no question about it," says PETER KEEFE, analyst at JOHNSTON, LEMON. ("USA Today", 12/12)

"The stock market will probably begin [to respond to Fed easing] sometime around the middle of the second quarter of 1991," says MONTE GORDON at DREYFUS CORP. "It will begin to become perceptible that it's beginning to work, that the economy, in its natural resilience, has squeezed out a lot of the problems and has begun to turn around." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/11)

STOCK TIPS:

BARRINGTON RESEARCH ASSOCIATES recommends stock in A. SCHULMAN INC., an Ohio-based maker of plastic compounds and resins used in products ranging from consumer goods and packaging to electronics and autos. It says earnings should grow 15% annually in the next few years. ("USA Today", 12/12)

ADEPTEC's bleak earnings yesterday sent the stock plummeting along with other technology issues. SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS analyst EDWARD WHITE expects Adeptec to earn about 20 to 25 cents a share in its third quarter, down from his previous estimate of 47 cents a share. Mr. White, however, calls the stock attractive at its current levels. (WSJ, 12/12)

APPLE fell 1 3/4 to 40 and SUN MICROSYSTEMS dipped 1 to 22 1/2 as DAVID KORUS of KIDDER, PEABODY recommended underweighting personal computer companies. Earnings "will most likely trend downward," according to Korus. ("Investor's Daily", 12/12)

JOHN McMILLIN, food analyst for PRUDENTIAL-BACHE SECURITIES INC. recommends IBP, formally called Iowa Beef, on the strength of its potential sale following the death of ARMAND HAMMER, long-time chairman and chief executive of OCCIDENTAL PETROLEUM CORP. which owns a 51% controlling interest in IBP. Analysts forecast that IBP might be one of the first operations to be sold under Occidental's new management. (NYT, 12/12)

In the early part of a recession, the best performers tend to be steady growth

stocks such as utilities, drug, tobacco and foods, says ELAINE GARZARELLI at SHEARSON LEHMAN. "Now I think portfolio managers should begin to sell those groups and go into the early cyclicals." These will outperform in the first year of a bull market, going up 2-3 times the overall market, says Garzarelli. Fourteen industries comprise the early cyclical group, led by leisure time: "BRUNSWICK is the biggest in that group." She also names newspapers, housing, consumer goods and semi-conductors. (CNN "Business Morning", 12/12)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (DEC. 12) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

The dollar firmed Tuesday on indications that the Group of Seven nations may meet next month to discuss the dollar's frailty. "The [currency] market reacted to statements, rather than trying to forge any new direction. We tried the downside - when that didn't work, we tried the upside," but that doesn't mean a dollar reversal, says DENNIS PETTIT, vice president and foreign exchange manager at LONG- TERM CREDIT BANK OF JAPAN in New York. Despite apparent expectations that a G-7 meeting will be dollar-supportive, Mr. Petit says, "I'm not so convinced that's what we should expect. ... We could just as well see a statement saying that additional strength in the yen might not be undesirable." He adds that other than FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD CHAIRMAN ALAN GREENSPAN's expression of concern over the dollar's weakness, there hasn't been the kind of jawboning from the U.S. that normally would precede concerted support for a flagging dollar. (WSJ, 12/12)

"People are presuming with a capital P that the outcome [of the G-7 meeting] will be possibly an attempt to stabilize the dollar," says ROBERT HATCHER of BARCLAYS BANK PLC. "Basically the situation with the dollar was pretty much a complete turnaround from the morning." ("Investor's Daily", 12/12)

SUNG WON SOHN, chief economist at NORWEST CORP. in Minneapolis, says he expects the Fed to cut the federal funds rate half a point before year end, accompanied by a half-point drop in the discount rate. Yet Mr. Sohn doesn't expect the lower rates to have much effect on the weakening economy because banks, stung by bad loans, are reluctant to lend and consumers and corporations are reluctant to borrow. "If the basic problem is a poor economy and big debts, you can't improve the debt situation until the economy turns around," he says. And "you can't turn the economy around by just lowering interest rates," because "with so much debt out there" people aren't borrowing. (WSJ, 12/12)

says that "if only monetary policy is going to be used to bring us out of recession, interest rates are going to need to fall a lot more before a lot of outstanding debt gets refinanced" and banks start lending again. (NYT, 12/12)

"The turn of events has been such that the Fed cannot argue that it's going to hold [steady] because there is an inflation problem, because there is no inflation problem - there is a deflation problem," says MONTE GORDON at DREYFUS CORP. "You will probably see that when you see the PPI figures later this week." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/11)

"The prime rate will come down much more slowly than measures of the cost of bank funding, like the fed funds rate," says FIRST BOSTON chief economist NEAL SOSS. "Banks do need a wider profit margin in order to rebuild their own positions." (CNN "Moneyline", 12/11)

"Banks have been punished fairly badly in terms of underwriting standards," says ROBERT ALBERTSON, a bank analyst at GOLDMAN SACHS. With those stricter regulations, Albertson says they are not "eager at this point to try and instill new lending using interest rates as a lure." (CNN "Moneyline", 12/11)

"There is a very firm tone to the bond market, even though at this point it is overbought," says JOSEPH LIRO, a senior vice president and money market economist at S.G. WARBURG & COMPANY. "It just doesn't give up." (NYT, 12/12)

"I didn't like Treasury bonds when they were yielding more than 9% because I was afraid the Mideast crisis would drive up oil prices and inflation, but I sure am kicking myself now," says one portfolio manager. "Still, I believe bonds can rally further from here." ("Investor's Daily", 12/12)

New York City, with tax revenues plunging and fiscal woes mounting, is expected to pay a penalty to sell $1.2 billion of bonds today, one of the year's biggest municipal bond offerings. "For sophisticated institutional investors, this may be a great chance to get a bargain," says S. E. CANADAY JR., a vice president at JOHN NUVEEN & CO. But unsophisticated individual investors, he says, could be surprised by the New York bonds' unusual volatility. (WSJ, 12/12)

THE ECONOMY:

The annual economic survey by the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PURCHASING MANAGEMENT says that the managers expect that the manufacturing economy will be in recession for the first half of next year, with labor costs rising and capital expenditures increasing slightly. "Purchasers expect a recovery to begin in the later half of the year fueled by continued relatively strong growth in exports and a declining trend in inflation," says ROBERT BRETZ, director of purchasing at PITNEY BOWES INC. and chairman of the association's business survey committee. "However, they predict the best the economy will be able to muster in 1991 is an anemic 2.2 percent nominal growth, before deducting for inflation." (NYT, 12/12)

"We are, we have been, and we're going to be" in a recession until at least the middle of next year, says MAUREEN ALLYN of SCUDDER, STEVENS & CLARK. "We're going to get some beautiful CPI. numbers" next year, says Allyn. (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/11)

"What is very surprising is that this recession, which I believe started in August, is already almost as bad in terms of the severity of the [employment] decline as the 1981-82 recession," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist at "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "This is a hum-ding, wind-ding, generalized recession affecting both the service industries as well as manufacturing. ... If you look at the numbers, it's certainly more pervasive than it was that time. It's affecting a wider area of the economy." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/11)

IN WASHINGTON:

"The world is different than it was 20 years ago," reveals REP. TOBY ROTH (R. - Wisc.). "We have to bring our financial institutions into the modern world." Roth is supporting an Administration plan to revamp banking regulations. (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/11)

"We can work through the current [banking] problems if lenders assume their responsibility to make loans and take reasonable risks and if regulators follow a responsive, balanced approach that takes into account ... the very significant national interest in not unnecessarily depressing credit availability," says ROBERT CLARKE, newly-reappointed COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY. "Now is a time for the application of common sense, a time when neither lenders nor regulators should overreact or be unresponsive." ("The Washington Post", 12/12)

ANAHEIM, CALIF. (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Universal Cellular Inc. is breaking away from the cellular industry pack with the introduction of the first PagerPhone, a pocket-sized portable telephone with a built-in pager. The Universal PagerPhone weighs approximately 13 ounces, yet it offers an unparalleled continuous talk-time of over two hours plus a technological breakthrough: an integrated alphanumeric pager.

Developed for busy professionals, the PagerPhone allows its users to stay in constant touch, while its unique integrated pager gives them the power to control when and where they will receive and return calls. And, because the pager is alphanumeric, it can display phone numbers and transmitted messages of up to 40 words.

According to Universal Cellular Inc.'s Chief Executive Officer James Wohl, the PagerPhone addresses concerns of cellular users and non-users alike.

"While people on-the-move want to be in touch, they also want to maintain a level of privacy," said Wohl. "When calls are received by the phone's pager, the user has the option of selecting which calls are going to be returned and when. So the user is both in touch and in control, but is never forced to accept a call when it is inconvenient."

User of the PagerPhone offers cost advantages as well. With an ordinary cellular telephone, the user must answer and pay as much as 45-cents a minute for every incoming call. But, because the PagerPhone does not have to be answered to receive a message, it can keep its owner in constant contact at a substantial savings.

Frequent business travelers should note that the phone's paging service will not be limited to the user's local cellular area. With the PagerPhone's exclusive Universal Paging(tm), a nationwide roaming pager service, all incoming messages will be automatically forwarded to the PagerPhone throughout the country.

Anaheim-based Universal Cellular Inc. is a privately owned company with plans to market a complete line of wireless communications products. The PagerPhone will be assembled in the United States with components manufactured in Japan. Initial distribution will be on the West Coast through select, premium dealers. The suggested retail price of $1,895 includes pager activation.

BEAVERTON, OR (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - NIKE Inc. (NYSE: NKE) Chairman Philip H. Knight, in an interview with Dow Jones, indicated earnings for the company's second quarter which ended Nov. 30 will be between 75 to 80 cents per share which exceeds current Wall Street estimates of between 60 to 74 cents per share. These earnings would represent a 57 percent increase over last year's second quarter when the company earned 49 cents per share. All per share amounts reflect a 2-for-1 stock split which occured Oct. 5.

Knight attributed the increased earnings to stronger-than-expected growth from NIKE's domestic and international operations. He stated, "Our efforts to establish NIKE's authentic sports and fitness image around the world are paying off sooner than we expected. These results confirm our belief that sports and fitness is truly an international language that people respond to at an emotional level unlike anything else. Even so, we are just scratching the surface of the international markets which we feel will grow to be larger than the U.S. market. Our momentum makes me very optimistic about the years ahead."

NIKE will officially announce second quarter earnings on Monday, Dec. 17. Complete financial results will be available at that time. In addition, the company will hold a conference call for analysts and investors at 10 a.m. EST on Dec. 17. BEAVERTON, OR (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - NIKE Inc. (NYSE: NKE) Chairman Philip H. Knight today announced a definitive agreement whereby NIKE will acquire Tetra Plastics Inc., a privately held company. Tetra Plastics, based in Chesterfield, Mo., is the sole supplier of the polyurethane film used in the manufacture of NIKE's patented AIR-SOLE(R) cushioning components. Knight declined to disclose the purchase price.

Commenting on the strategy behind the purchase, Knight said, "NIKE's acquisition of Tetra Plastics provides us with a guaranteed, high-quality supply of these critical and highly technical components. In addition, it will improve our ability to further research and refine applications of the air-cushioning technology for future products. We feel Tetra's products are superior to any other supplier. Over the years, they have consistently met or exceeded all of our technical requirements and have exhibited unequaled ability to innovate alongside NIKE."

NIKE's athletic footwear products have established themselves as the premier brand on the market today and are the only products which contain the superior AIR-SOLE cushioning technology.

Tetra was founded in 1964 and in 1980 began working with NIKE to develop the flat film used to produce the NIKE cushioning components. With Tetra's assistance, NIKE was able to reduce costs and increase productivity while improving performance consistency. It was also during this period that NIKE and Tetra began development of the visible-air concept. In 1985 Tetra began work on the present visible-air product and developed from scratch all of the extrusion technology necessary to meet NIKE's requirements. The company is presently on its fourth-generation design of visible-air extrusion tooling each of which has improved the quality of the air cushioning component. Tetra has also worked for several years to help develop the Tensile-Air(TM) cushioning technology currently used in certain Cole Haan(R) dress shoes.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, Tetra Plastics generated revenues of approximately $20 million, of which NIKE represented over 60 percent. After the acquisition, Tetra will continue to expand its non-NIKE customer base in order to capitalize on its proprietary extrusion technology. The company operates out of a modern 61,500 square foot plant and is currently engaged in a 33,000 square foot expansion to support anticipated growth. NIKE plans to make no changes in Tetra's current operations or management.

Consummation of the purchase contract is subject to normal conditions and is expected to be completed by mid-January 1991. Tetra will operate as a wholly owned subsidiary of NIKE. The acquisition will be accounted for as a purchase and results of Tetra's operations will be included in NIKE's financial results from the date of purchase forward.

SACRAMENTO, CA (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - The California Public Employees Retirement System (PERS) Health Benefits Committee of the Board of Administration unanimously decided today to retain the services of FHP Health Care and 21 other maintenance organizations (HMOs) through the 1991-92 fiscal year.

"The PERS board encourages increased competition among the HMOs, allowing the membership to select the best providers. FHP Chief Executive Officer Westcott W. Price III said he is pleased with the decision, and looks forward to working with PERS to expanded and improve the program.

"FHP's quality assurance, utilization review, and member service programs are recognized as some of the finest in the nation," he said. "Agencies at the state and federal level consistently give FHP high results and accreditations. We plan to continue our relationship with PERS for many years to come."

YANCEYVILLE, N.C. (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - With a Dec. 14 deadline rapidly approaching, officials of Lamplighter Industries, Inc., a manufacturer of high-tech lighting components based in Yanceyville, N.C., today commented publicly on the status of the company's proposed West Virginia finance package.

"It's down to the wire now," warned Dr. Arden Kelton, Lamplighter's CEO. "If the West Virginia venture capital community doesn't come through for us by week's end, this deal will be scuttled, and we'll be forced to pursue other options. The result could very well be that we remain right here in North Carolina," he said.

The tentative $3 million pact, under which Lamplighter would locate its production facilities and corporate offices in Oak Hill, W.Va., is in danger of collapse due to a shortage of venture capital. Achieving the threshold figure of $1.25 million in equity investment, to be allocated mainly for operating expenses, is considered critical to the completion of the entire proposal, since all three of its major elements are interdependent. To date, the company has received vocal pledges for only $900,000 to $1 million in venture capital. Conditional agreements have already been reached on the deal's two other major facets, a package of public and private loans totalling $1.05 million, earmarked for equipment acquisition, and sale of the 42,000 square foot manufacturing plant in Oak Hill, owned by Hubbell, Inc.

"We remain absolutely convinced of this company's outstanding growth potential " declared Kelton. "But to make it all happen, we'll need some significant financial support," he said.

Lamplighter Industries specializes in ceramic electroluminescence (EL), a remarkable new solid-state lighting technology which is ultra-thin, extremely durable an extraordinarily cost-effective to operate. The product has an exceptional range of potential applications, including lighted point-of-sale signs, electronic information displays, backlighted instrument consoles, and much more. Current company growth projections suggest the potential to generate $50 million in annual sales within five years, creating more than 500 jobs in the same period.

Lamplighter officials report negotiations with some 8-12 West Virginia venture capital firms dating back to last April. The deadline of December 14 had been unamimously agreed to as early as October.

WESTBORO, MASS. (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Data General Corporation (NYSE: DGN) today announced the Edson D. de Castro, chairman of the board of directors and a founder of the company, will leave Data General on Dec. 31, 1990, and will not stand for re-election to the board. Ronald L. Skates, who was named president and chief executive officer in November 1989, will continue to lead Data General in that capacity.

The company also announced that vice chairman Herbert J. Richman will not stand for re-election to the board, although he will continue to serve Data General as executive vice president for the Asia/Pacific region until he retires from the company at the end of the company's current fiscal year, ending September 1991.

"Ed de Castro and Herb Richman made Data General a leader in the computer industry," said Skates. "Ed de Castro is an industry legend. His leadership in developing innovative and technologically superior products and his dedication to excellence has earned Data General a reputation for quality and reliability. Ed's contributions to computer technology are a vital part of the computer industry's history," said Skates. "His vision of the fourth wave of computing and his role in setting Data General's strategy for competing in it will carry us into the decade ahead."

Skates also praised Richman for his role in leading the company's sales and marketing efforts. "Herb Richman deserves much of the credit for Data General's rapid rise in the minicomputer industry. His sales and marketing expertise helped to create the 'OEM' (original equipment manufacturer) market for minicomputers, and his skill in entering new geographic areas enabled Data General to build a worldwide presence.

Mr. de Castro served as president of Data General from the company's formation in 1968 until he was named chairman of the board and chief scientist in November 1989.

Prior to forming Data General, he held design engineering positions with Digital Equipment Corporation. While at Digital, he was instrumental in designing the PDP-5 and the PDP-8, which became the company's first commercially successful minicomputer.

In 1968, de Castro and Richman, a sales manager from Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corporation's Semiconductor Division, combined with computer designer Richard Sogge, programmer Henry Burkhardt and attorney Fred Adler to found Data General. They produced the NOVA computer, the industry's first 16-bit minicomputer with four accumulators in the central processor, a leading technology at the time. The NOVA was widely used by OEMs and systems integrators, and established Data General as a major force in the minicomputer industry.

WALTHAM, MA (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Summit Technology, Inc. (NASDAQ: BEAM) announced today that the company received approval from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to begin clinical trials of the company's patented erodable corneal mask used in performing photorefractive keratectomy (commonly referred to as 'PRK' or 'corneal sculpting'). Summit will be using the mask in trials on near-sighted, far-sighted and astigmatic patients.

The mask is used as a template by the physician when performing the photorefractive keratectomy procedure. Positioned over a patient's eye via an eye cup, the mask erodes away as the excimer laser pulses. It is anticipated that use of the mask will result in a smoother cornea than the use of conventional systems. Relative smoothness of the cornea may be a key factor in the quality of the photorefractive keratectomy procedure result. In addition, the mask may provide the physician with greater ease and safety in performing the procedure. Summit anticipates that the single use erodable mask will represent a significant disposables aftermarket. Pre-clinical trials were conducted at the Yerkes Regional Primate Center, Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., and clinical trials are already underway in Europe.

The company also has been informed by the FDA that approval has been granted under a 501(K) application for the company's ophthalmic retinoscope. The retinoscope is Summit's first commercially approved product and it is anticipated that it will be used in various intra-ocular surgical applications.

Summit Technology, Inc. has established the leadership position in designing, manufacturing and marketing medical excimer laser systems. A major focus of the company's business is in ophthalmology where applications have been developed for the treatement of common vision disorders such as near-sightedness, far-sightedness, astigmatism and certain corneal irregularities due to disease or injury. According to the Department of Health and Human Services there are about 140 million people with refractive disorders. To date, over 1,200 patients have been treated by ophthalmologists using Summit's ExciMed(tm) UV200 for all procedures at 75 clinical sites, both domestically and internationally.

NEW YORK (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Hitachi, Ltd. (NYSE: HIT) and Nissan Motor Co., Ltd. have agreed to fully coordinate their business strategies in the rapidly growing field of automobile information and communication systems and equipment.

The cooperative effort between the companies is to be implemented through a new joint-venture company, Xanavi Informatics Corporation, that will be formally established on Jan. 21, 1991. An agreement for this venture was signed on Dec. 12 by the presidents of Hitachi and Nissan, Katsushige Mita and Yutaka Kume.

After commencing operations on April 1 next year, the new company will operate as a fully integrated developer, producer, and marketer of a wide range of car information and communications systems and equipment. Products will include automobile audio and video equipment, mobile telephones and navigation systems.

Fifty-one percent of the initial capital, 2.5 billion yen, will be supplied by Hitachi and 49 percent by Nissan. Kazutoshi Hagiwara, currently Nissan general manager of the AVCN Project Office, is expected to be president, while a Hitachi director, Jun Suzuki, will serve as executive vice president.

The company's head office will initially be located in Tokyo's Ohta Ward, but within a few years will move into new offices to be built in Kanagawa Prefecture, where new design and development facilities are also to be set up.

At the start, production of AV products will be carried on at Hitachi's Sawa Works. Two years later, production is to be transferred to a new factory to be built in Ibaraki Prefecture, where operations will be progressively expanded to include mobile telephones, navigation systems, and other product lines.

The company will market its products both domestically and overseas under the "Xanavi" brand. Annual sales targets have been set at approximately 20 billion yen within three years of establishment, and around 100 billion yen by the year 2000.

Highly sophisticated data processing and communication networks play an increasingly important role in the daily lives and business activities of a large number of people.

Thus, it is not surprising that many drivers are beginning to look for something more than today's entertainment-oriented AV devices and show a rising interest in car telephones, facsimile machines, and other types of mobile information and communications equipment that promise greater mobility, convenience, and efficiency in the handling and use of information.

Earnings per share for the 1990 fiscal year were $1.11 compared to $1.17 for the 1989 fiscal year. VESTAL, NY (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - CommStruct International Inc., acting as an agent on behalf of CommStruct International Byelorussia, B.V. of the Netherlands, announced today it has signed a joint-venture agreement with the Ministry of Posts, Telecommunications and Informatics of the Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic to construct and operate a cellular phone network in Byelorussia.

This is the first agreement between a republic of the USSR and a private Western company to enter into a joint venture for a cellular phone system for an entire republic.

As a 50 percent partner, CommStruct will arrange for an initial investment estimated at $7 million to introduce service in mid-1991 to approximately 4,000 residential and mobile customers in the city of Minsk. When completed, the system in the Minsk region will have the capacity to serve in excess of 200,000 customers.

Currently, Byelorussia S.S.R. has a population of 10.2 million people. In the Minsk region alone the wait for a phone is usually 10 years as the waiting list has over 700,000 names. With a cellular network in place, a portion of this pent-up demand would be served immediately.

Ivan Gritsuk, minister of posts, Telecommunications and Informatics of the Byelorussian S.S.R., said: "We are extremely pleased to enter into this joint venture agreement with CommStruct International. With a cellular system, we will be able to achieve in months -- rather than years -- a telephone capacity able to serve our growing commercial and residential requirements. CommStruct's record of serving international cellular markets as well as its entrepreneurial approach and flexibility will meet the needs and objectives of the Republic of Byelorussia."

U.S. CommStruct Inc., a privately held company headquartered in Vestal, N.Y., will be responsible for the construction of the system and TLK & Associates, of Yorba Linda, Calif., will conduct the radio frequency engineering. Both companies are subsidiaries of CommStruct International Inc. The Republic of Byelorussia will provide the necessary infrastructure and land for the construction of the cellular system as well as qualified engineering and technical personnel to be trained by CommStruct for the construction and staffing on the cellular system.

CommStruct International provides construction management services, project management, design and engineering for telecommunications systems such as cellular telephones, microwave transmission and fiber optics.

The company also installed the first cellular system in Zaire, Africa in the capital city of Kinshasa; other international projects include sites in Puerto Rico, Grand Cayman Islands, Antigua, Grenada and the British West Indies working with Phase Two and Cable and Wireless. The company has constructed cellular systems for regional Bell operating companies (RBOCs) such as NYNEX, Bell Atlantic Mobile and PacTel Cellular, as well as other telecommunications companies such as McCaw Cellular, Associated Communications and Crowley Cellular.

DALLAS (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Executive long-term incentive plans are on the increase in the nation's top electric utility companies, reports The Wyatt Company in its survey of 18 of the 20 largest investor-owned electric utility companies in the United States. Only five years ago, virtually none of the leading companies offered such plans.

"In an effort to focus greater attention on the longer term priorities of customer service and shareholder returns, most of the leading U.S. utilities have only recently implemented long-term incentive plans," said Arlen Ferguson a consultant in Wyatt's Dallas office.

The "1990 survey of Executive Compensation in Large Electric Utility Companies" found that 56 percent of the companies use both annual and long-term incentives. Almost 95 percent use annual incentive plans and, of these, nearly all use a combination of performance-based criteria for determining the size of the award opportunity.

Fifty-six percent of the companies have at least one active long-term incentive plan for executives, with 70 percent using performance-based criteria, and less than half using stock options, SARS, or restricted stock plans.

Six companies that reported long-term incentive gains showed that annualized longterm incentive pay opportunity was greater than 1989 annual bonuses earned. Annualized long-term incentive gains for these companies ranged from a low of 22 percent of salary to a high of 71 percent of salary. Bonuses for all surveyed companies ranged from a low of three percent to a high of 28 percent.

The "1990 Survey of Executive Compensation in Large Electric Utility Companies" compares all forms of direct remuneration for 17 executive positions and includes four primary pay elements: base salary, annual incentive, long-term incentive, and perquisites.

PITTSBURGH (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - The SMS group of companies has received its second order to supply a compact strip production (CSP) plant to Nucor Corp., it was announced today.

The innovative technology combines thin slab casting with direct rolling to produce hot-rolled steel coils.

SMS Schloemann-Siemag Aktiengesellschaft of Germany, in conjunction with SMS Concast Inc. of Montvale, N.J., and SMS Engineering of Pittsburgh, will produce and install the one million ton plant at a new Nucor installation in Arkansas. The SMS group had received an engineering order for the installation about one year ago.

Nucor, which successfully operates the first compact strip plant at Crawfordsville, Ind., will build a new electric furnace steel plant at the Arkansas installation.

The CSP strip caster is designed to produce thin slabs 2 inches thick at a maximum casting rate of 18 feet/minute.

The thin cast slabs will go directly through a long soaking furnace to the CSP six-stand rolling mill where they will be reduced to thicknesses of 0.07 to 0.05 inches, in widths from 51 to 61-1/2 inches. Coil weights will be a maximum of 31 U.S. tons.

Investment costs for the Nucor plant will be distinctly lower than for conventional plant designs, and operating costs will be reduced considerably due to several factors including energy savings, according to J.C.T. Thomas, president and chief executive officer, SMS Engineering.

SMS Engineering Inc. has headquarters at Four Station Square, Pittsburgh.

OKLAHOMA CITY (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Hadson Energy Resources Corporation (NASDAQ: HERC) today announced the signing of an agreement with the State Energy Commission of Western Australia (SECWA) under the terms of which it, together with its joint venture participants, will supply approximately 125 BCF of gas to SECWA over an initial period up to 10 years. The agreement provides SECWA the option to purchase approximately 55 BCF of additional gas at the end of the initial term and is subject to the final approval of a development plan by the joint venture participants and SECWA, the granting of relevant production and pipeline licenses and final environmental approval.

The Harriet Gas Gathering Project which is operated by the company's wholly owned subsidiary, Hadson Energy Limited (HEL) (holder of a 22.5 percent interest), will gather gas from four fields in close proximity to the Harriet oil field, also operated by HEL. After processing and liquid extraction, the gas will be transported 60 miles through a 12 inch pipeline to connect with SECWA's primary transmission facilities onshore.

Initial deliveries at rates up to 35 million cubic feet per day are expected to commence in mid-1992. The total cost of the project is expected to be $90 million ($20 million net to the company). As a result of this agreement, the company expects to add reserves of approximately 30 BCF of gas and 1.3 million barrels of liquids.

David N. Hayes, vice president of the company and managing director of its Australian operations stated, "The signing of this agreement is the culmination of many months of negotiations and represents a major achievement for our international operations. The project allows the company to realize value from its existing gas reserves offshore Australia and provides incentive for future oil and gas exploration. The project will make a significant contribution to both earnings and cash flows commencing in 1992.

Hayes further stated that, "The Harriet Gas Gathering Project infrastructure when fully implemented will provide the capacity to deliver gas from existing and future oil and gas discoveries in the offshore Central Carnarvon Basin at rates up to 180 MMCFD, thus creating an important alternate source of gas supply for Western Australia." Hadson Energy Resources Corporation is an independent energy company engaged internationally in crude oil and natural gas exploration, development and production.

INDIANAPOLIS (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Emery Worldwide jet freighters will be called on to help transport the U.S. Postal Service's annual surge of holiday cards, letters and packages, officials of Emery Worldwide and the Postal Service announced today.

The Postal Service's supplemental air service, known as C-Network, will employ 15 Emery aircraft -- eight DC-8s and seven B-727s -- to fly first-class holiday mail to the 18 highest-volume cities in the United States. The daytime operation, out of a hub at the international airport here, will run from Dec. 14 to 24.

In addition to flying holiday mail, Emery's airline affiliate, Emery Worldwide Airlines, operates the Postal Service's "Eagle Network," which delivers next-day Express Mail and second-day Priority Mail each night with a dedicated fleet of 19 aircraft.

Last year, the "Eagle Network" fleet served double-duty, with 10 aircraft flying holiday mail during the day, and Express Mail and Priority Mail at night. This year, the C-Net planes are being drawn from Emery Worldwide's regular air express fleet, not from the "Eagle Network" fleet.

Also, the C-Net hub operation has been relocated from Kansas City to Indianapolis, to improve handling for the additional 10 million pounds of holiday mail the Postal Service expects this year.

According to Rex Maytan, the Postal Service's general manager, air contracts management division, the represents almost twice as much holiday mail as was handled by the C-Network in 1989.

Jim Lampe, Emery's director of Indianapolis operations who oversees the Postal Service fleet, said changes in this year's C-Net operation should enable Emery and the post office to handle the increase.

Emery Worldwide's aircraft will converge each afternoon at the Indianapolis hub from U.S. cities with the highest volume of holiday mail. Once here, cargo containers holding the mail will be transferred between planes and flown to outlying destination cities where the post office sorts the mail for local delivery.

Emery Worldwide Airlines has been flying Express Mail and Priority Mail for the Postal Service since August, 1989, when it won a two-year contract to operate the post office's "Eagle Network." Emery Worldwide is making its planes available for the C-Network under terms of Express Mail contract.

Emery Worldwide, one of the world's leading air express and air freight carriers, specializes in the delivery of urgent envelopes, parcels and heavy freight to and from any business address in the world. The $1.3 billion company has headquarters in Palo Alto, Calif., and freight facilities throughout North America and 90 countries around the world.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - The Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) (NYSE: FNM) issued the following statement in response to Freddie Mac's (NYSE: FRE) announcement today on reduced documentation mortgages:

Fannie Mae welcomes today's announcement that Freddie Mac will cease purchasing reduced documentation loans. The action is a prudent and positive step for the mortgage market; it is consistent with our own progressive tightening of requirements for these loans.

Fannie Mae's strong financial performance has been driven by the high quality of mortgage loans the corporation has purchased or securitized in the last five years. The original average loan-to-value ratio of the conventional loans in Fannie Mae's portfolio and backing MBS is approximately 72 percent, and these loans have a very low default rate.

Moving the mortgage market away from reduced documentation loans is good for lenders and mortgage borrowers. Each day Fannie Mae and the secondary mortgage market serve thousands of American homebuyers, at all income levels, and in every community in the country. Today the small community lender and the national giants, equally, can meet the needs of their local homebuyers without resorting to reduced documentation loans because Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac offer a broad range of mortgage products.

Fannie Mae's alternative documentation program, known as TimeSaver, allows lenders to quickly and easily process loan applications with personal financial information readily available to the homebuyer.

With respect to the other changes announced by Freddie Mac, some represent policies Fannie Mae already has in place, while others address credit risks that Fannie Mae has effectively managed through other measures.

SCARBOROUGH, ME (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Hannaford Bros. Co. (NYSE: HRD) announced today an agreement to purchase the Alexander's Supermarkets chain (privately held) from various entities owned by Robert and Peter Gordon and members of their family for cash. Alexander's, with annual sales in excess of $200 million and over 450,000 square feet of total store space, operates eleven supermarkets, two drug stores, and three bakery shops in southern New Hampshire and northeastern Massachusetts. The parties expect to close the transaction within the next two months and possibly by the end of 1990.

James L. Moody, Jr., Hannaford's chairman and chief executive officer, said "The transaction is structured as a purchase of assets for cash, not as a stock transaction. We expect to finance the acquisition initially from existing lines of credit. Consummation of the transaction is subject to satisfaction of various other conditions set forth in the purchase and sale agreement."

Moody added "Hannaford is very pleased with its recent expansion into upstate New York, and we have been looking for expansion opportunities in other areas. We believe that the acquisition of Alexander's is a very positive move for Hannaford that will help us achieve our long-term goals."

"First, Alexander's locations in Nashua and Manchester, N.H. represent a logical expansion for Hannaford into new market areas contigious to our own," Moody said. "In addition, their stores in the Lowell, Mass. area will expand our coverage of that market, where we presently have only one store."

"Second, Alexander's has a well earned reputation for high quality stores with state-of-the-art systems. The Gordons have done a superb job of locating and developing their stores and have staffed them with employees known for providing outstanding customer service. We will be proud to welcome them into the Hannaford family."

"Finally, the acquisition provides a good synergistic fit with Hannaford. We have just completed our new 417,000 square foot distribution center in Schodack, N.Y., and we presently have unused capacity in our distribution centers."

Hannaford Bros. Co. is northern New England's largest retail food distributor with nearly $1.75 billion in annual sales and over 14,000 employees in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and New York. Retail sales currently are made through the company's 78 supermarkets operating under the names Shop n' Save, Martin's and Sun Foods. Hannaford also operates 39 wholly owned retail drug stores principally under the Wellby Super Drug name and serves as wholesaler to 27 independent food retailers.

PHILADELPHIA (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Beginning Jan. 14, 1991, Bell of Pennsylvania customers will be able to use a new dialing procedure for toll calls placed within the 215 area code.

Customers will not have to dial the "1" prior to the seven-digit number they're calling, as they do now.

From Jan. 14 through Sept. 22, customers will be able to use either the new or the current system to dial a toll call. On Sept. 23, the new procedures will be required.

Why is a different system going to be used? According to the company, Bell of Pennsylvania is running out of available telephone numbers. With this change, more than 1 million new numbers will be available to meet the demands of growth in the area.

Bonk noted that without the changes, Bell of Pennsylvania would have run out of numbers for customers in the 215 area in 1992. More than 434,000 new access lines have been used in the past six years to provide for additional telephone service, cellular telephones, fax machines and other needs.

Although dialing procedures will change, there will be no change to the telephone bill, to the rates customers pay, to the present seven-digit telephone number or to the dialing procedure for making calls outside the 215 area.

However, starting in September, all toll calls and directory assistance calls within the 215 area code will have to be placed by dialing the seven-digit number without the "1" prefix.

All Bell of Pennsylvania operator-assisted calls within the 215 area must be dialed by using "0" plus "215" plus seven digits. Currently such a call is made by dialing "0" plus seven digits.

Bell of Pennsylvania's business customers were advised of the impending changes in July to allow them sufficient time to make any necessary modifications to their telephone features and equipment. A letter explaining the new procedure is being sent beginning this month to all customers in the 215 area code.

All Bell of Pennsylvania business and residential customers in the 215 area code will receive several letters and bill inserts explaining the reason for the changes. Anyone with questions about the new dialing procedure should call 800-555-5000.

JACKSON, MI (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - The holiday season can be a dangerous one unless you exercise caution, especially with your Christmas lighting and your tree, warns Consumers Power Company.

Consumers Power offers these suggestions for a safe holiday season:

-- If you buy a previously cut tree, make sure it is fresh and green with needles that are flexible. When you get it home, cut off the bottom inch of the trunk and place the tree in water. Make sure your tree stand has a reservoir for water and check the water level daily; trees absorb from two pints to a gallon of water each day.

-- Erect the tree away from fireplaces or other ht? sources such as heating ducts, radiators, TV sets or holiday candles and make sure it is in a sturdy stand and well-supported.

-- Tree decorations should be fire retardant and should not have sharp edges. They should be made of a material that doesn't break easily. Tinsel or artificial icicles should be of a non-leaded material.

-- If you have a metallic tree, do not trim it with electric lights; damaged insulation in lights could charge the entire tree with electricity.

-- Check all holiday lights for loose connections, broken or cracked sockets or frayed or bare wires. Use only lighting sets and other electrical decorations that carry the Underwriters Laboratories (UL) mark. When hooking up sets of lights, don't overload a circuit.

-- Fasten outdoor lights securely to a wall or tree to avoid wind damage. Never use indoor lights outdoors. Always turn off all holiday lighting when you leave home or go to bed.

-- Special care should be taken around your fireplace during this season. Make sure the flue is open before starting a fire. Use a fireplace screen to keep sparks and embers within the firebox.

-- Don't open gifts next to a fireplace, and remove all wrappings from the room as quickly as possible. Don't burn wrappings in the fireplace; they can ignite suddenly and flare.

-- Use care with "fire salts" which produce colored flames when thrown on a wood fire. Keep them away from young children who might think they are edible. Also make sure that matches and lighters are out of a child's reach.

-- Don't burn old Christmas trees in the fireplace.

-- Keep a fire extinguisher handy.

GREENVILLE, SC (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Multimedia Cablevision, Inc. has received a new 15-year franchise from the city of Wichita, Kansas to continue providing cable television service to the residents of that city. The Wichita cable system has more than 92,000 subscribers, ranking it as Multimedia's largest system and one of the nation's 100 largest cable systems. In making the announcement to a group of media analysts attending PaineWebber's MediaWeek Conference in New York today, Donald D. Sbarra, President of Multimedia Cablevision, Inc., noted that the new franchise contains provisions which are essentially similar to those in the 1977 franchise. "We committed to provide the residents of Wichita with the same high-level of service that we've provided during the past thirteen years," Sbarra said. "We have always considered our franchise a public trust. In granting our Company this renewal, we feel that the city of Wichita has given us a tangible vote of confidence."

BOCA RATON, FL (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - InnoVet, Inc. (NASDAQ: IVET) announced today that Enzit(TM) Odor Eliminator, a patented, unscented additive which eliminates cat litter pan odor, will be introduced nationally in February 1991.

The product introduction is aimed at the 28 million U.S. households that own 54 million cats, spending $400 million annually on cat litter.

"Our market analysis shows that litter pan odor is a serious problem for cat owners," said Dr. J.W. Houdeshell, InnoVet president and veterinarian. "The various deodorizers on the market don't solve the problem and often cause the cat to reject the deodorized litter pan."

Enzit is a granular, biodegradable, non-toxic and non-allergenic product designed to be added to cat litter, at the rate of one 6 oz. package for each 3-5 lbs. of litter. Most importantly, because it is scent-free, the cat does not detect its presence in the litter pan.

Unlike products which merely try to mask odors, Enzit's unique formula deactivates and breaks down, upon contact, the odor-causing components in urine and fecal matter, desiccating the solids.

"As a result, the litter pan and the room remain fresh and free of odor," added Houdeshell. "Furthermore, since the litter stays dry longer, the life of the litter itself is extended."

Consumer marketing of Enzit Odor Eliminator will initially center on direct response, generating sales through 1-800 marketing and magazine coupons.

"Our objective is to establish unscented Enzit as the product of choice for the control of cat litter odor, regardless of the brand or type of litter used " explained Patrick Moyna, InnoVet marketing director.

"In-home tests of Enzit have shown an extremely high level of satisfaction, both by the cat and the consumer," Moyna said. "Based on this response, we're offering customers a 'Satisfaction or Money Back' guarantee."

Enzit Odor Eliminator is the beginning of a systematic introduction of innovative consumer products which have been in development and testing by InnoVet for the past three years.

Based in Boca Raton, Fla., InnoVet is dedicated to the development and marketing of innovative animal healthcare products.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - MCI Communications Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: MCIC) today announced that it has reached an out-of-court settlement with AT&T (NYSE: T) on lawsuits involving advertising and telemarketing practices.

Terms of the settlement agreement were not disclosed. The two firms also agreed to propose adoption by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) of mandatory industry standards to protect consumers against being switched to a long distance carrier without authorization.

"With this agreement, the consumer benefits through standardized telemarketing practices, and the industry benefits since both companies can get on with the business of serving consumers in a competitive marketplace," Bert C. Roberts Jr., MCI president and chief operating officer, said.

MCI and AT&T said they will urge the FCC to adopt mandatory telemarketing standards as quickly as possible to ensure that consumers are switched to a carrier only with their permission. Those standards would permit long distance carriers to confirm that a customer has agreed to a switch in any one of four different ways.

MCI said it plans to implement one of the safeguards as quickly as possible.

On Oct. 10, 1989, MCI sued AT&T for false and deceptive advertising under the Lanham Act, and on Oct. 26, AT&T counterclaimed with the same allegations. On Jan. 10, 1990, AT&T sued MCI for false and deceptive telemarketing practices.

LONDON (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Racal Electronics Plc today announced the unaudited results for the fiscal half year (28 weeks) ended Oct. 12, 1990. Revenues amounted to 1.02 billion pounds, an increase of 8.4 percent over the same period last year.

Operating profit increased by 27.7 percent to 125.5 million pounds after charging start-up losses incurred in the development of Network Services of 10.4 million pounds, compared with 6.6 million pounds for the first half of last year. Pre-tax profit was in excess of 97 million pounds compared with 82 million pounds, an increase of 18.1 percent. Earnings per share increased by 8.5 percent to 3.70 pence.

An interim dividend of 1.05 pence per ordinary share net (equivalent to 1.4 pence per ordinary share inclusive of the UK associated tax credit at the current rate), an increase of 10.2 percent over last year, will be paid on Feb. 14, 1991, to shareholders of record as of Jan. 14, 1991.

The debt/equity ratio was 50.4 percent at Oct. 12, 1990 (net debt of 396 million pounds). Net borrowings at the end of the current year are expected to be similar to the half year figure.

Racal Telecom has again produced outstanding results with operating profits 66 percent ahead of the same period last year. Despite the downturn in the U.K. economy, the performance for the full year will be good.

The impact of the reductions in defense expenditures has been well contained by the units most involved. However, the situation in the Gulf has had a marginal negative effect on business in the first half of this year.

The group as a whole is weathering the widespread recession well, although the markets for Data Communications and Computer Aided Design (part of Specialized Businesses) have been particularly affected, resulting in operating losses. As a result of continuing rationalization and reorganization measures, we look forward to Data Communications returning to profitability over the year as a whole and to a reduction of operating loss by Racal-Redac in the second half.

With the continued strong performance of Telecommunications and all other line of business planned to achieve improved profitability in the second half, the results of the group for the full year are expected to be good.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Virco Mfg. Corporation (AMEX: VIR) Wednesday reported net earnings of $1,819,000, equal to 54 cents a share, on sales of $58,010,000 in the company's third fiscal quarter, the three months ended Oct. 31. In the like period a year ago, Virco earned $788,000, or 23 cents a share, on sales of $54,293,000.

Earnings for the quarter just ended were reduced by a provision of $800,000 (before tax) for losses which will be incurred on the disposal of all remaining inventory of the line of stacking chairs recalled earlier this year. Estimated costs of recalling and modifying chairs which had already been sold were provided from previous earnings, in the first quarter.

For the nine months ended Oct. 31, Virco reported net earnings of $1,948,000, or 58 cents a share, up from $862,000, or 25 cents a share, in the first nine months last year. Sales for the period were $143,717,000, as compared with $139,492,000 in the first nine months last year.

Robert A. Virtue, chairman and chief executive, said the sharply improved current results are continuing to follow a seasonal pattern largely set by purchasing practices in the nation's school systems. Sales volume in Virco's second and third quarters includes a higher percentage of the company's profitable educational furniture lines. In the final quarter, sales are heavier in other, more price-sensitive lines.

Sales volume and incoming orders in the fourth quarter are at levels approximately equal to last year, Virtue said. Internal cost reduction programs and favorable price negotiations for purchased materials have enabled the company to achieve generally improved levels of profitability, he added.

However, in common with much of American industry, Virco's planning continues to be affected by general business conditions, including the international crisis in the Persian Gulf, Virtue said. The company is monitoring the situation carefully, particularly petroleum price fluctuations which may be reflected in the cost of plastics used widely in Virco's manufacturing processes, he said.

CULVER CITY, CA (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Arizona Public Service Co., (APS), has selected the Leonardo illustration package from the Professional Publishing Division (formerly DocuPro, Inc.) of Information International Inc. (III), (NASDAQ: IINT) as its "sketching package."

The contract, marking the largest single Leonardo order to date, was sold to Arizona's primary electric utility by DevTech Associates of Napesville, Ill., a commercial UNIX Integrator and Value Added Reseller (VAR).

Leonardo, a UNIX-based software for Sun SPARC-based workstations and compatible computers, includes a high-performance, integrated drawing package that allows professional illustrators and graphics designers to produce isometric, perspective, trimetric, and dimetric illustrations.

Easy-to-use tables and forms, sophisticated composition, high-quality graphics drawing tools, and revision control features simplify the creation of technical and presentation documents, such as manuals, proposals, and, marketing collateral.

The new Leonardo includes export interfaces for FrameMaker 2.0 (.mif), MacIntosh (.pict), and triple-I's own vbit standard features. It is compatible with PostScript printers and supports IGES Version 3.0 and CCITT Group 4 import/export.

The Arizona order includes 32 Leonardo software packages and service contracts plus 4 IGES filter options and 4 CCITT Group 4 Options. APS officials selected Leonardo following a thorough evaluation of available drawing software packages.

"The Leonardo package was the easiest to use among products we evaluated," said Greg Schaffer, APS Computer Service Project Manager. "We will install the 32 licenses at our Palo Verde, Ariz. nuclear power plant," Schaffer explained. "Our engineers will use Leonardo to draw diagrams for procedures manuals."

Leonardo was chosen for its number of features, versatility, its simple and consistent menu, and the table creative functions, which allow users to create basic table styles, inserting additional rows and columns as the information base expands.

"Since our UNIX installation growing, we will probably have a need for more Leonardo packages in the future," Schaffer added. The software can be used to prepare drawings for technical documentation, memos, reports, and presentation graphics.

STOUGHTON, MA (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - The best of Reebok can be found at 344 Newbury St. in Boston now that the company has opened its first concept store. With an emphasis on athletic performance technology, this flagship store will offer the most extensive assortment of Reebok footwear, apparel, and accessories currently available to consumers.

By creatively designing and merchandising the 5,000 square foot selling space, Reebok has established a state-of-the-art retail environment in a turn of the century brick carriage house in Boston's fashionable Back Bay.

A second store, prominently located at 2936 Main St. in Santa Monica, Calif., is scheduled to open in late spring. Both east and west coast concept stores are dedicated to researching innovations in product technology and design, new merchandising concepts, and customer service techniques.

"Reebok enters the retail arena in order to directly experience the many challenges facing our retailers today. Our goal is to improve the retail environment by soliciting first-hand feedback from consumers.

"We have created a laboratory environment that will quickly apply our solutions and successes to our retail account base. Can you imagine the value of providing our retailers with a proven product line and proven merchandising techniques?", said Ron Campo, vice president of product, marketing and development.

The Newbury Street store premieres Reebok's "collection" approach to merchandising the men's, women's and children's lines for holiday and spring. The footwear, apparel and accessories for both sport and leisure activities are merchandised together to provide customers ease in coordinating a head-to-toe Reebok look.

A highly trained, technically knowledgable sales staff has been brought in to educate customers on the benefits of the Reebok technologies, materials, fabric and designs. "We are committed to understanding our customers. To further our pledge to customer service, every Reebok employee from our Stoughton headquarters will work one day a year on the selling floor of the concept store," explains Campo.

The "Best of Reebok" is not confined to the interior of the store. Reebok's NBA players will make their mark at the Newbury Street shop by placing their footprints in cement in front of the store. Atlanta Hawks Dominique Wilkins and Doc Rivers and Boston Celtics Reggie Lewis, Dee Brown and Joe Kleine are among the first to be immortalized at the store.

SOMERVILLE, NJ (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Rod Mackenzie, chairman of GynoPharma Inc., manufacturer of ParaGard(R) T380A Intrauterine Copper Contraceptive today issued the following statement:

Nearly 50 percent of American women age 30-34 choose sterilization as their birth-control method, some of whom go on to regret that decision. Until recently, women opting for effective reversible long-term contraception did not have many choices. Now they have three.

The recent FDA approval of Norplant(R) (levonorgestrel) contraceptive subdermal implants, a five-year product, and the extended, six-year indication given to the ParaGard T380A Intrauterine Copper Contraceptive demonstrate the healthcare community's concern with women's needs for convenient, effective, and reversible long-term birth control. We consider this a positive step forward in women's healthcare.

When considering effective, reversible long-term contraceptive options, women who cannot or will not use the pill can now choose between hormonal (Norplant) and non-hormonal (ParaGard) methods, both of which require minimal attention during the period of action.

Both methods are 99 percent effective, though ParaGard is more economical, averaging $50 per year over its six-year life span, or a total upfront cost of $300 (including insertion), compared to Norplant's total anticipated cost of $700 (including insertion), which averages $140 per year over five years. In addition, ParaGard is inserted and removed nonsurgically.

The challenge now is in expanding the physician's role from contraceptive prescriber to counselor on contraceptive options. Women must be informed of all methods to decide which is best for them. For example, 84 million women worldwide choose the IUD for contraception. But because many women in this country are unaware of its availability, it is severely underutilized.

Daniel R. Mishell, Jr., M.D., professor and chairman of Obstetrics and Gynecology, University of Southern California School of Medicine, and participant in extensive clinical studies on both ParaGard and Norplant compares the two products: "ParaGard and Norplant appear to be equally effective in preventing pregnancy; however, ParaGard is longer-lasting, much easier to insert and remove, considerably less expensive, and doesn't interfere with menstrual regularity. In Finland, where Norplant has been available for five years, it is uncommonly used, while IUDs are very popular."

GynoPharma Inc., headquartered in Somerville, N.J., is devoted exclusively to women's healthcare. The company, which markets the only copper IUD available in the U.S., is actively involved in research and development of contraceptive and gynecological products.

HOUSTON (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Gamma Biologicals Inc. (AMEX: GBL), has reached an agreement in principle with The University of Texas System M.D. Anderson Cancer Center for the exclusive worldwide rights to a patent covering a new in-vitro diagnostic testing technology. The new technology, using a galvanic electrode system, detects the first phase of bacterial, viral or blood group antigen/antibody reactions in less than five minutes.

"Current diagnostic test results usually depend upon interpretation of agglutination or color development that may require up to 24 hours," said Chairman David E. Hatcher. "The galvanic immunoelectrode technology detects change in electrical charge as a positive test result. The advantages of this testing system are speed and accuracy, while obtaining objectivity, as the results are determined by electrical impulse."

Gamma began in-house research into this diagnostic testing concept in 1989 and is developing a disposable test card possessing a solid substrate containing appropriate antigen or antibody that is bound to an electrode. The immunochemical reaction occurs in less than five minutes when a blood specimen is added to the test card.

"We anticipate marketing the first diagnostic product using this new technology within two years," Hatcher said. "Successful development of product lines based on this patent could be the most significant event in the company's history."

Gamma Biologicals manufactures and markets a wide range of highly refined and specialized testing products, known as diagnostic reagents, as well as specialized instrument systems. Gamma markets to hospitals, blood banks, medical laboratories, physicians' offices and research institutions. The company's common stock began trading on the American Stock Exchange on June 8, 1990.

MINNEAPOLIS (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - General Mills (NYSE: GIS) said today its earnings per share increased 20 percent for the second quarter of fiscal 1991 before a net gain relating primarily to the sale of a business.

For the 13-week period ended Nov. 25, General Mills earned 72 cents per share, a gain of 31 percent. That overall profit figure includes a net gain of 6 cents per share, or $9.2 million, from the sale of the Lancia Bravo pasta operation in Canada, partially offset by a restructuring charge for Yoplait yogurt operations. Excluding this unusual gain, earnings per share were 66 cents compared with 55 cents earned by continuing operations a year earlier. Sales grew 13 percent to $1.84 billion.

All prior-year earnings per share figures have been restated to reflect a two-for-one stock split that was effective Nov. 7, 1990.

Chairman H.B. Atwater, Jr., said that the strong performance primarily resulted from continued excellent operating gains by both Consumer Foods and Restaurants, and from excellent expense control throughout the company.

Consumer Foods reported second-quarter gains of 12 percent in sales and 23 percent in operating profits excluding the unusual gain relating to the Lancia Bravo sale and Yoplait restructuring. As in the first quarter, performance was led by substantial sales and profit gains by Big G cereals and Betty Crocker Products. Big G's ready-to-eat cereal volume grew 8 percent, increasing its quarterly dollar share of the $7 billion retail market to 28 percent, up 1.5 share points from the comparable period a year ago. Betty Crocker products benefited from an overall volume gain of 14 percent, led by increases of 24 percent by Hamburger Helper and other main meal mixes and increases of more than 30 percent for various snack food lines. General Mills' overall domestic package food volume grew by more than 8 percent in the second quarter.

Cumulative first-half Consumer Foods sales and operating profits grew 13 percent and 21 percent (excluding the unusual gain), respectively. First-half domestic package food volume grew by more than 9 percent, and cumulative results also reflect strong volume and profit gains by Canadian and European operations.

AVON, MA (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Child World, Inc. (NASDAQ: CWLD) will begin Thursday the largest advertising blitz in its 34-year history to promote what it believes is the biggest Christmas toy sale in the history of the toy industry.

"We want every parent in every market where we have a store to know that Santa Claus is coming early this year," said Child World Chief Executive Officer Peter Hayes. "By the time we are done with this two- week blitz, we estimate that more than 105 million people will have read, seen or heard at least one of our ads. In fact, in the markets in which we will use both radio and television, we estimate that nearly 80 million people will have heard our message eight or more times by the time we're done." The newspaper circular alone will reach approximately 20 million families encompassing more than 50 million consumers, he noted.

The $4 million advertising campaign is part of a previously announced plan by the country's second-largest retail toy supermarket to reduce inventory and raise cash at its 182 stores.

The sale covers $105 million of retail inventory. "We are positioning this as the sale of the year," said Hayes. "It's bad news for other toy retailers; but it's good news for parents looking for the best bargains around on toys, dolls, bikes and games."

Shoppers can easily spot the sale merchandise. Red labels indicate a price cut of 30 percent and green a price cut of 50 percent. Bargains of up to 75 percent off can be found in the store's "World of Values" section. Prices on sale merchandise are marked down from the already discounted Child

World/Children's Palace prices, which are as much as 30 percent below "manufacturers suggested retail price."

Examples of sale items include: -- 50 percent off all hyper cars and sets, including Hasbro, Tonka and Bandai, originally priced at $5.99 to $69.99, now priced at $2.90 to $29.90;

-- Lost and found by Galoob, originally priced at $24.99, now priced at $14.90;

-- Hob Nobbins, originally priced at $9.99, now $4.99; -- 30 percent of all hand-held games from Tiger Electronics, originally priced at $11.99 to $19.99, now $8.39 to $13.99;

-- Reduced prices on over 200 titles of Nintendo software, now priced at $14.90, $19.90 and $24.90.

The sale will continue through Christmas. The price markdowns are on selected inventory. Once the merchandise is sold, it will not be restocked and no "rain checks" will be issued for out-of-stock merchandise.

SAN DIEGO, (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - IRT Corp. (AMEX: IX) today announced that the company has signed a quantity purchase agreement with Delco Electronics Corp. Under the agreement at least 13 CXI-5000 series Automated Process Monitors will be delivered over 15 months. Delco Electronics, a subsidiary of GM Hughes Electronics, is a major supplier of automotive electronics.

The CXI-5000 series systems, with an average selling price of $380,000 are automated X-ray inspection systems designed for high-throughput inspection and process control in manufacturing assembly lines for circuit boards using surface-mount technology. Based on the number of systems and the average price, the agreement is expected to be worth more than $5 million.

This is the second quantity purchase agreement between IRT and Delco Electronics. In early 1989 the companies signed an agreement under which Delco Electronics would purchase a minimum of 17 systems over 24 months.

"This agreement continues the progress we've made in expanding IRT's installed base of high-throughput production systems, which last year doubled to 40 systems," said Edward W. Soron, senior vice president and general manager, Electronic Systems. "The agreement reinforces IRT's position as the pre-eminent supplier of advanced on-line X-ray systems for the production environment."

The systems purchased under the agreement will be used for high-volume manufacturing in a number of new programs in body electronics, power train electronics, and audio systems in both domestic and overseas Delco Electronics facilities.

A number of the systems delivered under the agreement will be IRT's newest CXI-5000-series system, the CXI-5500 Automated Process Monitor. The CXI-5500 offers high-speed and high-resolution imaging using IRT's patented Automated Real Time X-ray technique (U.S. patent 4809308).

Using proprietary software and real-time X-ray imaging, the CXI systems automatically inspect circuit boards, detecting critical assembly errors, such as missing or misplaced components and solder defects. The systems are capable of inspecting highly miniaturized "fine-pitch" devices (20-mil lead spacing and finer), which are increasingly used in advanced electronics equipment. Solder integrity is critical in surface mount fabrication, since it is the only element holding the electronic components to the board.

IRT's revenues from its Electronics Systems unit achieved record levels last year, increasing from $2.4 million in fiscal 1989 to $7.6 million in fiscal 1990 (which ended March 31, 1990). This growth was attributed to expansion of the company's international business through IRT's new distributors in Japan (Tokyo Electron Limited) and Europe (Electronic Instruments Group). Among the major installations completed during the year were systems at IBM, Hitachi, OKI and GM Singapore overseas, in addition to new facilities of IBM and Motorola in the United States.

Headquartered in San Diego, IRT Corp. is a major suppler of industrial real-time X-ray systems, with more than 500 systems installed, and is the technology leader in fully automated X-ray inspection systems with computerized defect recognition capability. The company develops and manufactures inspection and process monitoring systems, including fully integrated systems for electronics, automotive, aerospace, and defense applications.

IRT also operates a commercial radiation processing facility, which provides high-energy electron-beam processing for a number of commercial applications.

SOMERVILLE, NJ (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Hoechst AG of Frankfurt, Germany, announced today that an agreement had been reached with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the U.S. Attorney's office in Newark, N.J., ending a four-year investigation of Hoechst AG and its U.S. subsidiary Hoechst-Roussel Pharmaceuticals Incorporated (HRPI). The investigation concerned compliance by Hoechst AG and HRPI with FDA regulations governing reporting of side effects allegedly associated with the prescription antidepressant medicine Merital(R) (nomifensine).

The agreement resolves four misdemeanor charges against Hoechst AG relating to the unintentional failure to make timely reports of adverse reactions involving two patients who received the drug in Europe. Hoechst AG agreed to pay a fine of $202,000.

The charges were brought against Hoechst AG under provisions of U.S. law that permit criminal liability without proof of fault. The government did not allege intentional misconduct or negligence by Hoechst AG or any of its employees.

No charges were brought against the U.S. subsidiary. The U.S. Attorney's office has stated that neither HRPI nor its employees were ever a target of the investigation, and has acknowledged that HRPI complied fully with its reporting obligations under U.S. law.

The Merital inquiry began in 1986, after Hoechst AG voluntarily withdrew the drug from the market worldwide in response to an unexplained increase in cases of hemolytic anemia, a rare side effect involving destruction of red blood cells. The company had alerted physicians to this side effect in prescribing information distributed from the date the drug was first marketed in the United States.

The worldwide withdrawal of Merital occurred only a few months after the drug was introduced to the United States. Following a congressional hearing in 1986 the FDA and the Justice Department began an extensive investigation, in which HRPI and Hoechst AG cooperated fully.

The government's charges involve two cases of hemolytic anemia. In one case, Hoechst AG received secondhand information that an unidentified patient had died from hemolytic anemia. Despite efforts to follow up, Hoechst AG never received detailed information on the case, including the identity of the patient or confirmation that the patient had actually received Merital. The case was transmitted to the FDA with the statement that there was "insufficient information" for a full report.

The other case involved a patient in France who used Merital to commit suicide. The patient, who had previously suffered from hemolytic anemia while taking Merital, readministered the drug against her physician's instructions. She became ill and misled doctors about the fact that she had taken the drug again in order to commit suicide. The first hemolytic anemia event in this patient was reported to the FDA, and Hoechst AG considered the fact of the suicide non-reportable.

LAFAYETTE HILL, PA (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Home Unity Savings Bank PaSA (NASDAQ: HUSB) said today it received notice from the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) concerning certain operating limitations.

Those limitations affect, among other things, the types and size of residential, construction and consumer loans and borrowings and investments which Home Unity may make without obtaining the OTS's prior written approval. In addition, Home Unity may not, among other things, make commercial loans, issue letters of credit or accept any uninsured deposits. Home Unity said it has requested reconsideration of certain of these limitations.

Home Unity continues to make conventional first and second mortgage residential loans and commercial real estate loans of up to $250,000, home equity loans of up to $50,000, secured consumer loans of up to $25,000 and unsecured consumer loans of up to $5,000. In addition, Home Unity will honor existing legally binding commitments.

Home Unity has not yet been able to obtain its necessary capital infusion in the current market. The OTS has therefore indicated that it intends to withdraw its approval of Home Unity's capital restoration plan and capital exemption. However, Home Unity may promptly submit a revised capital restoration plan acceptable to the OTS. The OTS will consider any such submission before deciding finally whether to withdraw its approval of Home Unity's capital restoration plan and capital exemption.

Michael C. Rush, Home Unity's president and chief executive officer, stated: "The OTS has afforded us the flexibility we need to continue to run our day-to-day operations. The limitations which have been imposed are due to our capital deficiency, and not to any problem with our current business activities. Our business plan has for some time been focused primarily on adjustable rate residential first mortgage lending and a small amount of conservatively underwritten consumer lending. Based on that conservative business plan, we have reported profits in each of the past four quarters. We believe that we can continue to be profitable in light of the operating flexibility we have been granted.

"We continue to attempt to obtain our necessary capital infusion in this difficult market. We believe that our record of core operating profits and the consistent improvements in our operating trends over the last several quarters provide the basis for such an infusion."

Home Unity's common stock is traded in the Over-the-Counter market.

RESTON, VA (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - The latest version of the Rolls-Royce Turbomeca Adour engine has won more business with Malaysia's decision to buy 28 Hawk aircraft from British Aerospace.

This nearly $800 million contract was signed in Kuala Lumpur yesterday within the framework of a 1988 memorandum of understanding between the British and Malaysian governments covering defense equipment procurement and related service calls for the supply between 1993 and 1995 of a mix of Hawk 100 two-seat trainers and Hawk 200 fighters -- all powered by the Adour Mk871, the latest version of the engine model that was launched in the Anglo-French Jaguar in 1972.

It covers the aircraft, related equipment, ammunition, training packages and technical services. Rolls-Royce's share of initial contracts for installed and supporting hardware approaches $100 million.

The Royal Malaysian Air Force has ordered 10 of the Hawk 100 advanced trainers and 18 Hawk 200 single-seat fighters.

Malaysian Defense Minister Datuk Najib bin Tun Razak said the Hawks will be deployed primarily in close air support, battlefield air interdiction and maritime attack roles. He added that the aircraft will also act as the lead systems trainer for future new generation fighters.

At 5,845 pounds of thrust, the Mk871 is the latest and most powerful non-afterburning Adour variant.

It was first selected by a customer in the Middle East earlier this year to power Hawk 100s. Since then, a second operator in the same territory -- the Royal Air Force of Oman -- has ordered a mix of Hawk 100s and 200s.

In all, more than 700 Adour-powered Hawks have been supplied or selected by 14 air forces, and there is more potential business for the Hawk/Adour combination worldwide.

Six nations in the Middle East and Far East have recently chosen Adour power in various versions of the Hawk, and another six countries in these regions have also displayed firm interest.

A version of the Mk871, the F405-RR-401 (also rated at 5,845 pounds of thrust) has recently undergone flight trials in the U.S. Navy's T-45A Goshawk advanced trainer.

Rolls-Royce is a world leader in the design, development and manufacture of civil and military aviation, marine and industrial gas turbine engines.

MINNEAPOLIS (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - TCC Properties Group, Inc., a national real estate management and development company, and Robert Boblett Associates, Inc., specialists in real estate brokerage, valuation and consulting, announced today that they will merge effective Jan. 1, 1991, and begin operations as "Marquette Partners."

Headquartered in Minneapolis, both companies are nationally recognized in their fields. TCC Properties is the successor to the Center Companies, which was sold late last year by the current principals of TCC Properties.

At the time of the sale, Center Cos. had some 30 million square feet in its real estate portfolio, and was ranked as the nation's largest manager of retail properties for institutional investors.

Robert Boblett Associates, Inc. was founded in 1970. In addition to its leasing and brokerage operation, Boblett is a recognized leader in real estate appraisal and consultation services. As a shareholder in Valuation Network, Inc., the firm is positioned to provide appraisals and consulting services on a nationwide basis.

Present officers of TCC include its chairman, Michael F. Kelly; Dennis G. Gethmann, president, financial services div.; Gregory T. Karlen, president, retail properties div.; and Austin H. Evans, president, office & industrial properties div.

Principals of Boblett are Louis Frillman, James Wenthold, Harold Miller and Donald Woodward. Under Marquette Partners, Frillman will assume the title of president, real estate consulting services, and TCC Properties officers will retain their existing titles and positions.

TCC's Dennis Gethmann described the merger as "a great fit, positioning our joint operating company to take full advantage of real estate opportunities in the nineties."

Gethmann noted that the industry put billions of dollars of construction in place during the past decade, providing a ready market for firms such as Marquette Partners who can provide a full spectrum of needed services, including asset management, valuation, advisory and brokerage services on a local, national and regional basis.

"We believe that the 90s will belong to those companies who can readily respond to those needs. Our plan is to build on the excellent business base which already exists with TCC Properties and Robert Boblett Associates.

From that base, we will develop Marquette Partners into a premier provider of specialized real estate services to corporate and institutional owners, lenders and investors."

NEW YORK (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Representatives of the Republic of Chile and the international banking community today signed the 1990 agreement relating to maturities on Chile's commercial bank debt and the country's medium-term financing needs.

Chief debt negotiator Eduardo Aninat, who led the Chilean delegation to the signing ceremonies, said, "This agreement is consistent with the achievements shown by Chile both in its solid economic performance as well as in its orderly transition to democracy under the government of Mr. Aylwin. The country looks into the 1990s with renewed optimism."

Susan Segal, managing director, Manufacturers Hanover (NYSE: MHC) and chairman of the country's international bank advisory committee, said, "This occasion takes on added significance as a major step forward for the Chilean government toward more normal access to the financial markets." As previously announced, Chile has launched a $320 million Eurobond issue, which the country expects to sign in January, 1991. The agreement between Chile and its creditor banks:

- Extends the maturities and grace periods on principal for the 1983, 1984, and 1985 new money agreements, and the 1983-84 and 1985-91 restructuring agreements.

- Extends the retiming of interest payments, under which interest is paid once per year, on the above agreements.

- Amend the language in the country's loan agreements to increase Chile's flexibility regarding various debt repayment and debt reduction provisions.

- Extends the country's trade facility under similar terms for one year, covering credits extended during 1991.

The agreement does not affect the existing pricing provisions of the above-mentioned loan agreements. In addition, Chile has not requested changes in the amortization schedule or retiming of its World Bank cofinancing agreement.

ST. PETERSBURG, FL. (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Templeton Global Income Fund, Inc. (NYSE: GIM) today issued the following manager's report:

Interest rates tended to be more stable in October as slowing business activity in the U.S. seemed to counterbalance the continued uncertainty stemming from the Middle East situation. Yield curves steepened slightly mainly from a decline in short-term rates. The Federal Reserve simply followed the market decline when it lowered the Fed funds rate to 7 3/4 percent towards the end of the month, while bond yields fluctuated within an 8 3/4 percent to 9 percent band. Entry by the U.K. into the Exchange Rate Mechanism gave a boost to sterling and the Gilt market as investors began to anticipate further declines in the minimum lending rate.

Weakening economic trends in the U.S., amid signs that the inflationary effects of higher oil prices were being contained, gave the U.S. bond market a firm tone despite a growing budget deficit. At the end of the month, bond yields were down to around 8 3/4 percent.

The Fund made several significant changes during the month. U.K. floating rate notes and the gilts were sold to realize currency profits, leaving only a small Eurosterling position. The Canadian bill position was extended to six months, while the bond position was shortened to two years from 10 years.

The Fund made modest additions to Danish government bonds, an Italian ECU issue, and high quality Norwegian mortgage bonds. In other European markets, the Fund shortened maturity in Italy and maintained its positions in Spain and France.

Profits taken in other currencies were applied to building up the U.S. dollar cash position. In addition, the Fund sold some of its longer dated U.S. bonds and bought short governments, taking a more defensive stance given the uncertainty with respect to the Middle East and inflation prospects.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Unocal (NYSE: UCL) reiterated today that it intends to utilize crude oil from the Point Arguello field solely as feedstock for the company's Santa Maria Refinery in Arroyo Grande.

Unocal issued the statement in response to speculation and erroneous reports that the company plans to use its pipelines to transport Port Arguello crude to Avila for shipment by tanker.

Unocal initially plans to purchase 10,000 to 15,000 barrels of crude per day from various partners in the offshore project once production begins from the Point Arguello field.

In order to transport Point Arguello crude to its refinery, Unocal must build a short pipeline between Unocal's Bell pump station and the All American Pipeline Company's Sisquoc pump station.

Unocal has submitted an application to Santa Barbara County for a permit to build the 12-inch, 6.5 mile pipeline.

"Point Arguello is an excellent source of crude to replace declining production from our own offshore operations," said Ed Scott, vice president of crude supply and transportation for Unocal. "Contrary to reports in the media we have no intention of transporting Point Arguello crude to Avila and tanker it to other destinations," added Scott.

BARTOW, FL (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Orange-co, Inc. (NYSE: OJ) announced today that it has completed the previously announced contract to sell a 320-acre citrus grove in Okeechobee County, Fla. Net proceeds from this sale are approximately $3.3 million.

This transaction is incremental to prior sales consummated earlier encompassing about 2,760 acres. Proceeds from those transactions totaled approximately $32.6 million. All profits from these transactions will be fully sheltered by the company's tax loss carryforward position.

The company had previously reported that its balance sheet had been strengthened considerably by the grove sales and the liquidation of inventories. Outstanding short-term bank debt has been reduced from approximately $57 million earlier in the year to approximately $8 million currently.

These transactions represent a continuation of the restructuring plan announced in April by Ron Divin, Orange-co's president and chief executive officer, which encompasses the sale of approximately 22 percent of the company's Florida real estate and other assets in addition to substantial cost reductions, in order to improve its profitability, cash flow, balance sheet, and return on assets. The restructuring plan is designed to allow the company to improve the productivity of its remaining 17,600 acres of citrus groves and more effectively pursue its successful institutional beverage company business plan while minimizing activity in the volatile commodity bulk orange juice market.

VANCOUVER (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Robert Munro, president of Grizzly Creek Resources Ltd. is pleased to announce a gold discovery in the Philippines on its Capas Gold Property in Capas, Tarlac, Republic of the Philippines.

BHP Engineering Philippines Inc. (BHPE) the subsidiary of Broken Hill Proprietary of Australia, one of the world's largest and most reputable companies has just completed its 990 foot exploratory drilling contract with Grizzly Creek Resources and West Gold Explorations, Inc. on the Capas property. Grizzly Creek holds a 40 percent equity interest in West Gold Explorations which in turn holds a 100 percent interest in Capas.

The BHPE drilling contract consisted of 4 drill holes at an average depth of 248 feet per hole, started on Nov. 5, 1990, and completed on Dec. 1, 1990, with assay results received only recently.

Results have shown sub-surface zones to be clearly anomalous for gold and follow-up work east of the target area is being planned where field mapping indicates the geological boundaries intersect. Drill holes number 1 and 3 have shown that the outerlimit of the deposit is located on the west side of the target area and that further drilling eastward would indicate much higher grades, as confirmed by the dramatic improvement between drill holes 2 and 4. Hole number 2 results show anomalous gold values to a depth of 164 feet ranging up to 0.02 oz/ton Au while hole number 4 results show gold values to a depth of 131 feet, ranging up to .084 oz/ton Au.

A gold rush in 1986 resulted in up to 2,000 gold panners active within the lease area recovering up to 129 ounces per month with some nuggets weighing between 0.23 to 0.46 ounces. The Capas gold property is associated with an epithermal style mineral deposit.

Commercial gold occurence in the general area is Benguet Corporation's Dizon Mine, a gold-rich porphyry copper deposit located about 40 Km. to the west-southwest of the Capas property. In 1989, according to Benguet Corporation's annual report, it produced some 40 million pounds of copper and 138,000 ounces of gold from 5.97 million tons of ore, averaging 0.34 percent Cu and 0.03 ounces per ton Au. Benguet is a major copper and gold producer in the Philippines and is listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Grizzly Creek Resources Ltd. would also like to announce that it does not maintain (and has not ever maintained) any contractual or business relationship whatsoever with Chase Resources Corporation.

SEATTLE (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Following a recent favorable Internal Revenue Service ruling, the board of directors of Plum Creek Timber Co., L.P. ("the Partnership") (NYSE: PCL) today announced it will merge its existing corporate manufacturing subsidiary into a newly-formed limited partnership subsidiary.

The streamlining will have no impact on the combined earnings or cash flow of the entities, and will not affect the Partnership's cash distribution to unitholders, but will simplify the Partnership's administration, provide a single ownership focus for all employees and reduce overhead costs.

"Another benefit of this change," said David D. LeLand, president and chief executive officer, "will be that the same tax treatment that applies to the Partnership's timberland operations will also apply to Plum Creek's manufacturing operations. This will allow the company to combine for tax purposes the results of both companies which we believe will enhance the current after-tax yield on the unitholders' investment." Plum Creek further noted that if this streamlining of operations had been in effect for the last four reported quarters, the after-tax yield to most individual unitholders, based on a unit price of $20, would have increased from approximately 11.5 percent to 12.9 percent. The actual benefit to any unitholder as a result of this streamlining in 1991 and thereafter will depend upon actual financial results, cash distributions, and the price at which the units were purchased.

Master Limited Partnerships, under current law, must derive more than 90 percent of their income from qualifying sources which include natural resource businesses. The Internal Revenue Service clarified in its ruling that income from sawmilling operations constitutes qualifying income, thereby permitting Plum Creek's streamlining.

Under the reorganization, which is scheduled to take effect in January 1991, the newly formed subsidiary, Plum Creek Manufacturing, L.P., will be 98 percent owned by Plum Creek Timber Co., L.P., and 2 percent owned by Plum Creek Management Co., the Partnership's general partner, and an indirect subsidiary of Burlington Resources Inc.

Plum Creek is the second largest private timberland owner in the Pacific Northwest and one of the largest in the nation. The Partnership and its manufacturing subsidiary were formed in June 1989 to acquire, own and operate substantially all of the timber business and wood products manufacturing operations formally owned by Burlington Resources Inc.

RADNOR, PA (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - George H. Schmitt, president and chief executive officer of Main Line Health, today announced his resignation of that position, effective Jan. 18, 1991, to pursue additional interests in the health care field.

He has served in this capacity since 1988. Main Line Health is the parent organization comprising The Bryn Mawr Hospital, The Lankenau Hospital, Paoli Memorial Hospital and Bryn Mawr Rehabilitation Hospital. Its offices are in Radnor.

Schmitt, formerly president of Forbes Health System in Pittsburgh and a national advocate of hospital collaboration, has been at the forefront of joint efforts to develop system solutions to problems facing the health care industry. He recently termed the formation of Main Line Health in 1985 as a "daring, worthwhile experiment." The system's goals are cost containment, emphasis on highest quality patient care, and enabling physicians to join the hospitals in meeting the health needs of citizens of this area in innovative and cost-effective ways.

"We are succeeding in our obligation to bring quality to every aspect of our performance," Schmitt said. "Productivity that allows us to pass on real savings to our patients, respect for the unique dignity of each person, and attention to the stewardship of our technological and material assets, all provide a scorecard for our communities to judge that performance."

During the period of Schmitt's administration, the system has produced millions of dollars of cost savings for its hospitals' operations through joint purchasing and combined efforts in such areas as insurance, health service program development and legal services. A new Main Line Health data center established this year brings all hospital information systems under one roof.

But Schmitt said continued collaborative efforts would be needed to accomplish the goals of the system. "No magic answers can be expected to come from Washington or Harrisburg," Schmitt said. "The answer lies in a lot of hard work and sacrifice to pursue a compelling, shared vision for the future health of our communities."

VANCOUVER, B.C. (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - On Nov. 2, 1990, Royal Oak Resources Ltd., (Vancouver: ROL) purchased control of the Parmour Group of Companies which includes Giant Yellowknife Mines Ltd. and Parmorex Minerals Inc. Since taking control in early November, Royal Oak has instigated significant management changes which will result in a decrease in operating and administrative costs in Giant Yellowknife Mines and will effect a cash conservation program for Pamorex.

The following measures have been taken: 1. Royal Oak has shut down the Toronto corporate offices of the Pamour Group and has laid off 12 employees. Royal Oak and the Pamour Group have relocated their head office to 1425 West Pender Street in Vancouver. The existing Royal Oak management team will now manage the companies. This will save the group approximately $1.5 million per year in administrative costs.

2. The Tailings Retreatment Project (TRP) in Yellowknife has been indefinitely shut down. As a result, the 28 TRP staff and hourly employees in Yellowknife have been permanently laid off. A study will be undertaken over the next three months to determine if the TRP Project can be operated profitably.

3. At the Yellowknife mine, 9 staff and hourly employees have been laid off from the underground operations. This staff reduction continues an earlier program which started in 1989. The operating personnel in Yellowknife now totals 312 vs. 351 earlier in 1990.

4. At the Timmins division, 48 hourly and staff employees have been laid off. Included in this group are narrow vein miners, maintenance personnel and drillers. This large personnel reduction is a result of the shut down of much of the uneconomic narrow vein mining at the Pamour No. 1 mine. This will result in lowering the overall cost of production in Timmins. Any lost production will be replaced by increasing the tonnage mined from the Hoyle deposit. The operating personnel in Timmins now totals 309 vs 357 earlier in 1990.

5. Pamorex's geological staff has been severely cut as a result of the newly instigated cash conservation program. To date, 18 exploration geologists have been laid off in Timmins and Yellowknife, and 6 geologists and clerical staff have been laid off from the Reno, Nev., office. The Reno office will be closed effective Dec. 31, 1990. A detailed assessment is currently underway on all Pamorex properties to assess exploration priorities and budgeting. The layoff of the Pamorex exploration geologists will not affect grade control or underground mine development at the Timmons or Yellowknife divisions. Pamorex currently has approximately $4.0 million in its Treasury.

Giant Yellowknife Mines is projected to produce 195,000 ounces of gold in 1990 at an average cash production cost of $360 US/ounce. Cost reductions will result in a first quarter 1991 production of 45,879 ounces at an average cash cost per ounce of $324 US/ounce. Giant Yellowknife mines has 33,600 ounces sold forward for delivery in the 1st quarter of 1991 at an average cost of $460 US/ounce.

Royal Oak and the Pamour Group of companies are moving forward with plans for an amalgamation of Royal Oak Resources, Giant Yellowknife Mines, Pamour, Pamorex Minerals and Akaitcho Yellowknife Gold Mines.

IRVINE, CALIF. (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Western Digital Corporation (AMEX: WDC) today announced a restructuring plan that will result in the company taking a significant charge for its second quarter ending Dec. 31, 1990. The major elements of the plan relate to the company's decision to accelerate a product transition, from certain stand-alone board products to its newest family of integrated semiconductor devices and intelligent disk drives.

The restructuring actions, which will result in pre-tax charges in the range of $60 million to $70 million, are expected to be primarily non-cash in nature.

The actions include:
--restructuring of the company's board manufacturing operations, including the closing of its plant in Puerto Rico; and
--realigning the company's distribution channels with a greater emphasis on serving original equipment manufacturers while streamlining its reseller structure to increase profitability in that channel.

As a result of these actions, the company will write down the assets related to certain older product lines, principally stand- alone storage and video controllers. The company also indicated that it would continue to focus on aggressively reducing its operating expenses.

The company has reviewed the nature and extent of the charges with its financing institutions, and is working with them to amend agreements containing covenants that will not be met when the restructuring charges are taken. Based upon discussions with these institutions, the company believes that such amendments will be obtained.

Western Digital Corp., headquartered in Irvine, is a multinational company that designs, develops, manufactures and markets semiconductors, subsystems and intelligent disk drives to original equipment manufacturers and resellers which serve the microcomputer industry.

ARLINGTON, VA. (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - USAir fleet service employees have voted against representation by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, according to results of a mail ballot election tabulated today by the National Mediation Board (NMB).

"We are pleased with the show of confidence in the company and its future by this very important group of employees," said USAir President Seth E.

Schofield.

Of 7,236 employees eligible to vote in the election, only 2,475, or fewer than 35 percent, cast ballots in favor of IBT representation. Under NMB rules, a simple majority of 50 percent plus one of eligible voters must vote for representation before a union will be certified.

The election was ordered as a result of USAir's Aug. 5, 1989, merger with Piedmont Aviation, which added over 4,000 previously non-union employees to USAir's fleet service classification. The IBT was previously certified to represent the approximately 4,000 fleet service agents employed by USAir before the Piedmont merger. Approximately 2,000 of those employees -- at Boston, Buffalo, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh -- have been represented by the IBT since 1980.

The union's failure to gain a majority vote means the IBT will no longer represent any USAir employees once the NMB issues a decertification order.

MORRIS TOWNSHIP, N.J., (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - The Douglas Aircraft Company Division of McDonnell Douglas Corporation (NYSE: MD) has selected the Bendix Electric Power Division, a unit of Allied-Signal Aerospace, as sole-source supplier for the main power system aboard its MD-90 family of commercial airliners, it was announced today by Allied- Signal.

The MD-90 family represents the latest generation of McDonnell Douglas twin jet commercial aircraft. The first delivery is scheduled for 1994.

The Bendix Electric Power system uses solid state electronic technology to create a constant frequency alternating current (AC) from a wide range of generator speeds on the aircraft. The solid-state variable speed constant frequency (VSCF) power system represents a technological shift away from the hydro-mechanical systems now used in a majority of commercial airliners. Hydro-mechanical systems utilize gears and fluids to accomplish the job done by advanced electronics in the newer design.

The division's successful "split package" design has two main electric power generators located in the rear engine compartments of the MD-90, and two solid state power converters located in the nose section of the aircraft.

While the division's VSCF technology has been used for years on military and civilian aircraft, selection by Douglas Aircraft marks the introduction of this proven technology into McDonnell Douglas commercial airline products. The division has been supporting VSCF research and development for over 30 years, and received its first VSCF patent in 1962.

The Bendix Electric Power Division, with headquarters in Eatontown, N.J., is a unit of Allied-Signal Inc. (NYSE: ALD), an advanced technology company with businesses in aerospace, automotive products and engineered materials.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE, IL (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - AAR (NYSE:AIR) today announced preliminary results for the second quarter ended Nov. 30, 1990 of the company's 1991 fiscal year. These results are subject to final review.

Net sales for the period are expected to be approximately $115 million up from the prior year's $104,566,000. Net income is expected to be approximately $120,000, or 1 cent per share, vs. $6,752,000, or 42 cents per share, for the second quarter of last year. The results for the period are expected to reflect a $2.5 million operating loss at the company's Oklahoma City maintenance operation. Also, net income is anticipated to include a pretax charge of $3.3 million.

The pretax charge would include $1.9 million for costs related to planned restructuring of the major airline airframe maintenance division of the company's operation in Oklahoma City. The decision to restructure follows a weakening demand for scheduled maintenance checks for major airline aircraft which requires a large standing workforce. Without sufficient prospects for full utilization of existing resources, the company concluded that restructuring was necessary.

AAR will continue to aggressively market its capabilities for various other types of service work on major airline aircraft, as well as all levels of maintenance for regional and business aircraft. The latter businesses have typically been less subject to downturns in the marketplace.

Also included in the pretax charge is a $1 million reserve established against receivables following the recent Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing of an airline customer. The reserve is equal to approximately two thirds of the actual exposure. The balance of the charge relates to separation and severance costs incurred at other of the company's operating units as a result of cost reduction and containment actions.

Ira A. Eichner, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of AAR, said "Due to the dramatic and unanticipated increase in fuel prices and a recessionary economy, the last four months have been an extremely difficult period in the world's airline industry. The actions we have taken further solidify our operational base and, with prospects for a decrease in fuel prices, we will be better positioned to capitalize on an improving environment."

AAR Corp. is a leading supplier of aerospace/aviation products and services. The company primarily distributes parts and equipment, performs technical services and manufactures proprietary products for the aviation industry in the United States and abroad.

EATONTOWN, N.J. (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Syntrex Incorporated (NASDAQ: STRX) announced today the results for the second quarter which ended Oct. 28, 1990. The company reported revenues of $17.9 million for the three months ended Oct. 28, 1990, compared to $11.1 million for the three months ended Oct. 27, 1989. The quarter ended Oct. 28, 1990, represents the third full quarter of operations since the company's January 1990, acquisition of the former Lanier Business Systems unit of Harris Corporation. The significant increase in revenues over the prior year is primarily due to the expanded customer base resulting from this acquisition. The company reported revenues for the three months ended July 29, 1990 of $20.7 million.

The net loss for the three months ended Oct. 28, 1990, was $2.3 million or 28 cents per share compared to $1.2 million or 16 cents per share for the three months ended Oct. 27, 1989. This loss includes $675,000 of reduced gross margin as a result of the accounting treatment for the maintenance contracts acquired through the Lanier acquisition. These contracts were recorded at net cost to complete and there is no gross margin for these acquired contracts. This accounting treatment will continue for one more quarter and will reduce gross margins by approximately $500,000 for the quarter ended Jan. 27, 1991. After January 1991, the company will not have to make this type of adjustment to reduce gross margins. Syntrex previously reported a loss of $2.3 million or 29 cents per share for the three months ended July 29, 1990.

Dan Sinnott, chairman and CEO of Syntrex, said, "The reduction in revenue from the previous quarter was primarily the result of a major reorganization and streamlining program implemented during the quarter ended Oct. 28, 1990. This program reduced the company's total headcount from 813 at the start of the quarter to 680 as of Oct. 28, 1990, a corporate-wide reduction of approximately 16 percent. This translated into a reduction in operating expenses of 13 percent from the previous quarter ended July 29, 1990. This reduction in operating expenses is expected to continue going forward as we further streamline the organization, thereby reducing our breakeven point. With the re- organization largely completed, we believe we should be in a better position to capitalize on the strong growth forecasted by industry experts for the PC-based Network System Integration business."

Sinnott went on to say, "The company's cash position at Oct. 28, 1990 was $3.8 million, and while the company was in compliance with existing loan covenants, the company's line of credit of $5 million expires on Jan. 31, 1991." Sinnott stated that, "The company is engaged in discussions regarding the replacement or renewal of its $5 million line of credit since it is not anticipated that the company will generate sufficient cash by Jan. 31, 1991, to repay the $5 million of borrowings under the line of credit. Although the company has reported operating losses, the financial restructuring program completed in September 1990, and the increase in current assets resulting from the Harris Lanier acquisition should improve the company's prospects for obtaining replacement financing."

Syntrex is a national Network System's Integrator. The company designs, implements and supports PC-based networks using Novell NetWare, Banyan VINES, and 3Com 3(plus)open network operating systems. With system engineering , service, and sales professionals in 40 cities, the company ranked as the fifth largest Network System's Integrator in 1989, according to LAN magazine.

BLUFFTON, IN (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Manville Corp. (NYSE-MVL) said today that the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) has decided that temporary workers are not eligible to vote in an election to determine whether or not the Glass Molders, Pottery, Plastics, and Allied Workers International Union can represent the workforce at Manville's Bluffton, Ind. plant.

The NLRB also found that temporary workers do not share a "community of interest" with permanent employees.

"We are pleased with the NLRB decision supporting our belief that only full-time Manville employees should have the right to determine their destiny " said Harvey Perry, Bluffton's acting plant manager. "We fought hard to have our permanent employees' voice heard - particularly because a majority of the permanent workforce signed a petition to exclude the temporaries."

NLRB hearings were held in October. The organizing union had wanted temporaries to vote on unionization. Temporary employees were primarily used to fill production needs during the plant's start-up phase until Manville achieved a full complement of permanent employees. This was accomplished in November.

The NLRB decision did not set a date for an election. Manville's Bluffton facility manufactures molded fiber glass topliners for the automotive industry. Manville opened the facility in September 1989.

Manville Corp. is an international manufacturing and natural resources company headquartered in Denver, Colo. The company's primary businesses include building and engineered products, fiber glass and industrial insulation products, paper and wood products, packaging, roofing systems and filtration and minerals. NEW YORK (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - In response to inquiries, a spokesman for Chartwell Associates, L.P. said "This is nothing more than a pathetic attempt by Avon to make us the scapegoat for its botched efforts to sell Avon Japan. Any rational observer would understand that as a 19.8 percent shareholder of Avon, we would do everything in our power to enhance value for all Avon shareholders. Indeed, since we always have, and still do, support the sale of Avon Japan, at Avon's request we even met with intermediaries, along with an Avon officer, in an effort to help facilitate a transaction.

"What we strongly object to is selling a portion of Avon Japan, because we firmly believe that shareholders would not be well served by owning a minority interest in Avon Japan.

"No one who is familiar with Avon's track record -- in announcing its desire to sell certain assets and then failing to do so -- can possibly believe this thinly veiled attempt to mask Avon management's own missteps and ill-conceived ideas.

"We are particularly mystified by Avon's petulant statement that they now will not sell Avon Japan. This kind of indecisiveness is troubling to us as shareholders."

WOODBURY, N.Y. (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Millfeld Trading Co., Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: SHOE, SHOEW, SHOEZ) has agreed with the underwriter of its initial public offering in January 1990, to exchange up to 300,000 shares of Millfeld common stock for up to 600,000 Millfeld warrants currently held by the underwriter and certain of its customers. The exchange will be based on a ratio of one share of freely tradeable stock for each two warrants. The agreement contemplates the exchange will occur on or before Dec. 31, 1990.

Under the terms of the agreement the underwriter has waived all rights of first refusal in future Millfeld financings, all rights to designate a director and certain other consulting and agency fees.

In a related aspect of the transaction, the underwriter and other common stockholders representing more than a majority of unaffiliated shares, consented to the termination of the Affiliate Transactions Agreement dated Jan. 2, 1990, between Millfeld and Barry Feldstein, president of Millfeld. The termination of the Affiliate Transactions Agreement eliminates the requirement that Millfeld obtain the approval of unaffiliated shareholders prior to engaging in any transaction with an affiliate.

Feldstein stated that the agreement would enhance shareholder value in two ways. "First," he stated, "potential dilution from warrant exercise has been shrunk by up to 900,000 shares. Second," he added, "Millfeld is now in a far more flexible position with respect to future financing."

MALVERN, PA (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - Centocor, Inc. (NASDAQ: CNTO) today

announced that it has entered into a definitive agreement to acquire the St. Louis manufacturing and development facilities of Invitron Corporation (St. Louis, Mo.), together with related technology, at a cost of $6 million.

The assets being acquired by Centocor include a 48,000 sq. ft. mammalian cell culture manufacturing plant, built in 1986, as well as leased premises of 44,000 sq. ft. for laboratories and offices. Also included are patents, know-how and licenses to mammalian cell culture technology developed by Monsanto and Invitron. Pending approval of the transaction by Invitron's stockholders, Centocor will operate the facilities under an interim operating agreement. Approximately 65 Invitron employees are being offered immediate employment with Centocor.

"This acquisition accelerates Centocor's growth by strengthening our manufacturing base in the United States and affording us the opportunity for substantial technological synergies," said James E. Wavle, Jr., Centocor's president. "And, it immediately increases our operating flexibility. Now, we can dedicate our recently expanded facility in Leiden, Holland, to preparations for the launch of Centoxin -- our first major pharmaceutical -- while scaling up production of our earlier stage pharmaceutical products at the new facility in St. Louis."

Wavle indicated that Centocor did not intend to enter the contract manufacturing business. "Centocor has a number of promising new antibodies in early clinical trials, and the Invitron manufacturing technology is highly compatible with our own," he added. "Thus, we can move key cell lines into St. Louis very rapidly and take advantage of the expertise and capabilities of the outstanding people there.

"We have always said that Centocor intends to capitalize on the opportunities that will emerge as the shake out in biotechnology progresses. This acquisition uniquely fits Centocor's strategy. We are thoroughly delighted with the value we have been able to obtain for Centocor's stockholders," Wavle concluded.

Centocor, Inc., based in Malvern, Pa., develops, manufactures and markets diagnostic and pharmaceutical products for human health care. The company's products are base on monoclonal antibody technology and are primarily intended for use in the management of patients with infectious, cardiovascular and autoimmune disease and cancer.

(DEC. 12) UPI - The evacuation of Americans from Iraq and occupied Kuwait appears to be complete, and as many as 500 Americans have chosen to remain in the two countries, the State Department said.

A U.S.-chartered Boeing 707 with 15 foreigners and no Americans left Baghdad Tuesday, evidence that the evacuation of all American hostages is probably complete, the State Department said.

Left behind are around 500 people entitled to American passports, many of them foreign-born children in families where one of the spouses is an American citizen.

In some cases, according to the State Department, parents decided that they belonged in Iraq or Kuwait and chose to stay.

In others, Kuwaiti or Iraqi-born husbands with dual nationality could not get exit visas from the Iraqi government and their families chose to remain behind with them.

But because of the remote possibility that some Americans may still be in hiding or had not had access to the Voice of America short-wave announcements about the freedom flights, another charter will be sent to Kuwait and Baghdad on Thursday.

That final flight may carry the last of the American diplomats in the beleagured American Embassy in Kuwait, Ambassador Nathaniel Howell and four others, after which the embassy compound will be effectively closed down.

In Washington, Israeli Premier Yitzhak Shamir and President Bush discussed the Persian Gulf crisis Tuesday and Shamir said Bush agreed the crisis triggered by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait would not be settled at Israel's expense.

''He said it several times and he said it to me now again, that there will not be any deal at the expense of Israel,'' Shamir said after the meeting.

The U.N. Security Council has postponed discussions on a resolution on the rights of Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied territories, but Cairo Radio said Israel opposes a proposed clause in the resolution calling for an international conference on the Middle East.

The Soviet Union and Arab states endorse the conference but the Bush administration is wary of endorsing it at this point because Bush does not want to appear to endorse any linkage of the Arab-Israeli issue to Iraq's occupation of Kuwait, the radio added.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has consistently attacked the United States and its allies for mobilizing world opinion on the Kuwait issue but not taking similar measures against Israel for the Jewish state's perceived violation of U.N. resolutions on the territories.

The official Iraqi news agency INA said Tuesday the government pardoned prisoners accused of political crimes and those who deserted their posts or went AWOL since Iraq invaded Kuwait four months ago.

One Cairo-based Western diplomat said a number of Iraqi soldiers were known to have defected to neighboring countries such as Turkey and Saudi Arabia since Saddam sent his army into oil-rich Kuwait.

The diplomat said, however, that based on experience with similar measures, Iraqis who fled were usually too afraid of execution to return home despite the pledge of a pardon.

The United States offered political asylum to Iraqi naval deserters but has not issued figures on how many, if any, took up up the offer.

''The Revolutionary Command Council has decided to pardon all fugitive Iraqis outside Iraq, to order the suspension of all legal measures against the political crimes, desertion and absence without leave,'' said INA, monitored in Cairo.

In other developments Tuesday:

- France said it will send 4,000 more troops to Saudi Arabia by Jan. 15, the U.N.-imposed deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait without the use of force. France already has about 6,000 troops with the U.S.- dominated multinational force deployed against Iraq.

- Algerian President Chedli Benjdid flew to Amman on the first leg of a tour of the Middle East that will also take him to Iraq and Saudi Arabia. The Algerian newspaper Al Shab said he would attempt to negotiate a peaceful end to the crisis.

(DEC. 12) UPI - Chicago Blackhawks Coach Mike Keenan says his team may not be the most talented in the NHL, but it is the hardest working.

That hard work has given the Blackhawks the best record in the league, and Tuesday night in Pittsburgh it got them a come-from-behind 4-1 victory over the Penguins. Troy Murray scored two goals, including the game-winner, to lead Chicago.

''We wanted to get back to the working effort that we've had for most of the season, and we had gotten away from it a bit,'' said Keenan, whose team is 21-10-2 and first in the Norris Division with 44 points. ''We were progressively better as the game went on, and that's a good sign.''

Chicago is 4-1-0 in its last five games.

Murray scored at 8:22 of the third period when he took a pass from Dirk Graham at the right of the crease and beat goaltender Frank Pietrangelo for a 2-1 lead. It was his second goal of the game and eighth of the season.

''We figure that, if we play 60 minutes of hard bump-and-grind work, we're going to break a lot of teams in this league, and that's exactly what happened tonight,'' said Murray.

The Blackhawks increased their lead to 3-1 on Steve Larmer's 22nd goal at 10:49 of the third period. Pietrangelo was given a misconduct and game misconduct by referee Kerry Fraser for arguing about Larmer's goal, and Chicago scored short-handed against Wendell Young at 12:54 of the third period on a goal by Mike McNeill.

''We took a lot more shots on net, and we went to the net and created opportunities that way and capitalized on them,'' said Steve Thomas, who assisted on Murray's goals. ''If we're not working hard, we're an average team out there. We don't have a lot of superstars.''

Pittsburgh took a 1-0 lead with 30 seconds left in the first period on Kevin Stevens' 18th goal. Chicago tied it 1-1 on Murray's goal at 15:51 of the second period.

The Penguins have lost five straight home games and are 0-3-1 in their last four games.

''They're the No. 1 team in the league, and for two periods it was an absolutely even game,'' said Penguins Coach Bob Johnson. ''We make the mistake and they score the goal and we lose the game. We got three two- on-ones in the first period and we can't cash them in. That's the way it's been going.''

(DEC. 12) UPI - The State Department is trying to make sure that all Americans in Iraq and Kuwait who want to leave know they now have a way out.

U-S officials are using Voice of America broadcasts in an attempt to reach U-S citizens who may still be hiding. The department says it does NOT have an exact figure of the Americans who were in Iraq or the occupied oil emirate.

(DEC. 12) UPI - John Starks is a lucky man: He likes his job, and he may even get to keep it.

Starks, who was cut by San Antonio and Golden State and did time in both the CBA and WBL, scored 22 points and ignited a first-half surge Tuesday night that carried the New York Knicks to a 109-90 romp over the Miami Heat.

''I love the game of basketball,'' Starks said after he scored 9 points over an 8 1-2 minute stretch, helping the Knicks turn a 1-point deficit into a 10-point lead.

''I just come out and play hard,'' he said. ''I love the crowd. I love my teammates. I love everything about it.''

His enthusiasm rubbed off on the rest of the Knicks, who played sluggishly in their last three games, three losses under new coach John MacLeod.

''He was a big lift for us,'' said Gerald Wilkins, who scored 18 points and handed out 18 assists.

It was the Knicks' first victory under MacLeod, but Wilkins said that was not as big an issue as the way the win came.

''We went out tonight saying 'Let's blow these guys out,''' he said. ''It was a very big confidence builder for us. The win was for the whole team. We got everyone involved so they couldn't key on one person.''

That person is usually Patrick Ewing, who led the Knicks with 29 points, grabbed 10 boards and swatted away two shots. But Tuesday night rookie Jerrod Mustaf (11 points), Wilkins, Starks and Eddie Lee Wilkins (11 points) all shared the scoring burden.

The Knicks baffled the Heat for 20 consecutive points in the second quarter, when they outscored the Heat 29-10. Miami was held to its lowest first half total ever (29 points).

Miami turned the ball over 10 times and shot 21 percent from the floor.

''This had to be the all-time ugliest, sloppiest game I've ever played in,'' said Miami's Rony Seikaly, who finished with 14 points, but 12 came in the third quarter when the game was all but decided. ''Our offense deserted us, the Knicks got their game going and that's all she wrote.''

When Starks came off the bench at 5:03 of the first quarter, the Knicks were trailing 10-9. When he left at 9:07 of the second, they led 35-24.

In that time Starks had 9 points, fed Ewing for a driving slam, blocked a Kevin Edwards layup and nailed a 3-pointer.

''The coach expects me to get the team sparked and that's what I try to do when I come off the bench,'' Starks said. ''I've had to work hard for everything I've had in life. I've always played with a lot of enthusiasm and it seems hard work just pays off in the end.''

''I like what he's doing,'' MacLeod said. ''He gives you everything he has to the point where he fires everything he has and then he reloads. He's that type of player.''

At Milwaukee, Jay Humphries scored 21 points and Frank Brickowski added a season-high 19 to help the Bucks take sole possession of first place in the Central Division. The victory was Milwaukee's 11th straight at home to start the season, breaking the club record of 10 in a row set in 1984-85.

76ers 119, Magic 114

At Orlando, Fla., Rick Mahorn highlighted his 9-point fourth quarter with a 3-point play that ended a Philadelphia drought and led the Sixers to their

Spurs 95, Pistons 86

At Auburn Hills, Mich., David Robinson scored 27 points and pulled down 16 rebounds to send Detroit to its first home loss and its fifth loss in its last six games overall. Joe Dumars led the Pistons, who shot only 41 percent from the field, with 19 points.

MANILA, Philippines (DEC. 12) UPI - The military announced Wednesday the capture of an army major and the dismissal of 224 soldiers in connection with a separatist revolt mounted by President Corazon Aquino's former security officer last October.

Maj. William Dormitorio surrendered to the southern command in Mindanao island 500 miles south of Manila, on Nov. 29 and was presented to reporters at the army headquarters Wednesday.

Brig. Gen. George Moleta said Dormitorio attempted to gather troops in Iligan city to reinforce the rebellion in nearby Cagayan de Oro city staged Oct.4 by Col. Alexander Noble, a former chief of staff in Aquino's Presidential Security Group.

Noble seized two army camps in northwestern Mindanao and declared the island an independent state. He surrendered 24 hours later after failing to receive support from other military units in the region.

Moleta said 224 soldiers involved in the Noble uprising had been discharged after an investigation by army authorities. He said 15 officers were still undergoing investigation.

Noble is detained at the armed forces headquarters while awaiting court martial proceedings.

Aquino has crushed seven military uprisings since taking power in a civilian-backed army revolt in 1986.

#90346u0206 12/12/1990 ~United Press International

(DEC. 12) UPI - The Boston College Eagles nearly wound up with too much time on their hands Tuesday night.

Doug Able scored 18 points and Boston College held off a late Providence rally to emerge with an 80-78 victory in a game that lasted at least 57 seconds longer than regulation time.

In the midst of an 11-3 Eagles run at the beginning of the second half, the clock malfunctioned and some 57 seconds were added back on when the clock accidently was reset while play was in process. The time went unnoticed and never was taken off.

''We had no idea of that,'' Boston College's Cory Beasley said. ''I'm glad it didn't affect us. We won, but if we didn't there might have been a controversy.''

It nearly came to that. The Friars, 6-1, made a late run to close to 78-74 in the final minute of play - when the contest should have been over.

Providence's Eric Murdock, who scored 34 points, hit two free throws with 42 seconds left, narrowing the margin to 78-76. After BC's Gerrod Abrham hit one free throw, Murdock nailed a pair of free throws with 18. 8 seconds left, cutting the score to 79-78.

David Hinton hit one free throw, but missed the second and the ball went off a BC player and the Friars took possession. A three-point attempt in the final seconds by Providence's Chris Watts - which could have been the game-winner - was stripped by BC's Howard Eisley as the clock showed 0:00, but the buzzer never went off.

''At home that buzzer's supposed to go off,'' Boston College Coach Jim O'Brien said. ''If that game would have gone on another minute or two...''

Providence got possession on the sideline and Murdock attempted a three-pointer as the buzzer sounded that fell short and was ruled to be released too late.

With the victory, Boston College matched its entire Big East win total for last season. Last year, the Eagles struggled through a horrendous 1-15 league mark.

Providence players Corey Floyd, Ken McDonald and Marvin Saddler missed the game while sitting out a mandatory one-game suspension issued by the NCAA for being ejected for fighting in Saturday's game against Rhode Island. The school added two more games to the penalty.

''We're not going to use the missing players as an excuse,'' Providence Coach Rick Barnes said. ''It's not a factor as to why we lost.''

-- AROUND THE NCAA --

At Fayetteville, Ark., No. 2 Arkansas beat South Alabama 101-91 in a game delayed more than an hour because no referees showed up to officiate the game.

Arkansas and South Alabama played during each of the last two seasons, once with a crew of officials from the Southwest Conference and once with officials from the Sun Belt Conference.

Although neither head coach was certain as to where the mix-up originated, it appeared each school felt officials from the opposing conference had been contracted to work the game.

When the problem was finally diagnosed shortly before the scheduled tipoff, the Arkansas athletic department scrambled to get a two-man crew.

Johnny Gabbard of Springdale, Ark., who has officiated junior-college games and was in the stands, volunteered his services.

An Arkansas assistant coach then called Southwest Conference official Mike Fox of Rogers, Ark., who jumped into his uniform and made the half- hour drive to Fayetteville.

Once play began an hour late, Lee Mayberry and Todd Day combined for 51 points to help Arkansas fight off an upset bid by previously unbeaten South Alabama.

In other games Tuesday night featuring Top 25 teams, No. 11 Georgia fell to Vanderbilt 75-74 in overtime, No. 14 St. John's beat Brooklyn 57-47 and No. 25 Nebraska topped Wisconsin 75-63.

At Nashville, Tenn., Steve Grant hit the first three-point field goal of his career with one second left in overtime to lift Vanderbilt over Georgia. Georgia had a five-point lead with 1:09 to play in regulation, but Vanderbilt sent the game into overtime on a three-pointer and two free throws by Kevin Anglin.

At New York, freshman Shawnelle Scott, getting a start because of the suspension of a teammate, scored 20 points to lead St. John's. Scott was starting in place of forward Billy Singleton, one of two players suspended one game for failure to adhere to the athletic department's academic regulations.

At Madison, Wis., Carl Hayes scored 21 points to lead Nebraska to their fifth straight win and third of the year over a Big Ten team.The Badgers, who lost their third in a row, played without second-leading scorer Willie Simms, held out of the game for disciplinary reasons.

WARSAW, Poland (DEC. 12) UPI - Former presidential candidate Stanislaw Tyminski left Poland Wednesday bound for Canada after posting $100,000 bail to ensure his return following charges he insulted Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki.

A group of about 50 sympathizers said goodbye to Tyminski and his wife, Graziella, at Warsaw's Okecie Airport, chanting, ''Stay with us.''

He made no statement to the reporters before boarding the Polish Airlines LOT plane bound for for London from where he is scheduled to fly Air Canada to Toronto.

Tyminski, a businessman with Canadian and Peruvian passports who returned to Poland to run for presidency, was summoned to the prosecutor's office in the capital Tuesday.

Following a four hour hearing, he told reporters the prosecutor allowed him to go ahead with plans to fly to Toronto Wednesday.

''I paid $100,000 and three people guaranteed my return by Jan. 5,'' he said. Tyminski said his return was guaranteed by two senators and Andrzej Zoll, chairman of the election commission.

Tyminski said he received a prosecutor's summons to report to the court of Nowy Sacz, in southern Poland on Dec. 17, hours after he booked plane tickets to fly to Toronto.

On Nov. 17, in the southern mountain resort of Zakopane near Nowy Sacz, he accused Mazowiecki of ''betrayal of the nation'' on grounds Mazowiecki's economic program resulted in a 40 percent drop in the standard of living in the last 14 months.

Following his hearing, he said he did not retract his accusation and was ready to stand trial on his return.

''I cannot change the words I used,'' said Tyminski, who looked tired and whose voice was hoarse. ''I expect to stand trial.''

His Peruvian wife said she would come back with her husband.

Authorities apparently agreed to hold a hearing in Warsaw so as not to disrupt his travel plans.

Tyminski outpolled Mazowiecki in the six-way race in the first round of the presidential elections Nov. 25, but lost to Solidarity leader Lech Walesa in the runoff Sunday. He collected 25.75 percent of the vote to Walesa's 74.75 percent.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (DEC. 12) UPI - Denmark's four million eligible voters went to the polls Wednesday in extraordinary general elections called following last month's breakdown in negotiations on a national finance package.

At stake in the 13-party elections were the 179 seats of the unicameral Folketing, or parliament, in which a total of eight parties were represented up to Wednesday.

''I intend to remain prime minister at the head of a non-socialist government '' said Conservative Party leader and Prime Minister Poul Schluter as polling was about to begin Wednesday.

Schluter has ruled Denmark in changing non-socialist minority coalitions since 1982, when he wrested power from the Social Democrats, until then Denmark's main political force.

His latest administration was composed of his own Conservatives, the Liberals and the Radical Liberals.

Wednesday's general elections were Schluter's fourth since then, and latest opinion polls suggested that although his party could expect to lose some of its following within the electorate, he was not expected to be removed from office.

A last-minute Gallup poll, carried out for the Berlingske Tidende newspaper and published Tuesday, suggested the Social Democrats under their uncharismatic leader Sven Auken, stood to gain an extra 5 percent of the electorate.

But that was at the expense of the Socialist People's Party, a traditional parliamentary supporter of the Social Democrats.

Schluter's Conservatives dropped 2 percent in the poll, but his coalition partners, the Liberal Party of Foreign Minister Uffe Ellemann- Jensen, stood to gain 3 percent.

The polls said the third coalition partner, the Radical Liberals of Economy Minister Niels Helveg Petersen were expected to receive an unchanged 5 percent of the vote.

Reflecting the complicated block politics of Denmark's fragmented parliament, latest polls followed all others since elections were called on Nov. 22, suggesting that neither side of the political divide will have a clear majority.

The snap elections were called when the Social Democrats, invited for talks by a government wanting a broad majority behind finance legislation, rejected provisions under the finance package to remove an extra 6 percent tax on higher-than-average incomes.

Although both sides were in full agreement on all other vital elements of the package, both chose the relatively minor issue of the extra tax as a pretext for calling elections in an attempt to clear the parliamentary impasse of equal-sized blocks.

The short election campaign which followed gave little insight into differing policies between the major actors, but seemed to make of the 1990 election a philosophical discussion of political theory.

With only marginal differences between the two sides on foreign, defense, European Community and finance policies, the campaign has centered not on where to cut, but how much to cut public spending and taxation in one of the world's highest taxed nations.

Unemployment - at almost 10 percent - industrial stagnation and a deteriorating welfare state have provided ammunition for opposition parties, while Schluter and his government have been able to arm themselves with the lowest rate of inflation in the EC at 2.7 percent, a stable currency and budgetary equilibrium.

Election analysts have suggested that the lackluster campaign, and the lack of central issues, is likely to keep a large number of the electorate at home

Wednesday in a country where an average 85 percent of the electorate turn out at election time. A winter storm Wednesday was expected to further cut turnout.

Those who do go to the polls will be able to choose from those at present in parliament - the Socialist People's Party, the Social Democrats, the Radical Liberals, Center Democrats, Conservatives, Christian People, Liberals and Progress Party, and those fighting to rise above the 2 percent electoral barrier.

These include the Humanists, Greens, Unity, Common Course and Independents.

SEOUL, South Korea (DEC. 12) UPI - South and North Korea exchanged new proposals for rapprochement Wednesday only to confirm that they differ in their basic approaches toward a central issue - a nonaggression deal.

Opening the third round of inter-Korea prime ministers talks, South Korean

Prime Minister Kang Young-hoon presented a new draft ''Basic Agreement for Improving Relations between the two Koreas which have lived in separation for the past 45 years.

North Korean Prime Minister Yon Hyong-muk countered with a new draft ''Declaration of South-North Nonaggression, Reconciliation and Cooperation'' which combined two separate previous versions into one.

Both drafts, each comprising 10 articles, would provide that the South and the North recognize and respect each other's political and social systems, shall not interfere in internal affairs, shall peacefully resolve disputes and cease mutual slander.

They would further provide that the two sides shall build up military trust and implement phased reductions of arms, renounce the use of military force against each other, agree on nonaggression and promote economic and human exchanges and cooperation.

The two sides differed, however, on where the top priority should be placed. The South said there should first be a basic agreement to lay a framework for relations. The North wanted a nonaggression declaration outright.

''We must adopt a Basic Agreement for Improving South-North Relations first if we are to resolve the issue of nonaggression,'' Kang said.

''The adoption of the proposed Basic Agreement can be said to be a touchstone to confirm whether or not both sides are resolved to keep promises of nonaggression. We should build an effective and trustworthy nonaggression arrangement rooted in a solid framework of bettering inter-Korean relations.''

Yon said North Korea, to guarantee peace, insists on a South-North Korea nonaggression declaration, a peace agreement between the United States and North Korea, a forces reduction in Korea, and the withdrawal of nuclear weapons and U.S. forces from South Korea.

''The so-called North-South confrontation is essentially a political and military confrontation which has precisely become a source of mutual mistrust '' Yon said.

''The sharp confrontation and the deep-rooted distrust will never be removed, nor hopes for their elimination will be harbored, unless peace is guaranteed.

''We must not delay the solution of the question of peace, nor lay any hindrance upon it. We must begin by adopting the nonaggression declaration.''

North Korea has contended time and again that the 43,000 U.S. troops stationed in South Korea are armed with nuclear weapons. The United States has never confirmed such allegations.

Lim Dong-won, the Southern spokesman, held a news conference following the two-hour meeting and said there should first be a basic framework for relations which can be provided by the Basic Agreement.

''How can we make a (nonaggression) declaration abruptly while there is no exchanges of correspondece and no reunions of separated families between the two sides?'' Lim said. ''A nonaggression declaration can be discussed by a subcommittee to be formed after the Basic Agreement is signed.''

North Korean spokesman An Byong-su said the South should have ''a correct outlook'' on peace. ''The basic problem between the two Koreas is the current state of military confrontation which can be solved by a nonaggression declaration,'' he said.

Kang and Yon will get together again Thursday morning, this time behind closed doors, to continue discussions on their proposals. Yon will return to the North Friday.

(DEC. 12) UPI - A cold front pushed across the Rocky Mountains Wednesday dumping up to 10 inches of snow on the mountains of Colorado and bringing to an end a stretch of warm, clear weather, while fog covered the northern Great Plains.

The South and southern Great Plains enjoyed clear skies and unseasonably warm temperatures with Atlanta expecting highs near 70 and Washington pushing 60 degrees.

Across the country, a snow advisory was in effect for the mountains of Colorado as clouds rolled into the state from the west, causing temperatures to drop and snow to fall.

Highs in some regions were expected to be 20 degrees colder than Tuesday, while light snow fell in parts of northwest Wyoming as the front continued its movement east, dropping temperatures across the Plains.

Patchy dense fog socked in parts of the northern Great Plains from Sioux Falls S.D. to Sioux City, Iowa, with visibilities near zero reported in several areas. Wisconsin and Nebraska also were affected by the fog.

Skies cleared over the Pacific Northwest, but the chance of rain continued and a small craft advisory remained in effect for the Washington coast where heavy swells made boating dangerous.

Clouds covered southern New England where lows were in the 30s with some clearing expected later in the day, while skies were clear in New York City and highs were in the 50s.

TOKYO (DEC. 12) UPI - Japanese families welcomed home 151 hostages Wednesday with tears and flowers while government officials worked to secure the release of 51 Japanese who remained in Iraq.

Several of the returning Japanese criticized the Japanese government for not doing enough to win their release.

''The United States was doing something, but the Japanese government did nothing,'' said one of the former hostages.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - White House chief of staff John Sununu says President Bush will push for a constitutional amendment to limit the terms of members of Congress.

Sununu discussed the president's agenda Tuesday during a speech at a National Press Club luncheon.

''Certainly there ought to be a change in some of the fundamental ways we govern ourselves,'' Sununu said. ''To some extent, the budget agreement did a lot of that, but I think it is clear to most of the politicians in Washington that there is a great deal of dissatisfaction by the American public in this area.

''And the president will continue to press for reforms such as a line-item veto,'' Sununu said, adding that Bush also ''will press for reforms in campaign financing, and he will press for a term-limitation amendment that deals with the problems associated with perpetuating the life of those who are elected to govern people - the public life of those who are elected to govern people.''

Sununu said, ''The reality that incumbency breeds a very different attitude is now sensed by the public and I think if you take a look at what was intended as a structure by those that founded this country, you'll see we've moved a great distance from it.''

Sununu's comment Tuesday was the first public indication that the White House plans to work to keep the issue alive and even draw more attention to it as the president mounts his campaign for re-election.

The announcement comes as Bush is preparing his re-election campaign and while there appears to be growing sentiment around the country to limit the terms of elected officials. The proposition is strongly opposed by members of Congress, including Bush's fellow Republicans.

State lawmakers are not pleased with the idea either.

Most proponents of such a proposal are seeking to limit terms to 12 years, that is, six terms for members of the House and two terms for senators.

Bush has previously said he supports limiting lawmakers' terms, just as the terms of the president and many governors are already limited.

Vice President Dan Quayle campaigned heavily on the issue during the midterm elections.

GDANSK, POLAND (DEC. 12) UPI - President-elect Lech Walesa resigned Wednesday as chairman of the Solidarity trade union and recommended that his close associate, Bogdan Borusewicz, take over the job, but the offer was rejected.

''I submit my resignation because there is such a need,'' he told a meeting of the 100-member Solidarity National Commission.

Walesa said he would not like to impose any candidacy to take over his job because he did not want to be considered as a ''dictator.'' But he added, ''... I think it should be Bogdan Borusewicz.''

He said Borusewicz, 41, a historian by profession and union activist since 1978, helped him to be the union leader. The historian was one of the key leaders during the national workers' revolt that led to the formation of Poland's independent trade union movement.

''I have a moral duty to say who made Walesa,'' Walesa said. ''(Borusewicz) is the man who shaped me and took vital decision in 1980. ''

Borusewicz rejected the offer, two deputies in the union, Stefan Jurczak and Leszek Kaczynski, should run the affairs of the union until the new leader is elected.

Walesa was elected chairman of the union in 1981 during the first Solidarity Congress a few weeks before the imposition of martial law, which outlawed the independent union. He was re-elected at the 2nd Congress in June.

After the resignation, Walesa said that ''there is no time for talking'' and left for his presidential office.

Walesa's main office will be the Belweder palace in Warsaw where he is planning to work for a few days a week. His wife, Danuta, will not move to the capital with their eight children.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (DEC. 12) UPI - Parliament voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to apply for membership in the European Community in a decisive departure from two decades of resistance to such a move.

Sweden has resisted membership in the European common market in an effort to preserve both its political neutrality and its model welfare system.

The 349-seat Parliament voted 287 for an EC membership application and 40 against, with 22 abstentions. The four largest parties in Parliament - the ruling Social Democrats, the Conservatives, the Liberals and the Center Party, representing 90 percent of the house - agreed to support the application.

Only the smallest parties in Parliament - the Greens and the left- wing former Communists - voted against the application.

It was unclear when Sweden would forward application papers to the EC. The bill said an application preferably was to be sent to the EC during 1991. That would probably enable Sweden to join the EC in 1995.

The bill called for two referendums, in 1991 and in 1994, for the people of Sweden to give their opinions about joining the common market.

''The Swedish people will have a good opportunity to say if they wish to join the EC or not,'' Foreign Trade Minister Anita Gradin said Wednesday.

Although the parliamentary decision in principle called for the Social Democratic government of premier Ingvar Carlsson to seek membership, there remain several issues that could prevent Swedish membership in the EC.

In particular, Sweden, a member of the European Free Trade Association, is highly sensitive about suggestions that its neutral status regarding NATO and the Warsaw Pact could be brought into question after upcoming EC negotiations over political and possibly military union in the community.

The small Nordic nation of 8.5 million people also has resisted EC membership for two decades because of fears that its welfare system might be affected.

''The committee shares the government's opinion that Swedish membership of the EC with preserved neutrality is in the interest of our nation,'' the bill said. ''Only as a member (of the EC) can our country participate in and have influence on EC cooperation.''

''This decision is a giant step towards the EC,'' said Lotta Forsman, an EC expert at the Foreign Ministry's trade department. ''But there are many ifs, buts and whens left to clear up.''

Wednesday's vote, which nullified a 1988 vote against EC membership, reflected the political changes in Eastern Europe over the past year.

''The collapse of the communist dictatorships in Eastern Europe has changed the military map in Europe and consequently the basis for Sweden's neutrality '' Forsman said. ''But the political union and military defense in the EC will largely affect Sweden's position on membership.''

The Conservative and Liberal parties called for an application as soon as possible, while the Social Democratic Party and the agrarian Center Party called for careful progress and refused to set a deadline for application.

Wednesday's decision came in a year when the small Nordic nation of 8.5 million people is undergoing several changes, partly because of reduced East-West tensions, but also because of economic problems.

But on Oct. 26 Carlsson said his government urged Parliament to seek EC membership. The announcement came at the same time that the premier announced a stringent austerity package and welfare cuts.

TOKYO (DEC. 12) UPI - The Bank of Japan has reaffirmed its policy of maintaining a tight credit stance to check inflationary pressure despite signs of a slowdown in the domestic economy, which sustained expansion over the last 49 straight months.

The Economic Planning Agency challenged the central bank's monetary stance, saying it is detrimental to economic expansion.

Agency director general Hideyuki Aizawa said the present high level interest rates is cramping capital investments and may hurt economic growth.

The central bank said Tuesday its quarterly survey of the domestic economy showed that major Japanese corporations have become less confident over the future despite robust domestic demand and brisk exports, mainly to Europe and Southeast Asia.

The bank said its report was based on a survey conducted in November on 7,496 companies, including 691 major coorporations, both in manufacturing and non-manufacturing sectors.

''There were signs of fatigue in the wake of a long-term sustained expansion (of the economy),'' the report said, adding that the Japanese economy has slightly retreated from its ''high plateau.''

Major Japanese manufacturers are expected to report higher sales growth in the current fiscal year ending next March 31 but growth in their profits is expected to moderate, the report said.

An increasing number of corporations aims to raise prices of their products against the background of an acute labor shortage and rising crude oil prices caused by the Gulf crisis, boosting inflationary pressure, the report said.

The central bank reiterated its policy of maintaining the tight credit policy while watching the effects of five rounds of official discount rate hikes since early last year.

The central bank raised the key interest rate 0.75 percentage points to 6.0 percent in the previous hike in August this year.

''There is a possibility that the Japanese economy will pick up after a temporary slowdown,'' a similar pattern seen in the postwar record expansion of 57 consecutive months from 1965 to 1970, the report said.

Japan's sustained economic growth entered its 49th month in December, and most analysts predicted the current expansion will break the record.

The government said Japan's gross national product slowed to 4.1 percent in the July-September period in the wake of 5.5 percent growth in the previous quarter.

Consumer prices in the Tokyo area surged 3.9 percent in November over a year ago after posting a 3.1 percent year-on-year increase in October.

Aizawa, expressing his objection to the central bank's tight credit policy, said he would ask the central bank whether it really is worried about inflation.

The agency said the surge in the cost of living was a temporary phenomenon, while the central bank insisteded that the tight money policy is necessary to check upward pressure of prices.

New private-sector orders for machinery received by Japanese manufacturers in October dropped 7.6 percent from the previous month, posting the first month-to-month fall in four months.

The agency said the new orders, excluding those from the shipbuilding and electric power industries, totaled $7.9 billion after seasonal adjustments.

The agency said overall private sector orders, including those from the shipbuilding and electric power sectors, totaled $8.9 billion, down 2.5 percent from September.

Orders from overseas jumped 45.0 percent over the preceding month, reflecting demand for plants and tankers from the Soviet Union, Southeast Asia and the Middle East, the agency said.

CALHOUN, TENN. (DEC. 12) UPI - Rescue teams using crowbars and hammers pried open mangled wreckage Wednesday in the search for more victims of a 75-vehicle pileup that killed at least 15 people and injured 51 on a foggy interstate highway.

Citizens in surrounding communitieslined up to donate blood and offered clothing and lodging for survivors of the worst traffic accident in Tennessee history.

A team from the National Transportation Safety Board arrived to investigate the disaster, which started Tuesday morning after a bank of fog rose out of the Hiwassee River and blinded motorists on Interstate 75 in southeast Tennessee.

The Rev. Richard Rabideau was driving his Olds Delta 88 from Reese, Mich., along the fog-shrouded roadway when he heard ''a bang and then a boom and then another boom.''

''You could hear collision after collision,'' he said. ''People were screaming. It lasted 20 minutes.''

The search for victims was suspended at midnight Tuesday but resumed at daybreak and officials said the death toll could rise.

''The work crews were beyond exhaustion last night,'' said Cecil Whaley of the Tennessee Emergency Management Agency. ''But there's still about three vehicles that are fused together and they haven't gotten to the bottom of it yet. There still may be one or two dead in that wreckage.

''They're using 'Jaws of Life' and crowbars and hammers. They're trying to pick it apart rather than tear it apart,'' he said. ''This is without question the worst traffic accident in Tennessee history, both in terms of loss of life and in terms of the number of vehicles involved.''

A tractor-trailer rig jackknifed to start the chain-reaction collisions, and most of the 74 other cars and trucks ran full-speed into the fog bank, officials said. Ten trucks burst into flames and smashed vehicles stretched for nearly 3 miles.

''You couldn't see a thing, the fog was so thick.'' said Bob Turnbull of Hamilton, Ohio, whose Lincoln was dented in the wreck. ''All you knew was by what you kept hearing. Bang, bang, bang. Explosions and collisions kept ringing through the air.''

Trucker Riley McSpadden of Chicamauga, Ga., and his partner were heading to Dalton, Ga., with a load of carpet yarn. McSpadden, 31, sleeping in the cab while his partner drove, said he was awakened by cries for help.

''I jumped out and went to the truck in front of us and saw that the guy was pinned in by the steering wheel,'' he said. ''The inside of the cab was already on fire. I just told him, 'Bud, there's no way I can help you.' And I just shut the door.''

Within seconds, McSpadden said, fire engulfed the man and his truck.

McSpadden said he kept hearing crashes and explosions as more vehicles plowed into the massive wreck. He said he ran toward an embankment to get away from all the fire.

''I saw a woman who looked dead on the side of the road, and I managed to pull her away from the fire before it got too hot,'' he said.

Fog from the Hiwassee River has caused wrecks in the past on the stretch of interstate, the main route between Knoxville and Chattanooga, and the state had erected warning signs and reflectors, state Safety Department spokeswoman Sue Allison said.

''This is at least the fifth multi-car pileup we've had on this stretch of road since the interstate opened in the early 1970s,'' said Calhoun Fire Chief Gary Knight.

ATLANTIC, IOWA (DEC. 12) UPI - A member of the Iowa National Guard looking for part-time work during the holidays says he was turned down for a convenience store job because he might be called to active duty.

Richard Barnett has filed a complaint with the Department of Labor about the way his application at the Atlantic Kum & Go was handled. Barnett said after he applied for the position he was told his application would be put in the store's file because he might be called to duty.

Barnett is a member of a field artillery unit. He said because of the nature of his unit, the chances are slim he will be called up.

Barnett said he applied for a job vacated when another man left for active military duty. He said he was told that the job was open but that his application would be held on file because of the chance the also might be activated.

However, the director of operations for Kum & Go in Des Moines, John Byrne, said two openings at the store were filled by the time Barnett returned his application. He said any discussions about Barnett's membership in the National Guard occurred after he was told the jobs were filled.

Leonard Shaw of the Labor Department's Veterans Employment and Training Division in Des Moines said if Barnett was denied a job because of his National Guard status, it would be a clear violation of federal law. Shaw said the law prohibits discrimination because of membership in a National Guard or Reserve unit.

Shaw said he is awaiting an interview with Barnett before beginning his investigation of the claim.

MOSCOW (DEC. 12) UPI - A passenger claiming to have a bomb tried to hijack an Aeroflot jet to Turkey, but the crew continued the flight and no explosives were found after a safe landing, news reports said Wednesday.

The incident on the Tuesday flight from Baku, Azerbaijan, to Tbilisi, Georgia, was the latest in a series of hijacking attempts by Soviet citizens trying to leave the country.

Most of the hijackers have been unarmed, and Aeroflot crews lately have stopped complying with many of the demands because passengers are screened before boarding the plane.

In Tuesday's incident, the official Soviet news agency Tass said Baku resident Rauf Mursalov, 31, gave the crew a note shortly after takeoff threatening to blow up the plane unless it was diverted to Turkey.

Tass said the crew persuaded Mursalov they needed to land in Tbilisi ''to refuel and settle other matters connected with the flight to Turkey.'' The hijacker was arrested after landing, the news agency said.

The independent news agency Interfax said there were 24 passengers and four crew on the small Yak-40 passenger jet.

TOKYO (DEC. 12) UPI - Three Japanese oil distributors said Wednesday they will lower wholesale prices of gasoline, kerosene and light oil beginning Sunday to keep pace with declining prices of crude oil imported from the Middle East.

Idemitsu Kosan, Cosmo Oil and Mitsubishi Oil cited a fall of crude oil import prices due to an easing of Gulf tension.

They said retail prices of gasoline are expected to fall to about $1. 04 per liter from the present $1.06 while kerosene will decline to $8.08 per 18 liters from $8.52.

Other oil companies are expected to follow suit.

Japanese oil companies have agreed to a government request to revise wholesale prices of oil products according to fluctuations of import prices.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (DEC. 12) UPI - Authorities say they may not be able to determine what caused a hot-air balloon to crash, killing three experienced pilots and a passenger.

The balloon drifted across Columbus and hit a 1,000-foot tower at WBNS-TV Tuesday, sending the four occupants hurtling to their deaths.

''Why it was down that low in this areas is the big question,'' said Lt. Randy Thatcher of the Highway Patrol. ''They may have taken that secret with them. It doesn't make sense.''

The dead were identified as pilot Erik Ingwersen, 31, Columbus; Scott, Meeker, 26, Worthington; Doug Shirey, 27, Circleville; and Katherine Nemes, 20, Columbus.

Ingwersen, who had flown balloons in the Swiss Alps, Shirey and Meeker were all experienced balloon pilots.

The balloon was owned by the Bogey Inn, a popular tavern and restaurant but was operated by Ingwersen.

The National Transportation Safety Board, which is investigating the accident, said it was the worst since the NTSB began keeping balloon accident records in 1982.

Witnesses said the balloon seemed to have trouble gaining altitude, nearly striking the Riffe Center, a 36-story state office building, in the downtown area.

''He kept lighting his burner so it was obvious he was trying to gain altitude said Jim Rohdenburg who working in a downtown office building. ''It looked like he finally got up enough altitude but he got up into ''p into

When the balloon hit the tip of an antenna atop the tower, the covering nylon fabric ripped causing air to rush from the balloon and send the passenger basket to the ground.

John Rollins, an employee with the Franklin County Engineering Department and an eyewitness, said he was about 400 yards from the tower when the crash occurred.

''Right after it hit and they started to descend, one person was still looking out over the basket as it was dropping. He was leaning out over the side all the way down.''

Three crew members were found inside. Shirey was found next to the gondola.

''It was probably sudden death from the trauma of the impact,'' said Patrick Fardal, deputy Franklin County coroner.

Greg Feith, an investigator with the NTSB, said the balloon will be taken to a hangar at Port Columbus for a more complete investigation.

LONDON (DEC. 12) UPI - Sotheby's will scale down and close some of its operations in Britain and continental Europe as part of a reorganization plan to reduce administrative costs, the auction house said Wednesday.

A 1989 review by Sotheby's board in London prompted a decision to focus on fewer but better quality sales, with specific houses concentrating on specific markets, spokeswoman Fiona Ford said. In restructuring, Sotheby's hopes to expand sales in continental Europe and the Far East where most of its growth is occurring, she said. "It isn't market related, we'll have fewer sales and need fewer people to handle them," Ford said.

In an effort to lower administrative costs, locations in Chester and Sussex will be closed and a new auction house will be opened near the London transportation network, she said. These changes will result in a loss of 80 to 100 jobs.

The new auction house will absorb the sales from the two Chester and Sussex sites and sell collectors' items such as toys and wines, which are now sold at the New Bond Street building, Ford said. Bond Street will still sell antique jewelry and English silver.

Sales in Chester will end in April and the Sussex location will close within two years when the new auction house opens, Ford said. Sotheby's Geneva house will become the center for sales in high quality jewelry, European silver, Faberge and higher value watches. In the future, Sotheby's plans to conduct auctions in Paris, Berlin, and Milan, Ford said.

New offices in Hong Kong, Singapore and Taiwan and expanded premises in Tokyo will serve the growing Far Eastern market. Sales and staff will be reduced in Australia, she said.

THOKOZA, SOUTH AFRICA (DEC. 12) UPI - African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela and Zulu chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi led separate peace missions Wednesday to the violence-wracked black township of Thokoza. Buthelezi was greeted warmly but Mandela was turned away with scorn.

Buthelezi, the leader of Inkatha and the Zulu homelands of Natal province, arrived first aboard a helicopter and toured the township east of Johannesburg aboard a police armored personnel carrier, appealing to his supporters to lay down their weapons. ''We cannot fight our way into democracy or a new South Africa,'' he said.

Hundreds of Zulus carrying spears, clubs and other homemade and traditional weapons turned out to cheer Buthelezi, who was accompanied by Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok.

Mandela's delegation arrived later, also seeking to head off the black-on-black violence in which 52 people were killed Tuesday. When the group rode in aboard a bus, it was confronted by about 100 Buthelezi backers outside a migrant worker hostel.

The Zulus, some carrying homemade spears, waved Mandela's group away. One woman raised her skirt in disgust at the presence of the ANC leader and others in the crowd waved placards reading ''Away, Mandela.''

Mandela, a member of the Xhosa tribe, was unharmed and a heavy police presence helped avert a more serious confrontation.

As the vehicles in the motorcade drove off, the Zulu men and women danced and sang in glee.

Buthelezi and Mandela arranged separate visits because they have been unable to overcome their political differences and appear in public together.

Buthelezi has consistently blamed the factional fighting on the ANC.

Police said 52 people died in and around the township Tuesday in one of the bloodiest days of black factional fighting this year. At least 83 people have died in the area since Friday in an extension of urban violence that exploded in townships around Johannesburg in August between Zulus of the movement Inkatha and mainly Xhosa supporters of the ANC.

Since Mandela's release from 27 years' imprisonment, Buthelezi has called for face-to-face talks, but the ANC has so far refused, fearing such a meeting would lend Buthelezi political credibility.

The separate peace missions Wednesday followed talks in the township on Tuesday afternoon between officials of the ANC and Inkatha under police mediation. The delegates agreed to work for peace in the area and in a joint statement appealed to their followers to respect ''political tolerance.''

Hand-to-hand fighting erupted early Tuesday morning mainly between Zulus living in migrant worker hostels and Xhosas of the Phola Park squatter camp adjacent to Thokoza, then spread into the township itself.

Authorities rushed police and army reinforcements to the area and by Wednesday morning the area was calm but the signs of the conflict were everywhere. Shacks were burned, cars gutted, house windows smashed and hostels set alight.

HOUSTON (DEC. 12) UPI - Two former officers of the failed Universal Savings Association have been indicted for allegedly plotting to hide profits from the sale of property on the same day it was purchased. The indictment, revealed Tuesday, claims Martin L. Schehin and James D. Purdom Jr. tried to hide a profit of $887,000 from a 1984 land deal.

Purdom is a former Universal Savings president and Schehin a former University Savings chairman and former president of First Universal Service Corp.

The grand jury alleged Schehin lied to the government by claiming bogus deductions and excluding income on a tax return, and lied to a savings association in loan papers.

Purdom also is accused of understating his capital gains income on tax returns. A third man, former Universal Savings employee Robert A. Hargrave, failed to declare as income money he received from loans, the indictment charges.

The indictment was the second returned in an ongoing investigation by the FBI and Internal Revenue Service into transactions at Universal Savings, whose collapse is expected to cost taxpayers $162 million to cover federally insured deposits.

The indictment accuses Schehin, 49, and Purdom, 44, of using their positions to orchestrate a same-day purchase and sale of an 89-acre tract of land, also called a land flip, that earned them almost $887,000. The men allegedly used the money to pay off personal debts and make personal investments.

The indictment also claims the men tried to impede the IRS by funneling the money through Texas City Joint Venture No. 1, a corporation they owned with Hargrave, 41. It also claims the men then tried to disguise the fraudulent nature of the land flip.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael Clark said the investigation is one of those on the FBI's list of the 100 most significant savings and loan fraud cases. "These guys are definitely big fish," he said.

If convicted, Schehin could be sentenced to 23 years in prison and fined $475,000, Purdom could face up to eight years in prison and $350,000 in fines and Hargrave, three years and a $100,000 fine.

JAKARTA (DEC. 12) UPI - The Indonesian parliament Wednesday ratified the Timor Gap treaty with Australia, one year after the two countries signed an agreement to jointly develop disputed oil resources.

The smooth passage of the treaty, which passed by acclamation, came despite predictions that some members of parliament would oppose or seek to defer the agreement on the grounds it was unfair to Indonesia.

Under the treaty, ratified six months earlier by the Australian parliament, the countries have set aside for 40 years their overlapping border claims in a 136-mile area of the Timor Sea south of the island of Timor.

Speakers from three factions in the parliament - the armed forces, the ruling Golkar Party and the Moslem-backed United Development Party - all explicity endorsed the treaty.

B.N. Marbun, representing the Indonesian Democratic Party faction, repeated reservations about the agreement but said his party would not block its approval.

Marbun asked the government to "bear in mind" that the zone of cooperation set up by the treaty was in an area claimed by Indonesia as its territorial waters.

Following the ratification vote, Foreign Minister Ali Alatas told parliament that the prospects for a comprehensive agreement on the seabed boundary "remained uncertain."

Petroleum companies were anxious for the agreement to be approved to allow them to begin searching for a possible wealth of oil reserves in the Timor Gap. Geologists have predicted the Timor Gap holds up to one billion barrels of crude oil.

The dispute over control of the Timor Gap, a seabed that lies south of the Indonesian province of East Timor, developed in 1972 between Australia and Portugal, then the colonizing power of East Timor.

After Portugal pulled out of its half of the island in 1975, Indonesia annexed the region of 600,000 people in a bloody civil war and took over the claim to the seabed area.

The Timor Gap treaty, signed Dec. 11, 1989, by Indonesia and Australia, divided the seabed into three zones, with the largest and most prospective section, called Zone A, to be jointly administered by the two countries.

A ministerial meeting between the two countries to implement the treaty likely will be held in February in Indonesia. The agreement has been been criticized by Portugal, which has accused the Australian government of violating the right of East Timorese people.

Wednesday's ratification vote opened the way for Portugal to challenge the treaty in the Internationl Court of Justice on the grounds that it breaches international law.

CHEEKTOWAGA, N.Y. (DEC. 12) UPI - Police said four men, armed and wearing ski masks, made off with between $1 million and $1.5 million in the holdup of an armored truck at a shopping mall parking lot.

There were no injuries in Tuesday's heist in suburban Buffalo and no shots were fired. One guard had his gun taken by the gunmen but was not hurt.

Police said the gunmen pulled up in a van and blocked the path of the Brinks armored truck, which was parked outside Ruby Tuesday's restaurant, just after 10 a.m. when the mall opened for business.

Two guards were delivering the cash to a Key Bank branch in the mall when they were accosted by the gunmen, who reportedly were armed with a semiautomatic pistol and a machine gun.

Police said the gunmen escaped with three bags of money in a car that was later found abandoned.

''It appeared to be very well planned,'' Lt. James Morath said of the robbery.

The car and the van used in the robbery were both reported stolen last week, police said.

Police said they were taking statements from several witnesses, including mall security guards and patrons of the restaurant.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - Privately owned housing completions decreased to an annual rate of 1.25 million in October from a revised rate of 1.32 million in September, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

The government said October's rate of single-family housing completions was 908,000, down from 974,000 the month before. In buildings with five or more units, the completion rate was 313,000 while the rate for buildings with two to four units stood at 35,000.

HYANNIS, Mass. (DEC. 12) UPI - Eight beached pilot whales that volunteers helped back into the waters off Cape Cod have apparently headed out to sea, marine scientists said Wednesday.

The eight were among 56 pilot whales that beached Tuesday on Squaw Island off Hyannis Port, not far from the Kennedy compound.

Volunteers worked late into the night to save as many of the whales as possible, but 40 either died or were put to death with lethal injections to end their suffering, officials said.

Two female whales were taken to the New England Aquarium where officials planned to rehabilitate them and eventually return them to the ocean.

Marine scientists tagged nine whales with either radio transmitters or glowing beacons and pushed them back into the water, but one eventually returned and died.

''I'm not going to be particularly optimistic. I'm afraid we may hear they are back on the beach somewhere,'' Dr. Charles Mayor of the Center for Coastal Studies in Provincetown said late Tuesday night.

However, a research associate at the center, David Mattila, said Wednesday morning that the freed whales had apparently headed out to sea. He said that since there were no reports Wednesday morning of any more beachings, ''that is a good sign.''

Late Tuesday night, the eight remaining tagged whales at first just ''started to mill around together quite tightly in a circle, touching, as though they all needed physical contact,'' Mattila said.

Two of the whales then headed straight offshore, turned and came back to the rest of the milling whales, ''almost like they were two scouts.'' He said all of the whales then started heading straight offshore.

''We lost them about a mile offshore,'' he said.

Mattila said radio tracking equipment would be used Wednesday to try to find the pod.

Scientists planned to study the whales to try to determine the cause of the mysterious beachings, which have killed hundreds of whales on Cape Cod and other New England beaches in recent years.

Pilot whales are highly social, traveling in large groups called pods. Males can measure up to 25 feet in length, while females are generally 10 to 15 feet long, he said.

JAKARTA (DEC. 12) UPI - President Suharto told the nation Wednesday that despite exporting oil it is facing an energy shortage in the near future and will need to concentrate on developing nuclear power over the next two decades.

Speaking at the inauguration of two new facilities owned by the national atomic energy agency Batan in Serpong, West Java, Suharto said Indonesia may switch from being an oil exporter to an importer within ten years.

Suharto said the nation of 188 million people currently has plentiful conventional energy resources, including natural gas, coal, and oil, but he warned the situation would change as the population exceeds 200 million after the year 2000. "There seems to be no other alternative for Indonesia except to develop nuclear plants," he said.

Suharto said the government was fully aware that the development of nuclear power, as with any new technology, brought serious risks. But with proper planning and full attention to safety, he said, "Indonesia should not hesitate much longer to develop nuclear power plants to meet the nation's future needs."

Indonesia already has begun building its first nuclear power plant, a facility on the mountain of Muria on the northern coast of Central Java. The plant, with a projected capacity of 600 megawatts, is expected to begin operation by 2003. Companies from the United States, Japan, Canada, and Europe have submitted proposals to built the plant.

Suharto said nuclear energy was necessary to develop agriculture and industry and to provide much cheaper electricity for homes. Indonesia currently relies on oil and increasingly on coal to meet its rapidly growing electricity demand. The country has been a major oil and gas exporter, but officials have warned that exports may be halted in the next ten years and that Indonesia will become an oil importer.

A government official said that by 2015, residents on the island of Java alone will consume about 27,000 megawatts of electricity, while the capacity generated by water, geothermal activity, natural gas and coal will reach only about 20,000 megawatts in that year. The remaining 7,000 megawatts will have to be provided by nuclear energy, said Djali Ahimsa, the director of Batan.

Officials also predicted that despite the completion of a gas and steam power plant in East Java by 1993, the country's household and industries would face an electricity shortage in 1997.

There were screams when the verdict was read, and Richardson's mother collapsed. The judge had to clear the courtroom.

HOUSTON (DEC. 12) UPI - Coastal Corp. has scrapped plans for a $600 million pipeline that would have carried natural gas from Wyoming to oil producers and utilities in Southern California.

Coastal Chairman Oscar Wyatt Jr. said at the OPEC meetings in Vienna Tuesday that the WyCal project was abandoned because of fears of an economic slowdown and tough competition from a nearly identical pipeline proposed by a subsidiary of Tenneco Inc. "They simply outdistanced us on this one," Wyatt said.

Spokesmen at Coastal's Houston headquarters acknowledged Wednesday several recent reports of the pipeline's demise, but declined comment. Although the pipeline has not been built, Coastal spent more than $150 million on pipe, compressors and right of way needed to build the 600-mile project.

The company should lose no more than $8 million to $10 million on the scrapped venture because it can sell the pipe and other equipment or use it on another Coastal project, Wyatt said.

Coastal and Tenneco had stuck by plans for the parallel pipelines for the past year, despite analysts' claims the market for gas in California was not big enough to support both projects.

Both companies fought for approval from federal regulators, lined up customers and insisted construction would begin this month. But Tenneco's larger project and firm customer contracts apparently doomed WyCal.

"It appears that from a business standpoint, Coastal just didn't feel like it had the nod," said Carol Freedenthal, a Houston natural gas consultant. "Reality set in and they said, 'Wait a minute, we've got a problem.'"

Tenneco's Kern River pipeline is backed by a joint venture of Tenneco and the Williams Cos. of Tulsa, Okla. Although it runs a virtually identical route to WyCal, Kern River is 300 miles longer and, with a capacity of 700 million cubic feet of gas a day, is designed to carry more gas. WyCal's capacity would have been 600 million cubic feet.

"Kern River can drive a sharper pencil on on the economics of the project," said Robert Christensen, an analyst with Mabon Nugent & Co. "They won the showdown." Tenneco declined comment on how WyCal's demise could affect its project.

Many companies that had agreed to buy WyCal gas are expected to switch to Kern River. Most of the firms - including electric utilities and heavy-oil producers - had bought space on both lines, assuming only one ultimately would be built.

"Everybody was sort of hedging their bets," said Michael Day, deputy general counsel of the California Public Utility Commission. "There was not, in our view, a market for all of those projects. There had to be a shakeout."

Most pipeline industry experts viewed the WyCal-Kern River competition as the first major test of the federal government's loosened grip on an industry long sheltered from risk.

"It was inevitable that one of them would fall out," said Commissioner Jerry Langdon of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. "This at least provese that it was market discipline that finally picked a winner."

MOSCOW (DEC. 12) UPI - The Baltic republics are using the Soviet food crisis to demonstrate their independence, with Estonia turning down a share of international aid Wednesday and Lithuania talking of donating to the relief effort.

The Estonian Parliament passed a resolution saying food supplies in the republic ''are still at sufficient levels to refuse charity aid from foreign states,'' although the republic does need drugs and medical supplies.

And in Lithuania, President Vytautas Landsbergis suggested to Parliament before he left for a North American trip that they ''discuss the question of rendering food assistance to the U.S.S.R.,'' but no official proposal was made the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda said Wednesday.

Shortages blamed primarily on distribution problems and subsequent panic buying and hoarding have left store shelves barer than usual in large Soviet cities this winter, prompting billions of dollars in international relief efforts.

President Mikhail Gorbachev's office announced Tuesday that 1,272 tons of food aid already had arrived and more was coming daily, including a planeload of 7 tons of oranges and other produce from Israel that was to arrive Wednesday night.

It is embarrassing to many Soviets that their country with its huge agriculture industry and other natural resources was forced to appeal to other countries for food, and the Baltic republics seem to be using the issue to demonstrate their self-declared independence.

Komsomolskaya Pravda said Landsbergis' statement ''could certainly be regarded as propaganda,'' since Lithuania is still part of the Soviet economic system despite its March declaration of independence, but the newspaper noted that the republic probably does have enough food to ''render assistance.''

While dependent on the Soviet Union for oil and other raw materials, the Baltic states of Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia are generally more prosperous than other Soviet republics and are mostly self-sufficient for food.

Even during the Kremlin's economic blockade of Lithuania after its declaration of independence, shops in Vilnius, the republic's capital, were full, and visitors from Russia said they were amazed at the variety of goods available.

The resolution by Estonia turning down the foreign aid came in response to a request by U.S.S.R. Deputy Premier Lev Voronin, who is coordinating the relief effort for the Kremlin, which the republic set up a center for processing its share of assistance.

''Estonia declines its share of the foreign food aid rendered to the Soviet Union,'' Estonian Prime Minister Edgar Savisaar told Voronin Wednesday in a telegram quoted by the official news agency Tass.

Savisaar said Estonia would accept help with its shortages of medical supplies and the decision to turn down food aid also did not affect exchanges between specific foreign and Estonian ''sister cities.''

The Estonian Parliament's resolution thanked countries that had offered help and ''called the attention of the governments to measures which could really support and help the Estonian republic'' - an apparent reference to the perceived lack of serious international support for Baltic indepdendence from the Soviet Union.

SOFIA, BULGARIA (DEC. 12) UPI - Todor Zhivkov, the former president of Bulgaria and head of the communist party, has been indicted on charges of embezzlement, published reports said Wednesday.

Zhivkov, who was ousted by reform-minded communists in November 1989, was charged with misappropriating about $3.5 million in Bulgarian currency between 1962 and 1989. Zhivkov's aide, Milko Balev, also was charged with embezzlement.

According to the indictment, which was delivered Tuesday to Bulgaria's Supreme Court, Zhivkov bought cars in the West and resold them at a cost far less than what they were worth to family members and friends.

State funds also were used to pay nurses, rehabilitation therapists, airline stewardesses and others who attended Zhivkov personally, according to the official BTA news agency.

(DEC. 12) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein replaced his defense minister today with a hard-liner in an apparent show of strength before scheduled Iraqi U-S talks on the Gulf crisis. One Arab envoy in Cairo said the appointment of a hard-liner ''is Saddam's way of telling the Americans his military means business.''

The president of OPEC said today in Vienna that the cartel will return to its 22-and-one-half Million barrels a day production quota once the Gulf crisis is settled. NEW YORK (DEC. 12) UPI - Moody's Investors Service Inc. said Wednesday it assigned an ''A'' rating to a $1.2 billion New York City bond issue set to go on sale this week, following the action of a competitor, Standard & Poor's Corp., of assigning the municipal bonds an A-minus rating.

Moody's action was welcomed by city officials, as it meant there would be no last-minute hitch in the pricing by the city's investment bankers of the bonds and their marketing to investors. Retention of the city's relatively favorable credit rating also would hold down interest costs.

''We're very pleased,'' said Lee Jones, a spokesman for New York Mayor David Dinkins. ''We very much appreciate the affirmation of our favorable rating and we're looking forward to a successful sale.''

A Moody's spokeswoman confirmed the city's bond rating was affirmed at A, an investment-grade creditworthiness classification. On Moody's scale of ratings, an A rating puts bonds in the ''upper medium grade.''

A statement by the agency said the rating ''reflects the depth and long-term viability of the city's economic base and the expectation that the city's administration wil continue to take whatever steps are necessary to maintain fiscal balance.''

Tuesday, S&P gave a similarly positive A-minus rating to the bond issue, but left standing a ''credit watch'' designation indicating that the rating could be lowered if budget woes weren't resolved. The credit watch concerned a total of $15.1 bilion in general obligation bonds.

VAL GARDENA, ITALY (DEC. 12) UPI - Swiss ski ace Franz Heinzer Wednesday clocked the fastest time down the Saslonch course as training commenced for World Cup downhill races Friday and Saturday.

The 28-year-old Heinzer clocked one minute 54.71 seconds, 1.07 seconds quicker than Helmut Hoeflehner of Austria. Lasse Arnesen of Norway was third.

''I had a good run today and am looking forward to the race,'' said Heinzer, who was second here last year behind the now-retired Pirmin Zurbriggen. ''My form is good. I have trained well in the summer, have done a lot of ski testing and have changed my ski boots. I think all these things have probably played a role.''

Heinzer placed second behind Austrian Leonhard Stock in the Dec. 8 downhill at Val D'Isere, France.

Last year's training at Val Gardena produced serious knee injuries to four skiers, wiping them out for the season.

Wednesday's training was also not without incident. Austrian Peter Rezhak took a fall and injured his right elbow.

Many of the racers expressed dissatisfaction with their first training run.

''I didn't make a good run today,'' said Stock. ''The top part is a little rough, and slow in parts.''

One problem the skiers don't have to contend with this year is lack of snow. Enough fell in October to form a solid basis on the course and organizers report falls almost every week since.

A further training run is scheduled Thursday.

HOUSTON (DEC. 12) UPI - A Houston-area company has signed a multimillion-dollar contract to have one of its employees fly as a ''guest cosmonaut'' aboard the Soviet space station Mir.

Space Commerce Corp. President Art Dula confirmed Tuesday that he had negotiated the deal with the Soviet Union.

The company, which Dula declined to identify, will pay more than the $12 million the Tokyo Broadcasting Service was charged by the Soviets to put a reporter in space for eight days.

Dula declined to specify the exact amount the Texas firm will pay or disclose other details, such as the purpose of the flight. Such details must be released only by representatives of the company, he said.

The employee of the Houston-area firm would spend five to seven days in space near the end of 1992, Dula said. The worker would travel in a Soyuz space capsule to and from the Mir space station.

The agreement between the company and the Soviet space agency's manned program was reached last month, Dula said.

Last year, Dula's Houston-based firm brokered a $54 million deal to have the Soviet Union launch up to eight satellites for Energetics Satellite Corp. of Englewood, Colo.

(DEC. 12) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein replaced his defense minister Wednesday with a younger, hard-line war hero in an apparent show of resolve before the upcoming U.S.-Iraqi talks aimed at seeking a peaceful solution to the Persian Gulf crisis.

Meanwhile, the president of Algeria, who helped win the release of U.S. hostages in Iran, began a mediation effort between rivals Iraq and Saudi Arabia, and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze was to meet with President Bush in Washington for talks expected to focus on the standoff.

State-owned Baghdad Radio said Saddam promoted Gen. Saadi Toamma Abbas to replace Lt. Gen. Abdul Jabar Shanshal as defense minister. Shanshal, in his 70s, was demoted to his previous post of minister of state for military affairs, the broadcast said.

Shanshal was the fourth key Iraqi official to be fired since Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Arab diplomats in the Middle East said Toamma, a younger man who was serving as general inspector of the armed forces, had backed Saddam from the beginning of the 4-month-old standoff. Toamma also led the Iraqi forces that recaptured the Faw peninsula from Iranian troops in a key victory toward the end of the 1980-88 Iran-Iraq war.

''Replacing Shanshal with a hard-liner and war hero like Toamma is Saddam's way of telling the Americans his military means business,'' said one Arab envoy in Cairo who requested anonymity. ''The move is also significant because it comes before Iraq-U.S. talks on the gulf.''

Bush is sending Secretary of State James Baker to Baghdad to pursue a peaceful solution to the gulf crisis, and Saddam is sending his foreign minister, Tariq Aziz, to Washington for similar consultations. No firm dates for the meetings have been set.

Algerian President Chedli Benjedid left Jordan on a mission that will take him to Arab rivals Iraq and Saudi Arabia in an effort to mediate the crisis. Benjedid is one of the few Arab leaders still on speaking terms with both the Iraqi and Saudi leaders.

Benjedid previously has conducted successful mediation efforts involving radical Islamic states. In 1980 he helped secure the release of U.S. hostages in Iran, and in April 1988 he mediated the release of hostages aboard a Kuwaiti plane hijacked by pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem fundamentalists.

Egyptian newspapers said Benjedid was mediating between the United States and Iraq, but Bush has denied holding secret talks with Baghdad.

''Benjedid's mission is the most crucial Arab mediation effort on the gulf crisis so far,'' state-owned Cairo radio reported, adding the Algerian leader was expected to meet with both Saddam and Saudi King Fahd.

But the Kuwaiti government in exile was less optimistic. ''Unless Saddam Hussein changes his mind on the occupation of Kuwait, Benjedid's mediation efforts will be a waste of time,'' a spokesman said.

After talks in Houston with Baker on Tuesday, Shevardnadze urged an early dialogue between Iraq and the United States. Washington has accused Iraq of stalling on the dates when U.S. and Iraqi officials are due to meet.

In a related development, France threatened Wednesday to withdraw its support for a U.N. Security Council resolution chastising Israel for its conduct in the West Bank and Gaza unless the text of the document specifically calls for an international conference on Middle East peace.

Bush has insisted that Iraq's occupation of Kuwait should not be linked to the Palestinian issue, and on Tuesday he reassured visiting Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir that Washington would not settle the gulf crisis at the expense of the Jewish state.

In Tripoli, Libya, the Iraqi-registered ship Ibn Khaldoun, carrying women and children of various nationalities, sailed to the Suez Canal en route to the Persian Gulf on a mission to avert war in the region, the official Iraqi News Agency reported. Its ultimate destination is the Iraqi port city of Basra.

In previous shakeups since the invasion of Kuwait, Saddam fired his chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Nizar Khazarghi, in October in an apparent dispute over the occupation of Kuwait. Earlier, a leading member of the ruling Revolutionary Command Council, Saadoun Shaker, quit for what was officially called health reasons. Arab diplomats said he was fired for opposing Saddam's Kuwait policy.

In October Saddam fired his oil minister, Issam Abdulrahim Chelabi, for ordering the rationing of gasoline in Iraq, giving the impression that economic sanctions imposed on Baghdad over its invasion of the emirate were working.

DEARBORN, MI (DEC. 12) UPI - The president of Ford Motor Co., acknowledging the economy is already in a recession, said Wednesday company earnings will be weak in 1991 following a loss for the current quarter, and that further white-collar job cuts can be expected.

Speaking at a breakfast press briefing, Philip E. Benton Jr. said the No. 2 automaker's expected fourth quarter loss will stem from severe weakness in the North American market, compounded by poor performances of its operations in Europe, Latin America and Australia.

"It still is largely a North American problem and still will be in 1991," Benton said, saying that profits, which are at "abysmal" levels to start with, are under enormous pressure because of lower sales and higher marketing costs.

Analysts expect Ford to post its first quarterly loss since 1982 for the final quarter of 1990, with net losses ranging from about $225 million to $330 million. That compares with a $314 million profit earned during the year-ago fourth quarter.

As a result, Benton held out little hope Ford would pay its U.S. workers any profit-sharing checks for either this year or next - although he said there is little chance Ford will lower its quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share.

"There is an opportunity for Ford to make money in North America in 1991," he said, but added later that "1991 is likely to be a very difficult year" before things improve in 1992.

Benton also said that as part of its ongoing cost reduction efforts, Ford will trim its white-collar workforce by "one or two percent over the attrition rate " which is now close to five percent a year. "It will not be massive layoffs," he said, adding that cuts will be made through attrition and early retirement incentives." Ford now has about 55,000 salaried workers in the United States and Canada.

The nation's No. 2 automaker now believes total U.S. vehicle sales for 1990 will be closer to 14.2 million cars and trucks, because Iraq's invasion of Kuwait in August wiped out any expected firming of the market. Ford further expects sales to slip to about 13.5 million units next year before heading up again in 1992 and 1993.

Ford now commands about 21 percent of the U.S. car market and 29.5 percent of the light truck market. Benton declined to disclose specifc market share gains for Ford, although he said improvements are expected, despite continued gains by Japanese automakers.

Benton said the economic outlook is being clouded by the Mideast crisis, and that the outcome of the Persian Gulf situation will have a great bearing on an already soft economy and crude oil pricing. But he said that the auto industry is notorious for being unable to respond quickly to economic downturns. "We underestimate the impacts of these swings," he said, adding that "when we do hit a recision, a lot of things go wrong.

"I don't see any likelihood that the industry is going to avoid that kind of a violent swing, to what you might call a relatively modest general economic swing." On other matters, Benton said:

- Ford's aggressive production cuts for through March should be adequate, and that it is more likely units will be added that output be trimmed further.

- Ford has no plans to rid itself of its First Nationwide banking subsidiary despite poorer-than-anticipated financial results and the current savings and loan crisis.

- competitiveness will be determined at the plant level, and that Ford's recently signed national labor pact with the United Auto Workers union will do little more than retain "the good will" between Ford and its workers.

- Ford's foray into Eastern Europe will begin with establishing facilities to service used Fords coming from the West.

- establishing higher quality levels and product plans are underway at Jaguar, which was acquired by Ford late last year for about $2.5 billion.

- Ford has an aggressive electric vehcile program underway to meet stringent air quality proposals in California, but the vehicle itself is not ready.

- Ford will concentrate on sprucing up its light truck line for 1992.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - President Bush accepted Wednesday the long-rumored resignation of Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos, as critics contended his stoic stewardship failed to help Bush make good on his pledge to be the ''education president.''

Bush made the announcement at a Cabinet meeting. The resignation is effective Saturday, after Cavazos gives a commencement address to West Virginia University.

Cavazos, the first Hispanic American to be named to the Cabinet, did not give a reason for the resignation. Undersecretary Ted Sanders was named acting secretary until a successor is nominated.

Cavazos, 63, was first appointed by President Reagan in August 1988 to succeed William Bennett and was held over by Bush. Cavazos had been president of Texas Tech University when he joined the Reagan administration.

''With deep regret I accept your letter of resignation,'' Bush said in a letter. ''For more than two years, and under two presidents, you have distinguished yourself through your devotion to improving the education of our nation's children.''

But during his tenure, critics complained he did not use his office as a ''bully pulpit'' to encourage educational improvement and that student achievement actually got worse.

Even Cavazos called the most recent Nation's Report Card, using 1988 data, ''a compendium of disappointment.'' It found that most students cannot analyze what they read, cannot handle moderately challenging math problems and have a limited understanding of American history.

The resignation was not entirely unexpected, as Bush has been forced in the past year to defend Cavazos from critics who contended he was not doing enough to advance administration goals in education.

''I think what they (the White House) probably realized was that Democrats are going to attack Bush on his infamous pledge of being the education president and use it, in part, during the 1992 re-election campaign,'' said Bob Beckel, a Democratic consultant. ''Cavazos was not a very aggressive guy ... and one thing is for sure: things have gotten worse.''

Ginny Terzano, spokeswoman for the Democratic National Committee, contended the administration has gotten ''intellectually tired'' on domestic issues.

''The level of commitment on domestic and education issues is horrendous. He has failed miserably on this,'' she said. ''Just look at the statistics on children's achievement and illiteracy.''

But an administration official defended Cavazos, calling him a ''gentle persuader.''

''Lauro Cavazos is a trained scientist. He has the mind of a steel trap. He does his homework and has a remarkable ability to remember things,'' the official said, who did not want to be identified.

Keith Geiger, president of the National Education Association, the nation's largest teachers' union, said, ''If there is one area that I would give him the most credit ... it is in the whole area of bilingual education.''

Rumors of his resignation have persisted, even after Cavazos's high- profile role at Bush's ''education summit'' last year in Charlottesville, Va., where the president convened the nation's governors for a first-time discussion of national educational goals for the year 2000.

Recently, Cavazos has been a strong advocate of educational choice - allowing students to decide which school to attend. He argued that school choice would make schools compete to be the best.

But he was hit with strong criticism by teachers' unions and others, who said it effectively avoids the difficult task of improving the schools - usually located in the inner-city - where students do not want to attend.

''I feel that we wish the administration had something other than choice on its mind, because we don't think that's the answer to plummeting test scores '' said June Million, spokeswoman for the National Association of Elementary School Principals, adding she thought Cavazos was a ''friend'' of early childhood education programs.

Some suggested replacements for Cavazos - although none has been officially announced - include former New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean, now president of Drew University, and former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander.

The resignation leaves two vacancies in the Bush Cabinet. Elizabeth Dole resigned as labor secretary last month and a successor is expected to be named to her post before the end of the year.

White House chief of staff John Sununu said several names were being considered for the labor position, including a number of women.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - The television industry was urged Wednesday to take advantage of a new antitrust exemption to draft voluntary guidelines for reducing the amount of violence depicted in television programs.

''The evidence is overwhelming that TV violnce adds to violence in our society and there has to be a way to deal with that,'' said Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., a sponsor of the bill recently signed into law by President Bush.

The law grants a limited three-year exemption from antitrust laws that will permit representatives from networks, studios and other segments of the industry to get together and develop guidelines for when, how and how much much violence should be depicted on television.

The act is an outgrowth of several studies reported over recent years indicating that violence on television has an unhealthy effect on children and even some adults.

The studies show that ''repeated exposure to violence on television not only makes children more likely to commit violent acts, but desensitizes them to the effects of violence in the real world,'' Simon and Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., co-sponsor of the bill, said in a letter to broadcast officials.

Some television executives have expressed opposition to any government move to influence program content, but Simon and Glickman said they were hopeful the industry will respond to the opportunity.

''My belief is that the industry will get together and I hope can establish some standards. ... We can have healthier television fare in this country,'' Simon said at a news conference.

Glickman stressed that the guidelines are voluntary. ''This law respects First Amendment freedoms and is not coercive: Congress is not telling the television industry how to write guidelines, and there is no penalty if nothing results from joint discussions.''

Action by the industry also was urged by representatives of various family and health groups.

Dr. Francis Palumbo of the American Academy of Pediatrics said, ''Anyone who watches TV can attest that violence is rampant, that it is commonly used to resolve conflict and that violent acts are carried out by both heroes and villains.''

''This year alone, the average child in the United States will witness 1,000 muders, rapes and assaults while viewing television. Violent episodes on prime time television tripled between 1980 and 1988, '' Palumbo said.

Arlene Zielke of the national PTA said the networks ''have a public responsibility to provide better and alternative programming for children and families.''

She said the networks can no longer use the threat of antitrust violations ''as an excuse to not come together'' and agree on programming guidelines.

ATHENS, GREECE (DEC. 12) UPI - Greece will help Turkey secure membership in the European Community if Ankara shows a willingness to resolve the Cyprus problem, Foreign Minister Antonis Samaras said Wednesday.

Greece has used its veto powers to keep Turkey out of the EC for several years but that could come to a halt.

Samaras told reporters: ''We will help Turkey enter the European Community if Turkey shows willingness ... to settle the Cyprus problem.

Samaras said: ''We welcome Turkey's turn toward the West (an apparent reference to its help in the Persian Gulf crisis) and want it to continue. This orientation can constitute the prerequisite for resolving the Cyprus problem.''

The Cyprus issue, which arose from the Turkish invasion of the East

Mediterranean island in 1974, has been a major factor in strained relations with Greece. Both countries are members of NATO.

Turkey still maintains several thousand troops in northern Cyprus and Greece has recently drawn parallels between the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and Turkey's action in Cyprus.

Last month, Greek Prime Minister Constantine Mitsotakis met Turkish President Turgut Ozal in Tokyo for the coronation of Empoeror Akihito.

The two sides agreed to continue high-level meetings to resolve outstanding differences between them, including Cyrpus and the dispute over oil exploration rights in the Aegean continental shelf.

Samaras said if Ankara made a substantive goodwill gesture toward resolving the Cyprus issue, Greece would try to smooth Turkey's efforts to enter the European Community.

He indicated that Athens would lift its veto on Turkey's entry at the fourth financial protocol between Turkey and the Community.

MOSCOW (DEC. 12) UPI - A bomb exploded Wednesday near a building in Riga belonging to the Latvian Communist Party but there were no casualties, the official Tass news agency said.

It said the bomb went off at 3:15 a.m. near the entrance to the sociopolitical center of the Latvian Communist Party's central committee.

The press office of the Communist Party called the blast ''blatantly political.''

''The incident confirms the conclusion of the recent 25th Party Congress that destructive forces in the republic are still planning to do away with the Latvian Communist Party,'' Tass said.

There were no injuries and Tass gave no indication who might have set off the explosion.

The Latvian Communist Party, like the parties in the other Baltic republics, is divided. One branch is still loyal to Moscow and the other advocates an independent line.

The three Baltic republics have declared independence with Lithuania's declaration of sovereignty the most radical.

Talks, promised by Moscow with Vilnius on Lithuanian independence, have yet to begin.

BONN, GERMANY (DEC. 12) UPI - A prominent journalist for Der Spiegel, the news magazine noted for uncovering of spy scandals, is being investigated for allegedly spying for former East Germany, an official spokesman said Wednesday.

State prosecutor Lothar Kuntze confirmed a report on ARD-German television that said the reporter, Diethelm Schroeder, the magazine's expert on military and intelligence issues, was under investigation for allegedly spying on colleagues, politicians and military maneuvers to East Germany.

His reports allegedly were delivered to the East German State Security Department, known as Stasi, between 1964 and 1987, the broadcast said.

The journalist declined to be interviewed for the program, but his lawyer said ''Schroeder cannot explain the raised accusations and believes this is a mix-up. He hopes there will be quick clarification.''

Der Spiegel officials said Schroeder had requested and was granted leave of absence.

A former high-ranking Stasi official, Werner Gaertner, told ARD that Schroeder was infiltrated into West Germany as a refugee in 1964 and started to work for the daily Bild Zeitung before switching to Der Spiegel in 1976.

Schroeder was based in Bonn and later in Berlin. He covered military, defense and intelligence issues, knew high-level politicians and top generals and was the first journalist to fly in the German army's Tornado jet fighter.

Gaertner told the television station that Schroeder was very useful to the Stasi and received the bronze, silver and gold medals for his excellent service.

Schroeder was reportedly offered - and turned down - the job of West German Defense Ministry spokesman in 1982.

The report followed renewed accusations against top politicians in eastern Germany, including former East German Prime Minister and current Cabinet member Lothar de Maiziere.

Ironically, Der Spiegel refueled suspicions that de Maiziere had acted as Stasi informer. After similar claims were first made earlier this year, investigators said they found no evidence to support them.

De Maiziere became the first and last freely elected prime minister of East Germany, serving from March until Oct. 3, when the two Germanys united. He was then named minister without portfolio and elected deputy chairman of Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Christian Democratic Union.

Last week, de Maiziere asked the German authorities to reopen the investigations so that his name may be cleared.

LONDON (DEC. 12) UPI - Futures-related selling and weakness in the British pound combined to send stock prices lower in sluggish trading Wednesday on the London International Stock Exchange.

Stocks rebounded sharply in Frankfurt.

London's blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 16.7 points Tuesday, fell another 8.9 points to 2,156.9. The narrower top 30 industrial average lost 13.8 points to 1,692.2.

Volume amounted to about 504 million shares compared with 826 million shares Tuesday.

Analysts said the trading mood was cautious as institutional investors disappointed in their electricity stock allocation were hesitant to pay the big premiums required to get stock in the secondary market.

On Tuesday, trading was extended by 90 minutes as activity on the oversubscribed electricity distribution company ''discos'' swelled volume to 826 million shares.

Trading in the 12 electricity company ''disco shares'' averaged profits on the first day of around 51 percent, with many investors rushing to sell the shares oversubscribed 10.7 times.

The government received 10.2 million applications for shares from private citizens and institutions, making it the most popular privatization scheme in the British government's program.

The 12 companies which began trading included, Eastern Electricity, Manweb, Midland Electricity, Northern Electric, Norweb, Seeboard, Southern Electric, South Wales Electricity, South Western Electricity and Yorkshire Electricity.

Sterling's shaky performance against the German mark also dampened expectations of an interest rate cut before Christmas.

On the trading floor, Ransomes Sims & Jefferies, a mechanical engineering company, joined the growing list of casualties on the corporate trading front.

Ransomes fell 36 cents to $1.42 after dropping as low as $1.25 on the company's warning that profits this year will not meet market expectations.

In the property sector, Hammerson Group jumped 25 cents to $11.40 amid speculation Hong Kong Land was negotiating the acquisition of Standard Life's 20 percent stake in the property group as prelude to a full-scale bid.

In Frankfurt, stock prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange closed sharply higher in moderate trading.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which lost 12.12 points Tuesday, rebounded 24.56 points to 1,517.24.

Analysts said short-covering and strong foreign buying interest helped to boost prices higher across the board.

(DEC. 12) UPI - The annual ''Geminid'' meteor shower should be especially festive this year because a dark, moonless night is expected for the peak period of shooting stars Thursday night into Friday morning.

Skywatchers who get away from urban lights should be able to see about 75 shooting stars an hour - or about one every minute - beginning at about 7 p.m. EST and continuing through the night.

''I usually recommend that people go out, take a lawn chair, bundle up, kick back and basically look at the whole sky,'' Geoffrey Chester of the National Air & Space Museum's Albert Einstein Planetarium in Washington said Wednesday.

While no special equipment such as binoculars or telescopes are needed, observers should get as far away from urban lights as possible because they obscure viewing.

The Geminid meteor shower, which occurs between Dec. 7 and Dec. 16 and always peaks around Dec. 13 and Dec. 14, has been seen since 1838 and is one of the two most spectacular showers that occur annually.

The annual Perseid Meteors around Aug. 11 usually get more attention because the weather is more inviting.

But this year's Geminid shower may attract more attention because the moon will only be a dim crescent and will not rise until about dawn Friday, meaning the sky will be very dark.

The shower occurs when Earth passes through a band of cosmic dust left behind by a comet orbiting the sun. The remains of the comet is believed to be an asteroid called Phaethon.

The band of dust varies in density and the part of the band Earth will pass through this year is expected to be relatively dense, meaning it will produce a relatively large number of shooting stars, Chester said.

''Since about 1960 they have been slowly building up to a higher and higher rates,'' Chester said. ''The peak occurred in 1988 and they may be slowly winding down.''

The material, ''essentially like grains of sand,'' the largest of which are about the ''size of a pinhead,'' slams into the Earth's upper atmosphere at speeds of about 22 miles per second, burning up and heating a column of air that produces light, he said.

''It burns and usually what's left of it is a very fine ash, which stays in the upper atmosphere,'' he said.

The meteors are called Geminids because of an optical illusion that makes it appear that the meteors are spurting from a star called Castor, which is located in the Gemini constellation.

To observers on Earth, material appears to be heading towards them in the same way that snow appears to be heading directly at someone driving down the highway in a snowstorm at night with their high beams on, he said.

NAIROBI, KENYA (DEC. 12) UPI - About 100 Westerners flew to Kenya Wednesday to escape bloodshed and looting in the Somali capital Mogadishu, a city where gunmen now rules the streets and the government is close to total breakdown.

U.N. staff, diplomats' families and aid workers were among those arriving at Nairobi's Jomo Kenyatta airport after the U.S. embassy and other foreign organizations advised dependents to leave.

The Somali government put its security forces on full alert one week ago amid reports that rebels fighting a 9-year-old civil war were within 30 miles of the capital. It ordered President Siad Barre's Special Military Police to shoot bandits on sight.

But evacuees arriving in Nairobi said they were less worried by the Somali National Movement rebels and more concerned at the total breakdown of law and order in the city, with bands of armed men - some of them police - stealing cars and fighting tribal shooting wars through the streets.

''It seems like it's deteriorating slowly every week, every month,'' said Al Lippencott of Savannah, Ga., a World Bank contractor who had been working on port expansion at Mogadishu. ''There's quite a bit of gunfire at night. There's tribal killings. We never go out of the house at night.

''I understand that the U.N. had a special flight and flew out 100 people (Tuesday),'' Lippencott said. ''And there''s another plane ''Lippencott

Last weekend the United States advised all non-essential personnel to leave Somalia. Most aid agencies are pulling out staff, often simply because their offices have been so looted that they can no longer function. About 30 Chinese aid workers also left on the plane.

''There is no sense in the situation,'' said Dr Lauri Mikkola, a Finnish forestry officer. ''They started robbing the four-wheel-drive vehicles first outside and then in the city and then even in the daytime. Even bazookas were used and machine-guns.

''One of our experts was attacked,'' Mikkola said. ''He was just in a bakery, paying for bread. ... He was hit on the back of the head. ... They were standing over him with guns. He has a fractured skull.''

Another Finn, Tor Lindholm of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization, described how even on the Mogadishu golf course ''a bullet just went past me.''

''The Americans are not even allowed to go into town any more,'' he said.

Barre's government is essentially bankrupt, his armed forces are demoralized and, according to some reports, he has hired white mercenaries to try to stave off complete military collapse in the country's civil war. The United States, Italy and most Arab countries across the Red Sea have cut off aid.

One Western diplomat, speaking anonymously, recently said that ''Somalia, having been dragged reluctantly into the 20th century, has now left it again.''

Only British Ambassador Ian McCluney, also on the Mogadishu flight, had words of optimism. ''Things have quietened down a lot in the last week,'' he said. ''The tribal fighting has stopped and things are fairly normal.''

(DEC. 12) UPI - The latests reports from Boston tell of more than 50 people injured, some seriously, after an Amtrak passenger train from Washington, the ''Nightowl,'' struck the rear of a rush-hour commuter train at the Back Bay rail station. Firefighters had to use mechanical ''jaws of life'' to pry some of the injured from the twisted wreckage. The station quickly filled with heavy smoke, and emergency crews set about evacuating commuters inside the station even as they worked to get to those aboard the two trains. The injured have been transported to several hospitals.

Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein made another change within his government as he prepares for talks with the United States on the Persian Gulf crisis. Saddam has replaced his defense minister with what Arab diplomats call a hard-line general who has supported the Iraqi ruler throughout the four-month-old crisis.

A U-S-chartered jetliner left Baghdad yesterday with 15 foreigners aboard. NOT one was an American and the State Department says that means the evacuation of all U-S citizens who wish to get out of Iraq appears to have been completed.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze is in Washington for meetings later today with President Bush. He is also set to meet with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir , also in Washington for meetings with Bush. The Soviet-Israeli meeting will be at the highest diplomatic level ever between the two countries. Shevardnadze has suggested the idea of creating both a nuclear and chemical weapon-free Middle East once the Iraq crisis is over.

Zulu chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi and African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela arranged separate peace missions to a troubled black South African township today. Buthelezi was greeted warmly, mainly by Zulu followers of his Inkatha movement. He urged them to lay down their weapons. Factional fighting in the township claimed 52 lives yesterday. A Zulu crowd- some armed with home-made spears- turned Mandela away shortly after he arrived in the area.

Rescue workers are using crowbars, hammers and so-called ''Jaws of Life'' equipment to pry open mangled wreckage left by the worst traffic accident in Tennessee history. The 75-vehicle pile-up yesterday killed at least 15 people and injured 51 others on fog-bound Interstate 75 in southeast Tennessee. The wreckage stretched for nearly three miles along the roadway, and authorities fear more bodies will be found today.

Reputed mob boss John Gotti and three associates were arrested by F-B-I agents in the Little Italy section of New York City and were held overnight... all apparently charged in a sealed federal indictment. One New York report says Gotti was arrested on federal racketeering charges, but other, unconfirmed reports said the indictment may deal with the death of a reputed mobster five years ago.

LONDON (DEC. 12) UPI - The International Press Institute, a journalism watchdog, Wednesday asked Chinese Prime Minister Li Peng to free two imprisoned Chinese journalists.

Chen Ziming and Wang Juntao, publisher and editor of the banned ''Economic Studies Weekly,'' were arrested in the fall of 1989 in connection with last year's pro-democracy uprisings, IPI director Peter Galliner said.

The journalists have been accused of ''plotting to overthrow the government'' and ''spreading counterrevolutionary propaganda,'' charges that could carry the death sentence.

But Galliner said Chen and Wang were being prosecuted by the government for exercising their right to free expression.

He called on the government to release the journalists without further charge.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - U.S. coal production will rise for the fourth consecutive year in 1990 to total more than 1 billion tons, but output appears likely to decrease slightly in 1991, the National Coal Association said Wednesday.

The coal industry group said estimated 1990 production of bituminous, subbituminous, anthracite and lignite would reach 1.022 billion tons, about 41 million tons higher than the record 981 million dug in 1989. This 4.2 percent advance is the largest year-to-year increase since 1983-1984.

This year's production in eastern states was expected to be 624 million tons, up from 599 million in 1989. Output from western states was expected to be 398 million tons in 1990, up from 382 million tons.

Association economists said coal consumption was expected to total 1. 002 billion tons for 1990, another all-time high.

The association said record production and consumption levels in 1990 stems from increased exports and utility demand, particularly an unusually strong effort by utilities to build their stockpiles.

For 1991, the association predicted production could decrease slightly, reflecting flat or declining demand in all markets except the utility sector. Output was expected to fall 1.5 percent to 1.007 billion tons next year, which would be the first year-to-year decline since 1985.

The association said the prediction of lower 1991 production was based on the weakening U.S. economy, which is expected to dampen demand. However, the group said this outlook could change if the Mideast crisis worsens and oil prices rise, encouraging both domestic and foreign utilities to turn to coal.

The association gave this assessment of the major coal-using sectors:

-Utilities are expected to buy 774 million tons in 1990, up 8 million tons from 1989. Consumption is expected to rise 13 million tons in 1991.

-Exports are anticipated to reach 105 million tons in 1990, up 4 million tons from 1989. Shipments overseas, primarily to European customers, are expected to grow by 6 million tons in 1990, but exports to Canada will drop 2 million tons due to a decline in demand for metallurgical coal.

In 1991, exports are expected to remain flat at 105 million tons, but additional business may develop in newly opened Eastern European markets.

-Industrial coal use is expected to total 83 million tons in both 1990 and 1991, up 1 million tons from 1989.

-Metallurgical coal consumption by steel companies is expected to be 40 million tons in 1990, down 1 million tons from 1989. Due to lower steel production, demand for coking coal is expected to decline another 2 million tons in 1991 to 38 million tons.

PHILADELPHIA (DEC. 12) UPI - A 91-year-old man who shot and killed his brother and sister-in-law last year was Thursday sentenced to 10 to 20 years in prison.

Prosecutor Edward Cameron said family members wanted Michael Falcone to be kept in custody the rest of his life.

Falcone, who prosecutors say is senile, shot his 81-year-old brother and 80-year-old sister in law last December because he believed they were poisoning them.

''They (the family) do not want him to live with them because he has a tendency to hallucinate that people are trying to poison him,'' Falcone said.

In imposing sentence, the judge called the case ''pathetic.''

ARLINGTON, TX (DEC. 12) UPI - The Texas Rangers Wednesday traded third baseman Scott Coolbaugh to the San Diego Padres in exchange for catcher Mark Parent.

Parent, 29, batted .222 with three home runs and 16 RBI in a career high 65 games with San Diego last season. It was his third full year with the Padres as a backup to Benito Santiago.

He fills a hole in the Rangers' game plan for 1991 since Texas was in need of a right-handed hitting catcher to platoon with Geno Petralli.

Coolbaugh, 24, split 1990 between Texas and Oklahoma City, batting .200 with two homers and 13 RBI in 67 games with the Rangers.

GDANSK, POLAND (DEC. 12) UPI - President-elect Lech Walesa met Wednesday with a member of the American Jewish Committee and promised to fight all forms of anti-Semitism in Poland, Rabbi James Rudin said after the 40- minute meeting.

Rudin, the committee's interreligious affairs director, is traveling around Eastern Europe to form a coalition of political and religious leaders that would combat anti-Semitism that has sprung up as part of the free atmosphere following communist rule.

''The meeting was friendly and open. President Walesa very strongly renounced all possible manifestations which could take place in Poland,'' Rudin told reporters.

The American Jewish Committee, American's oldest human rights organization founded in 1906, is committed to interreligious work.

He said Walesa promised to provide an appropriate remembrance of the 1,000-year tradition of Jewry in Poland that was destroyed by the Nazis during World War II, and that there would be proper commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the 1943 Warsaw Ghetto uprising.

Rudin noted that 60 to 70 percent of American Jews trace their roots to Poland so there was special concern in the United States about the resurgence of anti-Semitism.

Some of Walesa's own comments were thought to have attracted anti- Semitic supporters in the presidential campaign that ended last weekend.

''He admitted that in his meetings with American Jews (in the United States in 1989), he made some mistakes,'' Rudin said. ''He said he hopes he will not repeat them. He also feels he has been misinterpreted.''

Rudin said the American Jewish Committee hopes to establish exchange programs and other initiatives to fight anti-Semitism. He noted on Jan. 20, a pastoral letter will be read in every Catholic Church in Poland reaffirming the declaration of Vatican II that anti-Semitism is incompatible with Catholicism.

(DEC. 12) UPI - Six states have sued the GMAC Mortgage Corp. of Detroit and several of its subsidiaries for requiring excess money to be held in homeowner mortgage escrow accounts.

The suit in the U.S. District Court in Manhattan was filed Tuesday by the attorneys general of Iowa, Minnesota, Massachusetts, New York, Texas, and California. GMAC has about 400,000 residential mortgages nationwide.

Iowa Attorney General Tom Miller said an April 1990 report showed as many as 70 percent of mortgage holders nationwide are being overcharged between $2 billion and $4 billion by the nation's mortgage lenders.

"Our report estimated that the 'excess cushion' averages about $150 per homeowner," Miller said. "That means we think lenders are holding several billion dollars that should be in the hands of their customers."

Escrow accounts are held by lenders to pay the homeowner's annual property taxes and insurance. Under federal law, lenders are allowed to hold no more than a two-month cushion of excess funds so they can make the payments even if a borrower is late paying the mortgage bill.

Miller said the attorneys general had asked Housing and Urban Development Secretary Jack Kemp to enforce the federal law that limits the amount of cushion lenders can hold in an escrow account, but inaction by HUD led to the suit.

"Changing this system will have a big impact on Iowa and the entire nation," Miller said. "The large national mortgage companies are very active in Iowa as they are all over the country. If we can urge the industry to change its practices, we'll have a fairer system for consumers and our Iowa lenders as well."

DETROIT (DEC. 12) UPI - Chrysler Corp. is considering selling a minority stake in its highly profitable financial unit to help raise money after being slapped with downgraded credit ratings this summer, a spokesman for Chrysler Financial Corp. said Wednesday.

Since ratings agencies downgraded ratings of both Chrysler and CFC, the financing arm of the nation's third largest carmaker has found it nearly impossible to raise money in the marketplace to lend to company dealers and new vehicle buyers.

"It's clear that the result of that rating action was to essentially shut us out of the capital markets," CFC Chairman John Tierney said, adding that selling a small stake in the company could reverse that.

Chrysler has enlisted New York investment firm First Boston to look for ways to solve CFC's dilemma, including possibly selling off a small portion of CFC to provide the unit with access to the market and lower its cost of borrowing money.

"All we are doing is looking at different ways on how we can get our credit rating back up," CFC spokesman Bob Heath said, adding that the talks are in a "very preliminary" stage and that it is not known how much of a stake might be sold. The sale is not intended to raise cash for Chrysler, which now has about $4 billion on hand.

Credit agencies such as Moody's Investors Service and Fitch Investors Service in New York, and Duff & Phelps in Chicago, downgraded debt ratings of Chrysler and CFC in June and July.

CFC is one of the best performing finance companies of the nation's Big Three automakers, last year accounting for 80 percent of Chrysler's overall profits. Chrysler's sagging vehicle sales have rating agencies concerned that creditors could come after CFC, should the parent company experience even further declines in business.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - A star witness in the Senate ethics committee investigation into influence-peddling allegations against the Keating Five senators testified Wednesday in a closed session before the panel under a grant of limited immunity.

The panel is considering whether Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., John Glenn, D-Ohio, John McCain, R-Ariz., and Donald Riegle, D-Mich., applied improper pressure on bank regulators to benefit indicted savings and loan operator Charles Keating Jr. and Keating's Lincoln Savings and Loan of Irvine, Calif.

James Grogan, who served as vice president of Lincoln's parent company, American Continental Corp., of Phoenix, and Keating's chief Washington lobbyist, was questioned during an executive session of the committee, said panel special counsel Robert Bennett. Bennett also said the committee was reviewing a stack of documents Grogan produced under subpoena.

Grogan, a former aide to Glenn, was expected to testify about his close dealings with all of the accused senators, arranging personal meetings with Keating and various trips for the senators and some staff members, in addition to delivering hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of campaign contributions.

Before receiving the grant of immunity that compelled him to testify, Grogan invoked his constitutional right against self-incrimination.

Committee members and lawyers involved in the case revealed neither the content of Grogan's testimony nor the subjects on which he was questioned.

None of the testimony given by Grogan under the shield of immunity can be used in any future criminal proceedings against him. Grogan currently faces no criminal charges.

Keating, who contributed $1.3 million to the senators' re-election campaigns and other pet causes, has been indicted on state securities and fraud charges in California and is the target of a continuing federal grand jury probe.

The committee has held 16 days of public testimony from witnesses in the trial-like hearings.

The executive session questioning of Grogan was expected to continue through at least Thursday. Bennett said there is ''no question he'll be a witness in public'' after the private questioning.

Grogan was one of seven Lincoln or American Continental officials, including Keating, who invoked their Fifth Amendment rights in refusing to testify during the hearings.

RIO DE JANEIRO (DEC. 12) UPI - One of two ranchers accused of killing an ecologist in 1988, triggering international concern about the future of the Amazon rain forest, confessed to the crime Wednesday as his trial was about to begin.

On the opening day of the trial that has become a symbol of the Brazilian national struggle to preserve the Amazon, Darci Alves, 26, said he shot ecologist and rubber-tapper Francisco ''Chico'' Mendes because the man accused his father and codefendant, Darly Alves da Silva, 56, of destroying the rain forest.

''It isn't the first time that Darci has confessed to the crime; he did the same thing during the police investigations but later denied it, '' a court official, who asked to remain unnamed, told United Press International in a telephone interview.

Mendes and the Alves family, all residents of Xapuri, where the trial is taking place, represented the polar ends of the struggle for rights to the Amazon forest. Mendes, the leader of the Xapuri Rubber-Tappers Union ,ccused Alves of burning the forest to clear land for farming and cattle ranching.

Mendes won a United Nations Global 500 prize in 1987 for promoting ''rational'' uses of the Amazon, like the once-booming trade of gathering natural rubber by tapping into trees indigenous to the forest, much as U.S. farmers tap maple trees for syrup.

The Alves family is the wealthiest in the town of Xapuri and owns a 7,500-acre cattle ranch. A few days before his death Dec. 22, 1988, Mendes asked for official protection and accused Alves and his son of plotting to kill him. He was struck by 40 bullets from shotgun blasts at his home.

The start of the trial was delayed two hours by torrential rains until Judge Adar Jose Longuini drew the names of the seven jury members from 21 candidates who had been sequestered.

Longuini outlined the charges to the jurors and explained the sentence will be announced Friday, after the court hears testimony from the defendants, witnesses and forensic doctors, the court official said.

One of the lawyers representing the Mendes family, Marcio Thomaz Bastos, told reporters he plans to call one witness, Maria Jose Urizzi, who will accuse Darly Alves of killing her husband during a land dispute in 1973.

Only 100 people, among them lawyers, witnesses and relatives of Mendes and the defendants, were allowed inside the 59-seat courthouse in Xapuri, a town of 4,000 inhabitants 1,845 miles northeast of Rio de Janeiro.

More than 5,000 people, including thousands of rubber-tappers and human rights and environmental activists, gathered outside the court house.

About 250 policemen under the direction of Federal Police Chief Romeu Tuma milled around to keep order and guard the courthouse.

Officials in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo set up television sets around downtown areas so citizens could learn about the trial.

NEW YORK (DEC. 12) UPI - John Gotti, the ''Teflon Don'' mob boss authorities can't seem to convict, was indicted Wednesday on charges of ordering the rubout of Gambino crime family chief Paul Castellano and three other killings.

Castellano's slaying catapulted Gotti to power in 1985.

The indictment also charged Gotti with loansharking, gambling, tax evasion and obstruction of justice.

The dapper Gotti, 50, as usual impeccably dressed, was arrested Tuesday night with three associates at a social club in Manhattan's Little Italy.

''It's the first time we've taken down the entire hierarchy of an organized crime family,'' said James Fox, head of the FBI office in New York.

Gotti was scheduled to appear in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, when federal prosecutors were expecting to ask that he be taken back to his jail cell at Metropolitan Correctional Center in Manhattan.

Andrew Maloney, U.S. attorney for the Eastern District, described his case against Gotti as ''very strong'' - despite three failures by state and federal authorities in the last five years to convict Gotti.

Gotti's attorney, Bruce Cutler, blasted the latest arrest, saying, ''They keep on arresting him and then he sits there for 10, 11, 12 months.''

Prosecutors said Gotti's alleged tax evasion was related to his claim that he worked as a salesman for both a plumbing company and for a firm that provides zippers, hangers and othes items to women's wear manufacturers.

''He's a murderer, not a folk hero,'' Maloney said. ''His real job is boss of the most powerful crime family in this country.''

The indictment charges Gotti that ordered the the slayings of ''Big Paul'' Castellano, his top lieutanant Thomas Bilotti, and another Gambino capo, Robert ''Dee Bee'' DiBernardo.

Castellano and Bilotti were slain outside a midtown Manhattan steak house Dec. 16, 1985, by six gunmen dressed in trenchcoats who raced up to his Lincoln Town Car and cut them down in a bloody fusillade.

Authorities said they believe that Gotti ordered the hit, which allowed him to take over the mob.

Maloney said Gotti was ''at the site'' of the killings, but refused to say just exactly how close.

DiBernardo allegedly was killed on Gotti's order because he failed to attend a meeting after the slaying of Frank DiCicco, known as a close associate of Castellano who allegedly had helped set up his rubout.

The two other murder charges were for the slaying of mobster Liborio Milito, as well as conspiracy to kill Gaetano Vastola, currently on bail pending appeal of some racketeering and narcotics convictions in New Jersey.

Arrested with Gotti were Thomas Gambino, Salvatore Gravano, and Frank Locasio.

Locasio, nicknamed ''Locs,'' is reputed to be the Gambino underboss. Gravano, known as ''The Bull,'' is the consiglieri, or third-ranking member of the group. Gambino is the son of Carlo Gambino, the family's late founder, and a nephew of Castellano.

Charges against Gravano include two murders, conspiracy to murder, solicitation to murder, gambling, loansharking and obstruction of justice.

In the murder of a sixth person, Gravano was charged with urging Gotti to order the slaying, but no one has been connected with the actual killing.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - In an extraordinary day of cross-town shuttle diplomacy, the United States, the Soviet Union, Israel and Angola joined Wednesday in an international effort to solve problems in the the Soviet Union the Middle East, southern Africa and strategic nuclear weapons.

The brightest chance for achieving dramatic results lay in southern Africa with the United States offering to end covert military supplies to the U.S.-backed UNITA rebel forces in Angola if a declared cease-fire does, in fact, take hold.

The political agreement, brokered by the government of Portugal, would put an end to a brutal 15-year civil war in Angola which was, at one time, a conflict-by-proxy between the Soviet Union and the United States.

After two days of meetings this week in Houston, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and Secretary of State James Baker agreed Tuesday that they would end the supplies of ''all lethal material to Angola upon entry into force of the cease-fire.

Baker said in Houston Tuesday, ''I am particularly hopeful that our common efforts on Angola will bear fruit.''

Since the Soviets have apparently shut down their military supply arrangement with the Angolan government, the announcement, in effect, means that the United States will trigger the settlement by ending its covert support for Savimbi if a cease-fire comes into effect.

To try to pin down the agreement, Baker met Angolan Foreign Minister Pedro de Castro Van Dunem, and Shevardnadze met separetly with Jonas Savimbi, president of UNITA. Savimbi has said he will join the cease- fire, but only if his party can participate in a democratically elected government once the fighting stops.

Meanwhile, the war continues, with the fighting disrupting international relief efforts to send food supplies to a wide area afflicted by drouhgt, where hundreds of thousands of Angolans are thought to be at risk of starvation.

Shevardnadze also met separately with Baker, trying to tie up some loose ends left after their talks in Houston. The two arranged to go to the White House to meet President Bush, where the Soviets were expected to press their request for some help in meeting the expected winter food shortages in Soviet cities.

The Soviet foreign minister also set up an unprecedented meeting with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, also in Washington. Shamir, who has made his nation's No. 1 priority the expansion of Jewish immigration to Israel, has expressed his gratitude to the Soviet government for allowing an estimated 150,000 Soviet Jews to emigrate in the first 11 months of this year.

As a result, Shamir pressed the U.S. government to respond to the Soviet requests for food and financial help in the coming months.

Shevardndze and Baker, who met for one hour at the State Department, failed to wrap up all the remaining issues in the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty, known as START. The remaining issues have been described as highly technical, and not major political questions, but they are complicated enough to throw into doubt the date for the planned U.S.-Soviet summit in Moscow.

Both sides had hoped to a have a treaty-signing summit in early or mid-January but the complexity of the remaining details and the time required to deal with the gulf crisis and its effects have taken up much Baker's and Shevardnadaze's working hours.

PARIS (DEC. 12) UPI - Italian Foreign Minister Gianni De Michelis said Wednesday the United States should withdraw its troops from Saudi Arabia once Iraq withdraws from Kuwait.

De Michelis also said, in an interview with Le Monde newspaper, it is necessary ''to isolate Israel'' to make the Israeli government more flexible on the Palestinian question.

''Iraq has the right to know if the threat of an attack against her will continue if it complies with the (U.N.) resolutions,'' said the Socialist Italian envoy and holder of the rotating chairmanship of the European Community.

Once Iraq releases all hostages and withdraws from Kuwait, all Western troops ''including American forces'' should pull out of Saudi Arabia, De Michelis said.

Asked how the international community should remove the threat of Iraq's huge military machine, De Michelis said, ''It will be necessary to put in place immediately political and diplomatic instruments susceptible to deal with all the problems of the region ... not only the Palestinian question.''

This is necessary ''to stop the arms race and guarantee general security,'' De Michelis told Le Monde.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 12) UPI - Palestinian youths in the Israeli-occupied West Bank stoned a convoy of vehicles Wednesday in which Defense Minister Moshe Arens was traveling, Army Radio reported.

Arens, on a tour of the West Bank, was on his way from the Allenby Bridge on the Jordanian border to Jericho when his convoy was attacked with a hail of stones, the radio said.

Arens and his entourage were unharmed but one of the cars was damaged, the radio added. Two of the three stone-throwers were arrested by security forces traveling with the minister.

Arens denied earlier reports that the army had implemented new policies to deal with stone-throwers in the occupied territories, Army Radio reported. But Arens said the military is always considering new ways of combating the violence in the 3-year-old Palestinian uprising.

''We are always, in our dealing with the violence, considering the possible steps and are taking those steps that seem to us to be effective,'' Arens said.

Israel's Chief of Staff, Lt. Gen. Dan Shomron, told Parliament's Defense and Foreign Affairs Committee on Tuesday that Israeli sharpshooters were given permission to shoot at stone-throwers in the Israeli-occupied territories.

''I hope we shall succeed in deterring the stone-throwers without the soldiers actually pursuing fleeing children and firing live ammunition as they go,'' The Jerusalem Post reported Shomron told the committee.

The military maintains its guidelines for soldiers call for opening fire only when a soldier is in real and immediate danger. The guidelines also call for warnings before firing.

The crackdown on stone-throwers apparently came in reaction to Jewish settlers' demands for increased security along roads in the Israeli- occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

MOSCOW (DEC. 12) UPI - An Austrian cosmonaut will be launched into space next Oct. 2 in a continuing series of commercial flights, the Tass news agency said Wednesday.

The announcement of the date for the Austrian flight to the Mir space station came two days after the return of a Japanese TV journalist from an eight-day mission to the station.

A British cosmonaut has been training for a flight slated for May but there have been financing problems.

The Austrian cosmonauts training for the flight are Cleens Lothaller and Franz Vienboeck. One will be chosen and the other will be the backup.

The Tokyo Broadcasting System paid at least $12 million for the mission of Toyohiro Akiyama in which he made daily television and radio broadcasts from space.

West Germany has also signed up for a flight, and the French for a series of five flights over 10 years. Spain also has expressed interest.

Vladimir Shatolov, head of cosmonaut training, has said he hopes South Korea will also commit itself to a paid flight and that Japan will sign a long-term agreement, like that signed by France, for regular joint missions with Soviet cosmonauts.

RICHMOND, VA. (DEC. 12) UPI - An attorney for Buddy Earl Justus asked Gov. L. Douglas Wilder on Wednesday to commute the condemned killer's sentence to life in prison, saying new evidence shows Justus suffers from organic brain damage.

The governor remained Justus's final hope. The convicted killer, who also remained under death sentences in Georgia and Florida, has refused to file any last-minute appeals to halt the Thursday execution.

Justus, 38, is scheduled to be put to death at 11 p.m. EST Thursday for the Oct. 3, 1978, rape and murder of Ida Mae Moses, a Montgomery County nurse who was more than 8 1/2 months pregnant at the time of the slaying.

Lawyer James Copacino told a news conference a doctor at the Medical College of Virginia determined earlier this month that Justus suffered from damage to the frontal lobe of his brain, the area responsible for stemming aggressive behavior.

The injury likely stemmed from two car accidents in his early 20s, Copacino said.

Those incidents, coupled with longterm chronic child abuse, ''turned up the volume on his aggression,'' said Copacino, a Georgetown University law professor. ''Buddy may have simply been unable to control his behavior.''

Earlier this week, the governor, who has refused to intervene in two previous executions this year, indicated he would allow the execution to proceed unless some startling new evidence emerged.

Justus, the oldest of seven children, was beaten repeatedly by his alcoholic father. At age 13, officials say he intentionally stole a pistol, bicycle and a truck so that welfare officials would remove him from his home.

For the next five years, Justus was caught up in a cycle of foster homes, institutions and short-lived returns to his home in Grundy in Southwestern Virginia.

Justus has acknowledged drugs played a role in a four-day crime spree in October 1978 that resulted in the murders of Moses, a sunglasses saleswoman in Tampa, Fla., and a housewife from Mountain Park, Ga.

If the execution were carried out, Justus would be the 11th person executed in Virginia and the 143rd in the United States since the Supreme Court lifted a ban on capital punishment in 1976.

PONTIAC, Mich. (DEC. 12) UPI - A note written by a woman before using a retired pathologist's ''suicide machine'' to take her life in a remote park was read publicly for the first time Wednesday at the doctor's preliminary hearing on a murder charge.

A first degree murder charge was lodged against Dr. Jack Kevorkian by Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Thompson in the death of Janet Adkins, 54, of Portland, Ore. last June 4.

The note was read before District Judge Gerald McNally as a defense exhibit.

''I have decided for the following reasons to take my life,'' the note said. ''This is a decision taken in a normal state of mind. I have Alzheimer's disease and do not want to let this progress any further. I don't chose to put my family or myself through the agony of this terrible disease.''

The note was signed, Janet E. Atkins, dated 6-4-90, the day she died in Groveland Oaks Park in northern Oakland County.

An attachment said, ''To whom it may concern, Janet Adkins the undersigned, wishes upon her death, that her eyes are donated for cornea transplant.''

The note was read by Michael Podeswik, an investigator for the county medical examiner who said Kevorkian handed it to him upon his arrival at the death scene. He said Kevorkian met him outside the van where Adkins was still hooked up to the machine with needles and solution in place.

Dr. Jacob Chason, a neuropathlogist with the Mayo Clinic and a semi- retired physician with Henry Ford Hospital and the Wayne State University Medical School, testified Adkins had advanced Alzheimer's disease.

He said he was invited in August to the medical examiner's office to examine brain particles from Adkins. By looking at them under a microsope, he said, he could determine the extent of the disease by plaques within the tissue found that for a woman of 54 her disease was severe.

State Police Detective David R. Haire, one of two officers summoned to the park, said Kevorkian told him Adkins wanted to commit suicide and he had assisted her. Haire said Kevorkian explained the device, which was confiscated along with his van which was towed to a State Police post where it remains.

Kevorkian's two sisters were with him, Haire said, and all of them followed him to a police post where Kevorkian wrote out a longhand account of events at the park.

Thompson said Tuesday the charge against Kevorkian is based on the ''same precedent and statute'' used by the Wayne County Prosecutor in a similar case. Prosecutor John O'Hair filed a murder charge against a man who helped his cancer-stricken and elderly wife commit suicide in a motel near Detroit Metropolitan Airport in late summer.

''Assisting in suicide is against the law. There is absolutely no doubt there is legal precedent,'' Thompson said.

MIAMI (DEC. 12) UPI - Last spring was an agonizing time for Russell Maryland.

The University of Miami defensive tackle had graduated with a degree in psychology and was trying to decide whether to turn pro by joining the supplemental draft or return to the Hurricanes for a fifth year.

With some urging from Coach Dennis Erickson, he decided he had something more to prove in college and came back for his fifth year. Apparently, he made the right move, and Wednesday he was named Lineman of the Year by United Press International.

''You have to look at it as a great accomplishment, as kind of a payoff for all the work and everything I've put into it last five years, '' Maryland said. ''It's a great honor.''

It was his second postseason award. Last week in Los Angeles, the 6- foot-2, 273-pounder from Chicago won the Outland Trophy as the nation's top lineman.

A master of moves on the defensive line, Maryland enjoyed a spectacular final. He finished with 96 tackles, 10 1/2 sacks and 19 quarterback hurries.

His finest game may have come in a 29-20 loss to Notre Dame in which he rolled up 20 tackles and a sack to only four tackles for Irish nose tackle Chris Zorich, winner of the Lombardi Trophy for defensive players.

''That was one of my best,'' Maryland said. ''Every time we go and play in South Bend I seem to do well. In the 1988 season, the first season I started, I had a good game. My parents were there, along with lot of people I knew. This year I had made up my mind to equal or top that performance and I got all those tackles and made good plays.''

Four games later, in his last game at the Orange Bowl, Maryland turned in another outstanding performance in a 33-7 victory over Syracuse. He was credited with 11 tackles and three sacks. One of the tackles came 20 yards downfield, catching a Syracuse player who had broken into the Miami secondary.

''I don't know than I've ever seen a guy dominate a football game like Russell did,'' Erickson said of the Syracuse game. ''It had to be the best performance on defense that I've ever seen.

''I believe that they just don't come any better than Russell. For the past two years he has graded out as the most consistent of all our defensive linemen.''

That is saying a lot because last year the Hurricanes had what many called the best defensive line ever with Cortez Kennedy, Greg Mark, Willis Peguese and Maryland.

Maryland likely will be drafted among the top 10 players in the NFL draft next spring.

''I think I play the run a lot better than I rush the passer,'' he said. ''I'm a gap player. I try to play my gap, and if I can I make plays from sideline to sideline. With both the run and pass rush, I have to improve. You can always improve.''

Maryland has been an asset to the Hurricanes off the field as well. For three years, he has been considered the team's conscience, repeatedly admonishing teammates that studying comes before partying.

''Russell is a blessing,'' said Shane Curry, the other starting tackle and Maryland's roommate. ''He's a good influence, keeping my head where it needs to be.''

Maryland graduated on schedule in four years and is working on a master's degree in psychology with an eye toward a Ph.D when he finishes playing professionally.

''This season I wanted to impress,'' he said. ''And graduate courses - they aren't at all easy. It added extra pressure on me.''

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (DEC. 12) UPI - Stock of Hilton Hotels Corp. soared Wednesday on a report a group of Japanese investors may make a $3.6 billion bid for the company, which had put itself on the block last year but found no buyers. Hilton stock gained $4.875 to $40.375 a share in early afternoon trading Wednesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The report, from financial columnist Dan Dorfman, said that a group of Japanese investors is being put together to make a bid of about $75 a share for the company.

Hilton, which owns, operates or franchises more than 270 hotels, announced in mid-1989 that it would consider a buyout offer. Analysts speculated that such a sale could fetch more than $120 a share, or about $6 billion, given Hilton's well-recognized name and trophy properties, such as the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, Hilton Hawaiian Village, and four Nevada casino-hotels. Some analysts warned, however, the company was highly overvalued at such a price.

The stock initially traded at well over $100 a share in anticipation of a deal. But by late last year it had fallen sharply as it became apparent there was a lack of buyers willing to meet Hilton's asking price - estimated at about $80 a share.

Hilton finally took itself off the block earlier this year after reports emerged it had turned down an offer of $76 a share partly because of concerns not enough cash was involved.

Hilton has earned $85.2 million, or $1.76 a share, on revenues of $799.2 million for the first nine months of this year. It said that earnings were being held down by the "sluggish" economy and excess capacity in some markets, citing increased competition in the Las Vegas market, where the huge Excalibur and Mirage hotels have cut into patronage of older hotels.

One trader said that the report of the new offer was difficult to believe. "The ability and willingness of banks to finance deals like this has deteriorated considerably this year," said the trader, who asked not to be named. "I don't think that anyone expects the company to improve performance significantly."

HOUSTON (DEC. 12) UPI - The surge in gasoline prices that followed Iraq's invasion of Kuwait will impact the United States' future national energy strategy, an industry consultant predicted Wednesday at an annual oil and gas conference.

"What happened in the Middle East brings home that there is a cost, a so-called social cost, to imported oil that's not reflected in the price that we all pay at the pump," said Daniel Yergin, president of Cambridge Energy Research Associates.

"Yet we as a country have been moving rapidly to increase our oil imports and are going to become a much heavier importer as the 1990s progress," Yergin told participants at the 11th annual Arthur Andersen Oil and Gas Symposium.

The actions of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein have raised gasoline prices, calculated on the value of 1990 dollars, back to the levels Americans experienced in the 1960s before the oil shocks of the 1970s, Yergin said. "I think the truth of the matter was until Aug. 2, energy was about number 73 on the list of things that the American people cared about," he said.

"I think it's plausible at this time that many people in the public will feel that there is some recurrent issue here, and that this crisis has highlighted it and that we do need to take a longer term view" about energy security.

"Few things seem to make the American people so angry as a rapid increase in the price of gasoline, which can often have major political impact ... In short, the price of gasoline is a contentious, emotional and confusing subject " Yergin said.

During a news conference, he released a statement on his research about the history of gasoline prices. The research was developed while writing his recently released book, "The Prize: The Epic Quest for Oil, Money and Power."

"In 1988, gasoline prices averaged $1.04 a gallon (in 1990 dollars) - the lowest average annual price since World War II. As recently as the first seven months of 1990, the average price was $1.05.

"In short, in the late 1980s and the first months of 1990, the American people were getting their best deal ever on gasoline in the modern period. And that lasted until Saddam Hussein broke the spell by invading Kuwait and making his bid to dominate world oil prices," Yergin said.

His analysis showed the lowest retail price in nominal dollars for gasoline was 23 cents a gallon in 1947. "But making the necessary adjustments for inflation by putting all prices since 1947 into today's (1990) dollars, we get a strikingly different view. In 1990 dollars, that 1947 gasoline price is the equivalent of $1.46 a gallon," he said.

A survey of U.S. executives at the conference showed most of them believe a peaceful Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait is the most likely outcome of the Persian Gulf crisis.

Of more than 750 executives attending the meeting, 348 completed questionnaires for the outlook survey. Fifty-three percent predict an Iraqi withdrawal without miliary action, 29 percent predicted Iraq would be removed from Kuwait by military action and five percent forecast Iraq would retain control of Kuwait.

When asked about a resolution date, 34 percent of these polled said the crisis would be resolved by March 31, while 31 percent suggested June 30 and four percent predicted a resolution by the Jan. 15 United Nations deadline.

Forty-five percent said West Texas Intermediate, the U.S. benchmark crude oil price, will be $20 to $25 a barrel after the Gulf Crisis is resolved, while 43 percent said oil prices will be in the $15 to $20 range.

CHICAGO (DEC. 12) UPI - Widespread speculation that President Bush would announce temporary trading privileges to the Soviet Union later in the day sparked a rally in the grain market Wednesday.

But after moving to session highs about midday on the Chicago Board of Trade, grain and soybean futures gave up some of the gains to profit- taking.

Bush was to meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and was expected to tell him he was lifting the trading restrictions until June 1991. The waiver would allow the administration to grant export credits to the Soviets for agricultural commodities.

Soybeans were higher and corn mostly higher in anticipation of the announcement.

Trading was choppy earlier in the day. The weakness in soybean oil limited the gains in soybeans, although firm prices for soybean meal kept a floor under the bean market.

Wheat futures were narrowly mixed in relatively light trading.

Country movement was light and basis levels were mixed.

At the close, corn was off 1/4 to up 1, soybeans up 1 1/4 to 2 3/4, wheat up 1/2 to down 1 and oats off 1/2 to 1 1/4.

(DEC. 12) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein today replaced his defense minister with a young, tough war hero and ordered air-raid shelters to be constructed in Baghdad. Saddam's apparent preparations for a military showdown in the Persian Gulf come as Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak described the developing situation as- quoting now- ''extremely serious.'' Mubarak made the remark in a speech to newly elected members of the Egyptian parliament in Cairo.

Mubarak says he will continue his efforts to gain a peaceful solution in the Gulf region to save the Iraqi people from- his word- ''destruction.'' But Mubarak also reiterated his position that Iraq must withdraw from Kuwait.

In Tokyo, Japanese families welcomed home 151 hostages from Iraq with tears and flowers. The Japanese government, meanwhile, worked to secure the release of 51 Japanese citizens who remain in Iraq. The national Japanese T-V station N-H-K reported that the 51 remaining work for Iraqi companies and must get letters from their employers to obtain exit visas.

Doctors at seven Boston hospitals are working on at least 168 people brought in this morning following a rush-hour train accident at the Back Bay railroad station. Amtrak officials say the ''Nightowl'' passenger run from Washington, D-C, derailed on a curve as it headed into the station. It then struck the side of a commuter train just as passengers were about to get off to head to work. Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn, who viewed the scene, called the situation ''horrendous.'' He said it was difficult to even identify the wreckage as being trains.

Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos handed in a surprise resignation this morning, leaving the Bush administration with two Cabinet positions to fill. The 63-year-old Cavazos is the first Hispanic American named to the Cabinet. He is leaving on very short notice. The resignation is effective this Saturday. NO reason is given. His departure still leaves the president looking for a replacement for Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole, who resigned last month.

Published reports in Sofia say former Bulgarian president and communist party chief Todor Zhivkov has been indicted on embezzlement charges. The reports say Zhivkov and his top aide were named in the embezzlement indictments, which charge the former president with misappropriating about three-point-five-Million dollars in Bulgarian currency between 1962 and 1989. One of the charges is that Zhivkov bought cars in the West and re-sold them below cost to family members and friends.

The government now says it arrested reputed New York mob boss John Gotti last night on charges stemming from the five-year-old killing of Gambino crime family chief Paul Castellano. The sealed indictment also named three Gotti associates who were arrested with him and taken to jail. A 50-year-old father of five and grandfather of two, Gotti is known as ''the Teflon Don'' because he has been able to avoid conviction. The dapper Gotti, dressed impeccably as usual, was arrested at a social club in the Little Italy section of Manhattan last night.

BELGRADE (DEC. 12) UPI - Thousands of people gathered at Albania's main university Wednesday for the launch of the first opposition party permitted by the regime of what had been Europe's last bastion of orthodox Marxism, participants said.

In one of the most far-reaching developments in the 45-year history of the Stalanist-style police state of 3.2 million people, the Democratic Party adopted a program to transform Albania into a Western- style free-market democracy, participants said in telephone interviews.

''We celebrated a victory,'' said Gramoz Pashko, a key organizer of the new party and economics professor at Enver Hoxha University, named after the founder of the isolationist communist state.

Pashko said state television later broadcast the entire meeting, which was held one day after Marxist President Ramez Alia opened the door to the formation of independent parties following three days of student demonstrations.

Thousands of students, workers and intellectuals gathered at the ''Student City'' housing area of the university for the rally at which organizers issued a proclamation of their goals.

''Our objective is the preservation, independence, integrity and sovereignty of the Albanian state, the strengthening of national unity, the implementation of the wishes and aspirations of the whole Albanian people for democratic pluralism and a modern society,'' said the document, which was read to United Press International by an associate of Pashko.

The party pledged itself to ''the peaceful, democratic road, pluralistic and tolerant dialogue'' in fighting for ''basic human rights, the rights of the free man, the right to free thought and its expression, freedom of assembly and unity, of guaranteed freedom of the press, religion and the practice of religion.''

It called for transforming the moribund Marxist-style planned economy into a free-market system with mixed forms of ownership.

Pashko, one of Albania's leading experts on Western-style economics, said the party would run candidates in Feb. 10 elections for the national Parliament that were called by Alia under a program of limited reforms, but originally restricted to officially sanctioned organizations.

The decision to legalize independent parties was made Monday at a meeting of the central committee of the ruling Albanian Party of Labor, during which five of 11 Politburo members and two candidate members were sacked, according to the official Albanian Telegraphic Agency.

Diplomatic sources said the seven resisted the reforms initiated earlier this year amid rising popular discontent fueled by the fall of Marxist regimes in Eastern Europe in 1989 and an economy ruined by 45 years of self-imposed isolation.

A wider shakeup was expected before the end of the week, the diplomatic sources said.

A communique carried by ATA said: ''The plenum was of the opinion that the creation of independent political organizations according to the laws in force is to the good of the future of the further democratization of the life of the country and pluralism.''

Diplomatic sources said Alia only gave permission to students to form a political organization and that a decision to allow others would have to be approved by the rubber-stamp legislature, which was expected before the end of the week.

''The president only accepted that the students would have their own organization,'' said one source. ''For the time being, we cannot say that other parties will be allowed to participate'' in the parliamentary polls.

Diplomatic sources said Alia met with student leaders Monday to inform them of his decision.

The sources and Albanian witnesses said several hundred students celebrated in central Tirana, which is normally patrolled by scores of Sigurimi secret police. The revelers were watched by thousands of citizens out for the mass stroll taken nightly by Tirana residents.

The developments began Saturday night, when more than 1,500 students staged a protest to demand better housing conditions and more democracy, witnesses and diplomatic sources said.

A delegation presented the demands to Alia at a 1 p.m. Sunday meeting and police dispersed the demonstrators about an hour later, the witnesses said. A student said there were no injuries or arrests.

Witnesses said that on Sunday, virtually all of the university's 7,000 students boycotted classes, which were scheduled to make up for several days of holidays last week. They staged a march, shouted slogans, including ''We want truth and democracy,'' and demanded another meeting with Alia.

On Monday, they said, police prevented students from marching to the city center.

WILMINGTON, DE (DEC. 12) UPI - A chancery court judge Wednesday awarded $71.20 a share to the former owners of one million shares of Shell Oil Co. stock in a lawsuit filed over the 1985 merger of Shell Oil into Royal Dutch Shell.

Vice Chancellor Maurice Hartnett also awarded the former shareholders ten percent interest from June 1985, bringing the total value to $110 a share, or about $110 million. Houston-based Shell Oil declined comment until it could review Hartnett's action.

The 1,000 former shareholders, many of them former and current Shell employees opted to seek court appraisal of the value of their stock rather than accept the $60 a share offered by Royal Dutch Shell in the cash-out merger.

Under Delaware law, petitioners may seek appraisal from a court as to the fair value of their stock, rather than taking an offered cash-out price. "Our contention all along was that Shell's foreign-owned parent paid far too little in the 1985 cash-out merger," said Lee Godfrey of Houston, attorney for the former shareholders.

Shell's outside directors in 1984 informed shareholders the lower end of a fair price for the company's stock was about $75 a share, Godfrey said. An expert testifying for Shell during the trial valued the stock at $55 a share. "This was a David and Goliath victory for these shareholders," said Ken McNeil also representing the former stockholders.

Hartnett earlier found Royal Dutch Shell erred in failing to disclose $1 billion in oil and natural gas reserves in materials distributed to shareholders before the merger.

In November, Hartnett awarded $2 a share to the former owners of 15 million shares of Shell Oil stock who did not seek court appraisal. The largest single shareholder in that group was the Shell pension fund.

Royal Dutch owned 70 percent of Shell stock in 1984 when it decided to purchase the remaining 30 percent. The Shell board rejected the Royal Dutch offer, prompting Royal Dutch to initiate a hostile takeover during which it acquired 94 percent of Shell's stock for $58 a share. Under Delaware law at that time, Royal Dutch was entitled to take over Shell once it acquired 90 percent of the stock.

In June 1985, shareholders were given the option of taking $60 a share or seeking court appraisal of stock value.

CHICAGO (DEC. 12) UPI - The recession is on, but the economy should revive by the middle of next year if there is no prolonged war in the Persian Gulf, a panel of three leading economists said Wednesday. The predictions came at the 29th annual Business Forecast Luncheon sponsored by the University of Chicago's Graduate School of Business.

Walter Fackler, professor of business economics, Michael Mussa, professor of international business and a former economic adviser to President Reagan, and Joel Stern, managing partner of New York consulting firm Stern Stewart & Co., presented their assessements of the business climate for the coming year.

All three agreed the nation's economy is in recession - but said they expect a rebound by the third quarter of 1991, barring Middle East complications. But for the year, they generally agreed the GNP would be flat or slightly lower in 1991. They also predicted declines in both business spending and corporate profits, and an increase in the 1991 unemployment rate to between 6.2 percent and 6.6 percent.

"If Iraq adopts the course of prudence and reason and withdraws from Kuwait during the next few weeks, then relatively vigorous economic growth, combined with much lower inflation, would resume early in 1991," Mussa said. "Assuming events in the Persian Gulf do not get out of hand, the recession of 1990-91 will be the mildest of the postwar era," he said.

But a prolonged Mideast war, accompanied by dramatic oil price increases, would "exacerbate the recession and add fuel to the fires of inflation," he warned.

Fackler said soaring oil prices would "cause serious damage to private investment and durable consumption. The shock would be worsened by an attempt by the Federal Reserve to counteract the oil shock."

Stern predicted a strong year for Wall Street - provided there is no prolonged conflict in the Persian Gulf. "I see the Dow soaring above 2800 in 1991 and interest rates coming down one full percentage point on 30-year government bonds and T-bills to 6 1/4 percent, the prime to nine percent," he said.

Stern pointed to housing starts, real estate prices and the financial services sector as "craters of disaster," and noted that northeast and southwest regions of the country have been particularly hard hit.

All three forecasters agreed government spending will rise next year - fueled by expenditures in the Mideast - and criticized both the administration and Congress for their handling of the budget.

Fackler accused Congress of "blithering about the rich and poor when they should be worried about our high cost of capital, investment, and jobs." "In a very real sense they are thrashing the poor and middle class while pretending to soak the rich," he said.

(DEC. 12) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein replaced his defense minister with a tough young war hero and ordered air shelters built in Baghdad in apparent preparation for a military showdown in the Persian Gulf, while Egypt's President Hosni Mubarak said the situation is worsening.

''The situation is extremely serious,'' Mubarak told newly elected lawmakers in Cairo after the latest developments in Iraq. He said he would continue trying to save the Iraqi people from ''destruction'' but is sticking to his position that Iraq must withdraw from Kuwait.

One Arab diplomat in Cairo interpreted the replacement of the defense minister as a show of strength from Saddam, who the same day ordered landlords in Baghdad to set up air-raid shelters in case of attack.

The state-owned radio, monitored in Cairo, said Saddam dismissed veteran Gen. Abdul Jabar Shanshal and replaced him with a hero of the 1980-88 war against Iran.

The envoy said the new defense minister, Gen. Saadi Toamma Abbas, is considered a supporter of Saddam's hard-line stance. The dismissal was the second important shake-up of the Iraqi military in as many months.

Toamma is both a soldier and a military engineer credited with building the solid defenses around the southern Iraqi port of Basra that dashed Iran's hopes of defeating Iraq in the Persian Gulf War. He has also built formidable, three-line defenses around southern Iraq.

In other developments, Algerian President Chedli Benjedid arrived in Baghdad Wednesday from Jordan and held a first round of talks with Saddam. His mission will also take him to Saudi Arabia in what some observers saw as launching ''the most crucial Arab mediation effort on the gulf crisis so far.''

The Algerian mediation effort came as Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze prepared to meet President Bush in Washington for talks on the gulf crisis.

After talks in Houston with Secretary of State James Baker, Shevardnadze called for early dialogue between Iraq and the United States. The United States has accused Iraq of stalling on the dates when U.S. and Iraqi officials are due to meet.

In a related development, France Wednesday threatened to withdraw support for a U.N. Security Council resolution censoring Israel for its conduct in the occupied Arab territories unless the text of the motion specifically calls for an international conference on Middle East peace.

Bush insists that Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion and occupation of Kuwait should not be linked to Israel-Palestinian issues and Tuesday reassured Israeli Premier Yitzhak Shamir that the gulf crisis would not be settled at the expense of the Jewish state.

The stand of France, one of the five permanent members of the Security Council was apparently designed to prevent U.S. wavering, under Israeli pressure, over the text of the Soviet and Arab-backed motion.

Also Wednesday, U.S. officials were quoted as saying contributions to offset the cost of Operation Desert Shield have fallen short of what was promised and singled out wealthy Japan and Germany as having paid only one fifth of what they promised. Despite their heavy reliance on Mideast oil, neither Japan nor Germany have sent troops to the gulf.

The U.S. officials praised the exiled Kuwaiti royal family for paying its $2.5 billion contribution on time.

The call for funds came as Saddam made clear he meant business with the appointment of a new defense minister.

Toamma commanded the Iraqi forces that recaptured the Faw peninsula from Iran during the last stages of the 1980-88 Iran-Iraq war. The Arab diplomat described Toamma as a hard-liner and a tough military careerist who since the invasion of Kuwait has backed Saddam's unyielding stance.

''Replacing Shanshal with a hard-liner and war hero like Toamma is Saddam's way of telling the Americans his military means business,'' one Arab envoy in Cairo told United Press International.

The civil defense department has asked all landlords to construct air raid shelters in their buildings and exercises are being held in case the Iraqi capital has to be evacuated, Iraqi newspapers said.

Algeria's Benjedid is one of the few Arab leaders still on speaking terms with both the Iraqi and Saudi leaders.

Cairo Radio said Benjedid is qualified to play a ''leading role in averting
''rting

Egyptian newspapapers reported that Benjedid was mediating between the United States and Iraq but Bush has denied holding secret talks with Baghdad.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - A top Education Department official said Wednesday scholarships for minorities may be violating civil rights laws, placing in jeopardy scholarships at historically black colleges and other institutions.

Michael Willians, assistant education secretary for civil rights, who was confirmed in June 1990, said at a news conference departmental compliance decisions made as recently as 1989 were wrong, based on the agency's theory.

''The Office of Civil Rights has not had a sound, consistent, legally reasonable position and policy to deal with this issue,'' Williams said as he announced a national enforcement strategy.

Scholarships designated for a particular race or minority violate civil rights laws if the university receives federal financial aid, Williams said.

''The determining factor is race,'' said Williams. ''If it is a scholarship for white students, that raises a Title 6 (anti- discrimination) concern.

''If it is a scholarship for Italian-Catholics ... that is race- exclusive. Scholarships for minorities - that is race-exclusive. Anything where a determining factor is race is a race-exclusive scholarship,'' Williams said.

But, he said, ''It's very possible that scholarships at historically black colleges and universities could survive.''

Then, responding to a question, he said, ''Yes,'' the reverse could be true and they could be declared illegal.

Based on his interpretation of civil rights laws, Williams said previous decisions concluding that a university's scholarship was in compliance with the law may be revisited.

One decision ripe for review, he said, is a 1989 ruling that a University of Colorado scholarship for minorities was in compliance with the law.

''Our position would be that that was a wrong decision,'' Williams said.

The American Council on Education, which represents higher-education institutions, said the department's interpretation ''would be a giant step backwards'' in efforts to improve the educational opportunities for minorities.

''If this were allowed to stand, it would reverse over a decade of legal precedent and advice received by institutions from that same office. That advice said that scholarships, if correctly administered, are allowed under the law,'' said David Merkowitz, the council's spokesman.

''We will be advising institutions of higher education to continue their current practices,'' he said.

And a United Negro College Fund official said the policy may raise legal questions.

''Many minority students would have a problem attending college, and of course as an organization that represents minority schools, we have a problem with that,'' said Michelle Stent, vice president of governmental affairs for the United Negro College Fund, whose scholarships are privately funded, but its recipient schools receive federal aid.

''We're going to look at his statement very carefully,'' said Stent. ''We may have serious legal problems with it.''

The issue comes after a protracted debate, and eventual presidential veto, of the Civil Rights Act of 1990. President Bush argued the bill would have established racial quotas.

Williams said his announcement has nothing to do with the bill's controversy. But Merkowitz said it ''may be politically motivated,'' noting that incoming Republican National Committee Chairman William Bennett has said the issue of racial quotas will be used in 1992 elections. Bennett was education secretary under President Reagan.

Williams said key aspects of the civil rights enforcement strategy include giving ''new emphasis and very high priority'' to monitoring corrective-action plans and increasing staff resources.

The strategy will place special emphasis in 1991 on providing equal education opportunities for national-origin minorities, Indian students with limited English proficiency and pregnant students; segregation; racial harassment; special programs for homeless children with handicaps; and sex discrimination in athletic programs.

DHAKA, BANGLADESH (DEC. 12) UPI - Ousted President Hussein Mohammed Ershad was arrested Wednesday amid reports that the interim goverment was planning to create a tribunal to investigate alleged corruption and abuse of power during his eight years in office.

A gloomy-looking Ershad waved at onlookers as police escorted him from his home in the military garrison of the capital, witnesses said. He was shifted to a residence in the luxurious Gulshan diplomatic enclave, where he was being held under house arrest, police said.

Authorities threw up a tough security cordon at the capital's international airport to prevent former Cabinet ministers and other officials of the Ershad government from fleeing the country, police sources said.

Fakhruddin Ahmed, a foreign affairs adviser in the interim government, said authorities also had cancelled the passports of Ershad, his wife, Raushan, and other officials of the ousted government to prevent them from leaving Bangladesh.

He said the government already had begun investigating several officials in the previous government and hoped to recover millions of dollars they allegedly stole and stashed in foreign banks.

Hundreds of students from Jehangirnagar University, many of whom had helped to galvanize the opposition against Ershad, celebrated the ousted leader's arrest by dousing passers-by with colored powder - a traditional practice during times of festival.

Ershad's resignation Dec. 6 capped two months of protest against his government. The president, hoping to smother the movement, declared emergency rule Nov. 27, banning political activity, suspending constitutional rights and imposing censorship.

The move backfired, triggering mass protests in which opposition political parties were joined by lawyers, teachers and bureaucrats demanding Ershad's ouster.

When he resigned, Ershad handed over power to Chief Justice Shahabuddin Ahmed, who had been named by the opposition as its candidate to oversee a transition government.

Ahmed's government initially said it had no authority to investigate the allegations of corruption and abuse against Ershad's regime, but it had come under increasing pressure to open an inquiry.

Mass protests demanding an investigation prompted the government to authorize police raids on the homes of former Cabinet ministers. Police arrested former Home Minister Mahmudul Hasan during one of the raids.

Newspaper reports in the capital Wednesday said the government was expected to create a special tribunal to investigate the allegations of corruption and abuse of power during Ershad's eight years in power.

In Washington, a spokesman for the State Department said the United States urges ''all parties in Bangladesh, out of respect for the rule of law, to reject violence and to begin the work of rebuilding Bangladesh in a spirit of dialogue and cooperation.''

''We urge full respect for due process of law and political impartiality in the pursuit of any charges brought against former President Ershad or other former government officials,'' said the spokesman, Richard Boucher.

The ousted president took power during a 1982 military coup and later won a 5-year term as president in an election that was largely boycotted by the opposition.

On Tuesday, two opposition leaders, Begum Khaleda Zia of the Bangladesh Nationalist Party and Sheikh Hasina Wazed of the Awami League, reversed their earlier position that Ershad should be expelled from the country. Instead, they said, he should be tried.

''Ershad, who trampled people's will and seized power, must be arrested and tried to seal any future recurrence of such incidents,'' Khaleda told her party during a meeting Tuesday.

''There is no dearth of evidence of his crimes,'' she said. She also demanded that the government freeze the bank accounts and assets of Ershad, his ministers and other officials from the previous administration.

The country's transitional leader, who is required to hold elections within 90 days, met with militry leaders for the first time Tuesday and appealed for their support in conducting a free and fair ballot.

Ahmed also approved a tough law that would impose a life term on anyone caught illegally possessing weapons. The move apparently was an attempt to cut down on the large number of weapons in private hands to ensure the conduct of an orderly election.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - Ten states produced more than half of the nation's 1988 emissions of carbon dioxide - the chief "greenhouse" gas - and utilities were the biggest contributors, a consumer group reported Wednesday.

The non-profit consumer organization Citizen Action released the study in an attempt to influence the upcoming debate in Congress over future energy needs. The Bush administration is expected to weigh in early next year with its proposed National Energy Strategy.

"As the world's largest carbon dioxide polluter, as the world's largest oil consuming nation and the world's biggest debtor, we have a responsibility to take action" to reduce carbon dioxide emissions, said Edwin Rothschild, Citizen Action's energy policy director.

Carbon dioxide is released when power plants, factories and motor vehicles burn oil, natural gas and coal. Increasing concentrations of the gas in the atmosphere are believed to contribute to the so-called greenhouse effect, which many scientists fear may cause a warming trend.

Studies have predicted that failure to lower carbon dioxide emissions over the next 40 years could result in radical climate changes that could raise sea levels, disrupt agriculture and destroy forests.

"Most scientists agree that huge increases in man-made carbon dioxide pose a dire threat to the world's climate and economy," Rothschild said.

The report found power plants produced 36.2 percent of the nation's carbon dioxide, cars accounted for 29.2 percent and factories 22.9 percent. Homes and commercial operations accounted for the remaining 11.4 percent.

The top ten carbon dioxide emission producing states were Texas, California, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Louisiana, New York, Michigan, and Florida.

Total carbon dioxide emissions increased 14.2 percent, to 4.81 billion tons, between 1983 and 1988, with the largest increase of 15.8 percent in tailpipe emissions, according the report, "The Heat is On: America's Carbon Dioxide Polluters." Some of the heaviest concentrations of carbon dioxide emissions come from electric utility companies in the South and Midwest, the report said.

Ten utilities accounted for 23 percent of the total carbon dioxide emissions generated by the electric utility sector. The largest single emitter was the federally owned Tennessee Valley Authority, followed by Georgia Power Co.,

Texas Utilities Electric Co., Detroit Edison Co., Pennsylvania Electric Co., Houston Lighting & Power Co., Duke Power Co. in North Carolina, Pacific Power & Light Co., Alabama Power Co. and Ohio Power Co.

The report recommended federal policy changes that would lower carbon dioxide emissions. It proposed that the government institute market incentives to double the energy efficiency of new cars and light trucks.

The report also suggested providing an increasing portion of federal gasoline taxes for mass transit; requiring states to reduce tailpipe emissions by 20 percent in ten years; boosting federal grants for energy efficient housing; and funding more research for the development of renewable energy technologies.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - A series of medium-size tremors may presage big quakes in California, and the telltale pattern might be used to improve predictions of when devastating quakes will strike, scientists said Wednesday.

A historical study of tremor activity surrounding the major San Francisco Bay quakes of 1868, 1906 and 1989 found the number of moderate earthquakes increased rapidly on nearby faults one to two decades before the serious quakes.

After the 1868 and 1906 quakes struck, seismic activity dropped off sharply and there were relatively few quakes for periods of 13 years and 42 years respectively, the study showed.

A comparable pattern was also found for the sizeable 1948 shock on the San Andreas fault in southern California.

''The similarity of the sequences in time and space before the three large earthquakes in the Bay area and the 1948 shock argues that these patterns are not fortuitous (chance) occurences, but instead are causally related to those four main shocks,'' Lynn Sykes and Steven Jaume wrote in their study published in the journal Nature.

In addition, the researchers noted high rates of moderate earthquakes occurred in the decades before the large 1703 and 1923 quakes in Japan and the 1957 temblor in the central Aleutian Islands.

Sykes and Jaume, seismologists at Columbia University's Lamont- Doherty Geological Observatory in Palisades, N.Y., conceded the number of examples in their California study is small.

However, the scientists said they were optimistic the pattern would lead to more precise predictions of earthquakes measuring more than 6.8 on the Richter scale in the Bay area. The information may be able to narrow quake forecasts within a few years to a decade, instead of the 20- to 30-year periods typical of current forecasts.

Based on their findings, Sykes and Jaume said there appears to be a low probability of large quakes on the San Andreas fault north of San Francisco or the northern half of the Hayward fault in the next few decades.

However, the seismologists said it is too soon to tell if people living along the San Andreas fault south of San Francisco and the southern Hayward fault can breathe easy.

That is because it is not known how well the 1989 Loma Prieta quake, which measured 7.1 on the Richter scale and occurred along the San Andreas fault in the Santa Cruz mountains south of San Francisco, fits into the newly discovered cycle. That temblor killed more than 60 people and caused more than $8 billion in damage.

If the number of smaller quakes near that section of the fault drops off during the next several years, Sykes and Jaume predict a large shock unlikely to occur for at least a decade and the threat would reappear only when seismic activity approaches the level just before the 1989 temblor.

But if the number of smaller quakes remains high, the scientists said a second large quake should be expected soon.

''Damage and loss of life in a shock of about magnitude 7 along either the Hayward fault or along the peninsular section of the San Andreas fault (the area between San Francisco and the 1989 rupture), when it occurs, are likely to be considerably larger than those in the 1989 quake. Hence, although such an event would be smaller than the 1906 earthquake, it is likely to be called 'the big one,''' the researchers said.

In an accompanying editorial, Allan Lindh, chief of seismology at the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park, Calif., said in principle, the pattern set forth by the Columbia researchers may help improve earthquake predictions.

''I think if we could narrow it (prediction of a big quake) down to 10 years with some confidnce it would have enormous implications,'' Lindh said in a telephone interview.

Bridges and highway overpasses could be bolstered and substandard buildings could be closed or reinforced during the decade preceding a major shock, he said. In northern California, most homes are bolted to their foundations and would be relatively safe during such a quake, he added.

However, Lindh noted the quest for such patterns has been going on since the early 1920s and some other researchers have not found a build- up of seismic activity preceding large quakes.

Such cycles appear to be ''dependent in part on geological and tectonic differences between regions, and it is unlikely that any simple universal pattern will be found,'' Lindh wrote.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - The whiz kid has a heart.

At 14, Mary Rodas rides a limousine to work and already has a thick file of newspaper clips on her feats as the youngest vice president of a New York toy company. But Wednesday, Rodas showed she's also a wunderkind with Christmas spirit.

Concerned about lagging donations for the Marine Corp Rsserve's annual Toys for Tots campaign, Rodas showed up at the Anacostia Naval Station to donate 2,000 toys from Catco, a grown-up New York toy company where she is a bona fide vice president.

''I was born on Christmas Day so I understand kids want toys on Christmas,'' Rodas said. ''It would be really sad not to have any toys.''

The typical teen braces and genuine manner aside, Rodas isn't Catco's vice president of marketing for nothing. The savvy young executive arrived with Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., in tow and, after charming reporters, laid down the glove to her competitors in a stroke of marketing genius.

Heads up, Hasbro. Meet the offer, Mattel. If little Mary Rodas can kick in thousands of toys for less fortunate children at Christmas, where are the big guys?

After all, Rodas told Conyers and a gathering of young Marines, ''This is Christmas time. They should not just think about business, even if business isn't so good.''

Telling Rodas, ''I'm beginning to get the Christmas spirit because of you,'' Conyers was first to accept the challenge. The Michigan congressman said he would be calling toy companies in the Detroit area, aiming for 5,000 toys for the local Toy for Tots campaign.

The Marine coordinators of the toy drive were grateful. Presenting Rodas with a certificate for ''coming to the aid of these needy children,'' Sgt. Anthony Small said, ''With the donations you've given us, and more, I think we'll make our goal,'' which is to collect 100,000 toys.

Rodas, whose mother died over a year ago, is the only child of Miguel Rodas, an El Salvadoran immigrant who is superintendent of the Union City, N.J., apartment building where they live.

She entered the toy business as an unofficial consultant at the age of 4 when her father took her along to the apartment of inventor Donald Spector.

Spector was trying to lay some tile. Mary told him what he was doing wrong. Intrigued by her brightness, Spector asked her opinion of some of his inventions and a partnership was born.

As founder of Catco, Spector later officially hired Rodas, who travels to the company's Manhattan offices by Limousine several days a week to critique toy projects and promotions.

Her biggest coup came a few years ago when Spector created ''Balzac,'' an indestructible balloon-style toy that Spector wrapped in a plain white sack.

''Boring,'' said Rodas. ''Put some neon colors on it.''

He did and Balzac sold millions.

Spector said many toy companies hire kid panels to judge new toys, but Rodas gets in on development.

''It's particularly hard to do focus sessions with children because they just say they like it or they don't, whereas Mary can tell you why and how to make it better.''

Rodas learned the metropolitan Washington area Toys for Tots campaign was 96 percent short of its 100,000-toy goal from Frieda Weems, a public relations consultant who had worked with her once before.

Weems said she decided to call Rodas after she saw a news broadcast that included word of the flagging Marine campaign, as well as a story about El Salvadoran families looking at a lean Christmas after the failure of an uninsured local bank where many had deposited their savings.

''I know how she is,'' Weems said. ''She wants all kids to be happy. Since I knew Mary, I knew that she would want to help.''

Before visiting the Marines, Rodas stopped at a Washington apartment building where many of the El Salvadoran families live and gave out several hundred toys.

''My father is from El Salvador,'' she explained. ''I wanted them to have toys.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - Edward Teller, the atomic scientist whose work led to the discovery of the hydrogen bomb, received the highest decoration from his native Hungary Wednesday in a ceremony in which he declared, ''I feel like a born-again Hungarian.''

Teller, 82, received the Hungarian Republic's Order of the Banner With Rubies, a decoration presented by Hungarian Ambassador Peter Zwack.

The award was especially significant for Teller, a key man in the Manhattan Project that developed the atomic bomb for the United States during World War II. Teller had been villified as a Cold War warrior by the Hungarian communist government, which was ousted following multi- party elections this year.

Teller, who has been called ''the father of the H-bomb,'' left Hungary more than six decades ago and did not return for a visit until recently.

Teller, who resides in California, has been a hard-line advocate of the expansion of nuclear power. He has been critical of U.S. foreign policies, including arms treaties, which he felt were undermining American security.

''I learned from (fellow Hungarian-born nuclear scientist) Leo Szilard never to say what's expected,'' Teller said at the Hungarian Embassy following presentation of the decoration. ''I feel like a born- again Hungarian.''

He then raised his glass to ''a wonderful and peaceful future of Hungary.''

Zwack hailed the ''new Hungarian-American friendship.''

Teller had to overcome a number of difficult obstacles to reach his goal of producing a thermonuclear bomb. His belief in the need of such a destructive weapon was so great that he advocated giving the hydrogen bomb priority over the atomic bomb, even though the latter was needed to trigger the former.

Zwack, a Hungarian native who gave up his U.S. citizenship to represent the newly democratic Hungary, paid tribute to Teller, who is is advising Hungary on the peaceful use of nuclear energy.

NEW YORK (DEC. 12) UPI - Currency market players sold dollars to take profits ahead of a possible Bundesbank interest rate hike and likely negative U.S. economic data, weakening the U.S. unit across the board Wednesday.

Foreign exchange traders acted on the outside possibility the German central bank's policy committee, sitting Thursday, might hike its key Lombard interest rate to dampen inflation from eastern German reconstruction.

More bad news was expected on the U.S. economic front Thursday when November retail sales figures were released. Economists called for a plunge of some 0.8 percent, against October's meager 0.1 percent gain.

Late in the New York session, the dollar was trading at 1.4755 German marks, down from 1.4780 marks Tuesday, and 131.55 Japanes yen, off from 132.25. The British pound gained, costing $1.9500 vs. $1.9375.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2615 Swiss francs, down from 1.2650; 5.0100 French francs, off from 5.0200; and 1,112 Italian lire, off from 1,113.75.

"What you'll see in general in the next two or three trading days is a market changing its focus, away from the Gulf situation and towards economic data," said assistant vice president Carl Amendola of the Bayerische Hypotheken-und Wechsel Bank. "It'll weigh heavily on the dollar," he said.

Albert Soria, currency manager and first vice president for Kansallis Osake Pankki, a Finnish-based investment bank, confirmed the dollar "is vulnerable here to further losses, depending on econmic figures."

Amendola said the dollar is pressured by expectations the Federal Reserve is about cut its discount interest rate, thereby "making a very strong statement to the market that (it is) officially calling rates lower."

In Europe, the dollar closed mostly higher on feeling the Deutsche Bundesbank would not raise the Lombard rate on short-term loans to banks. Follow-up buying on talk of a Group of Seven dollar parlay helped, too.

Trading was quiet as the market awaited the latest British unemployment and inflation figures, due out later this week. "There's very little volume," a dealer at Salomon Brothers in London said. "It's definitely a pre-Christmas mood."

In Frankfurt, the dollar closed slightly higher at 1.4758 marks vs. 1.4757 at Tuesday's close. It rose in Zurich to 1.2635 Swiss francs vs. 1.2605. In London, the pound gained, ending at $1.9440 vs. $1.9405.

The dollar closed higher in Paris and Brussels, at 5.0070 French francs vs.

5.0060, and at 30.66 Belgian francs vs. 30.46. The dollar declined in Milan, closing at 1,110.75 Italian lire against 1,111.80.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar rose slightly against the yen in quiet trading, closing at 131.88 yen compared with 131.75 yen.

The dollar advanced in the morning session in reaction to its overnight gain in New York and London. But afternoon selling by insurance firms stripped away most of the dollar's earlier gains, said dealers.

Trading was dull as most market players were reluctant to move any direction amid expectations of a cut in U.S. and Japanese interest rate, said Masahiro Yanagida, a senior currency manager at Sanwa Bank.

In Zurich, gold closed lower at $371.50 an ounce against $372.50 Tuesday. In London, the precious metal fell to $371.25 from 371.50.

Silver in Zurich closed lower at $4.05 an ounce vs. $4.15 and also was lower in London at $4.04 an ounce compared with $4.07.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $372 an ounce, ahead from $371.25 Tuesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled gold contracts at $372.70 an ounce, up from $372 the previous day.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.045 an ounce, down from $4.09. Comex silver ended trading at $4.026 an ounce, a decline from $4.067.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - President Bush, praising the strengthening superpower relationship, announced Wednesday he will ease trade restrictions to extend up to $1 billion in agriculture credits to offset critical food shortages in the Soviet Union.

At the close of a meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, Bush said he would waive the 1974 Jackson-Vanik Act that bars preferential credit guarantees to the Soviet Union as long as it maintains restrictive emigration policies on Soviet Jews and other minorities.

And saying he was ''pleased with the great progress'' made between the superpowers on achieving a strategic arms treaty, Bush announced that he hoped to meet with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in Moscow Feb. 11-13.

Secretary of State James Baker, answering questions after Bush's statement, said some work remained to be done before a START treaty is completed but added, ''We would hope the treaty would be ready for signature'' in time for the summit meeting.

As for the economic aid, which Bush said would also include expanded assistance from the World Bank and International Monetary Fund, medical supplies and technical assistance for food distribtuion and market reform, Baker said the available credit guarantees would be in the range of $500 million to $1 billion.

While denying that the U.S. move was a ''payback'' of sorts for Soviet backing in the gulf crisis, Shevardnadze hailed the U.S. move. ''We are indeed in a very new phase of our relations ... a new kind of cooperation between our countries,'' he said.

Bush, however, continued to tie the short-term U.S. assistance to continued Soviet reform, both economically and politically.

''We discussed frankly, the relationship of economic change to the critical task of democratization,'' Bush told reporters in the Rose Garden, ''and I reiterated our strong deisre to see both political and economic reform continue.''

During a picture-taking session earlier in the Oval Office, Bush praised Shevardnadze for the Soviet Union's continuing support in the Persian Gulf standoff.

Also revealing that he had received a letter from Gorbachev that was ''very interesting and very informative,'' Bush asked the foreign minister to tell Gorbachev that he felt ''very good about the relationship'' between the superpowers.

''I hope you'll convey to him the same message that we are very proud to be standing should to shoulder with him in the gulf,'' Bush said.

The president foreshadowed the change in policy earlier in the day at a special ceremony in the Executive Office Building to mark the first day of Hanukkah celebrating ancient Jewish liberation from persecution, saying the Soviets had permitted 150,000 of its citizens to emigrate this year. Most of them, at the rate of 1,000 to 2,000 a day, have moved to Israel.

Earlier, Bush had specified that there would be no easing up of the Jackson-Vanik restriction until the Soviet Parliament codified the more liberal emigration policies.

Credits for the Soviet central government have been pushed by the American agricultural community. Jewish leaders of some 32 organizations expressed their support last week at congressional hearings.

The immigration flow into Israel and its warming relations with the Soviet Union apparently were the impetus for their change of heart.

Before flying on to Turkey, Shevardnadze arranged to meet in the early evening with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who is on a private visit to Washington. The meeting would represent the highest diplomatic contact between the Soviet Union and Israel in history.

The Soviets have been purchasing chicken parts and wheat flour and the United States exported 20.3 million metric tons of corn and wheat to the Soviet Union in 1990. The Soviet Union is the largest market for U.S. grain.

Officials said that representatives of the Soviet Republic of Russia had been shopping around in Washington recently for agriculture credits, but they stressed Bush was dealing with the central government.

High on the agenda of Bush's talks with Shevardnadze was the Persian Gulf crisis possibly a date for Bush's forthcoming trip to Moscow to sign a Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty.

Shevardnadze spoke to reporters after ending two days of talks with Baker in Houston during which the diplomats failed to reach a final agreement on a pact to dramatically reduce the nuclear arsenals of the two superpowers.

On the gulf crisis, the Soviet foreign minister said Moscow supports the proposal for high-level meetings between Iraq and the United States, but would not involve its forces in the crisis now in its fourth month.

''This option is not under consideration and I can tell you this option is non-existant,'' Shevardnadze said. ''It is also my strong hope that U.S. troops will not see action.''

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (DEC. 12) UPI - Salvadoran rebels warned Wednesday they will shoot down combat planes the United States plans to ship to El Salvador because the U.S. decision to speed up military aid was wrong.

''The U.S. government made the wrong decision in speeding up part of the $48.1 million to reinforce the air force's most criminal weapon,'' rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN, said in a statement.

Last week, the State Department decided to speed delivery of part of the $48.1 million alloted for military aid to El Salvador in 1991. The money is to pay for repalcing aircraft shot down by rebel missiles and gunfire.

The rebels have shot down or damaged four Huey UH-1H helicopters and three combat planes since launching their recent offensive Nov. 20.

Military analysts said the attacks on aircraft cut into what has been the army's greatest advantage over guerrilla forces in the 10-year-old civil war.

''The new warplanes will be shot down and the low-flying tactic will continue to meet our curtain of fire from our anti-aircraft weapons,'' the rebels said.

The guerrillas said their forces are ready to attack the air force, ''which has destroyed, massacred and terrorized the civilian population. ''

Instense fighting between the FMLN and the armed forces continued Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday, leaving at least 46 dead and 50 wounded, a military spokesman said.

Rebels occupied the highway from San Salvador to Santa Ana province, burning a bus and seeting up roadblocks with vehicles.

Combat in the eastern province of San Miguel left 30 rebels and 11 soldiers dead and eight soldiers wounded, the spokesman said.

The 3rd infantry brigade headquarters in San Miguel was attacked by rebels, killing two soldiers and wounding 11 others.

In the northern province of Chalatenango and the eastern provinces of Usulutan and San Vincente heavy fighting between rebels and the army left three soldiers dead and 23 wounded. Three rebels died and eight were wounded in the fighting, the armed forces said.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (DEC. 12) UPI - Early returns in Denmark's general elections Wednesday suggest the opposition Social Democratic Party will be the main victor but it seemed unlikely Conservative Premier Poul Schluter would be unseated.

After 2.8 percent of the votes were counted, the Social Democrats and their leader Svend Auken stood to win 13 seats in the 179-seat Parliament for 68 overall.

The projection said the Conservative Party of Premier Poul Schluter, hitherto at the head of a three-party minority coalition, stood to drop five seats to 30.

The second main victor appeared to be the Liberal Party of Foreign Minister Uffe Ellemann-Jensen, which was projected to gain six seats for a total of 28. The junior coalition Radical Liberals were expected to lose 3 of their 10 seats.

But the projection for the overall bloc count in Denmark's multi- factional Parliament showed a slim majority remaining for non-socialist parties, in all probability allowing Schluter to continue as premier, albeit relying more heavily on extragovernmental support.

The main losers appeared to be the Socialist People's Party, which the projections said would drop eight of its 24 seats.

With socialist and non-socialist blocs traditionally bound to each other in forming a government, the projection showed 84 seats to the socialists and 95 to the non-socialist bloc.

Denmark has 4 million eligible voters out of a population of 5.4 million. Official returns showed an 82.9 percent turnout.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - Following is a text of President Bush's statement Wednesday in extending agricultural credit guarantees to the Soviet Union.

''I just had an opportunity to discuss with Foreign Minister Shevardnadze a number of issues of U.S.-Soviet relations, including our cooperation in the gulf. And I'm pleased with the great progress that we've made on START and hopeful that we'll be ready to sign a treaty at a summit in Moscow on Feb. 11-13. We also talked at length about the situation in the Soviet Union and the response of the United States to the economic problems there. I asked Minister Shevardnadze to convey to President Gorbachev my desire to respond both to the short-term needs of the Soviet Union and to contribute to fundamental economic reform - long supported (by the United States) perestroika - and (we'll) continue to. We discussed frankly the relationship of economic change in the Soviet Union to the critical task of democratization and I reiterated our strong desire to see both political and economic reform continue because they are inextricably linked. I outlined specific and important steps that we're willing to take in support of reform and after consulting closely with Secretary Yeutter, as well as Secretarys Brady and Baker, I told Minister Shevardnadze that I am prepared to respond to a Soviet request for credit guarantees for purchase of agricultural commodities through a waiver of the Jackson-Vanik amendment. While I've taken this step, I still look forward to passage of Soviet immigration law codifying the generally excellent practices of the past year. And this then will permit us to make further progress toward the normalization of the U.S.-Soviet economic relationship. In addition, we've proposed to the Soviets a special technical assistance project to help in assessing their food distribution problem and to support market reforms.

I will also authorize a joint public-private medical assistance effort to help the Soviet Union cope with immediate shortages of pharmaceuticals and basic medical supplies.

In the longer term, only steps the Soviet Union itself takes can assure the economic health there. Thus to promote fundamental economic reform, I will propose that the World Bank and the IMF work out with the Soviet Union a special association to give the USSR access to the considerable financial and economic expertise of those institutions. I have asked Secretary of the Treasury Nick Brady, as U.S. governor of both institutions, to pursue this proposal with them and also with our other allies, who, I'm sure, will be in accord.

As I have said before, I want perestroika to succeed. The Soviet Union is facing tough times, difficult times, but I believe that this is a good reason to act now to help the Soviet Union stay the course of democratization and to undertake market reforms. The United States has an interest in the Soviet Union able to play a role as a full and prosperous member of the international community of states and I am hopeful that these initiatives will further that goal.

PANAMA CITY, Panama (DEC. 12) UPI - Panamanian union leaders criticized the government Wednesday for firing about 400 public workers who took part in a general strike last week.

The Dec. 5 strike occurred the same day a failed police uprising that was put down by about 500 U.S. troops.

President Guillermo Endara accused labor leaders last week of involvement in the uprising, which he called a coup attempt.

Isaac Rodriguez, who was fired as head of the state electric company union following the strike, said workers plan to march Thursday to the National Assembly to protest the government reaction.

Lawmakers are debating an emergency bill ''to protect the democracy and constitutional order'' that would allow the government to fire public workers who took part in the strike.

Though the bill has yet to become law, union leaders say about 400 public employees - most of whom worked for the state-owned electric company - have already been fired.

The Endara government has been at odds with unions since it was installed during the U.S. invasion last December. In an effort to streamline the government, thousands of public workers have been laid off in the past 12 months.

Unions say about 15,000 of 140,000 government workers have been laid off, while the government says less than 9,000 public employees have lost their jobs.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (DEC. 12) UPI - Ten opposition parties Wednesday forged a coalition for the second round of elections for the Serbian Assembly in a bid to deny a legislative majority to the Communist Party of the re-elected president of Yugoslavia's largest republic.

The announcement of the establishment of the United Opposition of Serbia came shortly after the Republic Election Commission said final results of Sunday's first-round contests for the 250-seat legislature gave the communists 87 seats.

Nine seats were captured by parties of ethnic Hungarians and Moslems that have almost no political influence in Serbia.

Runoffs will be held Dec. 23 for 154 seats for which no candidates won a majority in the first round, the commission said. About 300 contenders qualified for the second round by gaining at least 7 percent of Sunday's ballots.

Candidates of President Slobodan Milosevic's Socialist Party of Serbia, the name adopted by the communists as an image-changing strategy, were the top vote-getters in 150 races, the commission said.

The nationalist Serbian Renewal Movement of author Vuk Draskovic, a former Marxist, secured 80 second-round slots followed by 16 for the right-center Democratic Party. The remaining candidates were independents and members of minor parties, the commission said.

Opposition leaders read to a packed news conference a declaration establishing their coalition and urging their supporters to unify behind whatever candidate is running against a communist contender in the runoffs.

''We are calling on our members and voters ... to support any candidate of the United Opposition of Serbia no matter his political or party affiliation,'' said the declaration.

The opposition claimed that it would prevent the communists from winning the 126 seats required for a working majority and pledged that if it won control of the legislature, it would call ''real, free elections'' for next fall.

''Until then, our deputies will restrain themselves from anything that would threaten our parliamentary solidarity,'' the declaration said.

The Election Commission, confirming Milosevic's victory, said the 49- year-old Marxist and former bank executive won 65 percent of the 5 million ballots cast.

He was followed by Draskovic, with 16 percent and Ivan Djuric, a history professor and candidate of the Alliance of Reformist Forces, with 5 percent. The remaining votes were split among 29 other candidates.

Meanwhile, election officials in Montenegro said they could not reveal final results from the republic's presidential and legislative races until Thursday because they were still awaiting returns from isolated villages.

Serbia and Montenegro are the last of Yugoslavia's six republics to hold multi-party elections following the breakup in January of the national communist organization that ran the multi-ethnic country of 23 million since 1945.

Nationalists ousted Marxists in the other four republics.

The collective eight-man Yugoslav state presidency, in a statement after a meeting in Belgrade, issued a new call for a ''public, argumentative and open dialogue'' among the republics to resolve a dispute over the future shape of Yugoslavia.

Nationalist governments in Croatia and Slovenia, fearing domination by majority Serbs, are threatening secession unless the country becomes a confederation of independent states. Milosevic wants to maintain the federation and has refused to negotiate.

The dispute has fueled fears of civil war.

NEW YORK (DEC. 12) UPI - The stock market staged a late rally Wednesday in active trading when rumblings of peace overtures by an Iraqi envoy sent oil prices down and the Dow industrials up sharply.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 10.64 Tuesday, surged 36.14 to close at 2622.28. Some analysts said the rally picked up steam when the Dow pushed through the 2610 mark.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 1.83 to 180.25 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 3.75 to 330.19. The price of an average share added 32 cents.

Advances outpaced declines 958-589 among the 2,039 NYSE issues traded. Big Board volume totaled 182,270,000 shares compared with the 145,330,000 traded Tuesday.

Stocks were higher all session, but in late trading, a drop in oil prices of more than $1 a barrel sent stocks rallying as did a report that Iraq's envoy to Belgium had laid down terms for Baghdad's pullout from Kuwait. January crude oil futures closed down $1.06 to $25.35 a barrel. The report pushed the Dow to double its gains in the last hour of trading.

"That Belgium story got people optimistic on the Mideast," said James Andrews, first vice president in charge of institutional trading at Janney Montgomery Scott Inc. in Philadelphia. "It kicked off some short-covering in number of Dow stocks," he said. "The way they printed it wasn't very clear so it scared a few short sellers."

Among those few Dow stocks were Merck and International Business Machines, which as two of the more expensive stocks in the average, are heavily weighted in it. "Buying in those stocks moved the average quite a bit, making the market look better than it actually was," Andrews said.

He noted that the rally was not especially broad-based, with advances leading by slightly more than three to two. "It's not like it was a runaway or anything," he said. "It was really a big move in the Dow caused by some heavily weighted stocks." Andrews also said year-end buying by institutions looking to dress up portfolios helped fuel the rally in the Dow.

On the trading floor, Occidental Petroleum was the most active issue, down 1 7/8 to 20 3/4 after rallying Tuesday on the news of the death of its chairman, Armand Hammer, the renowned industrialist. Some analysts say the company may cut its high dividend.

Ford Motor followed, off 3/8 to 27 1/4. Hilton Hotels was third, surging 6 5/8 to 42 1/8 amid reports that efforts were being made to assemble a group, including Japanese investors, to bid about $75 a share for the company. Philip Morris was next, up 5/8 to 51 3/8.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T rose 7/8 to 30 3/8. Reports say the company may begin a proxy fight to oust NCR's board if NCR formally rejects AT&T's $90-a-share buyout bid at its board meeting Thursday.

NCR was down 3/8 to 89 1/2 when trading was halted late in the day. The company was again quoted saying it received expressions of interest from other companies but was not interested in "a white knight, or one of any other color."

As for the other Dow stocks, IBM jumped 1 5/8 to 114 1/2, Coca-Cola rose 1 1/2 to 48 3/8, and Merck gained 2 1/4 to 88 1/2.

Elsewhere, CBS jumped 5 5/8 to 175 1/2 after saying it plans to buy back up to 10,526,000 of its shares at $190 each for a possible total cost of about $2 billion. And Laurence A. Tisch was elected CBS chairman, succeeding William S. Paley, who died Oct. 26.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 219,281,310 shares, compared with the 181,787,340 traded in the previous session.

Prices rose in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index gained 1.60 to close at 307.71. Advances led declines 304-265 among the 841 issues traded. The price of an average share rose 5 cents. Composite volume totaled 14,901,290 shares vs. 14,016,530 traded Tuesday. Amdahl led the Amex issues, up 3/4 to 14 1/4.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index rose 2.43 to close at 370.42.

TORONTO (DEC. 12) UPI - Failed Polish presidential candidate Stanislaw Tyminski returned to Canada Wednesday but vowed to return to Poland to face slander charges and form an underground political party.

Tyminski, who lost Sunday's run-off presidential election to Lech Walesa, told a throng of reporters: ''Yes, I'm going back on (Jan.) 5.''

Tyminski was given permission to leave Poland Tuesday after posting $100,000 bail to ensure his return. He faces charges he insulted former Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki during the presidential campaign.

Tyminski and wife, Graziella, were met at Toronto's International Airport by several dozen reporters. Tyminski answered questions in a hoarse voice and appeared tired.

When asked if he would form an opposition party in Poland, Tyminski told United Press International: ''Yes, underground.'' Tyminski repeated his response a second time but declined to elaborate.

Tyminski indicated that since his election loss, his supporters are ''losing their jobs and getting beaten up.''

When asked who was behind the harassment, Tyminski would only say ''the opposition.'' When asked if that meant Solidarity supporters, he said: ''No, the opposition.''

Tyminski, a businessman with Canadian and Peruvian passports, returned to Poland earlier this year to run for president.

On Nov. 17, in the southern mountain resort of Zakopane, he accused Mazowiecki of ''betrayal of the nation,'' saying Mazowiecki's economic program resulted in a 40 percent drop in the standard of living in 14 months.

After the election he was summoned to the prosecutor's office in Warsaw. Following a four-hour hearing Tuesday, the prosecutor allowed him to go ahead with his plans to fly to Toronto.

''I paid $100,000 and three people guaranteed my return by Jan. 5.'' Tyminski said the three people included two senators and Andrzej Zoll, chairman of the election commission.

''I cannot change the words I used,'' said Tyminski, ''I expect to stand trial.''

He showed a summons that referred to a portion of the Polish Penal Code that makes it illegal to slander the nation or insult authority, such as the prime minister or president.

Conviction carries a prison sentence of six months to eight years.

Tyminski said the code dates back to the Stalinist period and noted that such a charge would be inadmissible in the West.

''What I said about Mr. Mazowiecki would be normal in Western democracies,'' he said.

Tyminski outpolled Mazowiecki in the six-way race in the first round of the elections Nov. 25 but lost to Solidarity leader Walesa in the runoff Sunday with only 25 percent of the vote.

In another election debate, Tyminski outraged Walesa by claiming to have incriminating documents in a briefcase on the former Solidarity leader. When asked about the documents in Toronto, Tyminski said: ''Go ask Mr. Walesa about the briefcase.''

When prodded, Tyminski indicated Walesa didn't give him permission to open the briefcase and he became agitated when repeatedly asked about the briefcase.

Tyminski returned to Poland after 21 years and his appearance on the political scene attracted millions of people disappointed with Mazowiecki's reforms. Despite the immense popularity of Walesa, Tyminski drew 4 million votes on Sunday.

Tyminski insisted, ''I didn't lose the election.''

Before jumping into a dark colored van with his wife, Tyminski said: ''I want to see my children. Tomorrow is another day.''

NEW YORK (DEC. 12) UPI - Tuberculosis rates apparently made a record climb in 1990, with the largest nationwide increase since national reporting on the disease began, the American Lung Association said Wednesday.

''We're seeing large increases in TB in many cities and states,'' said ALA president Dr. John Allen.

The infectious lung disease, long associated with 19th century poverty and considered nearly vanquished in recent decades, has been on the rise since 1985, and preliminary reports show its greatest increase in 1990.

TB incidence through November 1990 increased by eight percent and appeared headed for a 10 percent increase for the year by the end of December, the ALA said, citing new figures from the federal Centers for Disease Control.

The CDC said that 20,792 cases had been reported for 1990 by Nov. 24, compared to 19,205 by the same time in 1989.

''Unfortunately, although many Americans think TB has been eliminated, it is making a strong resurgence in this country, and remains at disasterous levels in most developing countries,'' Allen said.

Experts blame much of the rise on the immune depressing affects of the human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, which is linked to AIDS.

TB increases were especially marked among blacks and Hispanics, young adults and children under age 5, Allen said.

Among children, although complete data for the year was not yet available, increases were expected to surpass last year's rise, when 810 were diagnosed with TB compared to 687 in the previous year, said John Seggerson, CDC chief of the preventive services branch for the CDC's Division of Tuberculosis Control.

Making matters worse, Congress only allocated $9.1 million - one fourth of the amount originally authorized - for intensified TB prevention and control efforts, the ALA said.

Federal health officials and researchers from the American Thoracic society, the ALA's medical arm, were meeting in Washington, D.C. this week to discuss improving diagnosis and treatment methods.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - The government Wednesday toughened testing and quality standards for the billions of rubber and plastic gloves worn by medical workers - a move that should better protect them from AIDS and other infections.

Currently, manufacturers of medical gloves conduct their own testing. The Food and Drug Administration said it now has decided to standardize such testing and establish a limit on how many gloves can fail.

In addition, the FDA said it will inspect randomly selected gloves for tears, holes and any foreign matter embedded in the gloves.

''Previous FDA surveys had shown that some batches of gloves had failure rates far in excess of the new limits, so our program should result in gloves that are far more reliable than in the past,'' said Walter Gundaker, acting director of FDA's Center for Devices and Radiological Health.

''This program should help assure concerned health care workers that their gloves are adequate to do the job,'' Gundarker added.

Gloves will also be subjected to a test that involves pouring about a quart of water into a glove and checking for leaks.

Gloves will not be allowed to be sold for medical uses if leaks are found at rates greater than 25 per 1,000 for surgeons' gloves and 40 per 1,000 for patient examination gloves.

The rate is more stringent for surgeons' gloves because they come in contact with internal areas of the body and may be exposed longer to blood and other bodily fluids than examination gloves, the FDA said.

The federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta recommends that doctors, dentists and other health care workers wear gloves for protection against diseases like AIDS and hepatitis.

While the CDC knows of 20 cases of health care workers being infected with the AIDS-causing human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, while on the job, most involved accidents in which workers were accidentally stuck by a needle. Gloves do not protect workers against needle sticks.

However, four of the reports of HIV infection were associated with medical workers whose skin, thought to be chapped or scratched, was exposed to the virus.

American-made gloves which do not meet the requirements will be seized, if necessary, to keep them off the market, the FDA said. Foreign glove manufacturers may be placed on an import detention list if their gloves consistently do not meet the new requirements.

The new regulations will take effect in 90 days.

NEWARK, N.J. (DEC. 12) UPI - The German parent of Hoechst-Roussel Pharmaceuticals Inc. agreed Wednesday to pay a fine to settle four misdemeanor charges over the reporting of deaths of two patients who took an anti-depressant medicine.

The agreement ends a four-year-old case over the failure of Hoechst AG of Frankfurt to report the deaths of two patients who received the drug Merital in Europe.

The company agreed to pay a fine of $202,000 to settle the charges brought by the U.S. Attorney's office in New Jersey.

The Merital inquiry began in 1986, after Hoechst AG voluntarily withdrew the drug from the market worldwide.

The company investigated the death of one patient but claimed it did not have enough information to make a full report to the federal Food and Drug Administration. The case of the second patient allegedly involved the woman's suicide using the drug and the company said it did not consider that death reportable.

The company maintained the failure to report the events was unintentional.

NEW YORK (DEC. 12) UPI - A federal judge Wednesday dismissed all claims against promoter Don King in suits filed by the outcast manager of heavyweight Mike Tyson.

Bill Cayton, estranged from the former champion he helped manage since Tyson's adolescence, had named King in suits and counterclaims against Tyson filed in 1989.

King is Tyson's adviser and promoter. Cayton accuses the promoter of antitrust violations, racketeering and interference in his contract with Tyson.

Judge John Keenan of federal court in Manhattan issued a written opinion, dropping King from the Cayton-Tyson suits.

''The focus will be where it should be - on Bill Cayton's conduct toward Mike Tyson,'' said Bob Hirth, King's lawyer.

Cayton said he will sue King separately ''within a matter of days.''

''If they're crowing about this, they may be misguided,'' Cayton said. ''I am actually relieved. I prefer a suit against King. I could not understand why we tied them together.''

He said that decision was made by his former attorney, Thomas Puccio. Cayton currently is represented by David Branson.

Branson said in reducing the list of more than 30 counts in Cayton's third-party claims against King, he was aware he was removing portions that procedurally linked the cases.

''We told the judge, 'So what? We'll file separately,''' Branson said. ''This is not even a Pyrrhic victory for them - a victory without any substance.''

Tyson originally sued Cayton in the summer of 1989 and a settlement produced a revised cut for the manager. Tyson sued again in November 1988 for breach of contract.

Cayton filed third-party claims and counterclaims in January 1989 and has repeatedly blamed King for Tyson's disenchantment.

''Mike Tyson is manipulated by King,'' Cayton said Wedesday. ''I am not disturbed by this. They may be unpleasantly surpised.''

Branson said the remaining claims by Cayton against Tyson challenge the fighter's accounting of deductions from fight revenues.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 12) UPI - Athletic directors from Syracuse, Pittsburgh, Boston College and Miami met Wednesday with Big East Commissioner Mike Tranghese over the formation of a football conference.

Big East spokesman John Paquette said by telephone from conference headquarters in Providence, R.I., the league will make a statement of ''substance'' Thursday.

The all-day meeting brought together Tranghese and athletic directors Ed Bozik of Pitt, Sam Jankovich of Miami, Jake Crouthamel of Miami and Bill Flynn of Boston College.

None was available for comment. The location of the meeting in Washington was kept secret.

Paquette said Tuesday that conference officials did not expect a formal announcement on football membership until January.

The Philadelphia Daily News reported Tuesday that during Wednesday's meeting, the four athletic directors would vote to assimilate independents Temple, Rutgers, West Virginia and Virginia Tech into the Big East football-only conference.

Temple Athletic Director Charles Theokas said the grouping of the East Coast's major independent football teams will improve the school's prospects for bowl bids and ''give our program more clout.''

''The reality is it's 1990 and the reality is you need to be in conferences for TV, bowls, scheduling, competitive games,'' Theokas said. ''The day of the independent is slowly, but surely diminishing.''

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (DEC. 12) UPI - Exxon Corp. and its subsidiary, Exxon Shipping Co., want separate criminal trials in the Alaska oil spill case and want certain evidence kept out of court, including statements by an Exxon executive accepting responsibility for the nation's worst spill.

Exxon also wants to prohibit the government from bringing up the pre- spill drunk driving convictions of Exxon Valdez Capt. Joseph Hazelwood, who went drinking before the tanker hit the rocks and broke open, spilling nearly 11 million gallons of oil.

Exxon wants a court order preventing a jury from learning that a new company alcohol policy was adopted after the wreck.

Exxon lawyers want a pre-trial ruling on the maximum sentence available if the companies are convicted of five environmental crimes. They object to government sentencing theories that fines could exceed $700 million.

And Exxon Shipping Co. said it should be immune from prosecution under a federal law that compels spillers to report their spills in exchange for immunity.

The various Exxon motions were submitted to U.S. District Court in Anchorage late Tuesday and placed in public files Wednesday.

Both Exxon companies were charged last February in a federal indictment with violating the Clean Water Act, the Refuse Act, the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, the Ports and Waterways Safety Act and the Dangerous Cargo Act.

Federal prosecutors allege that when the Exxon Valdez hit Bligh Reef and cracked open in Prince William Sound March 24, 1989, spilling crude oil and killing tens of thousands of migratory birds and other animals, Exxon acted negligently and knowingly manned its tanker with unqualified and incomptent seamen.

Exxon wants to exclude evidence of Hazelwood's drunk driving convictions in 1985 in New York and 1988 in New Hampshire, saying that would prejudice the case and confuse the issues. Exxon called the convictions ''irrelevant'' and said the company ''did not know of them.''

Government prosecutors have charged that Hazelwood's drinking played a role in the wreck and that Exxon ignored warnings that the skipper continued to drink after an alcohol rehabilitation program.

Exxon also said it would be unfair to let prosecutors tell jurors that Exxon changed its alcohol policy after the wreck to prohibit employees treated for alcohol dependency from holding ''safety-sensitive positions.''

Pre-trial motions by Exxon lawyers also seek to exclude numerous statements by Exxon U.S.A. President William Stevens taking responsibility for the spill. Corporate lawyers even submitted 14 pages of objectionable statements by they want to prevent prosecutors from using.

For example, 10 days after the spill, Stevens told employees in a videotape: ''Let me begin in an unequivocal fashion by saying that the grounding of the tanker, the subsequent catastrophic spill, was a culmination of a series of mistakes, basically human error. There is no way that this disaster should have happened.

''But I think those of us in the management of Exxon do and must fully accept that it was our ship, it's our oil in the water, and it was our employees who were involved. We take full responsibility for not only what happened, but for dealing with the consequences of what happened.''

Among the various other statements by Stevens that Exxon lawyers want excluded is one made six weeks after the spill in which the Exxon president said, ''It's not really clear to me why everyone is so angry - once we got past the point of admitting it was our ship that went on the rocks.''

Exxon Corp. lawyers, who earlier failed to get the charges against the parent thrown out, want to distance the corporation from its subsidiary and believe the best way to do that is by having separate trials, thus avoiding guilt by assiciation in case the subsidiary is convicted.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (DEC. 12) UPI - The U.S. Soccer Federation wants to change soccer's rules in time for the 1994 World Cup in the United States.

Alan Rothenberg, the recently elected president of the USSF, wrote a letter Tuesday to FIFA, soccer's governing body, saying the game needs more goal scoring if Americans are to embrace the sport.

Among the proposed changes: larger goals, a new offsides rule and elimination of walls and back kicks to the goalkeeper.

''For the sport to take root in the United States as a spectator and television sport, the rules of the game must be changed to permit more goals '' Rothenberg said in his letter to FIFA President Joao Havelange, whose group is based in Zurich, Switzerland. ''The decline in goal scoring during the recent World Cup in Italy only reinforces this view.''

The defunct North American Soccer League, which operated under the authority of the USSF, implemented rule changes of its own during its time. The experimentation was a source of irritation to FIFA executives and hurt the United States in its earlier attempts to stage the World Cup.

The 1994 World Cup will mark the first time the tournament will be held outside Europe and Latin and Central America. The United States competed in last summer's World Cup for the first time in 40 years and was eliminated after one round.

''We do not advocate any specific rule changes at this time,'' Rothenberg wrote to Havelenge. ''We do urge the FIFA executive committee, under your leadership, to authorize experimental efforts to test many of the changes which have been advanced.

''Many of our youth, amateur and professional leagues and teams would be willing to play under the experimental rules if doing so would assist the evaluation.''

The FIFA executive committee is to meet Thursday in Zurich to discuss various issues.

TORONTO (DEC. 12) UPI - A United States-Mexico bilateral free trade deal should precede a North American arrangement, a former U.S. trade negotiator said Wednesday.

Bill Merkin, who was deputy chief of the U.S.-Canada trade talks, said while it is far from clear how trilateral talks will proceed, there are fears Canada's participation could slow the talks.

The neighboring countries currently are discussing the framework that could be used in three-way talks and a decision on whether to enter formal talks is expected to be made early in 1991.

''There are a number of people in the United States who are leery of having Canada at the table because they think that will slow down the whole process '' Merkin said.

''They're afraid that Canada's political process is not as solid, that the current government is going to be leery of moving too far too fast,'' said Merkin, now a senior vice president of Washington-based Strategic Policy Inc..

Recent public opinion polls put Prime Minister Brian Mulroney's governing Progressive Conservatives in third place firmly behind both the Liberal and New Democrat parties, both opposed to the free trade deal with the United States.

According to some economists, Canada's next federal election, expected by 1993 will focus on the free trade issue.

Since the Canada-U.S. trade deal went into effect in January 1989, critics of the deal have attributed almost every negative development in the economy to the agreement.

The Canadian Labor Congress Tuesday said its latest data showed the bilateral deal to be ''a proven failure'' that already had killed 226, 000 Canadian jobs.

The CLC said the layoffs - ''like body counts from a foreign war'' - resulted from closures, takeovers, mergers, downsizing, shifting of production to the U.S. and Mexico and corporate restructuring.

As for trilateral talks, Merkin said, ''There's (also) some fear that Canada might use the exercise with Mexico to revist some of the areas (in the deal with the United States).''

For example, Merkin said: ''What happens if Mexico wants to carve out something special on energy and Canada is sitting there. Is Canada going to say, 'Hey, wait a minute, we did a lot on energy. If you're going to let Mexico get away with doing a little bit, we want to reopen.'''

''Those kind of complicating factors are not relished by many people in the United States, including the Congress,'' Merkin said.

Merkin added, ''I think ultimately it makes sense that you trilateralize but maybe the first step is to do it bilaterally between the United States and Mexico and then when you have the two (separate Canada and Mexico) agreements, you sit down and try to bring it all together.''

Merkin said the world is entering into a ''very difficult period of trade policy'' as shown by the failure of Uruguay Round of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The Uruguay Round was to have capped four years of global talks on a host of items last week, but negotiations were derailed by failure to reach a deal of how to dismantle agricultural subsidies.

Merkin said the Uruguay Round, although technically adjourned until the new year, is dying a slow death.

As a result, Merkin said the U.S. administration and Congress will be turning up the heat on trade-related items. He predicted the Congress would be chomping at the bit to get back into trade matters and that the politics in Washington mean the Administration has little flexibility to adjust its stance.

LIMA (DEC. 12) UPI - Sereal, a petroleum exploration company, will stay on in Peru despite a guerrilla attack that caused from $2 million to $3 million in damages, Minister of Energy and Mines Fernando Sanchez said Wednesday.

Sanchez said Sereal, contracted by Mobil Oil Co., suspended its Peruvian operations temporarily for six months in order to rebuild its Amazon petroleum camp and reship equipment destroyed by a band of 100 to 150 armed rebels on Monday.

Mobil Oil and Sereal will continue prospecting and ''will respect the contract '' Sanchez said.

He said army and national police forces continued searching the jungle for rebels in the Amazon province of Bellavista near the scene of the attack at the Costa Rica petroleum camp 336 miles north of Lima.

On Monday, rebels stole into the camp and destroyed machinery, prospecting equipment, communications lines, vehicles, motors, a helicopter and living quarters, according to press reports.

The guerrilla occupation lasted nine hours, during which camp communications were severed, reports said. Initial military statements identified the guerrillas as members of the Tupac Amaru Revolutionary Movement, but press reports Wednesday said the attackers were members of Peru's larger communist rebel organization Shining Path.

Three people were killed in the attack, according to reports broadcast by Radio Imagen from the Amazon city of Tarapota.

The rebel attack was made easier by the fact that the petroleum camp was unguarded by either military or police forces.

Politicians from a wide range of political parties condemned the attack, the first in Peru in a decade of guerrilla warfare.

Since Shining Path staged its first act in 1980, 20,000 people have died in political violence.

MAYNARD, Mass. (DEC. 12) UPI - In its continuing effort to tighten operations in the face of a gathering recession, Digital Equipment Corp. shuffled top management and said Wednesday its first-ever layoffs could come as soon as next month.

Digital, the nation's No. 2 computer maker after International Business Machines Corp., is trying to slash up to 6,000 employees by June, most of them by the end of this month, said spokeswoman Nikki Richardson.

The computer giant hopes the cuts, which would represent almost 5 percent of its worldwide work force of 124,000, can be achieved through a voluntary severance program, Richardson said.

However, senior managers in January are ''going to take a look at the results of the program vis-a-vis business conditions (and) outside economic conditions and decide where to go from there,'' Richardson said.

Meanwhile, the company assigned three top executives to new duties in what Richardson said was an effort to become more efficient.

One executive, David W. Grainger, who has headed the company's vital U.S. sales and service operations, was shifted to a newly created job handling relations with original equipment manufacturer customers. He continues to report to John H. Smith, the company's senior vice president for operations.

Taking Grainger's old job and some added duties is be Donald P. Zereski, who now also reports to Smith. Zereski previously was head of customer service.

The third new appointment was Russell Gullotti, vice president of corporate services.

Thus far, only 600 employees eligible for the voluntary severance deal have taken it, Richardson said. But this figure is deceiving, she added, because the ''lion's share'' of employees who have been offered a severance package since Digital began the program in September still have time before they must respond.

In any case, she said, only about 7,000 employees in the United States are currently considering such an offer.

Although Richardson could not provide a figure for how many overseas employees have been given the severance option, the low number of U.S. employees eligible suggests suggests the company would have to persuade a very high percentage to accept the deal at a time when deepening economic difficulties are likely to make jobholders especially unwilling to give up their positions.

On the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday, the price of Digital stock rose by $2.375 to $57 a share in active trading.

(DEC. 12) UPI - A cold front brought an abrupt end to unseasonably warm, clear weather in the Rockies Wednesday, plunging high-temperature readings by as much as 25 degrees and dumping snow over Colorado, Wyoming and Montana.

Elsewhere, a second weather disturbance brought up to a half foot of snow to northern Minnesota early Wednesday, while fog blanketed the northern Great Plains.

A winter storm warning was posted Wednesday for the southwestern mountains of Colorado, where 8 inches to a foot of snow were expected through the evening, and a snow advisory was in effect for higher levels in the rest of the state.

The snow was blown in from the west by a cold front that also sent temperatures plummeting in Colorado, which saw the mercury reach a balmy high of 72 degrees Tuesday at La Junta and Wheatridge, the National Weather Service said.

Overall, high-temperature readings in the Rocky Mountain State Wednesday were 10 degrees to 25 degrees colder than the previous day, with the highs climbing only into the 30s in northern Colorado, weather bureau said.

A few snow showers also were reported Wednesday over Wyoming and eastern Montana.

Strong, blustery winds prevailed ahead of the cold front, from the southern Plains to the middle Mississippi Valley, the weather service said.

Light rain showers dampened southern parts of California and Arizona as well as the northern Pacific Coast, and rain interspersed with snow showers fell over southern Utah.

Patchy dense fog socked in parts of the northern Great Plains from Sioux Falls S.D., to Sioux City, Iowa, with visibilities near zero reported in several areas. Wisconsin and Nebraska also were affected by the fog.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 13) UPI - MCA Inc. and Mastsushita Electric Industrial Co. said Wednesday they have reached settlements in five of the six shareholder suits challanging the $6.6 billion buyout of MCA by the Japanese electronics giant.

The companies said they have an agreement in principle that will result in the dismissal of the five actions, filed in California and Delaware courts. MCA is headquartered in Los Angeles and incorporated in Delaware.

The companies said the settlement is conditioned upon dismissal of the sixth suit, filed Dec. 6 by stockholder Lawrence Epstein. That suit alleged that the $66-a-share agreement announced by the companies on Dec. 2 is unfair to shareholders and specifically cited the portions of the deal involving MCA Chairman Lew Wasserman.

Wasserman is exchanging his 4.95 million shares of common stock for preferred stock with a face value of $327 million, with an annual dividend of $28.6 million. He is also getting a five-year management contract at $3 million per year.

Wednesday's announcement said a hearing on the Epstein case has been tentatively scheduled for Dec. 28 in Los Angeles.

Go-Video, a small Arizona company that produces dual-deck videocassette recorders, recently filed a federal lawsuit seeking to block the MCA deal. That action accused Matsushita of engaging in anticompetitive practices to force American electronics companies out of the market.

CHICAGO (DEC. 13) UPI - An Illinois appellate court Wednesday rejected American Airlines' efforts to turn back a suit filed on behalf of 9 million ''frequent flyers,'' and ordered the case to trial in Cook County Circuit Court.

The class action suit filed in 1988 accused American Airlines of breaking its frequent flyer contract, which had offered free seats on any flight destination. The airline changed the program that year and limited the number of seats available during peak travel times.

American had asked the appeals court to dismiss the suit on the grounds that federal law prohibits travelers from suing airlines over flight scheduling matters.

Attorney Gilbert Gordon, who filed the suit, said the ruling is the first addressing frequent flyer programs and could open the door for suits against other airlines. A similar suit against Delta Airlines is pending before the state appeals court.

In the appellate panel's decision, Justice William White wrote provisions in the Federal Aviation Act - which bar customers from suing over pre-emptive rates, routes and services - do not apply in this case.

The suit involves travelers who accumulated credits under American's ''AAdvantage'' program, established in 1981.

Under the program, travelers could collect one mile of credit for every mile they flew on American Airlines. The credits could then be used on any available seat to any of the airline's destinations.

But, Gordon said in 1988 American changed the program and limited the number of seats available during peak travel seasons.

''What American Airlines did was change the rules in midstream,'' Gordon said. ''The customers performed their part of the bargain, but American refused to live up to their promise.''

American spokesman Tom Stack said the airline had not decided whether to appeal the decision, but he said the airline could seek to have the case moved from the state court to the federal arena.

''We're looking at our options,'' he said. ''We haven't made any decisions yet.''

A spokesman says it has NOT been decided yet whether the last four American diplomats in the Embassy in Kuwait will leave with the 15.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Haben Industries (NASDAQ:HABN) has reached an agreement and has signed a formal letter of intent to acquire a privately held Los Angeles area-based California company called Custom Rotational Molding (CRM).

Haben will finance the acquisition through issuing its own restricted common stock for all of the shares outstanding of (CRM). The acquisition is valued at $3.5 million.

Custom Rotational Molding manufactures various plastic products for private and military use. CRM utilizes cross-linkable polyethylene from Gyron Compounds Inc. in molding these products.

Annual sales for (CRM) in 1990 will be in excess of $5 million. This will give all of the companies under Haben's umbrella total sales of approximately $12 million in 1990, prior to the consolidation of these companies.

Besides exclusively molding all the automated refuse carts for Master Cart, CRM primarily performs custom molding for other clients. These custom jobs require CRM to design, develop and manufacture the product based on the client's individual needs.

Haben has also acquired Gyron Compounds Inc., Master Cart Inc., and Good Development Polymers. These companies are related entities involved in designing, developing, manufacturing, and marketing of polyethylene products.

New plans also include a five year lease of an approximately 60,000 square foot building located in Southern California which will consolidate a large portion of Haben's West Coast manufacturing activities. This additional space is needed by CRM to take care of its current backlog of sales.

ALAMOSA, CO (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Qual-Med Inc., a Colorado-based HMO with operations in five western states, has filed suit against Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Colorado charging predatory and unfair trade practices and seeking more than $2 million in actual damages as well as $10 million in punitive damages.

The complaint, filed Dec. 11 in the State District Court in Alamosa, focuses on a 1988 health insurance contract awarded to Blue Cross by the State Employees and Officials Group Insurance Board (SEOGI).

The contract excluded all other HMOs from bidding on and providing health care coverage to 33,000 Colorado state employees and gave Blue Cross a virtual monopoly on this business.

The complaint states three causes of action. The first count alleges that Blue Cross violated Colorado's ''sales below cost'' law. That law makes it illegal for a company to offer its services at a price below the cost, where such a sale is designed to harm competition.

The second count alleges that Blue Cross violated Colorado's antitrust laws by entering into the contract with the intent to harm competition in the health care marketplace.

The third count alleges that Blue Cross improperly interfered with Qual-Med's then-existing and prospective contractual relations with the State in connection with Blue Cross's entry into the 1988 contract.

Public reaction to the 1988 SEOGI-Blue Cross contract was so swift and so negative that the state legislature, upon reviewing the matter, abolished the SEOGI board in its entirety and directed that other HMOs be included in health insurance offerings to state employees, beginning in 1991.

Qual-Med was successful in regaining much of the business lost in the 1988 contract to Blue Cross when open bidding was conducted in 1990 and will resume services to state employees in 1991.

Founded in 1985, Qual-Med Inc. offers managed health care to members in Colorado, New Mexico, Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - UtiliCorp United (NYSE:UCU) Thursday announced to members of the New York financial community that it expects record financial results both in the fourth quarter and for 1990.

It will be the third consecutive year in which UtiliCorp has logged record results.

UtiliCorp estimates that 1990 net income will be $58.2 million, compared to $48.3 million in 1989. Primary earnings per common share are estimated to be $2.10, versus $2.04 last year. Operating revenues are estimated at $798 million, compared with $732 million in 1989.

In the fourth quarter ending Dec. 31, the company estimates net income of $20.3 million, compared with $13.9 million in the 1989 quarter. Primary earnings per common share are projected at $.71, versus $.56 in the prior year's period. Operating revenues are estimated to be $224 million, compared with $237 million in the 1989 quarter.

Average common shares outstanding have increased from 20.9 million in 1989 to 24 million this year. The increase is due primarily to a public offering of 2 million shares in late 1989 and another offering of 4 million shares in November 1990.

In a presentation in New York, UtiliCorp Chairman and President Richard C. Green Jr., noted that the estimated financial results illustrate the continuing success of the company's growth strategy.

The anticipated record is attributable to a combination of significantly higher earnings from the company's PSI subsidiary, the first full year of contributions from the recently acquired Michigan Gas Utilities division and gas and electric rate decisions rendered during the fourth quarter affecting Missouri operations.

''The results speak for themselves,'' Green said. ''Our strategy is working despite the abnormally mild weather experienced in our service territory this year.''

UtiliCorp began pursuing a growth strategy in 1985 that focuses on the acquisition of regulated gas and electric utilities and the startup and development of non-regulated, energy-related businesses.

The company is actively pursuing its growth plan. UtiliCorp announced today that is has signed a definitive agreement to acquire an electric utility owned by Centel Corp. in a transaction valued at approximately $346 million. Upon completion of the transaction, UtiliCorp will own eight regulated utility operations. The Centel utility serves approximately 136,000 customers in Colorado and Kansas. The acquisition is expected to be completed by mid-1991.

PSI's earnings contributions have been boosted by a first quarter gain on the sale of oil and gas reserves and an aggressive strategy to acquire reserves and natural gas transmission and processing facilities. The subsidiary is expected to contribute approximately 20 percent of UtiliCorp's consolidated net income this year, up from approximately 11 percent last year. PSI's investment during 1990 in reserves and transmission and processing facilities is expected to total $237 million.

In July, PSI and an investment partner acquired a 1,200-mile natural gas transmission system and related processing facilities in Texas. In October, PSI completed the additional acquisition of processing facilities and an 85-mile gas transmission and gathering system in western Oklahoma. It also has acquired several oil and gas reserve properties mainly located in the Gulf of Mexico.

Improved 1990 earnings also are attributable to the resolution in the fourth quarter of separate gas and electric rate increase requests in Missouri. The Missouri Public Service Commission has authorized an electric rate increase of $12.4 million, or 6.5 percent, and a gas rate increase of $4 million, or 14.1 percent.

Based in Kansas City, UtiliCorp provides gas and electric service to approximately 820,000 customers in eight states and in British Columbia. The company also is engaged in various non-regulated energy and utility related enterprises.

DENVER (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - All regulatory and bondholder approvals have been secured to legally merge Mountain Bell, Northwestern Bell and Pacific Northwest Bell under the corporate name U S WEST Communications Inc.

The merger will be effective Jan. 1, 1991.

U S WEST Inc.'s three telephone companies began operating as U S WEST Communications in July 1988, but the companies continued to exist as separate entities for legal and regulatory purposes. With the necessary approvals in place, the company will now align its legal structure with its operating and marketing structure.

''The merger is a logical extension of the regional marketing and operational restructuring that has evolved over the past few years,'' said Gary Ames, U S

WEST Communications President and Chief Executive Officer. ''Our customers know us as U S WEST Communications; now everyone we do business with will know us by the same name.''

In addition to the structural advantages, Ames said the merger will bring future benefits in the area of debt financing. The merged company will provide a basis for strengthened credit quality and stability with its more diversified base.

Several steps were involved in securing approvals for the merger. First, the company contacted holders of 37 debentures issued by Mountain, Northwestern and Pacific Northwest Bells for approval to modify each indenture to allow the merger to proceed.

U S WEST Communications then reviewed the merger plans with state commissions in each of the 14 states it serves and made filings in states with laws that provide for formal regulatory review of mergers of this type.

U S WEST Communications, the largest subsidiary of U S WEST Inc., serves the communications needs of 25 million customers in 14 western states.

U S WEST Inc., based in Englewood, Colo., is a $23 billion diversified company that also owns businesses involved in radio communications, directory publishing, business communications sales and services, communications software and financial services.

HOUSTON (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Houston-area travel agents have banded together to wish Continental Airlines and its Houston employees continued success with its financial reorganization.

More than 135 local travel agencies this week made cash donations to purchase a newspaper advertisement in which they express support for Continental.

''It is vitally important to the traveling public that Continental receives our continued backing,'' said Drake L. Hiller, President and CEO of Ace Travel House, Inc., which co-sponsored the pro-Continental message. ''Travel agencies want to make sure that the airline industry remains competitive, and Continental is an important factor in the competitive mix. We continue to book Continental flights as usual.''

Travel agents have praised Continental for the manner in which the airline handled its bankruptcy filing on December 3. Immediately upon filing initial papers with the court, the carrier sought protection for travel agents and travelers. This ensured that travel agents continued to receive uninterrupted commission payments and all travelers could continue to use ''pre-petition'' tickets.

The U.S. Department of Transportation echoed travel agents' sentiments in a recent letter to the public. ''Along with the plan to operate its full flight schedule, Continental effectively has continued operation without missing a step,'' said Hoyte B. Decker, assistant director for consumer affairs. ''The effect is significant for persons holding tickets...and enhances consumer confidence in the company over the long term.''

Continental has been an aggressive advocate for the travel agency community in recent years. Selling more than two-thirds of its tickets through travel agents, Continental has developed programs that promote travel agencies instead of circumventing them. Continental pays travel agencies approximately $500 million in commissions annually.

The idea for the advertisement supporting Continental was initially developed by three co-sponsor travel agencies. Participating were Stan St. Pierre, president of Supertravel; Barney Kogan, chairman of Lifeco Travel; and Drake L. Hiller, president and CEO of Ace Travel House - a Consolidated Travel Service agency.

ORINDA, CA (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - In a legal decision that could have major implications for the Dbase market and for the software industry as a whole, a federal judge in Los Angeles Thursday ruled that Ashton-Tate's original copyright for dBASE III Plus was invalid.

Judge Terrence Hatter ruled that dBASE III Plus is a ''derivative work'' from JPL/DIS, a mainframe data language originally developed at the Jet Propulsion Laboratories in Pasadena, Calif.

The decision is also expected to affect dBASE IV, which is primarily derived from dBASE III Plus. This decision will strengthen the dBASE aftermarket for dBASE-language compatible databases and follow-on products by encouraging independent implementations of the dBASE language.

The ruling came in a ''look and feel'' suit by Ashton-Tate against Fox Software, in which Ashton-Tate claimed that Fox had infringed Ashton-Tate's dBASE III Plus copyright. The judge dismissed Ashton-Tate's current lawsuit against Fox Software ''with prejudice,'' precluding Ashton-Tate from refiling a new suit in the same court.

There are currently 10 vendors marketing dBASE language compilers and interpreters. Four of these vendors, Ashton-Tate, WordTech, Fox and Nantucket hold over 90 percent of the dBASE compatible market.

Because development time is a significant barrier for entry into the market -- it can take up to three years to implement a competitive dBASE language compiler -- the decision is expected to benefit vendors with existing products more than possible new entrants.

Although WordTech has a separate 1987 contract with Ashton-Tate in which Ashton-Tate agreed that WordTech products are free from copyright lawsuit, WordTech believes this decision is a futher measure of protection for its customers.

Coupled with Nantucket's recent moves to eschew the dBASE market and reposition its compiler, yesterday's decision may cause a significant reshuffling among the Dbase market leaders.

WordTech was a member of a committee to standardize the dBASE language, and is currently a member of a committee drafting a proposed data dictionary standard for dBASE compatible databases.

WordTech Systems Inc. is a leading supplier of fully Dbase compatible database management systems, and the only publisher of a complete Dbase applications development environment including both interactive database managers and distribution compilers for the Dbase language. WordTech products also provide migration paths to the UNIX and SQL environments.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Cathay Bancorp Inc. Thursday announced it has filed an application to list its common stock on the NASDAQ National Market System (NMS) under the symbol ''CATY.'' Cathay expects to begin trading on the NMS in December.

Cathay currently trades on the over-the-counter market, and quotes for its common stock can be found in the Pink Sheets. As of Nov. 27, the latest bid-ask quote for the stock was $16.5-$17.5. As of Sept. 30, Cathay had 6.1 million shares outstanding. Assuming a stock price of $17/share, the total market value of Cathay is $103.7 million.

Cathay was founded in Los Angeles in 1962 to provide banking services primarily to Asian businesses and consumers. Cathay's primary financial services include construction, real estate and consumer loans; and residential commercial and international trade financing. Cathay Bank recently received regulatory approval to form Cathay Bancorp Inc., a bank holding company.

This reorganization will provide greater operating flexibility and will permit expansion into a broader range of financial services. As of Sept. 30, total assets of the bank were $632 million, and earnings for the nine months were $7.4 million. Cathay presently has five branches in the Los Angeles area and one in San Jose.

Cathay President Dunson Cheng stated that Cathay's listing on the NMS will provide investors two benefits -- the continuous transaction data of the exchanges and the competition among market makers that is characteristic of NASDAQ.

''A NASDAQ NMS'' listing will help expand our investor base, attracting the smaller investor as well as the more sophisticated institutional investor,'' said Cheng.

Investors will have greater access to information, as brokers will be able to provide last-sale prices and up-to-the-second volume information on Cathay's stock. Cathay will also be included in the NMS newspaper stock table, which shows high, low and closing prices for the most active and prominent NASDAQ securities.

Cheng noted that, in addition to the increased market information that NMS provides, a significant advantage of being listed on NASDAQ is the existence of multiple market makers competing with each other to execute investor orders as opposed to a single specialist on the floor of a stock exchange.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Sun Microsystems Inc. (OTC: SUNW) Thursday announced the adoption of systematic repurchase programs which will enable Sun to repurchase in the open market a portion of the shares of common stock which it expects to issue under its 1990 long-term equity incentive plan and its 1990 employee stock purchase plan which were approved by Sun's stockholders Wednesday.

Sun intends to repurchase shares under these systematic repurchase programs on a regular basis during the terms of these two plans, and to re-issue the repurchased shares in connection with such plans.

Scott G. McNealy, chairman of the board of directors, president and chief executive officer, stated that, ''Sun has had a longstanding practice of linking key employee compensation to corporate performance because we believe that this increases employee motivation to improve stockholder value.

''We have, therefore, consistently included equity incentives as a significant component of compensation for a broad range of Sun employees. LOS ANGELES (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - David H. Murdock, chairman and chief executive officer of Castle & Cooke Inc., (NYSE/PSE:CKE) Thursday announced that the board of directors had unanimously adopted a policy for the payment of a regular quarterly dividend, expected to be at an annual rate of 40 cents per share.

Murdock said, ''We expect to achieve record earnings in 1990 and we believe the company and its shareholders will be best served and have the opportunity to realize Dole Food Co.'s long-term value by not selling any portion of the Dole Food Co.''

The board declared the first quarterly dividend of 10 cents per share payable on Jan. 14, 1991, to shareholders of record on Dec. 24, 1990.

''We expect that 1990 net income for the Dole Food Co. unit of Castle & Cooke will be approximately $122 million, before non-recurring unusual items previously disclosed. (This net income figure assumes that all Castle & Cooke's consolidated interest expense and overhead have been allocated to Dole.)

Management believes there are significant opportunities for continued growth with the opening of new markets in eastern Europe, anticipated benefits from Dole's capital expenditure programs ($157 million invested in 1990) and a fundamental improvement in operations. We also expect continued excellent markets for Dole's fresh fruits, vegetables, packaged fruits, juices, dried fruits and nuts as consumers continue to be health conscious.

In 1991, we believe that Dole will continue to generate increased results because of improvements in the business and cost reductions. Beginning in the second half of 1991, we believe corporate overhead expenses will be reduced by approximately $17 million due in part to a previously announced consolidation of our Boca Raton Fresh Fruit office with our corporate office in Los Angeles.''

Castle & Cooke's real estate operations are expected to achieve net income of $18 million for 1990. The non-recurring unusual items previously disclosed totaled $17 million on an after-tax basis. They consisted primarily of charges related to the restructuring of the company's worldwide pineapple sourcing and the formation of the Dole Produce Co., net of gains from the sale of the investment in FirstFed America Inc.

Therefore, we project net income for consolidated Castle & Cooke will be $123 million, or $2.07 per share. Castle & Cooke's net income per share before the non-recurring unusual items is projected to be $2.36.

Castle & Cooke had been exploring the possible sale of its Dole Food Co. It had announced on July 12, 1990, that it had been contacted by several parties interested in a possible acquisition of Dole and had retained Goldman, Sachs & Co. to assist in evaluating a possible sale.

Murdock continued, ''At the time we retained Goldman, Sachs, market conditions suggested that a sale of the Dole Food Co. could be an attractive alternative that might allow shareholders to receive a significant premium above the public market valuation. However, over the past several months, the market for acquisitions and acquisition financing has deteriorated.

During the same time, Dole Food Co.'s earnings and prospects have increased dramatically with record net income of $105.8 million (before unusual items previously disclosed) having been achieved for the three quarters ended Oct. 6 1990, a 54 percent increase over the prior year. (This net income figure assumes that all Castle & Cooke's consolidated interest expense and overhead have been allocated to Dole.)

''Although several major international food companies expressed interest in acquiring Dole, in the current economic climate, the board of directors did not believe the interested buyers were prepared to pay a price that fully reflected the company's potential. The board expressed confidence in Dole's excellent management team and in the business strategies being pursued to continue Dole's strong performance.''

Castle & Cooke is a holding company conducting business in two primary operating areas: food production and distribution through Dole Food Co. and real estate development.

DALLAS (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Holly Corp. (ASE: HOC) Thursday reported results for the company's first quarter ended Oct. 31.

Holly's net income for the company's first fiscal quarter ended Oct. 31 was $2.8 million, as compared with $5.2 million for the first quarter of the prior year. Net income per share for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 was 34 cents, compared with 63 cents in the prior year period.

Net income in the current quarter as compared with the corresponding quarter of the prior year was adversely affected by lower margins as a result of increased crude oil prices that were only partially offset by increases in product prices.

Also affecting the results in the current period were increased costs resulting from a planned shutdown for major maintenance (turnaround).

The volatility in crude oil costs as a result of the Middle East crisis and the inability to recover those costs in the market have somewhat abated since the end of the first quarter of the current fiscal year and accordingly refining margins have been improving.

The increase in revenues for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 as compared with the first quarter of fiscal 1990 is attributable to higher prices of refined products sold, in large part due to sharp increases in crude oil costs.

Volumes sold during the current period decreased approximately 10 percent, principally due to the planned shutdown at Navajo Refining Co.'s refinery in Artesia, N.M.

Holly Corp., through its affiliates, Navajo Refining Co. and Montana Refining Co., is engaged in the refining of petroleum products.

FREMONT, CA (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Koala Springs International's Sparkling Water with Fruit Juice products are going back on store shelves Thursday.

Consumers on the West Coast will be among the first to find the unique blend of flavors that are the company's trademark, such as Orange & Mango and Raspberry, Guava & Apple, return to the shelves.

The re-entry of Koala Springs products follows a voluntary recall conducted by the company on Nov. 13, so that it could assess the level and source of minute traces of benzene found in the product during routine testing by the Florida Department of Health. The levels found were much lower than those reported in many common food products such as fruits, nuts, eggs and coffee.

Dr. Richard Hunter, Florida Assistant State Health Officer for Environmental Health, has confirmed that there is no significant health risk at these levels. The company has also confirmed that benzene is commonly occurring in many foods and beverages as well as the general environment at levels higher than those found in the Florida tests.

The tests carried out by the Florida Health Department resulted from the classification of the product as a bottled water, whereas a number of other ingredients, including fruit juices, sweetener and natural flavors are present.

California Health Authorities agreed to the labeling requirements of sparkling water with juice products in 1988 in order to avoid confusion with bottled water regulations. The company withdrew the product while it carried out tests to confirm its safety and to ensure that there was no external source of contamination.

Originating in Australia, Koala Springs was introduced in the United States in 1986, and now offers eight varieties of sparkling water with fruit juice.

Known for their unique blend of real fruit flavors, Koala Springs rapidly emerged as a major national brand in the ''new age'' beverage category.

Koala Springs has created a new marketing niche with consumers who enjoy active, outdoor, ''fun-loving'' lifestyles.

SAN FRANCISCO (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - On Feb. 3, Southwest Airlines will add four new roundtrips between San Francisco and San Diego, almost doubling its current schedule.

''As part of our expansion program in the West, we feel that the new trips are an enhancement to the service we have been building over the last two years,'' said Don Valentine, vice president, sales and marketing, for Southwest.

''With so much concentration on service from Los Angeles to the San Francisco Bay Area, we are stressing that the San Francisco to San Diego route is just as important -- and we know our customers feel the same way.''

With the addition of four new flights, Southwest is almost doubling its service from San Francisco to San Diego by offering a total of 10 flights in that direction.

The frequency of service offers business travelers the opportunity to depart San Francisco as early as 6:45 a.m. and arrive in San Diego at 8:00 a.m. -- in time for an early-morning meeting, with other flights scheduled conveniently throughout the day. The latest flight is No. 729 at 9:25 p.m., arriving in San Diego at 10:45 p.m.

From San Diego to San Francisco, there will also be four new flights. The new schedule offers 10 daily return flights from San Diego to San Francisco, starting with a 6:30 a.m. departure on flight No. 982, and continuing frequently through the day until flight No. 98 departs from San Diego at 8:45 p.m. and arrives in San Francisco at 10:00 p.m.

Southwest's Fun Fares are on sale for travel through Feb. 23 and start as low as $20 for a 21-day advance-purchase off-peak ticket from San Francisco to San Diego.

For travel after Feb. 23, customers who are able to plan and purchase tickets in advance can still travel for as little as $29 one way, which is Southwest's regular price on a 21-day advance purchase off peak Fun Fare from San Francisco to San Diego.

Southwest customers will pay no more than $64 one way from San Francisco to San Diego, which is the carrier's everyday low fare. Southwest's highest fare -- even if purchased at the last minute at the ticket counter -- is only $64 for travel one way from San Francisco to San Diego.

''When Southwest Airlines became the No. 1 carrier out of San Diego, we began to look at areas needing additional service,'' said Valentine. ''We know that the four new roundtrips we are adding between San Francisco and San Diego will reaffirm our commitment to being the high-frequency carrier on the West Coast -- as well as the airline with the lowest fares every day.''

Southwest Airlines also provides eight daily roundtrips between Oakland and San Diego with identical fares.

COLUMBUS, IN (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Cummins Engine Co., Inc., said Thursday that it expects to take an unusual charge against fourth-quarter financial results.

The company said the charge, the amount of which has not yet been determined, will be related to the disposition of certain operations, further consolidation of its manufacturing facilities and continued reduction in salaried and hourly personnel. These actions are intended to reduce the company's operating expense structure, given current market conditions.

Cummins also reported that it expects to incur a loss in the fourth quarter, exclusive of the unusual charge, that will exceed substantially the net loss of $33.7 million reported for the third quarter of 1990. Cummins said that continued depressed demand for certain of its products and worsening business conditions, particularly in Brazil, are affecting adversely the company's financial results.

The company further said it now expects to report a loss in the first quarter of 1991.

Cummins, headquartered in Columbus, Ind., is a major producer of diesel engines, components and power systems for trucks and industrial equipment.

ENGLEWOOD, CO (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Information Solutions Inc. (NASDAQ:ISOL) Thursday announced it has signed a Value Added Reseller (VAR) agreement with Motorola and made its first sale -- a multiple system transaction -- under the pact.

David R. DeYoung, president of ISI, said the VAR agreement calls for ISI to package its software products with Motorola's Delta 8000 Series hardware for sales to the transportation, hospitality and general office markets.

In addition, ISI may make hardware-only sales to customers with software already in place. The first such sale occurred recently when a long-time ISI customer contracted for multiple Motorola systems. Value of that contract is estimated at $250,000.

ISI and Motorola, the $10 billion worldwide electronics firm, hope that by combining their respective products into complete systems they can expand on existing markets and open new markets of common interest. ISI, with its Transportation Management Control (TMC) line of software, is currently one of the nation's leading providers of software to the transportation market.

Motorola, in turn, has an exceptionally strong presence of its own in the transportation industry due to its large installed base of ''Coverage Plus'' radio communications systems. Motorola, with 100,000 employees and an overall installed base of more than 20,000 business customers, is the leading provider of electronic equipment, systems and components.

''Motorola's installed base in transportation, combined with ISI's reputation as a leading provider of software in the industry, gives us an excellent opportunity to increase our market share in the coming year,'' said DeYoung.

''Motorola has long been at the forefront of communications systems and popular microprocessor technology. They have a worldwide service and support organization that will be of tremendous value to ISI as we market our software systems.''

ISI provides ''open system'' UNIX-based software solutions to customers in transportation, hospitality and commercial markets. As a single-source systems integrator, ISI provides applications software, hardware, service and support.

WESTBORO, MA (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Data General Corp. Thursday announced it has sold certain object oriented software technology to HyperDesk Corp., a new corporation, which intends to bring next generation distributed computing products to market.

HyperDesk technology is based on the concept of distributed object management and is the result of over three years of software development at Data General Corp.

Under terms of the agreement, Data General's industry standard AViiON family of systems will be one of the first development platforms for the HyperDesk software.

''We recognize that for software to become an industry standard, it must be platform independent. With HyperDesk's acquisition of this software, we believe this leading edge technology will have a better chance of becoming either a formal or a de facto standard in the industry than if Data General continued to develop it,'' said Stephen Paul Baxter, vice president marketing, at Data General.

''We are pleased to assist in the formation of this new company and look forward to using their first products on our AViiON systems in 1991,'' he concluded.

Distributed object management software is a new approach to software development and use. ''Objects'' are defined once and inherited throughout the distributed system; dynamic modification of the objects then facilitates the design of new programs and applications from existing ones.

Data General Corp. is a leading manufacturer of computer systems for business, industry, education and government. The company reported revenues for fiscal year 1990 of $1.22 billion.

SEATTLE (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Arctic Alaska Fisheries Corp. announced Thursday that fourth quarter and year end net income will be less than expected.

The loss in the fourth quarter will be greater than 1989's quarter with resulting 1990 earnings in the $11-12 million range.

This year's lower than expected net income has resulted from several factors. Arctic Alaska's eight crab catcher processors had a successful November king crab season and are currently fishing snow crab which will continue through mid-1991. Lower than expected crab sales will account for nearly half of the anticipated fourth quarter loss, but will benefit succeeding quarters as it is sold.

Virtually all of the bottomfish quotas in the 200-mile zone around Alaska were fully harvested by mid-November. This is the first time this situation has occurred and the adverse financial impact has been greater than was anticipated. The company had expected to mitigate this impact somewhat by sending three of its vessels to the international waters known as the ''doughnut hole'' in the middle of the Bering Sea after the quota closure. After making an effort there and finding very few fish, those vessels are now tied up until Jan. 1.

The other major factor affecting earnings has been the repair expenses experienced during the heavier than usual haul-out schedule in 1990. Repair costs have escalated and the company's policy of reserving in advance for major haul-outs has resulted in further strengthening of reserves to cover the present and future maintenance program.

Arctic Alaska's bottomfish fleet will begin fishing on Jan. 1. The harvest quotas have been established at very similar levels to 1990. Production will be augmented by the full services of the vessels added to the fleet during 1990.

Arctic Alaska Fisheries Corp. is the largest fishing and at-sea processing company in the United States. The company's vessels operate in the 200-mile zone off Alaska catching crab and bottomfish such as pollock, cod, perch and sole. The catch is processed into a variety of seafood products that are sold in the United States, Japan, and other export markets primarily under the Arctic Ice trademark.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Data Storage Development, a disk- drive manufacturer, observed an article in the Dec. 10, 1990, issue of Electronic Buyers News that stated Seagate Technology Inc. (NASDAQ:SGAT) will pay an $850,000 fine for an environmental violation involving hazardous waste.

The manufacturing process of plating media caused one of the largest environmental penalties in the history of California's Santa Clara County.

As reported by Electronic Buyers News: ''Seagate gave more than 500,000 gallons of used copper sulfate solution from its disk-drive plant in Fremont, Calif., to Stapleton Technologies in Long Beach, Calif., for disposal during a period from mid-1987 to late 1988.

''Seagate officials maintain that Stapleton told them the copper sulfate would not be classified as hazardous waste since it was to be re-used at the Shell Oil Co. refinery in Huntington Beach, Calif.''

Data Storage Development believes that cost associated with U.S. manufacturing of disk drives in the near future could be affected by this ruling. Data Storage is currently developing methods of plating that avoid the usage of such hazardous waste.

Although the costs associated with this new method are higher, Data Storage Development believes that issues surrounding the environment are of the utmost importance.

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - ASARCO Incorporated (NYSE:AR) Thursday announced that it will make a provision in its fourth quarter 1990 earnings for environmental costs associated with the Company's current operations and with previously closed facilities and for the estimated cost of increased State of Arizona royalties.

The provision will reduce 1990 after-tax earnings by an estimated $51.5 million, or $1.24 per share. Net earnings for the nine months ended September 30, 1990 were $145.4 million, or $3.50 per share.

Earnings per share for the quarter were up 14.6 percent to $1.10 versus 96 cents for the third quarter last year.

For the nine-month period, total revenue was $1,050.9 million, an increase of 8.8 percent over $966.3 million last year.

Pre-tax income increased 11.5 percent, to $95.9 million versus $86.0 million for the same period last year.

Net income for the nine-month period was $60.4 million, up 13.3 percent from last year's $53.3 million.

Earnings per share through nine months were $1.90 versus $1.66.

Chairman Irving I. Stone said the results reflect ''continuing strong sales in greeting cards, our core product line, as well as improved sales of accessory products.''

President and Chief Executive Officer Morry Weiss noted that ''revenue gains were particularly strong in everyday greeting cards. Within that category are the alternative, or 'anytime' cards, which are increasingly popular with consumers.''

''Results are in line with our expectations, and we are on track for a strong fourth quarter and a record year in both revenue and earnings,'' Weiss added.

American Greetings is the world's largest publicly owned manufacturer and distributor of greeting cards and related products.

CLEVELAND, OH (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Cleveland-Cliffs Inc and North Star Steel Company, Minneapolis, Minnesota, announced today the formation of a joint venture to evaluate the technical and commercial feasibility of iron carbide production, and agreement with Iron Carbide Holdings, Ltd. to license its technology.

The companies said the technology involves reducing high quality iron ore concentrates with reformed natural gas in a fluidized bed reactor to produce iron carbide. The principal, initial market would be steel companies with electric arc furnaces, where iron carbide would supplement premium quality scrap. The evaluation is expected to be completed within eighteen months and could lead to joint production and marketing of iron carbide.

North Star, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Cargill, Inc., is the nation's ninth largest steelmaker with an annual capacity of 2.7 million tons of electric furnace production.

Subsidiaries of Cleveland-Cliffs Inc manage six iron ore mines in North America and Australia. The Company holds a major iron ore reserve position in the United States and is a substantial iron ore merchant.

WOODBURY, NY (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - SportsChannel America has signed a five-year agreement wiht Cencom Cable Television, the largest cable operator in St. Louis in which Cencom will become a full-time affiliate of the SCA network.

The announcement was made today by Jeff Ruhe, president and chief operating officer, SCA and John Clark, vice president, marketing and programming, Cencom Cable Television.

According to the agreement, Cencom will launch SportsChannel America as a basic channel on its three St. Louis systems on Jan. 1, 1991. Additionally, the agreement includes a provision for the potential expanded roll-out of SCA on other Cencom systems. Cencom is the nation's 27th largest multiple systems operator, serving over 500,000 homes.

This marks the second consecutive affiliation with a multiple systems operator servicing a National Hockey League franchise city since SCA initiated its discount packaging strategy in September, which provides financial incentives to operators that launch SCA and carry other NBC/Cablevision-owned services. On Oct. 30, SCA signed with Booth American Communications in Detroit.

''As was the case with the Detroit region, gaining carriage in St. Louis was a key goal of ours,'' Ruhe said. ''We will continue to utilize our discount packaging incentives to expand SportsChannel America's availability as a full-time basic service in areas of the country not serviced by regional sports networks.''

''The addition of SportsChannel America significantly improves the quality and value of our cable product,'' Clark said. ''SCA's programming enables us to meet the demand for NHL action in the St. Louis market.''

The SportsChannel America network is a joint venture between Cablevision Systems Corp. and the National Broadcasting Co., and has affiliations with systems serving 18 million cable households.

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - A revolutionary technology that steam explodes newspapers, office waste and corrugated cardboard to recycle them into usable paper pulp was unveiled before news reporters Thursday.

The technology, a result of research undertaken jointly by Richmond-based Chesapeake Corp. (NYSE: CSK) and Toronto-based Stake Technology Ltd. (NASDAQ: STLKF) will be further developed and marketed by a new partnership, Recoupe Recycling Technologies.

J. Carter Fox, president and chief executive officer of Chesapeake Corp., said in making the announcement, ''We are convinced that Recoupe will provide a unique opportunity to offer a cutting edge technology that will revolutionize waste paper recycling and reduce the litter stream in the U.S. at the same time.''

Fox noted that Chesapeake, and the paper industry in general, have targeted recycling as a major area for development in the 1990's. ''A recent study published in the TAPPI journal indicated that with the use of recycled technology used today, there are no competitive technologies available to meet the demand for processing recycled fiber in the 1990's,'' he said.

Fox noted that the develpment of this process, and the formation of Recoupe Recycling Technologies is particularly timely in light of the continuing demand on the part of the state legislatures and municipalities for recycling of paper products.

Indications in the marketplace point to more and more legislatures mandating recycled content in newspapers and packaging materials. In many locales, tax credits for recycling provide added incentive to get a recycling program launched. Yet the costs of establishing recycling centers can often be prohibitive.

PORT CHESTER, NY (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Village Bank President and CEO David V. Winstead, Freddie Mac Chairman Leland Brendsel, and Village Bank Chief Investment Officer and Senior Vice President George J. Amentas, made history recently when Village Bank became the first institution in the country to purchase Freddie Mac's new Gold Participation Certificates (PCs) backed by 5-year balloon mortgages.

Village Bank purchased the securities from Freddie Mac's Security, Sales and Trading Group.

Freddie Mac buys mortgages from lenders, pools and packages them into securities, and then sells those securities to investors to create a continuos flow of funds to mortgage lenders in support of home ownership and rental housing throughout the United States.

Winstead said the Freddie Mac purchase was part of Village's overall strategy since its successful public offering to grow stockholder value by balancing its growth through high quality investments, as well as secured commercial and residential mortgage lending activities in Westchester County and surrounding communities in New York and Connecticut.

Village Bank, the sole subsidiary of Village Financial Services Ltd. (NASDAQ: VIFS), is a strong, well-capitalized 125-year old financial institution with headquarters in Port Chester. Its current assets are well over $500 million and the bank has nine full-service Banking Centers throughout Westchester and Riverdale in New York. CARLSTADT, NJ (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - ''We are in the black and right on target!'' announced Peter Cohen, president of Trilling Medical Technologies (NASDAQ:BURN) Thursday, as he reported record sales and the first profitable year since the company was founded in 1979.

Net income for fiscal year 1990 was $589,480 or 2 cents per share, a complete turnaround from fiscal 1989's net loss of $397,309 or 2 cents.

Peter Cohen explained, ''I cannot fully express how proud I am of the team at Trilling who believed in the value of our Water-Jel products for the emergency treatment of burns, and pulled together to ensure that the company not only survived but thrived.''

He continued, ''This company is now operating profitably and given the steep growth curve of our sales, we are convinced this is only the beginning.''

Trilling's 1990 profit was earned on revenues of $5,029,199. ''As we announced in October, fiscal 1990 revenues represent a 100 percent increase over the preceding year when the company generated slightly less than $2.5 million in revenues. Trilling's recent performance is particularly remarkable when compared to fiscal 1988 revenues which were

Fiscal 1990's net profit is based on a weighted average 26,250,114 of common shares, as compared to a weighted average of 23,422,689 common shares in 1989.

Trilling has chosen to recognize this amount as revenue because it deems its prior contract with Pfizer terminated on May 31, 1991 if a new agreement is not consummated by March 31, 1991.

Trilling is negotiating the new license agreement with Pfizer and expects all issues concerning the future strategic alliance to be resolved.

Under the terms of the original contract the giant pharmaceutical company is currently manufacturing and test marketing Water-Jel Sterile Burn Dressings in the cities of Portland, Ore.; Houston; Indianapolis, and Louisville, Kent. Preliminary results of the test have been extremely promising.

Trilling's fourth quarter also achieved new highs. Net income was $520,890, or $0.015 per share and revenues reached $1.75 million. In contrast, the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989 had a net loss of $14,384, or $0.001 per share on revenues of $778,271.

Trilling's stock is traded with the symbol BURN. The class A warrants are BURNZ and Class B warrants are BURNW.

LITTLETON, MA (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Alliant Computer Systems Corp. (NASDAQ/ALNT) Thursday announced its FX/2800 supercomputers have exceeded two billion floating point operations a second (2 GFLOPS) on a linear convolution software routine frequently used in seismic exploration and in a wide range of digital signal processing applications.

The results are significant because they are achievable on an Alliant RISC-based FX/2800 supercomputer that sells for under two million dollars. Normally, these computations are run on a Cray Research Y-MP eight processor supercomputer that is priced in excess of $15 million.

The convolution is used to process digital data acquired in a wide range of disciplines. In oil exploration, for example, surface explosions cause underground strata to return echos that can be processed, using convolutions, to pinpoint promising locations to drill for oil. In radar and sonar signal processing, incoming signals can be filtered using this computational technique to eliminate background noise and search for specific kinds of targets. Other disciplines in which the software is used include crystallography, communications, speech recognition and speech synthesis, satellite image enhancement, High Definition Television (HDTV) research, vibration analysis and weather prediction.

''Many applications that use convolutions have enormous data sets requiring the throughput capabilities of very expensive supercomputers,'' said John

Scanlon, Alliant's vice president of marketing. ''The combination of RISC microprocessors and parallel processing architecture in the FX/2800 series makes it possible to address these requirements with a relatively low- priced supercomputer.''

Alliant has exceeded 2,145 MFLOPS on an FX/2828, a system with 28 Intel 860 RISC microprocessors. This compares to Cray Research's published (Cray Channels, Winter 1990 edition) figure of 2,012 MFLOPS on a Cray Y-MP eight processor model, and the peak theoretical performance of 200 MFLOPS on a Convex C240 four-processor system. An Alliant supercomputer occupies less than seven square feet of floor space, compared with the Cray Y-MP's 98 square feet.

Likewise, the FX/2800 family uses air cooling, while the Cray unit requires liquid cooling. The convolution routines are supplied as part of Alliant's scientific libraries package. Alliant's scientific libraries package is available immediately and is priced at $15,000.

''A general purpose supercomputer based on a non-proprietary instruction set that delivers this kind of performance at this price range is very attractive, compared to the traditional supercomputer approach,'' said Robert Limbaugh, president and chief executive officer at GeoQuest Technologies Corp., a seismic software and data processing service company.

Alliant Computer Systems Corp. manufactures standards- based parallel supercomputers with visualization tools that enable scientists and engineers to quickly interpret and solve complex problems.

BOSTON (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - The Boston Bancorp (NASDAQ:SBOS), the holding company for South Boston Savings Bank, Thursday reported net income of $13,495,000, or $1.94 per share, for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31.

For the prior fiscal year, the Boston Bancorp earned $19,365,000, or $2.50 per share. Per share amounts for fiscal 1990 were based on 6,955,712 weighted average shares outstanding, reduced from 7,753,881 a year ago, primarily due to stock repurchases.

For the fourth quarter ended Oct. 31, the company earned $2,839,000, or $0.42 per share. Net income for the year-ago fourth quarter was $7,919,000, or $1.04 per share, which included significant discretionary gains from the sale of Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (FHLMC) common stock.

The Boston Bancorp's results for fiscal 1990 represented an annual return on average assets of 0.91 percent and an annual return on average shareholders' equity of 14.03 percent. Total assets were $1.55 billion at October 31, 1990. Stockholders' equity at fiscal year-end was $97,105,000, or $14.59 per share.

Richard R. Laine, chairman and chief executive officer, said, ''The Boston Bancorp has remained solidly profitable despite the difficult operating environment.'' He noted that fiscal 1990 earnings were primarily affected by a lower net interest margin, higher provisions for possible loan losses reflecting a continued deterioration in the New England economy, and fewer investment securities gains.

Net interest income before provision for loan losses was $9,215,000 for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990, compared with $8,523,000 in the same period of fiscal 1989. The interest rate spread was 2.15 percent and 1.94 percent for the quarter and fiscal year ended Oct. 30, respectively, compared with 1.95 percent and 2.02 percent in the same periods last year. For fiscal 1990 and 1989, net interest income was $34,129,000 and $35,492,000, respectively.

Other real estate, which is composed of mortgages in foreclosure and possession, was $14,242,000 at Oct. 31, compared with $19,304,000 at the end of the fiscal 1990 third quarter, and $13,648,000 at Oct. 31, 1989. Loans delinquent and in possession and foreclosure were 1.02 percent of total assets at Oct. 31, versus 1.31 percent at July 31, and 1.01 percent at the end of fiscal 1989. The provisions for possible loan losses were $1,100,000 and $3,150,000 for the fourth quarter and fiscal year 1990, respectively, compared with $625,000 and $1,975,000 for the same periods of fiscal 1989.

Total other income was $374,000 for the fiscal 1990 fourth quarter compared with $7,754,000 in the three months ended Oct. 31, 1989. The difference was due primarily to gains on sales of investment securities, which decreased $7,470,000 during the fourth quarter of 1990 as compared with the fourth quarter of 1989. Other income was $6,010,000 for fiscal 1990 compared with $10,791,000 in fiscal 1989. For the full year, gains on sales were $3,437,000 in fiscal 1990 versus $8,785,000 in fiscal 1989.

Due in part to the acquisition of deposits and the operation of branches of the former Eliot Savings Bank, operating expenses rose to $4,920,000 in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 from $4,443,000 in the same period of fiscal 1989. For the full year, operating expenses were $17,896,000 in fiscal 1990, compared with $16,705,000 in the prior fiscal year. The ratio of operating expenses to average assets was 1.16 percent in fiscal 1990 versus 1.13 percent in fiscal 1989.

The Boston Bancorp is the holding company for South Boston Savings Bank, a state-chartered stock savings bank headquartered in South Boston, Massachusetts. South Boston also has full-service offices in Dorchester, Quincy, Weymouth and, as a result of the Eliot Savings purchase, in Needham and West Roxbury, Mass.

CONCORD, MA (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - The recent multi-year, multi-million dollar ''Nirvana Project'' contract award from The Sandia National Laboratories, Alberquerque, N.M., prime contractor for the U.S, Department of Energy (DOE) to Intergraph Corp., Huntsville, Ala., was a major win for both Intergraph and GenRad's Design Automation Products Group.

In the contract's first year, valued at approximately $8 million, GenRad's Original Equipment Manufacturer (OEM) Intergraph will ship approximately 140 RISC-based UNIX workstations and EDA software tools, including GenRad's System HILO 4 design analysis, verification and test generation tool suite, to Sandia. A number of the large Intergraph Servers supplied will be equipped with System HILO 4 and its HISIM, HIFAULT, HITIME, HILIB-ALL, and HILIB-PLD modules.

Nirvana is the DOE's designation for a Sandia National Laboratories' program to implement an Electronic Design Automation (EDA) system with advanced concurrent engineering capabilities. As specified by the contract, install approximately 500 EDA seats at Sandia.

The systems and software provided by Intergraph will be employed to integrate and improve the design, manufacture, and assembly of complex printed circuit boards, hybrid microcircuits and integrated circuits. The Nirvana Project has been designed to help Sandia and other DOE contractors migrate away from isolated, multi-vendor ''point solutions'' and move to an integrated, more efficient design environment.

The two principal objectives of the Nirvana Project are: to increase the productivity of each design and manufacturing group by providing users with newer and better automation tools; and to increase the productivity of the entire group by making it easier for each separate unit to exchange and share data with other groups and departments.

DOE contractors will use the Intergraph hardware and software tools, including System HILO 4, for tasks such as: hierarchical design capture (schematic capture); digital simulation and analysis (System HILO 4); analog simulation and analysis; physical layout and design; package design; thermal analysis; three dimensional analysis fit; and documentation and design management. To maximize system capabilities, third party design tools have been integrated into Intergraph's design framework.

For example, tools from GenRad, CLSI, Layout Concepts, MINC, Cadence, and Pacific Numerix were tightly integrated to form a single EDA system tailored to Sandia's requirements.

With the implementation of the Nirvana Project, effected subcontractors to Sandia will begin replacing their existing EDA systems with tool sets from Intergraph. The implementation will occur in a phased program as the older systems are scheduled for upgrade or maintenance.

GenRad Inc. is a leading worldwide supplier of integrated software systems and automatic test equipment, to manufacturers and users of electronic and mechanical equipment, for design verification, product testing, and process quality management. The company's stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange; its trading symbol is GEN. Unix is a trademark of AT & T Bell Laboratories.

NORTH CANTON, OH (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Belden & Blake Energy Co. (AMEX:BBE) Thursday declared a cash distribution for the fourth quarter of 1990 in the amount of 6 cents per unit.

The distribution amount represents a 20 percent increase over the 5 cents per unit distributed for each of the previous quarters of 1990. The distribution is payable on Jan. 18, 1991, to unitholders of record on Dec. 31, 1990. As of Sept. 30, the company had 5,801,113 units outstanding.

In making the announcement, Henry S. Belden IV, co-general partner of the company stated, ''The increase in the quarterly distribution level was warranted by the higher oil prices which we enjoyed throughout the quarter. The increase is further justified by the fact that during 1990 the company has added substantially more reserves through acquisitions and drilling than it will produce this year.

''We expect to be able to sustain this level of distribution -- and continue to expand our reserve base -- if oil prices remain at or above $25 per barrel. Rapid change, however, has become a constant in this industry. Management's responsibility is to guide the company through the daily challenges presented by world events, without losing focus on our investors' long-term objectives '' Belden continued.

Belden & Blake Energy Co. is a limited partnership traded on the American Stock Exchange under the symbol ''BBE.'' The company operates exclusively in Ohio, New York and Pennsylvania and is a major producer of oil and natural gas in the Appalachian Basin.

FREEHOLD, NJ (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Calton Inc. (NYSE:CN) reported Thursday that it is continuing discussions with its lenders to modify certain terms of its secured line of credit, including a restructuring of the terms under which the outstanding balance under the Credit Agreement is to be repaid and an extension of the term of the Credit Agreement from April 30, 1991 to Dec. 1, 1991.

As previously reported, the company paid $10 million of a $20 million payment due on Nov. 30, and expects that the discussions with the lending group will lead to an amendment of the credit agreement.

The lending group has formally agreed that it will not pursue any remedies that are available under the credit agreement until Jan. 10, 1991, in view of these ongoing negotiations. Eighty-five million dollars is currently outstanding under the credit agreement.

The lending group has exercised its rights as holders of senior debt to prohibit the company from making a $2.6 million interest payment due to the holders of the company's 12-5/8 percent Subordinated Notes on Dec. 15, until the company reaches a final, binding agreement (the ''Exchange Agreement''), to exchange certain properties and joint venture interests for approximately $18 million of its 16-5/8 percent Senior Subordinated Notes.

The terms of the 12-5/8 percent Senior Subordinated Notes provide the company with a 30-day grace period in which to make the interest payment. The company previously reported that it has entered into a non-binding letter of intent to acquire the 16-5/8 percent Senior Subordinated Notes. The company expects to enter into the Exchange Agreement prior to Dec. 31.

NEW HAVEN, CT (DEC. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Southern New England Telecommunications Corp. (NYSE: SNG) announced Thursday that as required by yesterday's decision by the Department of Public Utility Control (DPUC) it will book newly approved depreciation rates for its subsidiary, Southern New England Telephone Co. retroactively from Jan. 1, 1990.

This will produce an increase in depreciation expense of approximately $10 million, with a corresponding reduction in earnings of 10 cents per share in the fourth quarter of 1990.

A decision regarding the revenues to offset this increase in depreciation in 1991 and in subsequent years will be made at the time the DPUC acts upon Southern New England Telephone's rate request in January of 1991. In that rate request, which totals $91.6 million, the company had asked for an increase in depreciation expense of $38 million and revenues to cover the additional expense. The DPUC decision yesterday covered depreciation expense and not rates, and authorized a $10 million increase in expense only.

The company intends to file a petition with the DPUC for the reconsideration of that portion of its decision that orders it to book the newly approved depreciation rates retroactively.

ANKARA (DEC. 13) - Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akhbar Velayati ended a visit to Turkey Thursday, saying Ankara and Teheran wanted the preservation of Iraq's territorial integrity and opposed ''any change in the political geography of the region''.

Velayati's remarks, at an airport news conference before his departure, were taken to mean joint opposition to the creation of a Kurdish state in northern Iraq in the aftremath of the Gulf crisis.

Both Turkey and Iran harbour large Kurdish minorities and fear an independent Kurdistan would whip up separatism.

Asked about Teheran's attitude if a war could not be prevented, Velayati said Teheran continued to hope that Iraq would completely withdraw from Kuwait which it invaded on August 2 and the crisis would be resolved peacefully.

He also noted progress after two days of talks here on a closer cooperation within the Economic Cooperation Organisation (Eco) set up by Iran, Pakistan and Turkey.

Foreign Ministry Sources said Teheran and Islamabad wanted to give the organisation a political identity to deepen the ties between the three countries.

DAMASCUS (DEC. 13) - President Hafez al-Assad had talks here Thursday with his Lebanese counterpart Elias Hrawi on developments in Lebanon and steps to implement an Arab-brokered peace plan for national unity, the official Syrian news agency (SANA) reported.

The talks centered on the application of the Taif accord drafted by Saudi Arabia, Algeria and Morocco and which was endorsed by the Lebanese parliament last year.

Mr. Hrawi, who was elected by virtue of the accord, earlier this month reunified Beirut under the command of the Syrian-backed government for the first time in 15 years.

The Taif plan also calls for the introduction in Lebanon of political reforms.

Several senior Syrian officials, including Vice President Abdel Halim Khaddam, took part in the discussion after initial closed door talks between Mr. Assad and his Lebanese guest.

Mr. Hrawi was on his 10th visit to Syria since his election in November 1989 but his first since the reunification of Beirut.

GENEVA (DEC. 13) - The General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) might adopt rules at the end of next March calling on members to ban exports of products for which sales are prohibited on its territory, or to inform other GATT members when such exports are not forbidden.

A "working group on export of domestically prohibited goods and other hazardous substances" was set up within GATT in July last year, and its chairman, J. A. Sankey of Britain, submitted a report on Wednesday to GATT members suggesting the broad outlines of an agreement on the subject.

A source close to GATT said the proposal has wide support among GATT members.

Responsibility for banning exports of products considered dangerous on the domestic market, such as chemicals or pharmaceuticals, would be up to the GATT members, as in the past. But a "notification system" would oblige GATT member countries not ordering such an export ban to inform other GATT members of this fact.

GATT members also discussed a proposal submitted by the six countries of the European Free Trade Association, EFTA (Switzerland, Austria, Norway, Finland, Sweden and Iceland) at the recent ministerial trade conference in Brussels that was supposed to wind up the Uruguay Round of trade talks, but failed.

The proposal calls for GATT discussion of the relationships between policies connected with the environment and trade policies.

The proposed was backed by the European Community, which said it was "ready to begin a dialogue" on the issue.

India said it was ready to consider the proposal, while wondering whether GATT is the appropriate forum for such a discussion. Neither Brazil nor the United States spoke on the topic.

LIMA (DEC. 13) - A Japanese national shot to death last month in a remote village in eastern Peru belonged to Japan's Red Army terrorist group, a visiting Japanese correspondent told a Lima newspaper.

Masanori Wakamiya, 45, was killed apparently by Maoist Shining Path guerrillas after losing his way in rugged jungle terrain. His body was found November 23, in Alto Puereli, 450 kilometers (280 miles) east of here.

He was the first known Japanese to have been killed in Peru, where Alberto Fujimori, a son of Japanese immigrants, was inaugurated as president in July.

"It's him, there's not doubt," Yomiuri Shimbum correspondent Tatsuhiko Fujita told La Republica daily when confronted with a photograph and some of the belongings of his friend Mr. Wakamiya.

Mr. Fujita and two other Japanese correspondents recently visited Alto Puereli where Mr. Wakamiya was buried.

Mr. Fujita said his deceased friend was a member of the also Maoist Red Army and had been sentenced in the 70s to 14 years in jail for attempted murder.

The journalist confessed he could not understand why Mr. Masaoki had been killed on the other side of the Pacific by a terrorist group of identical ideology to the one he belonged to.

"He just said he was going to visit a friend in Peru," Mr. Fujita said.

The Japanese Embassy here told AFP that Mr. Wakamiya had stopped off October 12 to report a stolen passport, but that he later phoned to say he had found it.

Francisco Campos, Alto Puereli's lieutenant Governor, told La Republica that Mr. Wakamiya spoke no Spanish and was barely able to pronounce Puerto Prado, his intended destination, some 90 kilometers (55 miles) further east.

Mr. Campo's wife and mother in law were killed the same day Mr. Wakamiya was.

MOSCOW (DEC. 13) - Leaders of the Georgian region of South Ossetia who have been at odds with the Soviet republic since declaring their independence from it have called for a dialogue, the official Soviet news agency TASS reported Thursday.

"Our people are categorically opposed to confrontations and call for a political solution to all problems," the new president of the South Ossetian parliament, Thorez Kulumbiekov said.

He said South Ossetia would only raise the question of its independence if Georgia were itself to become independent of the Soviet Union.

He said the projected new Treaty Union which would redefine the 15 Soviet republics' relationships to each other did not define the position held by autonomous regions.

If Georgia were to become independent South Ossetia would be under its direct administration which would have "unpredictable consequences", Mr. Kulumbiekov said.

On Tuesday the Georgian parliament voted to dissolve the autonomous region of South Ossetia created in 1922 to punish local officials for proclaiming the region a republic.

Ossetian separatists want their region to be attached to North Ossetia, an autonomous region in the neighbouring Soviet republic of Russia.

On Wednesday three men were shot deat in Tskhinvali, South Ossetia's biggest city.

Georgian authorities immediately introduced a month-long state of emergency in the city and in the near-by region of Djava, with a curfew from 10:00 p.m. to 7:00 a.m. according to the unofficial news agency Interfax.

ABOARD THE RAINBOW WARRIOR (DEC. 13) - Greenpeace said Thursday five of its activists arrested near the French Pacific nuclear test site at Mururoa were to face unspecified charges.

Activist Stephanie Mills said a Greenpeace delegation had met a French Defence Ministry official in Paris on Thursday and were told the five would be flown to Tahiti and handed to the state prosecutor there.

Reports Wednesday from Mururoa had said the five, including Greenpeace France president Alain Conan and U.S. scientist Norman Buske, had been released and were awaiting arrangements for their departure from the atoll.

The state prosecutor in Papeete, Tahiti, Jean-Claude Duval said the five were still on Mururoa atoll, where they had been questioned by police, adding they were released from detention Tuesday.

Ms. Mills said Greenpeace would protest against the action as it was a breach of international law by the French authorities who had kept them incommunicado for more than 48 hours.

(In Paris, Greenpeace France confirmed reports of the defence ministry meeting and said the five activists were to be taken to Papeete "shortly".

(Green MPs in the European Parliament and the Friends of the Earth issued separate statements objecting to the lengthy detention and calling for the "immediate" release of the five and an end to nuclear tests in French Polynesia.)

Ms. Mills said the news of the charges completely contradicted reports from French authorities that the five were free and the Rainbow Warrior II had refused to take them on board.

The five were arrested Tuesday when their rubber dinghy entered territorial waters around the site in a search for samples of marine organisms to test for possible radioactive contamination.

Mr. Duval had said Wednesday the Rainbow Warrior II, still cruising off the atoll, did not want to take the five back on board.

He said the French authorities would therefore have to decide where they would be taken.

The five earlier said they had found traces of radioactivity in plankton collected in waters outside the territorial limits.

TEL AVIV (DEC. 13) - The Soviet Union will renew its diplomatic ties with Israel once the Gulf crisis is over, an announcement on Radio Moscow's Hebrew language service said late Thursday, acording to Israel Television.

The announcement came less than 24 hours after Wednesday's Washington meeting between Israeli Prime Minister Itzhak Shamir and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevernadze.

Diplomatic ties were broken off by the Soviets following the Middle East war of 1967. According to the television report Moscow Radio said the resumption of full ties would now have to wait until after the Gulf Crisis in order not to endanger the international coalition against the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) - The U.S. State Department said Thursday that Secretary of State James Baker would not meet with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad January 12, despite Iraq's insistence on that date.

"January 12 is a date the United States Government is not sending its secretary of state to Baghdad," said spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler.

Washington has proposed that Iraq pick a date between December 20 and January 3 for the Baker-Hussein meeting.

"They continue to insist on one day. So, it doesn't look like they are particularly serious about getting this arranged," said Mr. Baker after meeting here with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

In Baghdad, an Iraqi Foreign Ministry spokesman ruled out the U.S-proposed dates. "It is Iraq that will set by itself an adequate date for a visit in its capital and a meeting with its president," the spokesman said.

He said Washington should be entitled to set the date for planned talks in the United States between President George Bush and Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz.

Miss Tutwiler said Mr. Aziz would not come to Washington until the Baker date was fixed. Without an agreement by Sunday, she said, Mr. Baker would attend an annual meeting of North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign ministers in Brussels Monday and Tuesday.

BAGHDAD (DEC. 13) - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said Thursday his country would not accept foreign control over Arab oilfields in the Gulf, or the continued Israeli occupation of Arab territories.

Speaking at a cabinet meeting chaired by him, Saddam also vowed to defeat U.S. troops and their allied forces if war broke out in the Gulf, Baghdad Radio reported.

''Our principles do not accept foreign hegemony over Arab oil or the Arab homeland. Nor do they accept the Zionist entity to continue with its occupation of the Arab land and Palestine,'' he said.

He charged that the U.S.-led international alliance against Iraq did not start only in August following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

''The conspiracy against us had begun before this date because of our nationalist stance and our position on Palestine, which stressed that it is an Arab (country) that should be returned to its people,'' Saddam said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) - Palestine Liberation Organisation Chairman Yassir Arafat said Thursday the political gains his movement has made as a result of the Gulf crisis far outweigh the financial losses.

Arafat said in a Cnn interview that the Gulf crisis had shifted the world's attention to the need for peace in the Middle East, which he called ''our real achievement''.

''It is true that financially we have lost, as I told you - 10.5 billion dollars - our community has lost in Kuwait. And also, the income from our community in Kuwait to our people in the occupied territories has been lost,'' he said.

''I think, in spite of that, we gained more than that. In the beginning, no one intended to listen to us when we were speaking about peace, but now, there is an international consensus for peace for our proposals, for our initiatives for peace.''

Some of the Plo's major contributors in the Gulf have suspended donations because of Arafat's apparent support for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Arafat made no mention of those losses, nor of the fact that Palestinians have expressed support for Saddam's tough behavior towards the United States and its allies.

But he was quick to say that although video footage of himself and Saddam made it look as if they were close friends, Arafat actually urged Saddam to work for peace.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) - U.S. President George Bush said Thursday that Iraq would get nothing for releasing U.S. hostages and warned the United States would put an end to the crisis "one way or another."

The president met with seven of the former hostages Thursday in order to hear their stories.

"Hell no, not one thing. You don't reward a kidnapper. You don't reward somebody who has done something he should have done in the first place," replied Mr Bush, when asked if he would respond to their release with a gesture of his own.

Since the Gulf crisis began, the president has sought to downplay the importance of the hostages in order to prevent their value to Iraq from growing.

He met with the former hostages shortly after 96 U.S. nationals, including Ambassador to Kuwait Nathaniel Howell and four diplomats posted there, left Iraq Thursday.

They are the last group of Americans who wanted to leave Iraq and Kuwait.

Asked how the United States planned to end the crisis, Mr. Bush said only, "One way or another we will."

Most of the 3,000 Western and Japanese hostages held since the August 2 invasion of Kuwait returned home following President Saddam Hussein's call for their release.

Around 600 Westerners, mostly Americans, have decided to stay behind for family or professional reasons.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) - The World Bank Thursday announced a 304 million dollar loan to Colombia to finance reforms of bureaucracy aimed at encouraging free enterprise.

At the same time, the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) unveiled a 90 million dollar package to finance rural development programs and help small businesses in Colombia.

The World Bank loan will be used to finance such reforms as elimination of state monopolies and adoption of measures to foster economic competition, the bank said.

The Colombian Government will establish a performance, planning and evaluation system to be applied initially to the Colombian state oil and telecommunications companies and then to the majority of the state companies and institutes.

At the same time, the government will foster private sector investments in railroads, ports, shipping, low-cost housing, agricultural marketing, industry and finance.

The World Bank loan will be made in three tranches of 100 million dollar each over a period of two years. The remaining four million dollars will be used to finance a technical assistance program.

The IDB, meanwhile, extended a 75-million-dollar loan for increasing productivity and improving living conditions for some 280,000 small farmers in about 9,000 communities.

The bank approved a 14 million dollar loan to finance a loan and financial assistance program for small Colombian businessmen. A technical assistance program worth one million dollars will be used to help participating businesses increase productivity and competitiveness, the bank said.

ANKARA (DEC. 13) - Iran will not take part in a war against Iraq, and Teheran opposes "any geographic change in the region," Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati said here Thursday.

Mr. Velayati, speaking at the end of a 36-hour visit to Turkey, said Iran "respected the territorial integrity of Iraq" and would "under no circumstances take part in a war against Iraq."

The Iranian foreign minister said that the security of the Gulf "should be controlled by the countries of the region," which he said should be free of all chemical and nuclear weapons.

Mr. Velayati said both Turkey and Iran were respecting the U.N. Security Council's embargo of Iraq. He added that some smugglers had been arrested along Turkey's and Iran's borders with Iraq.

A U.S.-led 350,000-strong multinational force has been deployed in Saudi Arabia and other Gulf nations since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

The U.N. Security Council has given Iraq until January 15 to withdraw its troops from the emirate, after which force could be used to dislodge it.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) - U.S. Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney and General

Colin Powell, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, will travel to Saudi Arabia next week to inspect U.S. troops and meet with Saudi leaders, the Pentagon said Thursday.

The Defense Department said two men would be in Saudi Arabia from December 18 to 23, but declined to give any other information about the trip.

Also Thursday, the Air Force said that the F-16 fighter planes expected by the 50th Tactical Squadron based in Germany and A-10 tanks from the 10th Tactical Squadron based in Britain would arrive in January to reinforce troops already in the region.

The Defense Department has refused to say how many additional combat jets have been deployed in the Gulf to back up reinforcements announced last month by President George Bush.

Experts have estimated that at least 300 aircraft are in the Gulf, along with 10,000 troops with the U.S. Air Force.

The U.S. Navy has said it has mobilized 2,388 reservists, mostly medical personnel. Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said their deployment was going on as anticipated.

For strategic reasons, he has declined to reveal the number of hospital beds available in the region in the case of a conflict.

Also Thursday, the Red Cross announced that it would be joining with the American Association of Blood Banks to send 176 liters (375 pints) of blood to the Gulf weekly, to be used to treat U.S. troops.

If fighting breaks out, the two organizations may be asked to provide up to 376 (800 pints) of blood daily, authorities said.

PANAMA CITY (DEC. 13) - Panamanian police fought with hundreds of workers who had occupied the Panamanian Congress Thursday in a bid to remove the demonstrators from the building, eyewitnesses said.

Some 100 police used water cannon and tear gas to oust the workers from the congressional building, which they occupied Thursday morning shouting slogans such as,"You are workers and only care about rich Panamanians."

After being ejected from the building at about 5 p.m. local time (2200 GMT), the workers set four cars afire.

"It's a big demonstration, there are 10,000 people and they're in a belligerent mood," a policeman said.

SYDNEY (DEC. 14) - Anti-whaling campaigners hurled themselves from a helicopter into the bow-wave of a Japanese factory ship in an attempt to block its progress through the Tasman Sea, Greenpeace said Friday.

In a statement received here from the Greenpeace vessel Gondwana, campaign coordinator Vicki Getz said: "We're here to stop what the Japanese call scientific whaling but most of the rest of the world knows is commercial whaling."

Two teams of Greenpeace activists jumped from a helicopter in front of the 23,000-ton Nisshin Maru 3 about 650 kilometres (400 miles) off the east coast of Australia, Ms. Getz said.

"The activists were washed through the bow wave towards the stern of the factory ship and, once clear of the propellors, were picked up by Greenpeace inflatables and returned to the bow of the Japanese vessel to jump again."

The Nisshin Maru 3 responded to appeals from the Gondwana to stop its engines during the first two jumps, the statement said, but "as the protest continued over the next five hours... (it) made no further effort to cut its speed."

The Gondwana sighted the Nisshin Maru 3 on Wednesday on its way towards Antarctica to hunt 300 minke whales despite a ban on commercial whaling imposed by the International Whaling Commission in 1985, the statement said.

Japan claims that its taking of whales is for scientific and not commercial purposes.

Greenpeace said that it was demanding that the Cetacean Research Institute (CRI) in Tokyo recall the factory ship and its three accompanying catchers.

"The slaughter last year resulted in little or no scientific data but brought over 13 million dollars to the CRI and even more to Japan's commercial whale meat market," Ms. Getz said.

"If our demands are not met here in the Tasman, we will follow the fleet to the Antarctic into the whaling grounds."

The fleet is expected to reach the grounds in the Southern Ocean within eight days, the statement concluded.

PONGRO, Cambodia (DEC. 14) - Emergency aid has helped trigger a massive influx of displaced people to this camp near the battlefront in northwest Cambodia.

In early October, there were some 800 families in the camp just north of the provincial capital of Sisophon, according to aid workers.

By the end of November, that figure had soared to 2,600, putting enormous strain on infrastructure, particularly water supply, sewage disposal and housing.

The government says it is aware of the problems facing Pongro, situated in Beantey Meanchey province where the annual rice harvest will not meet local needs and which has called on aid agencies for help.

Children fly kites and livestock graze by flimsy thatch homes at the sprawling camp, whose five wells are inadequate, according to residents.

"Security is sufficient," said Kim Loeuy, a 27-year-old mother of six, "but we lack food."

Dith Tol, 31, a farmer who is blind, said his children were missing out on education because the camp school was full.

Doctors and officials here say the population increase cannot simply be put down to fighting between government forces and resistance guerrillas, which has been low key in recent months.

The alarming growth of Pongro, they said, coincided with a distribution in early October of emergency shelter kits.

One source linked to the operation said 800 kits -- one for each family of roughly five people -- were distributed here from September 30 to October 3 and another 365 were given out on November 5.

The kits were funded and put together by a consortium of non-governmental organisations and distributed through the Cambodian Red Cross.

For people who had fled the fighting in the north and northwest and managed to survive for a year without aid, the kits were "always welcome, if not immediately needed," a Western source said.

But the aid created a "pull effect" and displaced persons scattered in villages began to flock to Pongro, he said.

BELGRADE, (DEC 14) - The Albanian army was called in on Thursday to quell unrest by "hooligans without any political aims" in the northern town of Shkoder after three law-enforcement officers were injured, radio Tirana reported.

The unrest came as calm had returned to Tirana, the Albanian capital, after students led demonstrations for four days in a row. On Tuesday President Ramiz Alia announced that opposition political parties would be allowed.

They are to be permitted to compete for the first time in legislative elctions scheduled for February.

In a broadcast monitored by Britain's BBC radio, Radio Tirana said a mob threw stones "and whatever else they could find" at adjoining party and government buildings in the city.

The mob used "knives and iron bars to wound the district police chief, another officer and a policeman" and "used fire and dynamite to destroy different buildings."

The army and the police were brought in and dispersed the riot without firing a shot, Tirana radio continued.

The radio added that the "citizens of Skhoder, workers, communists and other working people" took to the streets to oppose the protestors.

GENEVA, (DEC 14) - The World Health Organization on Thursday said it would not be attending an international conference on AIDS in Bangkok next week because of Thai restrictions on granting visas to AIDS sufferers.

In a statement issued at its headquarters here, WHO said a Thai ministerial order prohibited the delivery of visas for short-term stays to people afflicted with AIDS.

WHO has asked Thai authorities to change the order to allow AIDS victims and people infected with the Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) to take part in the congress, which begins on Monday.

The WHO director general has asked WHO members states to review AIDS-related policies and legislation to eliminate discrimination against people infected with HIV or suffering from AIDS.

The WHO statement said discriminatory legislation had proved ineffective and sometimes even counter-productive in preventing the spread of AIDS.

JAKARTA (DEC. 13) - Indonesia Thursday received 181.6 billion yen (1.2 billion dollars) in new soft loans from Japan as part of the Tokyo's aid commitments for this year, the foreign ministry here said.

The latest aid comprised 500 million dollars in un-tied cash loans to help Indonesia strengthen its balance of payments position and 700 million dollars in project-related credits, the ministry said in a statement.

Diplomatic notes for the aid were signed by Foreign Minister Ali Alatas and Japan's Ambassador to Indonesia Michihiko Kunihiro, it added.

The loans, part of a 1.8 billion dollar aid package pledged to Indonesia this year, carry a 2.5 per cent annual interest rate and are repayable in 30 years, with a 10-year grace period, the statement said.

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) - A failing California savings and loan filed a six-billion-dollar lawsuit Wednesday against convicted Wall Street wizard Michael Milken, accusing him of fraudulently peddling junk bonds in the 1980s.

The lawsuit also named nine other former officials of Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. -- the company Mr. Milken made into a junk-bond powerhouse which later collapsed -- and more than 100 investment parternships sponsored by Drexel.

Columbia Savings and Loan Association, a former major Drexel customer, claims Mr. Milken and others manipulated and coerced it and other thrifts into buying billions of dollars' worth of the high-risk, high-yield bonds.

Columbia, which had a junk-bond portfolio valued at more than four billion dollars last year, says it lost more than two billion dollars on investments in the risky bonds after being promised the market for the bonds would remain active.

A statement by a spokesman for Mr. Milken said Columbia was an independent institution that made its own investment decisions, many times in disagreement with Mr. Milken.

"It is outrageous now to blame Michael Milken for losses as a result of strategies and decisions that were implemented long after he was no longer active at Drexel Burnham Lambert, and which he did not endorse or agree with," the statement said.

Last month, Mr. Milken was sentenced to 10 years in prison for six felonies related to illegal trading practices, but none of the charges involved junk bonds.

The Columbia lawsuit is one of several other civil complaints against Mr. Milken related to his financial activities at Drexel.

SYDNEY (DEC. 13) - The Australian government was under intense pressure Thursday to slash interest rates further following the release of what it conceded were "a very grim set of figures" on soaring unemployment.

The figures, the worst for seven years, were especially bleak for tens of thousands of school leavers about to enter a depressed job market.

The Bureau of Statistics figures revealed the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate had climbed from 7.6 per cent in October to 8.2 per cent in November, reflecting the most pessimistic economic forecasts.

Another 48,100 people joined the dole queues in November raising the total to 698,100 compared to 650,000 in October and 495,500 a year earlier.

Men in full time jobs were worst affected, with 25,700 losing work.

The figures were released 24 hours after a survey by the Australian Chamber of Manufactures and the State Bank of New South Wales concluded that unemployment would reach nine per cent next year. Some analysts say this figure will be easily exceeded.

Even Industry Minister John Button refused Thursday to rule out unemployment of 10 per cent and said his ministerial colleagues believed the "downturn is likely to be a little more protracted than originally thought."

The Confederation of Australian Industry urged the government to bring down interest rates, defer business tax payments and scrap proposed wage increases.

Its chief executive Ian Spicer described the latest job figures as "frightening" and said it was now likely that unemployment would pass 10 per cent in the first half of next year.

Equity and credit market economists also said the figures justified another monetary policy easing before the end of 1990.

However, some reports suggest that the Reserve Bank and Treasurer Paul Keating have already agreed to cut interest rates for the sixth time this year to try to boost the economy.

Employment Minister John Dawkins described the unemployment results as "a very grim set of figures", which reflected the economic downturn.

Mr. Dawkins predicted November would not be the last month in which a decline in employment or a rise in unemployment would occur. He told journalists that a very rapid decline in the number of jobs was not entirely unexpected by the government.

"There are no indications there is going to be an upturn in the next month or two," he said.

The latest figures co-incided with another indicator of deepening recession -- retail trade figures showing a 1.3 per cent fall in trade between September and October.

Financial markets have been expecting a cut in interest rates by up to one per cent since the release on November 29 of statistics showing the economy to be technically in recession.

Gross domestic product fell by 1.6 per cent for the September quarter following a 0.4 per cent fall in the June quarter.

The figures showed that the depressed industrial state of Victoria suffered the fastest rise in unemployment -- to 8.4 per cent in November from 4.6 per cent in January.

The neighbouring industrial state of New South Wales remained well below the national average despite a rise in unemployment to 7.1 per cent in November from 6.7 per cent the previous month.

BankAmerica economist Russell Maddox said the employment figures put the government "under immense pressure to cut rates".

Shadow Treasurer Peter Reith said the latest job figures "record in cold hard statistics the suffering imposed on Australians by the government's inaction in turning around Australia's fundamental economic problems."

JOHANNESBURG (DEC. 13) - Five more bodies have been found in Tokoza black township east of Johannesburg, bringing the death toll from faction clashes there on Tuesday to 70, police said Thursday.

In a statement, police said the bodies were found on Wednesday. The township was quiet Thursday and no further deaths had been reported since police and military reinforcements were sent in on Tuesday night, the statement added.

Fighting, primarily between Xhosa squatters in Tokoza's Phola Park camp and Zulus from nearby hostels, has seen more than 143 people killed in the past two weeks despite a curfew clamped on the township 10 days ago.

Zulu leader Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi and black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela, Deputy President of the African National Congress (ANC), separately toured the township on Wednesday to call for peace.

But Mr. Mandela and a party of high-profile diplomats and clerics were chased from a Zulu hostel by a hostile crowd of armed men and women chanting "Away Mandela" and bearing placards blaming the ANC for the violence.

Most of the Xhosas in Phola Park align themselves with the ANC.

OSAKA, JAPAN (DEC. 12) - Hungary is seeking capital participation by Takeda Chemical Industries Ltd., a leading Japanese pharmaceutical company, in the Budapest-based Gedeon Richter Ltd., Takeda officials said here Thursday.

Gedeon Richter is Hungary's largest pharmaceutical company and one of the 20 leading firms in the country to be privatized following the recent democratic revolution in Eastern Europe.

The Hungarian firm has asked Takeda to take on a 30 per cent equity interest or more, the officials said, but added that Takeda has not decided on the offer, they said.

In 1984, Takeda purchased sales rights from Gedeon Richter to market a medicine to treat strokes. It has also had business relationships with two other Hungarian drug makers.

MOSCOW (DEC. 13) - Tens of thousands of tons of emergency food aid from abroad are held up in ports and railway stations while Soviet shops go empty, the communist party newspaper Pravda reported Thursday.

Meanwhile, the KGB has set up hundreds of operational groups to oversee the distribution of aid, and has even called on some of its retired personnel to cope with the increased workload, the head of the state security service Vladimir Kryuchkov said.

Amid fears that much of the aid would go missing - as happened in the case of disaster relief sent to Armenia after the 1988 earthquake - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has put the KGB in charge of overseeing the distribution.

"We have to bring back order everywhere," Mr. Kryuchkov told Pravda.

More than one million tonnes of goods had accumulated in sea ports on December 10 and about 7,000 railway wagons were waiting at border stations, KGB sources said.

Soldiers from the Belorussian military district, near the border with Poland, were helping the Brest railway centre cope with the incoming cargoes, while railway workers were receiving higher pay.

Authorities, however, were stocking much of the aid in warehouses, leaving it at risk of being pilfered, the KGB said.

Mr. Kryuchkov, underlining the absence of a distribution system, said that some regions were receiving a lot of aid, while others were receiving nothing.

Nikolai Gavryushin, head of the Soviet railway commercial traffic department, told Pravda newspaper Sunday that some 20,000 containers and 300 railway wagons loaded with consumer goods and industrial equipment were waiting to be unloaded at Moscow's freight stations.

VIENNA (DEC. 13) - OPEC has decided to continue producing oil freely to replace embargoed Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil but has undertaken to re-introduce production quotas when the Gulf crisis ends, the Nigerian and Saudi Arabia oil ministers said at the end of a conference here on Thursday.

Saudi Arabian minister Hicham Nazer said that the August agreement by the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) remained in place.

This agreement authorised OPEC members to exceed their OPEC production ceilings in order to make good a supply shortfall caused by a United Nations embargo against Iraq for invading Kuwait.

Under that agreement, OPEC members agreed to resume the application of quotas as soon as the crisis was brought to an end.

The Nigerian minister Jibril Aminu said that the OPEC ministers would next meet in March.

He said that he was very pleased with the agreement which should send an important signal to the market and show that OPEC was united and capable of organising itself and of continuing to supply the market with oil.

OPEC president Sadel Boussena was expected to give a press conference later in the morning.

TOKYO (DEC. 13) - A senior Japanese trade official Thursday blamed the United States and the Cairns Group of agricultural exporters rather than the European Community (EC) for last week's suspension of trade talks in Brussels.

"Many participants felt that the United States and the Cairns Group were very, very rigid," said Noboru Hatakeyama, director general of the Ministry of International Trade and Industry's international trade policy bureau. "This perception was one of the reasons why the confrontation became so severe."

Mr. Hatakeyama told a news conference that the EC, whose rejection of a Swedish compromise on agriculture led to the suspension of the talks, made a major concession by agreeing to treat various aspects of farm trade separately.

"The EC moved this time," he said, noting that the "essence of the confrontation" between the two sides had been whether to consider export subsidies, internal supports and border measures separately or as a whole. "The EC seemed to me to agree to treat these three elements separately."

Mr. Hatakeyama also reiterated recent denials here that Japan had rejected the Swedish compromise along with South Korea and the 12-member community.

He attributed the confusion to a South American member of the 14-member Cairns Group. "Although the name of Japan was mentioned by this South American person Japan did not necessarily reject the agricultural proposal," he said.

The Cairns Group, named after the Australian city where it met in 1986, groups Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Colombia, Fiji, Hungary, Indonesia, Malaysia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Thailand and Uruguay.

Mr. Hatakeyama meanwhile hinted that following the suspension of last week's talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), Japan was considering relaxing its stance on imports of rice which are virtually banned.

"Even in the field of agriculture, fair concessions should be made by every country," he said.

Japan and South Korea were reportedly reluctant to support the Swedish compromise due to measures which required all countries to provide minimum market acccess of five per cent for all products whose imports are restricted.

The EC, on the other hand, opposed the pace of reduction of internal farm supports and subsidies on agricultural exports.

PARIS (DEC. 13) - A bomb blast, the seventh in a series aimed at U.S. targets damaged the front of a branch office of the beauty produts firm "New Cosmetics" here on Wednesday night police said Thursday.

It was the latest in a spate of attacks claimed by the leftist Gracchus Babeuf group since last year. A leaflet signed by the group was found outside the company offices in western Paris, police added.

The group last claimed responsibility for a bomb attack at the "European University of America" in Paris on December 3, saying the strike was to protest at the deployment of U.S. troops in the Gulf.

The movement draws its name from 18th century French revolutionary Francois Noel Babeuf, alias Gracchus.

WELLINGTON (DEC. 13) - The Soviet Union is to buy 100,000 tonnes of butter worth 200 million New Zealand dollars (120 million U.S), New Zealand Trade Negotiations Minister Philip Burdon said Thursday.

In a statement released here, Mr. Burdon said it was the biggest sale since the 1970s and the largest outside Britain for the New Zealand Dairy Board, a statutory exporting organisation of government and farmers.

It would make the Soviets the board's biggest customer this year, he added.

Early this week in Moscow, Mr. Burdon got the Soviet government to agree to pay 135 million dollars (81 million dollars) owed to New Zealand wool and dairy exporters.

New Zealand's trade with the Soviet Union virtually stopped after a clampdown on further agricultural sales until there was an agreement to repay the debt.

Mr. Burdon said Moscow had agreed to give the board an irrevocable letter of credit from the central state bank guaranteeing settlement of the debt in two installments, with the first due early next year.

Before going to Moscow, Mr. Burdon refused to grant food aid to the Soviet Union and said Wellington could not underwrite exports.

Council of Wool Exporters chairman Michael Moss said settlement of the Soviet Union's 15 million dollar (nine million U.S.) debt to New Zealand wool exporters would clear the way for new sales to the Soviets.

Mr. Burdon said the butter sale was the best possible Christmas news for dairy farmers.

"We are very grateful to the Soviets for recognising that, despite their own very tough economic conditions, a continued trading relationship is of great benefit to both countries," he said.

It was gratifying to secure a guarantee that the outstanding debt would be repaid, he added.

He said trade officials in Geneva had been working closely with other dairy exporters since Mr. Burdon's Moscow visit to agree to an exception from the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) international dairy agreement minimum price.

The dispensation, necessary to finalise the sale, reflected the size of the deal, Mr. Burdon said.

The sale was a landmark as it had been achieved despite international market pressures and the prospect of food aid deliveries by other countries on "very soft terms".

BONN (DEC. 13) - The European Community (EC) should adopt the Deutschemark as its sole currency and the Bundesbank as its central bank, the influential daily newspaper Sueddeutsche Zeitung said in an editorial on Thursday.

The Munich-based paper said the day before key ministerial meetings for the future of the EC begin in Rome, said that acceptance of the mark would be the "easiest solution" and the one most likely to be successful.

It said: "If all the Europeans did like Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, and linked their currencies to the mark, we could one day collect together all the national currencies and call the mark the Ecu, and the Bundesbank the central bank."

The paper said that the mark had been the "anchor" of the European Monetary System (EMS) since the EMS was created in 1979. "This anchor has held well because the EC countries have had to align themselves on the mark."

PARIS (DEC. 13) - French judge Gilles Boulouque, who was involved in several key anti-terrorist investigations, committed suicide late Wednesday, dying shortly after shooting himself in his Paris home, police said.

Investigators said they found no suicide note and the judge's motives were not immediately known. But they said they were certain it was suicide.

Well-informed sources said Mr. Boulouque, 40, had been having family problems and appeared very tired in recent weeks.

The young judge drew much attention for his part in investigating various terrorist attacks in France by Lebanese and pro-Iranian groups and the French guerrilla section of the Spanish Basque separatist organization, ETA.

He notably handled the investigation into several bloody terrorist bombings in 1986, and came under fire for his decision to allow Vahid Gordji, the number two man at the Iranian Embassy in Paris, to leave France in November, 1987, despite allegations implicating him in the attacks.

Mr. Boulouque was generally escorted by a heavily armed police squad, chauffered around Paris in an armored police vehicle, and carried his own high-caliber pistol.

MANILA (DEC. 13) - Chinese Prime Minister Li Peng arrived here Thursday for a three-day official visit that has been clouded by reports that Philippines President Corazon Aquino intends to visit Taiwan.

Mrs. Aquino met Mr. Li at Manila airport, where the premier was given full military honors.

"China and the Philippines are friendly neighbors," Mr. Li said in a written statement distributed to the press on his arrival.

"The purpose of my current visit to your country is to promote our friendship, deepen our understanding, broaden our common vision and develop our cooperation," he said.

Philippine officials said Mrs. Aquino would assure Mr. Li of Manila's adherence to the one-China policy, which it adopted when it switched diplomatic recognition from Taipei to Beijing in 1975. The policy requires foreign countries to acknowledge Beijing's full sovereignty over China, including Taiwan.

Mr. Li's visit, the first by a Chinese leader since 1981, comes at a time of strained ties with Manila. Despite Beijing's repeated protests over Manila's contacts with Taipei, the Philippines has been turning to Taiwan for investment, trade, tourism, and jobs for Filipino workers.

A report from Taipei on Wednesday that Mrs. Aquino had accepted an invitation from tycoon Jeffrey Koo of the China Trust Co. to visit Taiwan has not helped.

Mr. Li was accompanied by Foreign Minister Qian Qichen, Minister-in-Charge of the Commission for Restructuring the Economic System Chen Jinhua, and three vice-ministers. He was also scheduled to see Vice President Salvador Laurel, congressional leaders and about 100 members of the Filipino-Chinese community here before ending his visit Saturday.

PARIS (DEC. 13) - The dollar has steadied at around five French francs since the markets have known that the G7 group of leading industrialised countries is to meet, French Finance Minister Pierre Beregovoy told a press conference on Thursday.

The meeting was vital, not because of the trend of the Deutschemark but because "of the trend of currencies since the Gulf crisis began", he said.

The meeting would take account of "the movements of the yen, the dollar and also of European currencies," he said.

"We will make a judgement on the level which we hold to be acceptable for all the currencies and then we will look at what will happen in each country".

He also said, referring to the French economy, that if oil prices continued to fall in December, "there is a chance of seeing a 1990 inflation rate at the same level as in 1989" of 3.6 per cent.

The increase in prices in November, due to be published on Friday, could be "satisfactory", he said. He declined to comment on reports that the figure might show an increase of 0.1 per cent, or even a fall.

NAIROBI (DEC. 13) - The Food and Agriculture Organisation on Thursday made an urgent appeal for famine relief for Ethiopia to avert widespread deaths.

Ethiopia, and particularly the northern provinces of Eritrea and Tigre, will need one million tons of grain in 1991 if famine is to be kept at bay, the United Nations organisation said.

"With reserve stocks virtually depleted after last year's poor harvest in Eritrea and Tigre, widespread loss of life is inevitable unless further emergency relief and logistic support for its distribution are mobilised," the organisation said.

The famine had been caused by drought and by peristent "violence" in the north of the country. This was seen as a reference to a civil war between regular troop and rebels who are opposed to the government.

In most of the other regions of Ethiopia the harvest was about seven per cent above the annual average, the organisation said.

Two other provinces, Hararghe in the east and Wollo in the north, would also need food aid, the organisation said.

Several hundred thousand people who have fled civil war in the north of Somalia have taken refuge in Hararghe.

NEW DELHI (DEC. 13) - Indian Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar said Thursday he was planning a new initiative to end the Sikh separatist campaign in the northern state of Punjab which has claimed more than 3,000 lives this year.

The Press Trust of India (PTI) quoted Mr. Shekhar as saying a decision on solving "the Punjab problem" would be taken within a week and he was hopeful it would yield "positive results".

No details were available of what was being contemplated by the premier, who was speaking to reporters in his northern hometown of Ballia.

Since Mr. Shekhar came to office on November 10, Punjab has seen an escalation of the violence blamed on Sikh separatists campaigning for an independent homeland which they call Khalistan.

Over the past 24 hours, seven more people are reported to have died in the Punjab violence.

Security forces shot two Sikh militants Thursday, while separatists shot and killed four civilians in separate attacks late Wednesday, PTI reported. One Sikh rebel died as the result of a factional dispute.

More than 3,230 people have been killed in Punjab political violence this year.

AUCKLAND, NEW ZEALAND (DEC. 13) - Seven top officials of New Zealand's failed multinational merchant bank Equiticorp were arrested Thursday and charged with 14 counts of fraud, Television New Zealand (TVNZ) reported.

Serious Fraud Office (SFO) director Charles Sturt would not name those arrested, but TVNZ said late Thursday that Equiticorp founder and managing director Alan Hawkins was one of those charged.

The television showed Mr. Hawkins being driven into the police station.

The 14 charges relate to a total of 440 million New Zealand dollars (264 million dollars U.S) -- making it easily New Zealand's biggest ever fraud case and one of the biggest involving merchant banking in the world -- he said.

Further charges involving 60 million dollars (36 million dollars) are expected to be laid, TVNZ said.

The seven were released on bail after special High Court sittings and will appear in Auckland District Court Friday to face joint and individual charges of conspiracy to defraud and other fraud offences related to Equiticorp.

The arrests follow an eight-month SFO investigation, which is continuing, and more are expected, Mr. Sturt said.

The men were remanded in custody Thursday and refused bail by High Court Judge Justice James Sinclair.

On appeal, however, Justice Peter Tompkins overruled the decision and the men were released Thursday night.

Equiticorp was founded by Mr. Hawkins in 1984 as a merchant bank.

His major acquisitions in New Zealand included New Zealand Steel and white goods company Fisher and Paykel. He then moved to Australia, buying ACI Glass and a significant stake in BHP.

His most controversial acquisition was Britain's Guinness Peat company.

Equiticorp dived with the October 1987 sharemarket crash and Mr. Hawkins, whose family trusts controlled the bulk of the company, consolidated holdings in Equiticorp International based in Hong Kong.

In January 1989, Mr. Hawkins called in the liquidator. The New Zealand government then appointed a provisional receiver for Equiticorp, which at that time owned 99 companies.

Mr. Sturt at a press conference named Equiticorp as the company connected with the arrests "to avoid any unwarranted speculation or rumour" but would not name the individuals.

"I estimate the trial will take about nine months," he said.

Government-appointed statutory managers handling the collapse of the companies in the Equiticorp Group were unaware of Thursday's arrests until after they were made public.

Mr. Sturt said the managers had given support to SFO inquiries.

The statutory managers have filed a 564 million dollar (338 million dollars) writ against 17 individuals and firms connected with Equiticorp over share dealings and the sale of New Zealand Steel in 1988.

Named in that writ are Mr. Hawkins and the New Zealand attorney-general.

Being a civil case, it could take a back seat to the latest criminal charges. Mr. Sturt was reluctant to express a viewpoint on that matter.

The writ also names overseas parties.

"Equiticorp is very well known in Australia and has a strong presence in London," Mr. Sturt said.

"Agencies in those countries have been assisting us, and we are extremely pleased the way this has been expedited," he said.

He said there was no provision in New Zealand at the moment to try to retrieve any of the money cited in the charges. A bill concerning forfeiture of the proceeds of crime is now before Parliament.

FRANKFURT (DEC. 13) - The German central Bundesbank on Thursday left its key interest rates unchanged, bank sources said after the fortnightly meeting of the governing committee.

The discount rate remains at six per cent and the Lombard rate at 8.5 per cent.

The bank set a target range for M3 money suply in 1991 at between four per cent and six per cent, bank president Karl-Otto Poehl said.

The M3 calculation covers money in circulation, short-term deposits and deposits made for up to four years.

The target for 1990 was a range from four per cent to six per cent.

FRANKFURT (DEC. 13) - The German Bundesbank entered new territory on Thursday setting a money supply target for all of Germany.

In what it said was a continuation of its previous policy, the bank targeted a rise in the money supply of between 4 and 6 per cent, the same as that which had been set for the final quarter of 1990.

The target was set for the ''M 3'' supply, which includes cash in circulation, sight deposits, savings accounts and fixed deposits.

The Bundesbank said it would be closely monitoring the current signs of danger to price stability in Germany and would act accordingly.

The money supply in eastern Germany, where the Deutschmark was introduced as the legal currency last July 1 in advance of German unification, is estimated to be about ten per cent of that in western Germany, according to bank data.

Finance sector analysts note that the Bundesbank in setting the money supply target for all of Germany was entering uncharted waters, since the spending and savings habits of people in eastern Germany were still not completely known.

Other factors complicating the calculations include the rise of unemployment in eastern Germany, with its as yet unforeseeable effects on spending and savings habits there and the continuing problems in payment transfers, the analysts say.

Baghdad (DEC. 13) - The Iraqi Ministry of Agriculture and Irrigation has launched numerous measures aimed at boosting the country's agricultural production and foiling the international economic embargo against Iraq, Ina news agency reported here.

The agency quoted a report published Thursday by the Baghdad Observer saying that President Saddam Hussein, who was heading the drive, ''has ordered an increase in the price of wheat, barley, rice and corn purchased by the government from farmers.''

A campaign had been launched ''to cut down Iraq's imports of agricultural products and attain self-sufficiency in basic crops.'' Farmers had been given incentives to expand their production to boost the country's national output.

Ina added that ''the government has encouraged farmers to increase production of cereals. Facilities other than financial funds have included seeds, pesticides, fertilisers and planting and harvesting machines.''

The government had adopted a number of measures to encourage rice planting, to distribute raw materials for poultry projects, and to examine and diagnose animal diseases at an early stage.

More than 233,512 plots of arable land owned by the government had been leased to private farmers, and the state had reclaimed lost areas of land through several irrigation projects, including the giant drainage system of al-Massab al-Aam, the report noted.

According to the ministry's statistics, 518,000 tonnes of fertilisers, about 155,000 tonnes of wheat, and 39,000 tones of barley had been allocated by the ministry for the winter planting.

The ministry had also launched campaigns and despatched teams to remote villages in the country to encourage people working in agriculture to use scientific and modern methods of cultivation, Ina said.

BEIJING (DEC. 13) - China is in favor of a United Nations-sponsored international peace conference on the Middle East at an early date, foreign ministry spokesman Li Zhaoxing said Thursday.

Mr. Li told a weekly press briefing that such a meeting would represent "an effort to seek a fair and reasonable settlement of the Middle East question through political means."

It would be attended by all five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council, including China, as well as "all parties concerned in the region," Mr. Li said.

He did not specify what China would like to see on the agenda, or whether such a conference should link Iraq's invasion of Kuwait to the Israeli-occupied West Bank issue.

China has condemned Israel's presence in the West Bank, while demanding the immediate withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait.

"It is our hope that the U.N. secretary general will continue to strengthen his co-ordination with all parties concerned so as to promote the holding of an international peace conference at an early date," Mr. Li said.

Tel Aviv (DEC. 13) - Israeli Agriculture Minister Rafael Eitan is only days away from declaring a full-scale water emergency which will mean an automatic cut of 25 per cent in irrigation quotas afforded the nations farmers, it was reported Thursday.

Israel's water supply has been severely affected by the current drought caused by the months-long delay in the start of the annual winter rains.

According to the Jerusalem Post newspaper, the current winter has been the hottest and driest for 70 years with December temperatures up 7 degrees centigrade from the yearly average.

In addition to restricting the nation's farmers, Eitan's expected decrees will also ban the watering of private gardens and public parks.

Strasbourg (DEC. 13) - The European Parliament approved here Thursday the 1991 budget of the European Community targeted for a 19 per cent hike in spending, the strongest rise in the E.C.'s history.

Commenting on the 55.5 billion European Currency Units (77 billion dollars) spending plan, the parliament's budget committee spokesman Alain Lamassoure noted that 54 per cent of the spending will go into the agricultural sector.

The spending increase over 1990 expenditures is accounted for by extra funds for the five new states of eastern Germany (the former East Germany) as well as for aid to be provided Jordan, Egypt and Turkey, the countries mainly affected by the Gulf crisis.

BERLIN (DEC. 13) - Personal indebtedness in western Germany rose 10.6 per cent in the 1983-9 period, to average 11,280 Deutsche marks (7,621 dollars) per household, partly because of greater use of credit cards, the federal statistics office said Thursday.

The number of households in the red also rose nearly a fifth, to affect 19.7 per cent of the total, the agency's president, Egon Hoelder, said.

He estimated the private savings of 61 million west Germans, at the start of 1989, at 634 billion marks (434.4 billion dollars).

But this was very unevenly distributed, he said: 14.5 per cent of households had assets of less than 2,500 marks (1,689 dollars), representing just 0.5 per cent of the total.

By comparison, 1.2 per cent had more than 200,000 marks (135,135 dollars), and possessed 13.4 per cent of the total, he said.

WARSAW (DEC. 13) - Poland's foreign debt load is expected to rise by a further 3.8 billion dollars to reach 49.9 billion dollars by the end of the year, Central Planning Office director Jerzy Osiatynski said here Thursday.

Presenting parliament with a budget draft for 1991, Osiatynski said there was a ''major chance'' that an agreement could be reached with Warsaw's creditors to adapt the debt obligations to Poland's economic situation.

He said Warsaw hoped for both that some of its debt would be forgiven and the rest put under a long-term rescheduling so that the service costs would be reduced to about two per cent of the nominal value of the debt.

Osiatynski said that in 1990, Poland expected to achieve a 4.5 billion dollar surplus in foreign trade, amid an 8.4 per cent rise in exports and 28.9 per cent slashing of imports.

But in 1991, amid the restructuring of trade going on among the East European nations, Poland will likely suffer a trade deficit of around one billion dollars.

PRETORIA (DEC. 13) - South Africa's Reserve (Central) Bank said on Thursday it expected poor growth prospects for the country in 1991, especially in the light of higher crude oil prices.

The bank said in its quarterly economic review released here Thursday that the country's Gross Domestic Product (GDP) is expected to be one per cent lower in the 1990 calendar year than in 1989, following a decline in the GDP for the fourth consecutive quarter.

In November, Finance Minister Barend du Plessis also warned that 1991 would be a "very difficult year" for the economy.

Further shrinkage of aggregate real output in the third quarter of 1990 was mainly due to a drop in agricultural output and a decline in real output in the manufacturing and construction sectors.

In the manufacturing industry, industrial action, worker intimidation and strikes were a factor which contributed to the decline in output, the review said.

In October this year, industrial relations experts predicted that some four million man-days will have been lost by the end of the year through strikes.

VIENNA (DEC. 13) - Austria is pressing strongly for the closure of a nuclear power station at Bohunice in Czechoslovakia, Chancellor Franz Vranitzky said here on Thursday after Austrian experts reported that it was "unsafe".

An Austrian delegation was to go to Prague on Friday to press for closure of the plant which is situated 100 kilometres (62 miles) from Vienna and is based on a Soviet VVER 230 and 213 design.

The head of the Austrian commission of experts, nuclear physics Professor Manfred Heindler, reported that the safety arrangements had dramatically weak points, and that "the effects of an accident could also affect Austria".

He was particularly critical of the lack of an emergency cooling system, of protection against fire, and of a back-up safety system.

The measures to protect against earthquakes were inadequate, he said.

In the event of an accident, the spread of radioactivity could not be prevented. Under certain unfavourable weather conditions, parts of Austria would have to be evacuated.

The Austrian economy ministry meanwhile studied ways of providing Czechoslovakia with free electricity, the chancellor siad.

Austria will also provide energy-saving know-how to Czechoslovakia.

PARIS (DEC. 13) - Agriculture minister Louis Mermaz said Thursday that France opposes extension of an agreement on corn (maize) between the European Community (EC) and the United States, non-renewal of which would risk triggering another trade conflict between the two sides.

An informed source in Brussels said on Wednesday that the community might agree to extend the accord for one year.

The issue should be discussed in Brussels on Friday by EC agriculture commissioner Ray MacSharry and U.S. agriculture secretary Clayton Yeutter.

On Wednesday, the EC Commission authorized Mr. MacSharry to treat the issue flexibly, and to agree, under certain conditions, to a one-year extension of the favorable treatment given to U.S. corn under the existing agreement, the source said.

But "I'm against it", Mr. Mermaz told a news conference here, adding that he had written to Mr. MacSharry to inform him of French opposition.

He said, however, that the community could make some concessions "to our American friends" by extending the accord for six months, to the end of the next June. But he added that such extension would not have much practical effect, since the American harvest comes in September.

The agreement authorizes the United States to export two million tonnes of corn and 300,000 tonnes of sorghum at lower tariff rates to Spain and Portugal annually. The agreement was made in 1987 to compensate U.S. losses in connection with Spanish and Portuguese membership in the EC, and it expires at the end of this year.

Mr. Mermaz said it would be illogical for the EC to subsidize French corn exorts to third world countries when U.S. corn could come into some EC countries virtually duty-free.

BONN (DEC. 13) - The German government may impose an annual motorway toll of 100 Deutsche marks (67.50 dollars) per car to help pay for German unity, a coalition member said Thursday.

Wolfgang Boetsch, parliamentary leader of the Christian Social Union (CSU), said the fee was discussed, but not decided, during negotiations Wednesday between the coalition parties over the future government programme.

It would increase government revenue by between four billion and five billion Deutsche marks (2.7 bn to 3.37 bn dollars) a year, Mr. Boetsch said in an interview on German television.

He defended the tax as a contribution towards the huge investment needed to rebuild the road network in eastern Germany.

While opposing the idea of new "taxes" to pay for unity, Chancellor Helmut Kohl alluded to the idea of a motorway toll and other new consumer fees in the runup towards the December 2 general elections.

He set off a squabble with the Free Democratic Party (FPD), the liberal group that is in coalition with the CSU and Mr. Kohl's Christian Democratic Union (CDU).

The FDP said it was against any addition to the fiscal burden.

NAIROBI (DEC. 13) - More food assistance than ever will be needed worldwide next year, a World Food Program official said here Thursday.

According to conservative estimates, four million tons of food are needed to help victims of drought, refugees and displaced persons. Some 3.2 million tons alone will go to black African countries with 14 million needy people.

Also on Thursday, the United Nations' Food and Agriculture Organisation (Fao) launched an appeal for one million tons food for Ethiopia where four million people are threatened with starvation in the northern provinces Eritrea and Tigray, devastated by civil war and drought.

Similarly, the Fao has asked for one million tons of food for Sudan.

World Food Programme Director James Ingram strongly urged donor countries to make preliminary aid pledges now so that the food assistance would be available during the first half of 1991.

''People affected by drought, war and pestilence in the developing world rely totally on the international community for their food,'' Ingram said. ''Without it they will die.''

In Liberia, where civil war has raged for a year, about 200,000 tons of food would be needed for displaced persons in the country as well as in neighbouring Sierra Leone, Guinea and Ivory Coast, Ingram said.

In Angola, 1.9 million people had been plunged into misery by war and drought, while three million needed assistance in Mozambique and neighbouring countries. He said Afghan refugees in Pakistan and Iran required 500,000 tons of food.

PARIS (DEC. 13) - French economics and finance minister Pierre Beregovoy said Thursday, one day before release of price data for November, that the index for the month should be "satisfactory", and that inflation for 1990 as a whole might be the same as last year: 3.6 per cent.

He refused to comment on estimates published in the press that November inflation should be a mere 0.1 per cent at the worst, and that it could even be negative.

He explained his optimism on the price front by the general downtrend of oil prices. "If, as expected, the prices of fuels decline in December, as in November, we have a reasonable chance for 1990 inflation to be at the same level as in 1989".

Fuels account for 8.7 per cent of the price index, and oil products alone for about five per cent.

Asked about the measure voted on Wednesday by Parliament to exclude tobacco products from the price index starting on January 1, 1992, the minister said "that initiative did not come from the government." He said the institute could publish "one index without tobacco and another one with tobacco".

In its latest note on business conditions, INSEE forecasts inflation of 3.7 per cent for this year, against its prediction of 3.1 per cent made before the start of the Gulf crisis on August 2.

Mr. Beregovoy said that a 3.6 per cent showing would mean that "We have won the battle against inflation", and that "the economy is perfectly sound" - a fact that should strengthen "consolidation of the franc and encourage investment.

MOSCOW (DEC. 13) - South Korean President Roh Tae-Woo arrived here Thursday on a trail-blazing four-day visit, saying it marked the end of the Cold War between the two countries.

"My visit to the Soviet Union is proof that our two countries have closed the chapter on the Cold War and opened a new era of peace and cooperation," Mr. Roh said in a statement on arrival at Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport.

The South Korean president, his wife, Kim Ok-Soo, and a 16-member delegation were met by Vadim Medvedev, a member of the Soviet presidential council, and other Soviet officials, Tass news agency reported.

Mr. Roh and his wife were later officially welcomed by Mr. Gorbachev and his wife, Raisa, at the Kremlin's St. George's Hall, Tass said. The two presidents had a brief conversation, the agency added.

Mr. Roh is due to have a second meeting with Mr. Gorbachev on Friday.

In his arrival statement, Mr. Roh said "the development of Soviet-Korean relations will greatly contribute to the lessening of tensions on the Korean peninsula and to the strengthening of peace in the Pacific-Asia region."

The visit would also help "speed up peaceful reunification of north and south Korea," he said.

"The Soviet Union with her enormous potential and the Republic of Korea with her vibrant energy for development will open a new page of history as partners for peace and prosperity of the Asia-Pacific," the president said.

The visit here, the first by a South Korean president, comes three months after the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries and 40 years after the outbreak of the Korean war.

The South Korean leader is scheduled to make a speech at Moscow University on Friday and tour Leningrad on Saturday before returning home on Monday.

Accompanying Mr. Roh are Foreign Minister Choi Ho-Joong, Trade and Industry Minister Park Pil-Soo and Science and Technology Minister Kim Jin-Hyun, as well as several business leaders.

Among the South Korean industrialists in the delegation are the founder of the Hyundai Group, Chung Ju-Yung, the most active investor in various development projects in Soviet Siberia, and Lee Kun-Hee, the chairman of Samsung, one of the largest South Korean business conglomerates.

LONDON (DEC. 13) - British Prime Minister John Major said here Thursday he would argue for a joint statement stressing the need for the successful completion of the stalled GATT negotiations at the European Community summit in Rome.

Speaking in the House of Commons shortly before departing for the EC summit, Mr. Major said he wanted to see "a very positive statement from the European Council which makes absolutely clear the Community's determination to make a success of the GATT negotiations."

He said risk of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) talks failing was "very great" Britain and many other countries and added it was "extremely imporant" that the talks be brought to a successful conclusion.

The latest round of GATT negotiations involving more than 100 countries broke down in acrimony earlier this month with the United States and several other countries sharply at odds with the EC over Community farm subsidy policies.

"A great deal of the growing prosperity in recent years has clearly been the result of the steady removal of barriers to trade -- we wish that to continue," Mr. Major said.

But in a gesture to his EC partners, Mr. Major, attending his first Community summit as head of government, said he wanted to protect not only British interests "but to look at the interests of Europe as a whole."

NEW DELHI (DEC. 13) - India and the Soviet Union finalized a bilateral trade plan on Thursday with a turnover of 5.227 billion dollars both ways for 1991, an official announcement here said.

A protocol signed between the two sides here envisaged Indian imports worth 2.405 billion dollars from the Soviet Union and exports valued at 2.822 billion dollars next year.

The new trade plan would represent a seven per cent growth over that fixed for 1990 and a 12 percent rise over the actual trade turnover achieved this year, an official release said.

The protocol was signed by Soviet deputy foreign trade minister V.F. Mordvinov and Indian commerce ministry secretary S.P. Shukla.

A major Indian import would be crude oil, which the Soviet Union had agreed to maintain at the existing supply level of 4.5 million tonnes a year.

Other major shipments to the Soviet Union will be chemicals and leather, engineering and textile goods, the release said.

BEIJING (DEC. 13) - China has praised deceased American industrialist and philanthropist Armand Hammer for his contribution to improved relations between Beijing and Washington, national television said Thursday.

A telegram of condolence from President Yang Shangkun and Premier Li Peng said Mr. Hammer, who died Monday aged 92, had made numerous visits to China and had contributed to "the promotion of economic cooperation and cultural exchanges" between the two countries, the station reported.

The telegram went on to say Mr. Hammer "was an old and respected friend of China."

The telegram was sent Wednesday to Ray Irani, the new president of Mr. Hammer's Occidental Petroleum Corp., by China's consul general in Los Angeles, Ma Yuzhen.

The television said senior leader Deng Xiaoping, who had met Mr. Hammer, and party secretary general Jiang Zemin had also sent messages of condolence but it did not give the content.

Mr. Hammer had worked to introduce Western investment to communist and Third World countries. A a personal friend of Lenin, he also maintained close contacts with other world leaders including Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and former U.S. president Ronald Reagan.

XAPURI, Brazil (DEC. 13) - The murder trial of a wealthy rancher and his son entered its second day Thursday as witnesses prepared to testify in the killing of Chico Mendes, a peasant leader who led an environmental crusade to save the Amazon.

The trial in this tiny backwater in western Acre state began Wednesday with a stunning courtroom confession by 23-year-old Darcy Alves Pereira, who admitted he shot and killed Mr. Mendes December 22, 1988 but insisted he acted alone.

Already sentenced to 12 years prison in June in a separate case, Mr. Pereira sought to clear his father, Darly Alves da Silva, 56, charged with ordering the Mendes murder.

The case has drawn reporters from around the world because of Mr. Mendes' effort to draw attention to the devastation of the Amazon rain forest by ranchers, loggers and miners.

An organizer of rubber tappers, or "seringueiros", who depend on the rain forest for their living, Mr. Mendes also came to symbolize the struggle between Brazil's landless peasants and its seemingly untouchable landed elites.

Seven jurors, chosen from among Xapuri's 5,000 inhabitants and who know the accused personally, were to hear testimony from five witnesses for the defense and seven for the prosecution.

Mr. da Silva has pleaded innocent and defense laywer Rubens Torres declared "there is insufficient evidence to incriminate him."

"We are going to show that it was Chico Mendes himself who incited Darcy to commit the crime ... and not the contrary," he told reporters Thursday before the resumption of the trial.

Prosecuting attorney Thomas Bastos hopes to prove Mr. da Silva's guilt with the testimony of a 16-year-old boy, Genesio da Silva, who worked as a farm hand for Mr. da Silva between the ages of seven and 14.

The youth, whose sister is married to another son of Mr. da Silva, testified three times after Mr. Mendes' killing that the rancher's family was implicated in a dozen crimes.

BEIJING (DEC. 13) - The president of China's parliament, Wan Li, called Thursday for a peaceful resolution to the Gulf crisis and urged Iran to play a role in finding such a settlement, the New China News Agency (NCNA) said.

Mr. Wan made the call in a meeting with a delegation from the Iranian parliament's Sino-Iranian friendship group, headed by Mohammed Ibrahim Asgharzadeh, the official news agency said.

Saying both countries wanted to see a peaceful solution, Mr. Wan urged "a peaceful settlement should be sought out as long as there is a thread of hope," adding "China hopes Iran will play its role in the settlement of the crisis," NCNA reported.

Mr. Asgharzadeh was reported as saying Teheran appreciated China's position.

Chinese President Yang Shangkun reiterated Tuesday that Beijing wanted a peaceful solution at a meeting with a special envoy of Saudi Arabia's King Fahd, Abdul Al-Aziz Althanayan, who is deputy foreign minister.

China, one of the five permanent members of the United Nations Security Council, abstained from a U.N. vote last month authorising the use of force by the multinational force stationed in the Gulf if Iraq did not withdraw from Kuwait by January 15.

ANKARA (DEC. 13) - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze spent 90 minutes discussing the Gulf crisis and other issues with his Turkish counterpart Ahmet Kurtcebe Alptemocin on Thursday.

Turkish Foreign Ministry sources said Shevardnadze, who arrived earlier in the day from the United States, briefed Alptemocin on his talks in Washington and heard Turkey's views on the Gulf crisis.

The two men also discussed an agreement for closer political ties that President Turgut Ozal is expected to sign during a state visit to Moscow early next year, the sources said.

Although a Nato member, Turkey has built up economic ties in the past decade with the Soviet Union, the leading member of the now-crumbling Warsaw pact.

The Soviets have set up steel, aluminium and petro-chemical complexes in Turkey, while Turkish contractors have secured deals worth 500 million dollars in the Soviet Union.

Shevardnadze is due meet Friday with Ozal and Premier Yildirim Akbulut. He is also expected to sign agreements on combatting drug abuse and early notification of nuclear accidents.

BERLIN (DEC. 13) - The cost of railway travel in the territory of former East Germany will rise by 50 percent from January 1 because of a reduction in government subsidies after the October 3 unification of Germany, the Deutsche Reichsbahn announced Thursday.

The Reichsbahn's 260,000 employees staged a two-day strike earlier this month to press a pay demand and secure guarantees for more than 50,000 workers threatened by a restructuring plan. Negotiations are to resume in January.

The increase still leaves Reichsbahn tariffs around half the level of those of the Deutsche Bundesbahn, the state company that runs the railway network in western Germany.

VIENNA (DEC. 13 EFE - Thousands of Romanian transport workers Thursday returned to work, ending a three-day transport strike after the government said it would sack four cabinet ministers, review pay and implement more economic and social reforms.

The concessions announced by Prime Minister Petre Roman ment had accepted most of the strikers' demands.

Roman said the government had made some mistakes reforming the country's economy by not being flexible enough and by failing to consult the unions.

But the prime minister did not back down from plans to lift all price controls on consumer goods from June next year.

The ministers of health, education, agriculture and labor will all lose their jobs as a result of the agreement.

A new law will be drafted guaranteeing unemployment benefits, and the government's proposals for controls on wage-regulation and the right to strike will be modified, Roman said.

Transport was paralyzed throughout Romania during the stoppage as striking truckers blocked the roads.

But students in Timisoara, cradle of last year's popular revolution which saw the ousting and execution of former communist dictator Nicolae Ceaucescu, said they would continue strike action.

They are calling for the removal from office of President Ion Iliescu and the entire National Salvation Front cabinet, accusing its officials of holding senior posts under the former communist government.

THE DEPARTMENT SAID THE POPULATION GROWTH PEACKED AT 1.4 PERCENT IN 1984. IN THE LAST FIVE YEARS, THE GROWTH RATE REMAINED ABOVE 1 PERCENT.

IT SAID VARIOUS INDICATORS SHOWED THE CYPRUS POPULATION WAS IN THE PROCESS OF AGING BUT HAD NOT REACHED EUROPEAN STANDARDS.

FERTILITY INDICATORS IN CYPRUS WERE HIGHER THAN IN EUROPE AND OTHER DEVELOPED COUNTRIES.

MORTALITY REACHED LOW LEVELS. IN 1989, THE CRUDE DEATH RATE WAS ESTIMATED AT 8.6 DEATHS PER THOUSAND PEOPLE AND THE INFANT MORTALITY AT 11 INFANT DEATHS PER THOUSEAND LIVE BIRTHS.

STOCKHOLM (DEC. 13) XINHUA - IT WILL BE THE FIRST TIME IN MANY YEAR FOR DENMARK TO HAVE BILLION-KRONER PAYMENTS SURPLUS AND TO BE ABLE TO REPAY SOME OF ITS FOREIGN DEBT, SHOWS THE STATISTICS FROM DENMARK.

THE COUNTRY'S BALANCE OF PAYMENTS SURPLUS FOR THE FIRST TEN MONTHS OF 1990 STANDS AT 7.3 BILLION DANISH KRONER (ABOUT 1.3 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS). THE SURPLUS FOR THE ENTIRE YEAR IS EXPECTED TO BE AROUND 5 BILLION DANISH KRONER (ABOUT 870 MILLION DOLLARS). IT WILL BE THE FIRST TIME IN 27 YEARS THAT THE BOOKS HAVE BALANCED POSITIVELY.

THE MILLION-KRONER PAYMENTS SURPLUS MEANS THAT DENMARK CAN REPAY SOME OF ITS FOREIGN DEBT FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE 1963. THE FOREIGN DEBT BECAME SMALLER LAST YEAR TOO, BUT THIS WAS ONLY BECAUSE THE DANISH KRONE BECAME STRONGER AGAINST THE FOREIGN CURRENCIES IN WHICH THE BORROWINGS WERE ORIGINALLY MADE. PARIS (DEC. 13) XINHUA - IN A LETTER TO PRINCE NORODOM SIHANOUK, LEADERS FROM THREE OF THE CAMBODIAN RESISTANCE PARTIES AGREED UNANIMOUSLY ON TUESDAY NOT TO DISCUSS THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE POSTS OF CHAIRMAN AND VICE CHAIRMAN OF SUPREME NATIONAL COUNCIL (SNC) OF CAMBODIA IN ORDER TO HASTEN DISCUSSIONS FOR AN OVERALL AGREEMENT AND POLITICAL SOLUTION TO THE CAMBODIAN ISSUE, THE REPORTS SAID HERE.

THE LETTER, WHICH WAS SIGNED BY SON SANN, KHIEU SAMPHAM AND NORODOM RANARITH, SAID THAT GIVEN THE CURRENT SITUATION, THE MOST IMPORTANT QUESTION IS WHETHER ALL SIDES INVOLVED IN THE CAMBODIAN CONFLICT, INCLUDING VIETNAM AND THE REGIME IN PHNOM PENH, WOULD ACCEPT THE AGREEMENT REACHED FOR A POLITICAL SOLUTION TO THE CAMBODIAN ISSUE BY UN SECURITY COUNCIL'S FIVE PERMANENT MEMBERS.

ALL SIDES INVOLVED IN THE CAMBODIAN ISSUE WOULD NOT BE ALLOWED TO MENTION THE QUESTION OF THE SNC'S CHAIRMANSHIP BEING ESTABLISHED IN ORDER TO AVOID GIVING A CLEAR STATEMENT ON AN AGREEMENT HAVING BEEN REACHED BEFORE THE TWO CHAIRMANS OF THE PARIS INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE.

THE THREE LEADERS POINTED OUT THAT THEY UNANIMOUSLY BELIEVE THAT PRINCE SIHANOUK IS THE ONLY ONE QUALIFIED TO HOLD THE POST OF THE SNC'S CHAIRMAN.

SIHANOUK PROPOSED ON DECEMBER 10 THAT IN VIEW OF THE DISAGREEMENT OVER THE SNC'S LEADERSHIP POSTS, THE 12 MEMBERS OF SNC MAY BE ABLE TO WORK EQUALLY WELL WITHOUT A CHAIRMAN TO REALIZE PEACE IN CAMBODIA AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

CAIRO, (DEC. 13) XINHUA - IRAN TODAY REITERATED THE CALL FOR IRAQ TO WITHDRAW FROM KUWAIT UNDER IRAQI OCCUPATION SINCE AUGUST 2, ACCORDING TO A REPORT FROM ANKARA, TURKEY.

AT THE END OF A TWO-DAY VISIT TO TURKEY, FOREIGN MINISTER ALI AKBAR VELAYATI SAID THAT "WE DEEPLY BELIEVE IN A PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT OF THE CRISIS."

HE TOLD REPORTERS THAT IRAN AND TURKEY BOTH WERE DETERMINED TO OBSERVE THE U.N. SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTIONS ON THE GULF CRISIS.

MEANWHILE, HE DENIED PRESS ALLEGATIONS THAT FOOD WAS BEING SMUGGLED FROM IRAN INTO NEIGHBORING IRAQ IN VIOLATION OF THE U.N.-ENDORSED EMBARGO AGAINST IRAQ.

HE SAID THREE MONTHS AGO SOME SMUGGLERS WERE CAUGHT TAKING FRUIT INTO IRAQ BUT CURRENTLY THERE WAS NO INDICATION THAT THERE WAS ANY SMUGGLING OF GOODS OR MATERIALS INTO IRAQ."

ASKED ABOUT THE EFFECTS OF A WAR IN THE GULF, THE IRANIAN FOREIGN MINISTER SAID, "WE STRONGLY SUPPORT THE TERRITORIAL INTEGRITY OF IRAQ ... WE ARE AGAINST ANY CHANGE IN THE GEOGRAPHY OF THE REGION."

"ANY CHANGE WOULD BE HARMFUL AND VERY DANGEROUS," HE ADDED, WITHOUT ELABORATION.

SOME OBSERVERS BELIEVE THAT IF IRAQ IS DEFEATED IN A WAR WITH THE U.S.-LED MULTINATIONAL FORCES, AN INDEPENDENT KURDISH STATE MAY BE FORMED IN THE NORTHERN PART OF IRAQ.

TURKEY AND IRAN ALSO HAVE ETHNIC KURDS AND THEREFORE ARE OPPOSED TO THE IDEA.

TOKYO (DEC. 13) KYODO - JAPAN'S PERSONAL SAVINGS IN THE JULY-SEPTEMBER QUARTER GREW AT A SLOWER PACE THAN A YEAR EARLIER FOR THE SECOND CONSECUTIVE PERIOD, THE BANK OF JAPAN (BOJ) SAID IN A PRELIMINARY REPORT THURSDAY.

THE CENTRAL BANK SAID GROWTH OF THE NATION'S PERSONAL SAVINGS DROPPED 16.8 PERCENT FROM THE SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR TO 14,349.3 BILLION YEN IN THE THREE MONTHS, THE SHARPEST DECLINE SINCE AN 18.3 PERCENT FALL IN THE APRIL-JUNE QUARTER OF 1986.

OUTSTANDING SAVINGS TOTALED 736,458.2 BILLION YEN AT THE END OF SEPTEMBER, UP 9.6 PERCENT FROM THE YEAR EARLIER.

ANALYSTS ATTRIBUTED THE SLOWER GROWTH TO THE SHIFT OF MONEY FROM ONCE HIGH-YIELDING FIXED-AMOUNT POSTAL SAVINGS AS WELL AS FROM PUBLIC AND CORPORATE BONDS AND INVESTMENT TRUSTS DUE TO JAPAN'S SLUMPING FINANCIAL MARKETS.

BUT THE BOJ SAID THE FIGURES DO NOT NECESSARILY POINT TO A WEAKENING OF PERSONAL SAVINGS.

INVESTMENT IN PUBLIC AND CORPORATE BONDS AND INVESTMENT TRUSTS DIMINISHED 1,655.2 BILLION YEN AND 914.9 BILLION YEN, RESPECTIVELY.

POSTAL SAVINGS PLUNGED 60.5 PERCENT FROM A YEAR EARLIER TO 1,018 BILLION YEN.

IN CONTRAST, WITH ASSISTANCE FROM HIGHER INTEREST RATES, BANK DEPOSITS LEAPED 39.9 PERCENT TO 10,192.1 BILLION YEN.

FROM THE BULLS:

"Based on my political forecast, you're looking at a 3052 [Dow], December 31, 1991," says BILL LEFEVRE of ADVEST. He bases his prediction on a study of stock market performance during the third year of Presidential terms. According to Lefevre, the market has averaged a 17.4% gain during Republican third years and 10.6% during Democratic. Lefevre says Presidents like to prime the economy as they enter their fourth year re-election bids, and George Bush will be no different. "Don't forget, his father was a partner at Brown Brothers Harriman, so he knows something about Wall Street, too." (CNBC "Business View", 12/12)

"From a long-term perspective, I think [the stock market] looks like gangbusters - it's very, very positive," says JOHN WOSCZYNA, technical analyst at RONEY & CO. He sees the utilities, transport and industrial averages drifting up into a mid-January high when the market will have a consolidation and correction of the advance. "But all of this, I believe, is part of the major bottom for a Dow move that should take us in excess of 4000." He believes the market bottomed in October from a "good cyclical decline" and "is rejuvenating for a good cyclical advance now." (CNBC "The Moneywheel", 12/12)

"There's enough money out there to build the ... [Dow] above 3000," says GLENN CUTLER, publisher of "Market Mania" and "Market Fax." Unless the effect of the recent "feel-good stuff" in the Middle East goes away, Cutler expects a positive tone for the stock market in the remainder of this month. He thinks institutions will continue to look for and buy smaller, depressed companies. ("Investor's Daily", 12/13)

FROM THE BEARS:

"I think what you're looking at here is a legitimate, wedge type of formation - right from the bottom in October - and we are in the latter stages of it," says technical analyst WALTER MURPHY at MERRILL-LYNCH. "And once it is completed, you'll renew the downtrend that began in July." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/12)

STOCK MARKET:

Yesterday "could be the closing high [in the Dow] for a week or two," says DON HAYS, director of investment strategy for WHEAT FIRST SECURITIES INC. in Richmond, Va. "Toward the last of December ... something will come along to blast this thing out, and we will begin a very strong one-to-two-year bull market." Mr. Hays says his company's statistical studies show the Dow has the potential to move up 28% to 35% within the next twelve months. ("Investor's Daily", 12/13)

"The market's in a speculative mode, stimulated by deals and rumors of deals," says ROBERT STOVALL, president of STOVALL/TWENTY-FIRST ADVISERS, explaining the rise in the Dow on Wednesday. "The market action is impressive," he says, "in the face of Ford's management saying that the dividend is not secure and G.M., which is a bellwether for the direction of market prices, falling to a 12-month low of 34 1/2. It suggests that the market is in a frothy, upbeat mode." (NYT, 12/13)

"The market is still dominated by Middle East commentary and news," says RON DORAN at C.L. KING & ASSOCIATES. "If possible, I'd use moves like this [advance] to lighten up" on stocks. ("USA Today", 12/13)

"In October, I found that the people I talked to ... were more universally pessimistic than at any time in the 50 years that I've been an investment counselor," says JOHN TEMPLETON, head of the TEMPLETON FUNDS. "We've been buying stocks now for the past six or eight weeks - every day." ("USA Today", 12/13)

JACK CONLON at ROTHSCHILD says the prospect of further interest rate easing by the FEDERAL RESERVE has prompted "some good, old-fashioned American institutional buying." ("The Washington Post", 12/13)

"Every year, tax-loss selling starts earlier," says BILL ROTHE, head of OTC trading at ALEX. BROWN & SONS INC., who believes that we are already seeing the "January effect." Mr. Rothe has also noticed how bargin-buying has progressed over the past week or so, and he predicts that it will spill over to the retail arena. The cash on the sidelines needs a place to go, and equities look more appealing as interest rates come down, he says. ("Investor's Daily", 12/13)

PHILIP ROTH, chief technical analyst at DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS INC. says that the public has remained conservative and has been a net seller recently. The buying has come from aggressive professionals, the "gunslingers." Mr. Roth recommends that the conservative investors stay on the sidelines and wait to see how deep the recession will be." ("Investor's Daily", 12/13)

"I've got all the stocks I want," says JIM CRAIG, manager of the JANUS FUND. He was a buyer of stocks in October and November, when he cut his cash from 75% to 50%. (USA Today", 12/13)

STOCK TIPS:

"Financial assets like stocks and bonds do better in recessions than buying anything you can touch, like diamonds and gold," says SUNG WON SOHN at NORWEST CORP. "The wild card is the Persian Gulf. A quick solution would help the markets. A messy war would really hurt." He says long-term Treasury bonds and growth stocks like WAL-MART and COCA-COLA should outperform the broad market in a recession that will persist through most of 1991. ("USA Today", 12/13)

Despite the bleak outlook for the retail industry the warehouse clubs, like the PRICE CLUB, SAM'S CLUB, COSTCO WHOLESALE CLUB and PACE MEMBERSHIP WAREHOUSE, are thriving. "I can't think of another retail format that has the possibility of a 20 to 25 percent growth rate for the next four to five years " says SARAH STACK, an analyst with BATEMAN EICHLER, HILL RICHARDS in Los Angeles. JACK SEIBALD, an analyst with SALOMON BROTHERS in New York, estimates that the warehouse club industry, which had sales of $17.8 billion last year, will grow 24% this year, to $22.1 billion. Within five years, Mr. Seibald estimates, the industry could top $50 billion in sales. (NYT, 12/13)

It's not too late to buy toy stocks, according to KIDDER PEABODY'S GARY JACOBSON, who says toy stocks tend to perform better in the first half of the year. "HASBRO and MATTELL have been the big winners this year ... I think next year is going to be even better for those stocks," says Jacobson. If Mattell's Barbie was a stand alone company, it would be the third largest toymaker. Avoid GALOOB which Jacobson calls a classic one-product company. (CNN "Business Morning", 12/13)

Toy stocks are a specialty of DAVID LEIBOWITZ, senior vice president of AMERICAN SECURITIES CORPORATION. He likes a special situation in PETRIE STORES which owns a very large stake in TOYS R US. According to Leibowitz, the per share value of the Toys R Us stake is worth more than the current value of the Petrie shares. "Which means I'm getting all of Petrie for free, or I'm buying Toys R Us at a very nice discount," says Leibowitz. Depressed stocks to watch are GALOOB, UNIVERSAL MATCHBOX and TONKA. "They are the guys who have been beaten down mercilessly and, if things go right next year, can give you pretty interesting rewards." (CNBC "Smart Money", 12/12)

The assets being acquired by Centocor include a 48,000 sq. ft. mammalian cell culture manufacturing plant, built in 1986, as well as leased premises of 44,000 sq. ft. for laboratories and offices. Also included are patents, know-how and licenses to mammalian cell culture technology developed by Monsanto and Invitron. Pending approval of the transaction by Invitron's stockholders, Centocor will operate the facilities under an interim operating agreement. Approximately 65 Invitron employees are being offered immediate employment with Centocor.

"This acquisition accelerates Centocor's growth by strengthening our manufacturing base in the United States and affording us the opportunity for substantial technological synergies," said James E. Wavle, Jr., Centocor's president. "And, it immediately increases our operating flexibility. Now, we can dedicate our recently expanded facility in Leiden, Holland, to preparations for the launch of Centoxin - our first major pharmaceutical - while scaling up production of our earlier stage pharmaceutical products at the new facility in St. Louis."

Wavle indicated that Centocor did not intend to enter the contract manufacturing business. "Centocor has a number of promising new antibodies in early clinical trials, and the Invitron manufacturing technology is highly compatible with our own," he added. "Thus, we can move key cell lines into St. Louis very rapidly and take advantage of the expertise and capabilities of the outstanding people there.

"We have always said that Centocor intends to capitalize on the opportunities that will emerge as the shake out in biotechnology progresses. This acquisition uniquely fits Centocor's strategy. We are thoroughly delighted with the value we have been able to obtain for Centocor's stockholders," Wavle concluded.

LONDON (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of Waterford Wedgwood plc today announced that following an intensive review of the group's operations and prospects, a strategic plan has been developed for the future growth of the crystal and ceramic businesses whereby they will operate independently.

Statement by Paddy Byrne In a statement today Byrne said that he fully supported the decision of the board to provide for the separation and independent management of the ceramic and crystal businesses but, since he could see no appropriate role for himself in the new structure, he would be leaving the group.

He added that he was encouraged by the results now coming through in spite of the difficult economic situation. He said that the management team had been strengthened considerably in recent years and this, together with the work done to improve the condition of the company, should underpin the future success he envisaged for the group.

Byrne said that in his nearly four years with the group, Wedgwood had been developed successfully and had been supported by an improvement in the level and calibre of marketing investment and programs which had helped embellish the image of Wedgwood as one of the world's leading brands. He added that substantial cost savings had been achieved at Waterford Crystal which were so fundamental for its future success.

Recalling the group's huge burden of debt when he became chief executive officer last year, Byrne highlighted "the immense improvement in the overall financial health of the group, brought about by effective cost and cash management, and most importantly, the Shuttleway investment in the company earlier this year. The first half results for the group showed a debt figure of Irish punt 34.9 million at June 30, 1990, compared with Irish punt 145.3 million a year earlier."

Profile Following 23 years with Ford in Europe where he had held senior positions in the United Kingdom, Switzerland, Ireland and Portugal, before becoming vice chairman and managing director of Ford Spain in 1981, Paddy Byrne, now aged 49, joined the then named Waterford Glass Group plc in January 1987. After a brief period in the United States he was named chief executive of the Wedgwood Group of companies and appointed to the main board. In January 1989 he was given the added responsibility of the Waterford operations in Ireland and he was appointed group chief executive officer of Waterford Wedgwood plc in April 1989.

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - W.R. Grace & Co. (NYSE: GRA) announced today an agreement for a subsidiary to purchase Berisford International PLC's 25 percent partnership interest in Grace Cocoa.

Upon completion of the transaction for approximately $75 million, Grace will have a 100 percent ownership of Grace Cocoa, the market leader in the production and sale of intermediate cocoa and chocolate products to the bakery dairy and confectionery business. Principal products include cocoa butter, cocoa powder, cocoa liquor, chocolate and compound coatings and cookie drops. The purchase, expected to be completed in early 1991, has been approved by the boards of Grace and Berisford, and is subject to various conditions, including Grace receiving clearance under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act.

In commenting on the transaction, J.P. Bolduc, president of W.R. Grace & Co., said: "In 1987, Grace implemented an aggressive strategy to focus on the specialized business of cocoa processing that it had entered nearly 30 years ago. Grace's worldwide reputation for quality products and its management expertise in this industry have helped develop Grace Cocoa into a world-class, high-growth business." Bolduc explained: "Grace is in the midst of a number of transactions designed to upgrade the company's business mix -- exiting businesses that are not strategic or core to Grace's future and aggressively pursuing growth in areas where Grace has important worldwide niche positions that afford higher-than-average returns and growth, like specialized intermediate cocoa and chocolate production."

Grace has been a leader in the cocoa industry since 1964, when it acquired Ambrosia Chocolate and Cacao De Zaan, world leaders in cocoa processing. In 1988, Grace and Berisford combined their cocoa processing businesses, creating Grace Cocoa, in which Grace owned 75 percent and Berisford owned 25 percent.

Grace Cocoa, with projected 1991 sales of more than $750 million, is the world's largest processor of cocoa beans, handling approximately 10 percent of the world's crop each year. GREENWICH, CT (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Viral Response Systems (NASDAQ: VRSI) of Greenwich, Conn., the manufacturer of the Viralizer with ViraSpray, for the relief of cold, sinusitis, allergy and sore throat symptoms, announced today that it has requested that the Federal Trade Commission investigate Walgreens of Deerfield, Ill., the nation's largest drug store chain, for deliberately spreading false and malicious rumors in its Chicago area stores about the Viralizer, in an attempt to put the company out of business. Walgreen pharmacists have been telling customers that "the Viralizer has been recalled" and "Viral Response is out of business" for more than the past year, asserts Robert S. Krauser, president.

In numerous studies including two conducted by the University of California San Diego Medical Center and presented to the American College of Allergy and Immunology, the Viralizer has been found to be both safe and effective in reducing nasal air resistance, an objective measure of upper respiratory health.

"We have received numerous frantic phone calls, especially from elderly customers, who have been told by Walgreen pharmacists that we are out of business. We have called and written to Charles 'Corky' Walgreen III and his employees on numerous occasions, but they persist in this malicious campaign. Most of our customers are thrilled at the relief and reduction in medical care costs provided by the Viralizer and maybe that concerns Mr. Walgreen. Walgreen's claims to care about its customers but it appears that 'Corky' has a cold heart."

Among the Chicagoland Walgreen's stores that have disseminated this malicious disinformation are numerous Chicago area locations including: Glenview, Naperville, Dalton, Mundelein, Vernon Hills, Palos Park area and Hammond, Ind.

In fact, the Viralizer and ViraSpray refills are carried on wholesaler microfiche installed in Walgreen's Chicagoland stores and Walgreen's Chicagoland competitors carry the Viralizer. "Walgreens may be concerned that high profile Chicagoans including the leading television anchor, drive time radio personality, sportscaster and television 'doctor' are all satisfied Viralizer users," Krauser said.

"One grandmother from Northfield, Ill., who loves her Viralizer and is also gratified at the positive results on her grandchildren's early cold symptoms called in a panic, after two Chicago Walgreen pharmacists told her the Viralizer was out of business. When she was advised that she could easily buy refills at numerous Chicago area stores, she exclaimed, 'Those Walgreens bastards, they don't care about us, all they care about are their profits,'" Krauser added.

Viral Response said the nation's $600 billion annual medical bill is a serious problem and it hopes that the Federal Trade Commission will find the time to investigate why the nation's largest drug store chain is trying to drive the Viralizer out of business.

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - United-Guardian, Inc. (AMEX: UG), today announced that the U.S. Patent Office has granted it a patent on a new stabilized form of Beta-Carotene that dissolves readily and maintains its activity for long periods of time.

Ordinary Beta-Carotene has been linked in medical studies to a decrease in the risk of heart attacks, especially when used in conjunction with aspirin. Unfortunately, however, ordinary Beta- Carotene loses potency very quickly, especially when exposed to air, and is also quickly lost from finished products in which it is formulated. United's product, on the other hand, dissolves readily in both water- based and oil-based products and remains stable much longer. Studies have shown stability after two years, as opposed to ordinary Beta- Carotene, which begins to lose its potency after eight days.

"Stabilized Beta-Carotene that is made in accordance with our process," said Alfred R. Globus, chairman and chief executive officer of United-Guardian,

"also will be an excellent cosmetic additive due to its bright yellow color and long-term stability. It may further be useful, after the appropriate F.D.A. submissions and approvals, as a food-grade coloring agent and a possible source of Vitamin A."

The company expects that this new form of Beta-Carotene will fit in well with its line of cosmetics, pharmaceuticals, healthcare products and medical devices.

VINELAND, NJ (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Security Investments Group, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: SSLN), announced that its principal subsidiary, Security Savings Bank, SLA, will establish additional general valuation reserves for possible loan losses of approximately $9.5 million for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1990. The company announced that these reserves do not relate to any known losses on specific loans. Rather, these reserves were established to protect the bank against potential loan losses. As a result, the company anticipates reporting a loss for the quarter of between $9.5 million and $10.5 million.

Ronald A. Seagraves, president of the company stated that the significant increase in these reserve levels resulted from an intensive review of Security's loan portfolio which continues to be adversely affected by the depressed real estate market in southern New Jersey. Seagraves said, "the continuing softness in the real estate sector has adversely affected many businesses and borrowers. These adverse conditions have been more severe than we originally anticipated making the reserves both necessary and prudent." Seagraves also indicated that the additional reserves result from recommendations of a recently concluded regulatory examination of the institution's loan portfolios by the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS).

Seagraves continued that "the regulatory standards for the valuation of loans and real estate are changing dramatically for all financial institutions. Security consistently has been managed within the standards applicable to savings institutions as applied by our principal regulatory agency, the OTS (formally the Federal Home Loan Bank Board). While changing standards is difficult, we intend to make the necessary adjustments to appropriately adapt to the standards imposed by our regulators as they are formulated and interpreted."

As a result of this charge to earnings, Security is not in compliance with any of the regulatory capital requirements imposed by the OTS. A revised capital plan will be filed with the OTS. Security has instituted significant cost savings measures in order to improve the bank's profitability and improve its capital position. Among these measures, the company has reduced the staff by 80 positions, will be reducing executive salaries, and will close three branch offices. The company expects that these actions, along with other cost reduction measures currently being implemented, will result in significant reductions in operating expenses beginning 1991.

Security Savings Bank, SLA, its subsidiary, is a state chartered financial institution headquartered in Vineland. Security operates 31 branches throughout southern New Jersey and provides businesses and consumers with a wide variety of financial products and services.

DALLAS (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Grace Energy Corporation (NYSE: GEG) today announced that its subsidiary, Grace Petroleum Corporation of Oklahoma City, plans expenditures of $37.3 million for its 1991 domestic oil and gas exploration and development program, a 44 percent increase over 1990 estimated expenditures of $25.9 million.

Approximately $27 million, or 73 percent of the total budget, is earmarked for development, largely in geographic areas where Grace Petroleum currently operates and has expertise -- primarily Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico and Louisiana.

The exploration budget of $9.9 million is 27 percent of the total budget. Grace Petroleum plans to continue exploration in the Michigan Basin, where it has been successful for the past six years. In November of this year, Grace Petroleum announced the extension of its Michigan exploration joint venture agreement with Wolverine Gas and Oil Company, Inc. through Dec. 31, 1993. Grace Petroleum also plans to focus exploration efforts in East Texas, the Texas Gulf Coast, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

The higher exploration and development expenditures for 1991 reflect a continuing shift in strategy, putting more emphasis on exploration and development and less emphasis on acquisition of reserves. Proved developed reserves added from exploration and development are anticipated to equal oil equivalent production in 1991.

Grace Energy Corporation, headquartered in Dallas, is a diversified energy company whose subsidiaries are engaged in supplying services and equipment to the petroleum industry; in the exploration for and development of oil and natural gas; and in coal mining.

WEST PATERSON, NJ (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Prospect Park Financial Corporation (NASDAQ: PPSA) today reported a net loss of $5.1 million, or $1.73 per share, for the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990. For the comparable period of the prior fiscal year, Prospect Park's net loss was $2.5 million, or $0.84 per share. The company recorded a net loss of $5.1 million, or $1.76 per share, for the six months ended Oct. 31, 1990, compared with a net loss for the prior year period of $1.3 million, or $0.45 per share.

The results were primarily attributable to a loss from real estate operations, due to the establishment of additional general loss reserves which amounted to $4.6 million in both the second quarter and first six months of fiscal 1991. In the second quarter of last fiscal year, Prospect Park experienced a loss from real estate operations of $3.5 million, in addition to a provision for possible loan losses of $919,000. For the six months ended Oct. 31, 1989, the company recorded a $3.6 million loss on real estate operations, and a $1.3 million provision for loan losses. There were no provisions for possible loan losses in the quarter or six months ended Oct. 31, 1990.

"We are disappointed that our operations continue to be adversely affected by the declining local and regional real estate markets," said Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Russell L. Frignoca.

Frignoca also announced that, subsequent to the end of the second quarter, Prospect Park had sold $65.8 million of mortgage-backed securities, backed by loans from the bank's portfolio. The loans, most of which were adjustable rate mortgages (ARMs), were purchased by several investment banking firms and other financial institutions. He said that the company expected to record a profit of approximately $1.5 million from the sale, which would be reflected in its results for the third quarter of fiscal 1991.

Commenting further on the status of Prospect Park Savings Bank's capital plan, Frignoca said, "The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) has completed its initial evaluation of the plan, and has requested that we provide additional information by Dec. 21, 1990. Although such requests have been common practice in connection with capital plans, no assurance can be given that the plan will be approved by the OTS." The bank's plan, which describes its strategy for achieving compliance with regulatory capital requirements, was filed with the OTS on Sept. 14, 1990. As a result of the recent loss, the bank continues to be in non-compliance with current regulatory capital requirements.

Pending continued OTS review of the bank's capital plan and the bank's response to the request for additional information, the OTS has directed the bank to operate under certain additional restrictions, effective Dec. 11, 1990. Although the bank is in the process of discussing certain of these restrictions with the OTS, the restrictions presently limit, among other things, the bank's asset growth, pricing and growth of deposit products, payment of dividends, expenditures relating to compensation and benefits, and ability to engage in certain lending activities.

The deposits of Prospect Park Savings Bank totaled $504.1 million at Oct. 31, 1990, rising 3.8 percent in the first six months of this fiscal year. Loans receivable were $400.1 million, compared with $413.4 million at fiscal 1990 year-end. Total assets amounted to $545.2 million at the end of the recent quarter, up from $543.8 million six months earlier.

Prospect Park Financial Corporation is the holding company for Prospect Park Savings Bank, SLA. The bank, founded in 1926, operates eight full-service branches in northern New Jersey. Its deposits are insured to the full extent of the law by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC).

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Determined to eliminate further delays in enhancing shareholder value, Burnup & Sims Inc. (NASDAQ: BSIM) today announced that it was withdrawing its request for rulings from the Internal Revenue Service and had approved a new plan that will provide Burnup & Sims shareholders, who own shares on the record date of Dec. 28, 1990, with common shares of National Beverage Corp., which will become a publicly owned company.

Under the new plan, Burnup & Sims will pay a dividend of all of its National Beverage common stock to all of its shareholders. Burnup & Sims will then exchange approximately 3.8 million shares of Burnup & Sims common owned by National Beverage for $22.5 million in debt owed to Burnup & Sims by National Beverage. Upon completion of the plan, Burnup & Sims shareholders will have received a direct interest in National Beverage. While its ownership will be significantly reduced, National Beverage will continue to be a major shareholder of Burnup & Sims. The distribution of the National Beverage common stock dividend, which will be taxable to the company and its shareholders, is subject to the completion of appropriate documentation and compliance with applicable securities laws.

Burnup & Sims' special committee of outside directors, together with its financial and legal advisors, negotiated the terms of the new plan with the special committee of National Beverage directors and their financial and legal advisors. The boards of directors for Burnup & Sims and National Beverage each approved the new plan.

A spokesperson for Burnup & Sims said, "The company is enthusiastic about the new plan and believes that its shareholders will benefit by the separate market value that the new public company, National Beverage, with its defined focus will command. The opportunities for both companies are tremendous," the company spokesperson added, "and in light of the capital restrictions in today's precarious economy...these two public companies should be better positioned to enhance their future growth."

Opening the lines of communications throughout the United States for over 60 years, Burnup & Sims, a national leader in the telecommunications service industry, has diversified interests in real estate, movie theatres and commercial printing. Serving the flavors that satisfy America, National Beverage Corp., with 12 bottling facilities throughout the United States, owns bottles and distributes Shasta, Faygo and Spree All Natural beverages, a Sante water and various private label soft drink brands.

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Asarco Incorporated (NYSE: AR) today announced that it will make a provision in its fourth-quarter 1990 earnings for environmental costs associated with the company's current operations and with previously closed facilities and for the estimated cost of increased state of Arizona royalties.

The provision will reduce 1990 after-tax earnings by an estimated $51.5 million, or $1.24 per share. Net earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990, were $145.4 million, or $3.50 per share.

Richard de J. Osborne, chairman, president, and chief executive officer of Asarco, commenting on the provision, stated, "Recent developments at a number of the company's properties have increased the level of predictability of costs associated with meeting Asarco's environmental responsibilities. We have undertaken a careful review of those costs at all our operating mines and plants and at closed facilities.

This provision will provide a level of reserves which we can reasonably estimate will be sufficient to cover the costs, outside of normal operating costs, that will be needed to meet our environmental responsibilities as we now know them."

Osborne also stated, "The provision for increased state royalties is a current estimate of past costs expected from higher royalty rates under a new mineral leasing statute enacted by the state of Arizona which is retroactive to December 1987."

Asarco Incorporated, headquartered in New York City, is one of the world's leading integrated producers of non-ferrous metals, principally copper, silver lead, zinc, and gold. MURRAY HILL, NJ (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Patrick Rich, currently deputy chairman of The BOC Group, will be appointed chief executive of the group with effect from Jan. 1, 1991.

Richard Giordano will continue as a non-executive director after his retirement as chairman in January 1992. This is announced by Giordano in his chairman's statement in the company's annual report and accounts, published today.

Giordano tells shareholders in his statement: "I have been chief executive of the group since October of 1979, and chairman since January of 1985. I have always believed that, from the group's standpoint as well as my own, a decade was long enough to shoulder these responsibilities.

"The board has long been aware of my intentions and I had hoped to retire at the end of 1989. However, in the circumstances that was not possible. I have now proposed to the board, and the board has accepted enthusiastically, the following succession plan.

"With effect from Jan. 1, 1991, the board will appoint Mr. Patrick Rich as chief executive responsible for all the group's businesses. I will continue as chairman through 1991 to manage the transition and introduce Pat to the British business community. It is the board's intention that Pat will take on the additional duties of chairman upon my retirement in January 1992.

"We have all known Pat for many years. He joined the board as a non-executive director in 1983 and we have benefited from his skills and experience for almost a decade. He became a full-time executive and deputy chairman on April 1 of this year and has already made a valuable contribution to the management of the group.

"He is an experienced international businessman, who has managed companies in many countries around the world during his long career with Alcan, the Canadian metals company, and Societe Generale de Surveillance Holding SA, the Geneva-based services company.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Persons involved in transporting hazardous materials will benefit from a training program recently developed by the Department of Transportation's (DOT) Research and Special Programs Administration (RSPA).

The first six components are being distributed this month by DOT to state transportation agencies. The training will meet requirements established in the Hazardous Materials Transportation Uniform Safety Act of 1990, which was signed by the President in November.

The training program covers many areas of concern for the safe transportation of dangerous substances including how to package, mark and label the hazardous material. The training series also provides information on placarding, as well as specific compliance and enforcement information applicable to carriers and shippers.

The Hazardous Materials Advisory Council (HMAC) plans to distribute the components to carriers and shippers in the transportation industry once DOT's distribution to state agencies is complete. The agency estimates that 70,000 people will take the course, and its implementation is one of RSPA Administrator Travis P. Dungan's highest priorities.

"RSPA's direct mission is the safe, effective and efficient movement of people and goods throughout the world by all modes of transportation," Dungan said. "Not only will the carriers, enforcement agencies and shippers benefit from this training program, the entire nation will benefit by having the hazardous materials transportation community a better informed community.

The program was developed by RSPA and the HMAC in conjunction with representatives from state government and enforcement/response agencies through the Cooperative Hazardous Materials Enforcement Development program.

A pilot test of the training package confirmed that users from industry, enforcement, and the emergency response community significantly improved their knowledge of hazardous materials regulations.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Following the recent announcement of the RJ70 variant of the BAe 146 which has generated a very positive market reaction, British Aerospace now reveals the 146-NRA Project intended to further complement the BAe 146 family of jetliners.

Studies on the 146-NRA are well advanced based upon a 14 foot stretched version of the 146-300 fuselage accommodating 125 passengers in a 5-abreast single class layout. Various combinations of mixed class seating will also be available, as will 6-abreast configurations for increased capacity, all using the existing widely acclaimed 146 cabin design.

The aircraft will feature a new and larger wing permitting cruise speeds up to Mach 0.82 and a range of more than 2500 statute miles.

The 146-NRA Project will retain the high wing configuration proven on existing 146 models as offering good engine and freight hold accessibility, a wide CG range and sufficient ground clearance for total flexibility of power plant selection.

It is intended to provide airlines with a choice of either the GE/Snecma CFM 56 or the IAE V2500 high bypass ratio turbofan engines. The high wing configuration also offers the long-term opportunity for the installation of larger diameter, ultra-high bypass ratio powerplants when they become available.

The 146-NRA will be produced in parallel with the BAe's RJ70, 146-100, 146-200 and 146-300 models which will be powered by four Textron Lycoming, newly introduced, LF507 turbofan engines. This configuration provides these smaller aircraft with unequalled field performance, quietness and operating economy.

British Aerospace's soundly based position and broad experience in the short-haul airliner business with the growing 146 family, nearly 300 of which have now been ordered and optioned with some 46 operators, provides confidence that the 146-NRA -- exhibiting the highest standards of comfort and operating economics -- will capture a major share of the future 120-130-seater market.

British Aerospace is in discussion with a number of potential international collaborative partners with the intention of achieving full 146-NRA entry into service during 1996/1997.

CHICAGO (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Ameritech (NYSE: AIT) today announced that it has selected Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Illinois, in conjunction with other Midwest Blue Cross/Blue Shield units, to organize, implement and administer a managed health care network for its employees in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin.

"The Blue Cross/Blue Shield organizations throughout our region have agreed to partner with Ameritech in developing a health care network which will meet our unique needs," said Martha Thornton, Ameritech senior vice president of human resources. "They have effectively demonstrated a commitment to quality health care and excellent service and are a leader in the development of health care management systems.

"The decision to develop a managed health care network was driven by our desire to continue providing a high level of quality health care benefits in an era of escalating costs without shifting costs to employees," Thornton said. "We are confident that partnering with Blue Cross/Blue Shield to develop the new network will enable us to continue doing so in an innovative and cost effective way."

Blue Cross/Blue Shield was selected by Ameritech following a competitive evaluation that included some of the nation's top health care insurance firms. The evaluation process took into account needs expressed by employees, credentials of physicians and hospitals, continuity of care and convenience.

Under the managed health care network concept, groups of physicians, hospitals and other specialty care providers chosen for their qualifications and performance agree to provide services under contract with a network manager, in this instance Blue Cross/Blue Shield.

Ameritech will implement health care networks for management employees in selected communities beginning in mid-1991. Expansion of the managed care networks throughout the five states of the Ameritech region will take place on a location-by-location basis as network requirements are met.

Once networks are established, Ameritech employees can select a personal care physician within the network who will provide and oversee their health care. Employees also will have the option of using physicians outside of the network though employees who use the network will receive greater benefits at less cost.

The new Ameritech managed health care network will evolve from and complement Preferred Provider Option (PPO) and Health Maintenance Organization (HMO) groups now serving the employees of the Ameritech companies.

Ameritech is the Chicago-based parent of Bell companies serving Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin; and of other information-related companies providing mobile communications, directory publishing, lease financing and voice messaging services. The company has 76,000 active employees and 45,000 retirees. Ameritech had total 1989 revenues of $10.2 billion.

PITTSBURGH (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Citing a worsening economic climate, Dollar Bank announced today an increase of $15 million in its general reserves for potential future loan losses.

The addition to such reserves means that the bank will have a net loss of $13.5 million for the fiscal year ending Nov. 30, 1990.

Stephen C. Hansen, president and CEO, said, "Increasing the bank's general reserves for future potential losses now is prudent, given the current economic slowdown, despite the immediate effect on earnings."

Because the bank's capital continues to exceed statutory requirements and because operating earnings continue to be positive, no change in the bank's basic strategy is expected.

Hansen further pointed out that not only were tangible operating earnings positive in 1990 but that earnings for 1991 are projected to be positive on both an operating and net basis.

Banks establish two types of reserves for loan losses: specific reserves relate to expected losses on identified problem loans, and general reserves relate to potential future losses. Dollar's general reserves now stand at $21.5 million, or 1.38 percent of total loans. "This $21 million of reserves gives us considerable flexibility to deal with contingencies that may arise," said Hansen. He added, "This gives us extra financial strength to adjust to a recession that might become more severe."

Because general reserves can be used to absorb future losses, such reserves are included in a bank's total regulatory capital. The government requires that the ratio of total regulatory capital to risk-adjusted assets must exceed 7.20 percent by Dec. 31, 1990. As of Nov. 30, Dollar's ratio stood at 7.21 percent.

SYCAMORE, ILL. (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Duplex Products Inc. (AMEX: DPX), a leading business forms manufacturer, today reported reduced sales and earnings for its fiscal year ended Oct. 27, 1990.

Sales for the 1990 fiscal year were $297,647,000, a decline from $326,475,000 in the prior year. Net earnings for the year were $9,516,000, equal to $1.23 per share, compared with the $14,618,000 or $1.90 per share reported in fiscal 1989.

For the fourth fiscal quarter, sales were $72,538,000, down from $79,343,000 in 1989. Net earnings declined from $3,742,000 to $1,743,000, with earnings per share decreasing from 48 cents to 23 cents.

"The operating environment in the business forms industry remained relatively unchanged in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990, as compared with the third," said Carl L. Peterson, president and CEO. "Revenues and profit margins continued to be adversely affected by soft demand and the related strong competitive price pressures. Earnings per share in the quarter were up 10 percent from the 21 cents reported in the third quarter of fiscal 1990 on about the same sales.

"In fiscal 1990, we further strengthened our balance sheet while increasing our dividend payout for the 17th consecutive year. At year-end, cash and equivalents were up to $22 million and the company's long-term debt represented only 10 percent of total capitalization.

"We remain cautious about fiscal 1991 as it is difficult to make projections based on the current status of the general economy. Although we don't foresee an upturn in the near future, Duplex has the financial strength and talented people needed to successfully emerge from this turbulent period."

HIGHLAND PARK, MI (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Area fourth-graders will get a hands-on lesson in designing and marketing cars at a special Education Center, sponsored by Chrysler Corporation (NYSE: C), at the 1991 North American International Auto Show in Detroit.

Chrysler has invited 13 area schools to participate in the Education Center between Jan. 8-18. About 450 area youngsters will get an introduction to designing, engineering, naming and marketing vehicles in a 4,500-square-foot Education Center in Cobo Center.

"For many of these boys and girls, this will be their introduction to some of the important and exciting jobs in the auto industry," said Valerie Becker, Chrysler's National Education Program administrator.

"We want to show them that subjects such as math and science can be fun and are necessary to their becoming the engineers, designers and mechanics of tomorrow.

"Research tells us fourth grade is when children are either turned off by education or motivated to do their best," Becker said. "If they are turned off they merely occupy space in the schoolroom until they drop out or graduate without the ability to read or write." Chrysler spent $4.7 million in support of education in 1990.

"We want these children to understand that what they're learning today - whether it's multiplication tables or correct spelling - are building blocks for what they'll learn later on," Becker said. "These skills are necessary and useful, especially in an ever-changing and complex work environment."

The center's showpiece is the 1988 Plymouth Speedster, a neon-colored, concept car designed for the beach scene. Interactive computer stations, videos and a computer-aided design exercise will also be featured.

In one exercise, children will be asked to try to modify a two-seat sports car so that it might get 40 miles per gallon. In other work stations, students will be making color and fabric choices for their own personal concept car, choosing a name for their vehicle and learning to identify target markets for products. The experience will conclude with a tour of the auto show.

Elementary schools from Auburn Hills, Dearborn, Detroit, Highland Park, Plymouth, Sterling Heights, Warren, Toledo, Ohio, and Windsor, Ontario, will participate.

LAKE SUCCESS, NY (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Park Electrochemical Corp. (NYSE: PKE) today announced its performance for its third quarter which ended Nov. 25 1990.

Sales were $40,636,000 compared to $38,493,000 for the comparable quarter of last year, while earnings fell to $480,000 (ten cents per share) as compared to last year's third quarter of $1,067,000 (21 cents per share).

Sales for the nine months were $122,746,000 compared with $111,267,000 for last year's nine months. Earnings were $2,379,000 (48 cents per share) compared to last year's earnings of $3,142,000 (61 cents per share).

The earnings for the third quarter and the nine months includes $233,000 (five cents per share) of special income derived from the company's purchase of some of its 7 1/4 percent convertible subordinated debentures due 2006.

Jerry Shore, president, commented, "We experienced serious and sudden earnings deterioration the latter part of our third quarter. This was primarily due to the electronic operations in Europe where the sales volume was seriously curtailed as the computer industry almost stopped purchasing components - and then later resumed at a significantly reduced level. In the United States, our automotive electronics and plumbing hardware activities experienced weakened demand."

"Our businesses that supply the computer industry, the auto industry and the housing industry, are all doing poorly. In order to counter this trend, we are doing proper damage control, bringing new product and services to market quickly, and preparing ourselves for a rough time the next six to 12 months."

Park Electrochemical Corp., through its subsidiaries, is primarily a manufacturer of advanced electronic circuit materials.

BOSTON, (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The following is a statement issued today by

Bank of New England Corporation (NYSE: NEB):

The Treasury Department and Office of the Comptroller of the Currency confirmed again today that BNEC's subsidiary banks are treated like other commercial banks in accepting treasury, tax, and loan deposits (TT&L) from the Treasury.

Most banks accept TT&L deposits from the Treasury. The size of the deposits varies on a seasonal and daily basis. The fact that we had $1.8 billion in TT&L deposits in mid-April is irrelevant. Mid-April is tax time, the time when TT&L deposits are about at their highest levels. The TT&L account is a small part of our deposit base. Yesterday, for example, TT&L deposits were nearly insignificant -- $77 million compared to $18 billion in total deposits, less than one-half of one percent.

As we have reported before, BNEC stopped borrowing from the Federal Reserve's discount window in June because of strengthened liquidity resulting from our ongoing successful regional and national certificate of deposit campaigns. Since July 3, if TT&L had been zero on any given day, we still would have been a seller in the Fed Funds system, not a borrower. Month-to-date, we have averaged selling over $1 billion a night to the system. This is, in large part, a result of the very successful CD campaign which has increased our retail deposit level. Rather than seeing a decline in deposits, we have experienced a regular and consistent increase in retail deposits since early this summer.

As far as the collateral which we and other banks place with the Treasury to secure the deposits we accept from them, the Treasury accepts only the most highly rated collateral for the TT&L account and requires the value of the collateral to be approximately 30 percent more than the balance of the account.

As we have said many times, our recovery will be measured in years, not months but we continue to make progress toward that end. Our costs have been reduced, management has been strengthened and streamlined, credit policies have been improved, and liquidity has been strengthened.

Bank of New England Corporation is a Boston-based interstate bank holding company with assets of $23 billion and banking offices in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island. Its common stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange and is traded under the symbol NEB.

(NYSE: KLT) announced today that it is terminating its tender offer for all outstanding common and preferred shares of Kansas Gas and Electric Company (NYSE: KGE). Kansas City Power & Light also announced that it is withdrawing its applications for approval of its proposed merger with Kansas Gas and Electric at the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), the Kansas Corporation Commission and the Missouri Public Service Commission.

Drue Jennings, president and chief executive officer of Kansas City Power & Light, said, "We began our offer for Kansas Gas and Electric intent on achieving a negotiated transaction that would provide unequaled and tangible benefits to all the communities and constituencies served by both companies, including customers, employees and shareholders. We still believe in the unique benefits of such a combination today. When we made our offer for KG&E, we believed we were making a full and fair offer. Our review of the information made available to us has confirmed our original analysis. Our board has concluded that it is not in the interest of our customers, employees and shareholders to compete with The Kansas Power and Light Company (NYSE: KAN) at the value levels they perceive. In light of this, we believe it is prudent at this time to withdraw our offer. Regardless of this decision, our customers will continue to receive the reliable, competitively-priced power they have come to expect from Kansas City Power & Light."

COLORADO SPRINGS, CO. (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Analytical Surveys, Inc. (NASDAQ: ANLT) today announced sales of $7,141,203 for its fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990. This compares to sales of $8,071,410 for the same period last year.

The company reported a net loss for the year of $229,195, or $.09 per share, compared to net income of $168,422, or $.07 per share, for the previous fiscal year.

Net income for the fourth quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990 was $18,098, or $.01 per share, compared with a net loss of $95,692, or $.04 per share, for the same period last year. Sales for the fourth quarter were $1,630,372, compared to sales of $2,136,825 for the same quarter one year ago.

According to John Thorpe, chairman and chief executive officer of Analytical Surveys, although the company experienced lower-than-expected sales for the year, it achieved continued quarterly improvement in its bottom-line results over the last three quarters. The lower revenues for the year were primarily the result of sluggish sales in the scanning market.

Several factors combined to produce the profitable fourth quarter. First, due to disappointing results by the company's Southeast Office, we have significantly reorganized this office which has resulted in lowered operating costs. Second, work continued on schedule for the Seattle city project. This project is expected to be completed on time in mid-December 1990.

Analytical Surveys' core production departments, mapping and Geographic Information Systems, continued strong performances during the 1990 fiscal year. The company's GIS department grew significantly during the 12-month period, and this trend is expected to continue to lead the way for overall company growth in fiscal 1991. At year end, the company's sales backlog was $4.9 million.

The company also announced that it has restructured its long-term equipment loans and working capital loans with First Bank System of Minneapolis. Under the new credit agreements, all loans will be extended to Oct. 31, 1991.

Thorpe said, "The vote of confidence demonstrated by First Bank System combined with our continuing emphasis on digital mapping and GIS services effectively positions Analytical Surveys for financial growth and stability in the decade of the '90s."

Analytical Surveys, Inc. is a professional services company providing digital mapping and Geographic Information Systems (GIS) database services. The company is an industry leader in innovative technological advances and productivity. Its clients include cities, counties, utility companies and others making use of the emerging technologies related to digital mapping.

The company's common stock is traded nationally over the counter under the NASDAQ symbol ANLT.

PITTSBURGH, (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Busy Beaver Home Centers Inc. today filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Code in order to restructure its debt.

It cited a seasonal cash shortage despite the profitable operation of its core stores in Pittsburgh. It is Busy Beaver's intent to honor all current customer policies, including returns, gift certificates, deposits, etc., a spokesman for the company said.

The privately held Pittsburgh-based company is a leading regional retailer of lumber, building materials and hardware for the "do-it-yourself" (DIY) market. It operates 12 stores in western Pennsylvania and one in Niles, Ohio, near Youngstown. Three stores in Buffalo, N.Y., and one in Boardman, Ohio, were closed in November.

Charles C. Bender, president and chief executive officer, said the Chapter 11 filing was Busy Beaver's "best alternative" despite a series of cost-cutting actions and "tremendous cooperation" from most creditors. "However, the bank which had helped us in the past by extending a line of credit for our seasonal cash needs refused to do so, and instead exacerbated the situation by making the unusual demand to speed up payments on the loan principal," he said.

"Over the past several months, we have been implementing a comprehensive plan to improve profitability and cash-flow," Bender said. "The effort has included the recent closing of unprofitable operations and significant reductions in our administrative staff."

In addition, he said, the company had met with its suppliers and many had agreed to accept extended payment terms while Busy Beaver dealt with its seasonal cash-flow problem.

"Despite the cooperation of our vendors, we were not able to obtain the infusion of cash we needed to make the plan work without going into Chapter 11

" Bender said. "I believe our out-of-court recovery strategy could have been successful during 1991 if a lender had been willing to provide enough cash to see us through the winter, which is our slowest season."

Bender, who joined Busy Beaver as president in 1985, headed a management group which purchased the company in November 1988 from the Dixons Group P.L.C., of England.

"As with many other retailers, our sales have been soft for several months," Bender said. "In addition, some of the cost-control measures we initiated in order to make our interest payments impared our ability to maintain stock levels and compete effectively.

"We have recognized the possibility of Chapter 11 for some time, and now we plan to use this period of protection to the full advantage of the company. Today's action is an unpleasant but necessary move that will allow us to catch our breath, to regroup, and to refocus on the base markets where Busy Beaver enjoys strong name recognition and competitive positioning."

As the company develops its formal plan of reorganization, he said, management will evaluate all operations closely and consider various alternative courses of action.

"We fully expect to recover and emerge from Chapter 11," Bender said. "We have good people, a strong core of profitable stores, and a strategy for competing successfully in selected regional markets. Busy Beaver will continue to be a serious regional player in the DIY business."

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The Renewable Fuels Association (RFA), the trade association for the domestic ethanol industry, today charged that Mobil Corporation advertisements in the Wall Street Journal and The New York Times criticizing enactment of comprehensive new Clean Air legislation is just "more bull from Mobil."

Eric Vaughn, president of RFA, said Mobil's efforts to discredit passage of the most comprehensive environmental legislation in twenty years is a "cynical attempt to cast a shadow over a law which will force companies like Mobil to clean up their act and clean up their fuel."

"They're a little bit like the Grinch who stole Christmas," Vaughn said. "While the public, environmentalists, scientists and health specialists across the nation applaud the efforts of Congress in passing the Clean Air bill, Mobil comes in like the Grinch -- nasty and petty -- trying to steal back the Clean Air package. The public won't stand for it and the Congress and the President won't allow it."

The legislation passed by Congress and signed into law by the President, specifies guidelines for the reformulation of gasoline by using oxygenated fuels to replace harmful, toxic components currently found in gasoline."

Estimates are that as a direct result of the oxygen standards established by this new clean air law, CO non-attainment areas will realize a net reduction of more than 2.5 billion tons of carbon monoxide emissions -- approximately 14 percent of the total CO emissions in those areas. The oxygenated fuel performance standard alone, will yield enough CO reduction to bring all CO non-attainment areas into compliance. At the same time, reformulated fuels sold in ozone non- attainment areas will reduce the toxic, ozone-forming aromatics by more than 4 billion gallons annually -- providing a dramatic step forward for our nation's health and environment."

"Mobil and its Big Oil brethren lost the fight in Congress to prevent cleaner burning reformulated gasoline from being sold in the nation's worst polluted areas. Now, it appears, they're trying to reformulate their image in the public with these high-priced simplistic ads."

SEATTLE (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Boeing Commercial Airplane Group today delivered the 100th 747-400, an all-passenger model for Canadian Airlines. Christened the "Maxwell W. Ward," the -400 left Boeing Field bound for Vancouver, B.C., at about 11:30 a.m. It will initially operate between Canadian cities and Hawaii, and later to Pacific Rim destinations.

At the delivery ceremony in Seattle's Museum of Flight, Richard R. Albrecht, Boeing Commercial Airplane Group executive vice president, said "The -400 is the flagship of the Boeing product line, and to be sending off the 100th airplane is an important milestone for all of us at Boeing." One hundred employees from the Everett Division, where the 747s are built, represented their fellow employees at the ceremony.

The first 747-400 was delivered less than two years ago to Northwest Airlines. Since its launch, 31 customers have announced orders for 399 of the advanced technology jetliners. During 1990, 19 customers have announced orders for 172 747s, more than doubling the previous record set in 1966.

The 747-400 incorporates advanced technology in aerodynamics, structural materials, avionics and interior design. Flown by a crew of two, the 747-400 can carry as many as 400 passengers in a three-class arrangement more than 8,000 miles.

As it happens, the very first 747 also was delivered on a December 13, in 1969 to Pan Am. Since then, the 800 747s in commercial service have flown more than 14.8 billion miles and carried more than a billion passengers.

MIDDLETOWN, PA (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Homestead Holding Corp. (NASDAQ-NMS: HMSD) President and Chief Executive Officer Gary L. Holman today issued the following statement:

"I am very pleased to announce that Homestead Holding Corporation (the 'corporation') has entered into an agreement with central Pennsylvania businessman John O. Vartan relative to his advising and investing in the corporation. We also have additional information from the regulators as to the extent of reserves that will likely be required as a result of the completion of their examination.

"The consulting agreement calls for the corporation's management to draw on Mr. Vartan's expertise in the real estate and financing fields. In addition, Mr. Vartan will purchase newly issued shares of the corporation's common stock equal to 5 percent of the corporation's shares, thereby strengthening the capital position of the corporation. Further, Mr. Vartan will receive options to purchase an additional 15 percent of the corporation's common stock during the next two years."

Vartan today said: "The thrift industry has been the subject of a great deal of negative press during the past few months. Those thrifts that have a sound community base will survive the present difficulties and emerge as viable institutions.

"I believe that the corporation has a strong underlying franchise in our community, and given the proper attention during the next 12 to 24 months, it will emerge as a strong local institution.

"I am therefore delighted that management has welcomed local investments, and I will do my best to strengthen the value of the corporation."

The corporation had announced on Oct. 29, 1990, that it expected to record a significant charge to operations in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990, ending Dec. 31, 1990, due to significant write-downs of the value of certain real estate ventures involving wholly owned subsidiaries of the Homestead Savings Association ("association"), as well as increases in the association's reserve for possible loan losses. The anticipated write-downs and reserves were due in part to a high level of assets tentatively classified by the Office of Thrift Supervision ("OTS") and the Pennsylvania Department of Banking. At such time, the corporation said it did not believe that it would be prudent to project the exact amount of the charge or its effect on the corporation's results of operations since the proposed classifications were preliminary in nature.

However, on Dec. 12, 1990, the association received an updated memorandum from the OTS concerning loan classifications and reserves which is substantially similar to the preliminary findings, and while such classifications and reserves are still not exact and, in fact, are subject to negotiation, the corporation said it believes that reserves of approximately $12 million will be charged to operations in the fourth quarter of 1990. The association said it believes that such reserves will result in the association's inability to meet any of its capital requirements. Accordingly, the association anticipates that it will be required to file a capital plan with the OTS addressing the association's plan for achieving compliance with its regulatory requirement.

The company's deposits are insured to the full extent of the law by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Homestead Holding Corp. is the parent company of Homestead Savings Association Homestead Services Corp., Homestead Financial Service Corp., Homestead Equities Inc., Homestead Capital Corp. and Homestead Group Inc. Realtor.

ROCKVILLE, MD (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The Food and Drug Administration Biological Response Modifiers Advisory Committee today recommended approval of Immunex Corporation's (NASDAQ: IMNX) granulocyte macrophage colony stimulating factor, or GM-CSF. The drug will be used as adjunct therapy in bone marrow transplantation, a treatment for some forms of cancer and other diseases.

The committee's recommendation to the FDA brings GM-CSF closer to final approval. The drug will be available for distribution when the FDA completes its own review of the product license application, and clears the product for marketing, under the trademark Leukine(TM).

Immunex submitted its Product and Establishment License Applications to the FDA in February 1990. In September 1990, the FDA granted Leukine GM-CSF Treatment IND (investigational new drug) status, making the drug available at no charge to desperately ill patients. Immunex's GM-CSF also received FDA Orphan Drug designation earlier in the year.

GM-CSF is a genetically engineered version of a human protein that promotes growth and differentiation of white blood cells called granulocytes and macrophages. In addition to bone marrow transplantation, the drug is also being investigated for reversing neutropenia, a white blood cell deficiency in cancer patients treated with chemotherapy.

"The advisory committee's recommendation of GM-CSF is an important step for our company," said Steven Gillis, Ph.D., executive vice president, research and development, Immunex Corporation. "We are pleased that this panel of nationally recognized experts supports GM-CSF treatment, and we will continue to work closely with the FDA to complete the approval process."

Immunex is a pharmaceutical company focused on the research, development, manufacture and marketing of products to treat immune system disorders. The company developed GM-CSF with support from Behringwerke, A.G. (Marburg, Germany) and Hoechst-Roussel Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (Somerville, N.J.)

ROCHESTER, NY (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Roadway Motor Plazas, Inc. (NASDAQ: RDWI) today reported earnings of $228,502 or 4 cents per share on revenue of $38,354,321 for the fiscal second quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990, compared to net income of $39,955 or 1 cent per share on revenue of $30,738,615 for the second quarter ended Oct. 31, 1989. John Holahan, the company president, reported that although fuel prices have increased dramatically during the quarter, a return to historical fuel margins has allowed the company to return to its previous level of profitability.

Net profit for the six months ended Oct. 31, 1990 was $658,090 or 13 cents per share on revenue of $70,122,153, compared to $256,675 or 5 cents per share on revenue of $60,387,282 for the same period in the prior fiscal year. The 18 percent increase in sales reflects the addition of two new travel centers in Indiana and one in Greencastle, Pa., as well as the increased retail pricing of fuel. The increase in net income is attributable to improved profit margins on diesel fuel and a reduction in expenses as a percent of sales.

COLUMBUS, OHIO (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - American Honda Motor Co. Inc. today introduced the 1991 Accord Wagon to the national automotive and business press in Marysville, Ohio.

The Accord Wagon, which will be built exclusively at Honda's manufacturing plant in Marysville, is the first Honda automobile to be designed, engineered and developed in the United States. Honda R&D North America was responsible for the wagon project, with its Los Angeles Center handling design stages and the Ohio Center near Marysville charged with supplier and prototype development.

As the first ever wagon version of Honda's popular mid-size Accord, the new automobile is expected to help solidify the Accord's position as the top-selling automobile in the United States. In addition, the Accord Wagon will become the first U.S.-manufactured Honda automobile to be exported to Europe in 1991, and will also be exported to Japan.

All Accord Wagons feature the 2.2 liter, 16-valve fuel-injected engine, delivering 125 horsepower in LX trim. A dual-stage intake manifold helps the EX engine produce 140 horsepower for added performance. The Accord Wagon also features a double wishbone suspension front and rear for a combination of excellent handling and a comfortable ride.

Standard features for both LX and EX versions include supplemental restraint system (SRS) with driver's side airbag, air conditioning, AM/FM stereo cassette, cruise control and power- operated side mirrors, windows and door locks.

In addition, the more luxurious EX version features a power moonroof, keyless entry system and more powerful 140-horsepower engine.

Prices for 1991 Accord Wagon will range from $17,300 suggested retail for an LX with 5-speed manual transmission, to $19,800 for the EX equipped with a 4-speed automatic. EPA fuel economy estimates for the Wagon are city/highway 22/27 with a 5-speed manual transmission and 20/26 with 4-speed automatic transmission.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Jeep(R), the world's best known 4x4 vehicle, is making its first appearance in the Middle East's Gulf countries in 25 years at this week's Jeddah Motor Show at the new Jeddah International Exhibition Centre.

Famed for its exploits in World War II and for its amazing reliability over all kinds of terrain, the modern-day Jeep sport utility is proving to be a star attraction at the show. The Jeep vehicles are featured on the United Arab Motors' Chrysler stand.

Chrysler is also using the Jeddah Motor Show to launch the Detroit-based corporation's wide range of 1991 models into the kingdom of Saudi Arabia, as well as the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Qatar, Kuwait and Oman. The two stands featuring Chrysler vehicles at the Jeddah show are sponsored by Alesayi Trading Corporation, headquartered in Jeddah and the distributor of Chrysler products in the western/central province of Saudi Arabia, and United Arab Motors, based in Riyadh, which is distributing Dodge and Jeep models throughout Saudi Arabia and Chrysler cars in the eastern province.

"We are very pleased to bring Jeep into the Middle East after a long absence," said Joseph E. Cappy, Chrysler Vice President - International Operations. "Jeep vehicles are uniquely suited to this region and we are enthusiastic about the public's response to their availability. Chrysler is making a major commitment to the Middle East, which we believe is a very important market."

Jeep models represent the largest share of Chrysler's vehicle sales outside of North America and have an illustrious history that dates back 50 years. Chrysler Corporation acquired the Jeep product line as a result of the merger with American Motors Corporation in 1987.

Today's rather luxurious Jeep models, however, bear little resemblance to the ones that starred in the theaters of war (and in innumerable Hollywood films) and is expected to be a top contender with 4x4 enthusiasts in Saudi Arabia and the Middle East.

The two models, Jeep Cherokee and Jeep Wrangler, each come in four different versions. The five-door 190-horsepower Cherokee range includes the Cherokee Base, Sport, Laredo and Cherokee Limited edition. The two-door Wrangler is a fun-and-freedom machine, with the Wrangler Base, Islander, Sahara and Laredo in the range. All Jeep models are equipped with 4.0-liter, six-cylinder engines and either manual or automatic transmissions.

Chrysler is mounting a major campaign on the regional automobile market in the Middle East, and the wide and varied range of models on display at the Jeddah Show also include the Chrysler Imperial, New Yorker Salon and Acclaim, as well as the Dodge Dynasty and Spirit.

MINNEAPOLIS (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Washington Scientific Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: WSCI) today reported a net loss for its first quarter ended Nov. 18, 1990, of $30,000, or one cent per share, compared with net earnings of $1,242,000, or 52 cents per share, in the first quarter of fiscal 1990. However, first quarter results were significantly improved from a net loss of $858,000, or 36 cents per share, in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990.

Net sales for the first quarter of 1991 were $14,665,000 compared with $20,389,000 in the first quarter of 1990. In last year's first quarter, the company had an overlapping of major projects with one of its major customers which resulted in unusually high sales. The company also experienced scheduling reductions from customers in its Contract Manufacturing Division during this year's first quarter.

Gross margin was 11 percent in the first quarter, compared with 19 percent in last year's first quarter and 3 percent in the fourth quarter. Gross margin was exceptionally strong in last year's first quarter due to the overlapping of major projects mentioned above.

The company also announced that its board of directors today declared its regular quarterly cash dividend of five cents per share, payable Jan. 25, 1991 to shareholders of record as of Jan. 9, 1991.

Clifford W. Dinsmore, president and CEO said, "We are beginning to see the results of improved manufacturing efficiencies and cost reductions in our Contract Manufacturing Division. In particular, machining costs on our major new computer peripherals project are coming into line with expectations. In addition, margins at our Advanced Custom Molders subsidiary improved significantly in the first quarter.

"However, we are still being affected by lower than expected capacity utilization and costs relating to the development of new non-computer industry business. These factors will continue to hold down our profitability in the near-term."

Washington Scientific Industries is a Minnesota-based provider of high precision manufacturing services for a variety of industries. The company's Contract Manufacturing Division produces machined metal components and subassemblies in three plants located in Minnesota and California, and its Advanced Custom Molders subsidiary produces thermoplastic injection molded components in two Texas plants.

LA JOLLA, CALIF. (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Marrow-Tech Inc. (NASDAQ: MAROA, MAROZ) reported, as expected, a net loss $1.4 million for the third quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990. The cumulative net loss reported for the nine months ended Oct. 31, 1990 was $3.9 million. "The results for the third quarter are consistent with our expectations and reflect our continuing investment in research and product development," reported Arthur J. Benvenuto, chairman, president and chief executive officer. "The recent introduction of our Skin2(TM) ("skin-squared") toxicology screening kits represents an important advancement in our company's development." In the three and nine months ended Oct. 31, 1989, the company had a net loss of $0.9 million and $2.7 million, respectively.

The net loss per share was nine cents and 10 cents for the three months ended Oct. 31, 1990 and 1989, respectively, and 26 cents for both the nine months ended Oct. 31, 1990 and 1989. The per share amounts in the current fiscal year reflect additional shares outstanding in 1990 from the exercise of the company's Class A Warrants in late 1989.

The introduction of the Skin2 product, the company's first commercial product, was made to coincide with a scientific symposium sponsored by the Center for Alternatives to Animal Testing in late November of this year. This dermal model of the toxicology screening kit is for use in evaluating cytotoxicity and irritancy of industrial or household chemicals, pharmaceuticals, food additives, cosmetics and pesticides. In the future, the company plans to expand its Skin2 line by adding additional substrates, tissues and applications such as for evaluating efficacy, penetration, wound healing and metabolism.

As previously announced, the company received approval in October for an Investigational Device Exemption from the Food and Drug Administration to begin human clinical trials of its cultured dermal replacement product, Derma-Graft(TM). The approval is for multi-center trials of DermaGraft in patients with severe burns.

Also in October, the U.S. Patent Office issued the company a product patent on its core technology. This product patent covers three- dimensional living stromal tissue, or stroma, cultured outside the body on a biocompatible framework. Stroma is composed of special support cells; in the body these cells secrete a variety of growth factors and structural proteins that support organ formation and growth. The company uses its three-dimensional cultured stroma to grow skin, bone marrow and liver tissue and has been investigating its use in the growth of other organ tissues.

LA JOLLA, CALIF. (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Marrow-Tech Inc. (NASDAQ: MAROA, MAROZ) announced today that it has received a notice of allowance for a U.S. patent on the use of its three-dimensional cell and tissue culture system for cytotoxicity testing. The patent covers the use of a variety of living tissues produced by the company's proprietary tissue replication technology for testing the toxicity, irritancy and efficacy of various compounds.

The allowance of this patent coincides with the beginning of commercial sales of Marrow-Tech's first products: Skin2(TM) ("skin squared"), toxicity screening kits. The kits, which feature living, three-dimensional human skin tissue, are being used by toxicology researchers in contract laboratories and cosmetic, petrochemical and household product companies for screening new products for cell toxicity and irritancy. Data obtained from testing with Skin2 kits has correlated with data from both animal studies (Draize ocular) and human skin patch studies.

Marrow-Tech holds two additional U.S. patents, No. 4,721,096, which covers a process that includes in vitro growth of bone marrow for transplantation, and No. 4,963,489, a product patent on its tissue replication core technology. Foreign patent applications have also been filed.

Marrow-Tech is engaged in the growth of human tissue outside the body. The company's proprietary tissue culture system has a number of potential therapeutic and laboratory applications. To date, the company has successfully grown skin, bone marrow and liver tissue.

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - New York Power Authority (NYPA) Chairman Richard M. Flynn announced Thursday that NYPA has been selected by the Long Island Lighting Co. (LILCO) to build a 150,000-kilowatt (kw) natural gas-fueled power plant in Holtsville, Suffolk County.

The decision followed a lengthy competitive bidding process in which LILCO evaluated more than 20 proposals for supply of new electricity for its customers.

"We're delighted by this new opportunity to serve the people and businesses of Long Island," Flynn said. "We're particularly pleased that our proposal was identified as the best in this competitive process that was open to all comers.

"The New York Power Authority has been competing successfully to sell its electricity from the time it built its first plant," Flynn said. "The bidding outcome on Long Island continues that tradition."

Flynn said the new power plant is planned for completion in early 1994 and that work to obtain the necessary permits will begin immediately. Construction is scheduled to start in early 1992. Natural gas will be the main fuel for the plant, which also will be able to burn oil.

A long-term contract already negotiated by Flynn will assure a firm and economical natural gas supply for the plant. It was a key factor in the NYPA bid's competitive advantage.

"The economic benefits of our natural gas supply will be passed on to Long Island consumers," Flynn said. "Beyond that, natural gas is a clean fuel. And, as with all our projects, we'll build this one with utmost concern for the environment."

Negotiations between NYPA and LILCO on a power supply contract and other agreements concerning the new plant are expected to begin this month. The plant will be built on LILCO property adjacent to the utility's combustion turbine station in Holtsville, Town of Brookhaven. Flynn noted that use of the LILCO property, in an area zoned for industry, will help to lessen effects of construction.

A "combined-cycle" technology will be used, providing greater efficiency in power production. The fuel will be burned to power a 100,000-kw turbine-generator. Hot gases, normally lost in the combustion process, will then be used to create steam that will spin a second turbine-generator to produce 50,000 kw of additional electricity.

DEARBORN, MICH (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - A new, more aerodynamic full-size car will go on sale at Ford Division dealerships next March, Robert L. Rewey, Ford vice president - Sales Operations, announced at a news conference here today.

The 1992 Crown Victoria is the first major redesign of Ford's full- size, four-door family sedan since 1979. The new, six-passenger vehicle features aerodynamic styling, a new engine and a substantially revised suspension system.

"We're beginning the 1990s with an all-new design," Rewey said. "The new cars are modern in every sense of the word. The 1992 models are more efficient and more aerodynamic, and they will offer the safety and technology features that today's new-car buyer is looking for."

Features such as a standard overhead-cam modular V-8 engine, driver and optional passenger-side air bags and anti-lock brakes will help the Crown Victoria outperform its competition in the full-size car market by a considerable margin, Rewey said.

"The primary objective of our engineers was to provide firm, confident handling and better overall ride balance without sacrificing the ride comfort that appeals to full-size car buyers," he said.

Ride and handling features of the '92 Crown Victoria include: -- Four-wheel disc brakes, -- A redesigned independent front suspension, -- A unique "one-to-one" front stabilizer bar, as well as a new rear stabilizer bar,

-- New gas-pressurized shock absorbers, front and rear, -- Power assisted, speed-sensitive steering, and -- An anti-lock brake system that includes a computerized traction control feature that prevents drive wheels from spinning when traction is unequal from wheel to wheel.

"The new Crown Victoria will have a lot going for it," Rewey said. "Ford engineers rate it best-in-class for handling and we believe it will be the quietest car in its class as well. It also will have best- in-class interior room -- more than 132 cubic feet -- and best-in-class trunk room."

The Ford executive pointed out the 1992 Crown Victoria represents the first "salvo" in a 12-month Ford Division product blitz.

Earlier this week, ACI and Air Products, a leading international supplier of industrial gasses, entered a strategic alliance which will provide the metals industry with a single source for oxygen-based combustion technology, including technical expertise, equipment and oxygen.

DALLAS (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Holly Corp. (AMEX: HOC) today reported results for the company's first quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990.

Holly's net income for the company's first fiscal quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990, was $2.8 million, as compared to $5.2 million for the first quarter of the prior year. Net income per share for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 was 34 cents, compared to 63 cents in the prior year period.

Net income in the current quarter as compared to the corresponding quarter of the prior year was adversely affected by lower margins as a result of increased crude oil prices that were only partially offset by increases in product prices. Also affecting the results in the current period were increased costs resulting from a planned shutdown for major maintenance (turnaround). The volatility in crude oil costs as a result of the Middle East crisis and the inability to recover those costs in the market have somewhat abated since the end of the first quarter of the current fiscal year, and accordingly refining margins have been improving.

The increase in revenues for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 as compared to the first quarter of fiscal 1990 is attributable to higher prices of refined products sold, in large part due to sharp increases in crude oil costs. Volumes sold during the current period decreased approximately 10 percent, principally due to the planned shutdown at Navajo Refining Co.'s refinery in Artesia, N.M.

Rice, president and chairman of the board of directors of the Cape Cod Bank and Trust Company (NASDAQ: CCBT), said today that he expects the bank to report a loss for the fourth quarter and for the year as a whole. CLEVELAND (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - In a presentation to the Bank & Financial Analysts Association in New York this afternoon, management of Society Corporation (NASDAQ: SOCI) commented on the status of the examination of its subsidiary national banks by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC). Robert W. Gillespie, chairman and CEO of Society, explained that holding company management had met with the OCC Examiner-in-Charge of Society Corporation's national bank subsidiaries (primarily Society National Bank, Cleveland, the corporation's lead bank, and Society Bank, N.A., Dayton). During the meeting the examiner's preliminary report was discussed. After review by OCC regional headquarters in Chicago, the findings will be presented to the banks' boards of directors after the first of the year.

Gillespie said, "The examination has produced no surprises and management will be taking no specific actions regarding charge-offs or additions to the allowance for loan losses or nonperforming loan categories as a result. Obviously we were pleased to have our evaluation of the loan portfolio confirmed. However, we all know the economy has been deteriorating for several months. Our asset quality monitoring process has resulted in several credits, principally loans in the commercial real estate portfolio, being downgraded under our internal grading system. This suggests to us that it will be prudent to continue our program of adding to our loss reserve in an orderly, planned fashion."

Commenting on the outlook for 1991, Gillespie indicated that the slowing Midwest economy will lead to lower levels of loan growth in addition to the credit-quality concerns. Gillespie said, "In the current environment, there is no question that our ability to control costs will be a major determinant of our ability to attain a 10th consecutive year of earnings per share improvement in 1991."

In his part of the presentation, James W. Wert, CFO of Society, reported on programs designed to reduce annual noninterest expenses by at least $40 million by the end of 1992. Wert noted that current plans call for realizing approximately $20 million of such savings in 1991. Wert said, "Our program is off to an excellent start. I am confident we will succeed in reaching our goal of at least $40 million as new phases take effect."

CAMBRIDGE, MA (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Conclusive evidence that antibodies to the V3 loop of one AIDS virus strain are capable of neutralizing a variety of strains is presented in the Dec. 14, 1990, issue of Science magazine by researchers from Repligen Corporation (NASDAQ: RGEN) and Duke University. This demonstration of "cross neutralization" in immunized animals provides additional important evidence that a single V3 loop peptide may elicit antibodies which neutralize widely divergent viral strains.

In the study, scientists evaluated antibodies elicited by the principal neutralizing determinant (PND), or V3 loop, which is located on the virus envelope. They discovered that antibodies to the V3 loop of a single HIV strain neutralized the virus and prevented fusion of uninfected CD4 cells by infected cells in both the "parent" strain and several unrelated strains. Through characterization studies, it was further determined that the cross-neutralizing antibodies bound to a unique six-amino acid sequence found in the PND of all the strains that were neutralized.

Consequently, antibodies that neutralize one strain containing the six-amino acid sequence may be effective against an entire "family" of viruses in which all strains contain this commonly occuring sequence. In fact, this sequence was found in 60 percent of 245 HIV strains tested by Repligen, Merck & Co., Inc., Duke and other collaborators as demonstrated by a study published in the Aug. 24, 1990, issue of Science. Using "cocktails" of V3 peptides representative of this major virus group and other dominant virus families, it may be possible to devise a vaccine candidate which would induce immunity to a broad range of HIV strains.

According to Walter C. Herlihy, Jr., Ph.D., Repligen's senior vice president of research and development, "This demonstration of cross- neutralization provides additional evidence that it may be feasible to develop a broadly effective vaccine against AIDS."

Repligen develops and manufactures biochemical products for the healthcare market, primarily in the areas of retrovirology and cancer. The company's headquarters and its research and production facilities are in Cambridge, Mass.

Since Nov. 9, Barnett has been conducting an offering on a continuous basis of its medium-term notes. As of today, Barnett had sold $88 million of these senior debt securities with maturities ranging from one year to five years.

In its filing this week, Barnett made the following statement under the heading "Recent Developments:"

"As a result of continuing deterioration in the commercial real estate markets in Florida and Georgia and a general slowdown in the economy, the corporation's level of non-performing assets is expected to continue to rise at least through the end of the fourth quarter of 1990. In addition, the levels of charge-offs and provisions for loan losses in the fourth quarter are expected to be comparable to those recorded in the third quarter of 1990. The extent or duration of any further deterioration in the commercial real estate markets cannot be predicted. However, continuation of these trends would likely result in further increases in non-performing assets and continued high levels of provisions for loan losses." PHILADELPHIA (DEC. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Celutel Inc. (AMEX: CLU) announced today that at its annual meeting of shareholders held today, Frank S. Scarpa, Forrest Metz, Louis Magazzu, Douglas Dittrick, J. Walter Corcoran and William A. Gebhardt were elected directors to serve until the next annual meeting of shareholders and until their successors are elected and qualified.

Scarpa also announced at the meeting that the corporation had received on the evening of Dec. 12 an unsolicited proposal which, based on a condensed summary of the proposal provided to Celutel, involved providing Celutel with a line of credit to be used for working capital and the acquisition and operation of additional cellular markets adjacent to Celutel's current holdings. As described in the condensed summary, Celutel would issue common stock purchase warrants in consideration for making available the line of credit. The person submitting the proposal instructed Celutel that Celutel was to discontinue reading the proposal if Celutel is currently under obligations which prohibit Celutel from such discussions. Celutel has determined that such discussions would breach the terms of its agreement with Continental Illinois Venture Corp. entered into on Nov. 29, 1990. Accordingly, Celutel is prohibited by the terms of the proposal from reading its full terms other than the condensed summary provided and is unaware at this time of the complete terms of the proposal.

Celutel advised the person submitting the proposal that it appears on the basis of the condensed summary of the proposal that the transaction as described would not meet Celutel's immediate needs for additional capital to repay outstanding indebtedness, among other needs. Celutel further advised the person submitting the proposal that if a proposal is presented in a manner whereby, under the terms of its Continental agreement, it can consider the proposal, the board will fulfill its fiduciary obligations to the shareholders and consider such a proposal.

Celutel is engaged in the development and operation of cellular telephone systems, servicing market areas in the Rio Grande River Valley area of south Texas and in the state of Mississippi.

MOSCOW (DEC. 13) TASS - THE SOVIET UNION HAS NO PLANS TO PARTICIPATE IN A MILITARY SETTLEMENT OF THE GULF CRISIS, SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTRY SPOKESMAN VITALI CHURKIN WRITES IN AN ARTICLE PUBLISHED BY THE SOVETSKAYA ROSSIA NEWSPAPER TODAY.

THE SPOKESMAN ARGUES WITH SEVERAL ANALYSTS AND THE NEWSPAPER'S READERS WHO OPPOSE THE DISPATCH OF SOVIET TROOPS TO THAT REGION IN THEIR ARTICLES AND LETTERS.

THE SOVIET UNION PROCEEDS FROM THE PREMISE THAT KUWAIT'S ANNEXATION IS AN "UNPROVOKED ACT OF AGGRESSION" AGAINST A SOVEREIGN COUNTRY, CHURKIN SAYS. THIS PROMPTED THE UNITED STATES AND ANOTHER 26 COUNTRIES TO SEND THEIR TROOPS TO THE GULF.

SEVERAL COUNTRIES HAVE REQUESTED SOVIET MILITARY PRESENCE IN THE GULF, THE SPOKESMAN NOTES.

"HOWEVER, WE EXPLAINED THAT WOUNDS INFLICTED BY THE AFGHAN WAR ARE SO DEEP THAT THE SOVIET PUBLIC AND PARLIAMENT WOULD NOT APPROVE SUCH PARTICIPATION, AND THEY UNDERSTOOD," CHURKIN SAYS.

IN THESE CIRCUMSTANCES, "THE SOVIET UNION UNEQUIVOCALLY PARTICIPATED IN THE POLITICAL REBUFF TO THE AGGRESSOR".

ACCORDING TO CHURKIN, THE ESSENCE OF U.N. SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION 678 IS "TO GIVE PEACE A CHANCE". IN THE OPINION OF THE SOVIET UNION, A "GOODWILL PAUSE" PROVIDED FOR IN THE RESOLUTION SHOULD BE USED FOR INTENSE POLITICAL CONTACTS TO FIND A PEACEFUL SOLUTION TO THE CRISIS.

"SOVIET UNION, THE UNITED STATES AND ALL OTHER MEMBERS OF THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY WOULD PREFER A PEACEFUL OUTCOME," THE SPOKESMAN STRESSES. "BUT NOT TO RESERVE ANOTHER OPTION WOULD MEAN TO BE ENGAGED IN USELESS PERSUASIONS OF THE AGGRESSOR WHO IS FAR FROM SENTIMENTAL."

REPLYING TO READERS, WHO PRAISED IRAQ'S LINK-UP OF A SOLUTION OF THE GULF CRISIS WITH THE PALESTINIAN PROBLEM, THE SPOKESMAN EXPRESSED OPINION THAT SUCH A STANCE WOULD DIVERT THE ATTENTION OF THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY FROM THE PALESTINIAN PROBLEM AT A TIME "WHEN ENCOURAGING SIGNS APPEARED ON THE DIPLOMATIC HORIZON".

"THE SOVIET FOREIGN POLICY HAS ALWAYS PAID MUCH ATTENTION TO A SETTLEMENT OF THE ISRAELI-PALESTINIAN CONFLICT," CHURKIN STRESSED.

"REJECTING A LINK-UP WITH THE GULF CRISIS, WE BELIEVE AT THE SAME TIME THAT WORLD NATIONS SHOULD NOT SLACKEN EFFORTS ON THIS BURNING MIDDLE EASTERN PROBLEM."

HOWEVER, THIS PROVISION IS SUBJECT TO IMMEDIATE REVISION AS SOON AS THE MIDDLE EAST CRISIS IS SETTLED.

OPEC MEMBER COUNTRIES EXPECT TO MEET AGAIN IN MARCH NEXT YEAR TO REVIEW THE SITUATION.

PARTICIPANTS WELCOMED WITH SATISFACTION THE NEWLY-BEGUN DIALOGUE WITH A GROUP OF INDEPENDENT OIL-EXPORTERS AIMING AT MEASURES TO STABILISE THE OIL MARKET. IT WAS THOUGHT ADVISABLE TO CONTINUE WORK IN THIS DIRECTION.

REYNOLDSVILLE, Ill. (DEC. 13) UPI - Bob Hartung is getting married in the place where he spends most of his time in the winter: a goose pit. And his fiancee is not honked off about it, either.

Hartung, an avid hunter, and bride-to-be Mary Krotz plan to tie the knot Saturday afternoon at a southwestern Illinois farm known for goose hunting. The couple, a minister and the owner of the farm will stand in a 5-by-12-foot goose pit with the guests gathered around outside the big hole.

The bride, groom and guests plan to dress in camouflage clothing and two friends who are champion goose callers plan to play the ''Wedding March'' on goose calls. Rain or shine, the bride and groom will pass through an ''aisle'' made up of goose decoys.

''It certainly is a different and unusual way for someone to get married,'' said Illinois Conservation Director Mark Frech, a friend who hunts with the groom. ''But for someone like Bob Hartung, it's obviously an ideal place to get married.''

Hartung, 34, a boilermaker who lives in Carlyle in Southern Illinois, spends about 60 days of the 70-day goose hunting season living in a trailer at the Lyerla Lake Farms in Reynoldsville, where the wedding will be held. Hartung and Frech both hold goose hunting leases at the farm near the Missouri border.

Hartung has hunted all his life and taught Krotz, 31, how to shoot geese two years ago. They have dated for three years and he said they have never had a fight. The wedding plans were even amiable.

''It started out more or less as a joke,'' Hartung said Wednesday. ''Her and me and my dad were all hunting together. We were talking about getting married. The old man said, 'Let's get married in this goose pit. '''

Getting a minister was also not a problem.

''I found one. He says he's married them in hills, caves, so he'll marry someone in a goose pit,'' Hartung said.

(DEC. 13) UPI - Home ice has been no advantage recently for the Hartford Whalers.

Hartford again gave up an early deficit Wednesday night at the Hartford Civic Center and couldn't recover, dropping a 5-1 decision to the Boston Bruins.

The Bruins jumped out to a 3-0 lead after the first period, including Cam Neely's goal just 25 seconds into the game, and cruised from there in pushing their Adams Division lead to three points over the Montreal Canadiens.

''It was frustrating and really no contest,'' Hartford goaltender Peter Sidorkiewicz said. ''We can't keep giving up three goals in the first period and expect to win.''

Neely wound up scoring two goals for the Bruins, while Craig Janney added a goal and two assists. The other Boston goals were scored by Bob Sweeney, on a penalty shot, and Ray Bourque.

''It was a lot of fun,'' Sweeney said about the penalty shot. ''It doesn't happen too often and I just got into a positive frame of mind and hoped for the best.''

Ed Kastelic scored for the lone goal for the Whalers, who were unable to solve Andy Moog. The goaltender stopped 23 shots and improved his career mark against Hartford to 12-6-2.

Boston Coach Mike Milbury was pleased with his team's effort and hopes the Bruins can link several more aggressive efforts in the coming weeks.

''It was a good team effort and we're hoping to build from this,'' Milbury said. ''I'd like to see us put together about 10 games like the way we played tonight.''

The game was the first in a home-and-home series between the Bruins and Whalers. The rematch was scheduled for 24 hours later at the Boston Garden.

''All we can hope for is that we play better and a little more physical on Thursday,'' Kastelic said. ''We buried ourselves in the first period again and we'll be out to prove ourselves tommorrow rather than laboring and thinking about this one.''

In other NHL action Wednesday night, Toronto mauled Montreal 4-1 and Edmonton outlasted Vancouver 5-4.

-- AROUND THE NHL --

Maple Leafs 4, Canadiens 1

At Toronto, Michel Petit scored a goal and added an assist to help the Maple Leafs snap Montreal's three-game winning streak. It was only the eighth win in 33 games for Maple Leafs, in last place in the Norris Division.

Oilers 5, Canucks 4

At Edmonton, Alberta, Joe Murphy scored a goal and added three assists to lead the Oilers. Murphy, acquired from Detroit last year as part of the Jimmy Carson trade, produced his biggest scoring night of the season in helping Edmonton out of last place in the Smythe Division.

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (DEC. 13) UPI - The first Marine to refuse to go to the Mideast for Operation Desert Shield was cashiered Wednesday under an agreement in which he dropped legal action against the Corps for refusing his request to be classified as a conscientious objector.

Lance Cpl. Jeffrey A. Paterson, 22, of Hollister, Calif., was given an ''other than honorable'' discharge, his back pay and an airline ticket home after admitting to two infractions and accepting a reduction in rank.

Brig. Gen. R.L. Phillips said in a statement that the discharge was ''in the best interests of the United States government.''

Paterson's attorney, Eric Seitz, said the other-than-honorable discharge was tantamount to being fired, and ''we are comfortable with that.''

''He did not want to be in the military any more than they wanted him to be in the military,'' said Seitz.

On Aug. 29, 12 days after Paterson applied for conscientious objector status on the grounds that engaging in combat would violate his beliefs, he refused a direct order to board a transport plane bound for Saudi Arabia, sitting down on the floor of the hangar while his fellow Marines shipped out.

Paterson wrote an opinion piece published in the Los Angeles Times in which he said he was willing to fight for ''the people of this land ... but my weapons are ideas, commitment and a sense of justice - not bullets, chemical rockets or nuclear warheads. And my battles are against injustice, inequality and the placing of the Earth's wealth in the hands of the very few.''

Paterson said he objected to the U.S. military presence in the Persian Gulf, saying it was being carried out to satisfy ''imperialistic economic interests.''

In order to be granted the status of conscientious objector, a member of the Armed Forces must prove that the beliefs being violated are the primary controlling force in his or her life, and ''of the same strength and depth as found in traditional religious conviction.''

The Marine Corps has received 33 applications this year, eight since the beginning of Operation Desert Shield in August after Iraq invaded Kuwait. Nineteen have been approved, 13 denied and one is still pending, said a spokesman for the Corps.

(DEC. 13) UPI - The U-N Security Council will resume its debate Monday on a proposed Middle East peace conference. WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - The Pentagon official in charge of military procurement has quit in what appeared to be the latest fallout from disclosures of delays and cost overruns in development of the Navy's $50 billion A-12 Avenger bomber.

John Betti, undersecretary of defense for acquisition, submitted his letter of resignation Wednesday to Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, saying only that he intends to ''return to the private sector.'' Cheney accepted the letter with the ''deepest regret'' and thanked Betti for his ''dedicated and successful efforts.''

A Pentagon report released last month linked Betti to the A-12 mess, which not only embarrassed Cheney and the Navy but prompted the Justice Department to launch a criminal investigation of whether money went to contractors General Dynamics Corp. and McDonnell Douglas Corp. for incomplete work.

According to the Nov. 28 internal report, the Avenger project was 18 months behind schedule and as much as $1 billion over budget.

The disclosures resulted in the forced retirement or censure of three senior officers who Navy Secretary Lawrence Garrett said had trouble telling Pentagon officials bad news about their aircraft projects.

Betti was Cheney's chief aide on questions relating to cost and schedules of major weapons programs.

The report said the under secretary knew of A-12 delays and cost overruns, but failed to place enough emphasis on them in meetings with Cheney. The report said Betti did not consider the cost overrun figures definitive because they were not in line with other estimates.

Cheney later said the plane was on time and within its budget.

In testimony before the House Armed Services Committee on Monday, Garrett said that until last June, the contractors and Navy officials provided ''no indications'' of the estimated cost overruns.

''It was a human error judgment. ... There was raw data that was received from the contractors ... that properly outlined and properly reported ... that we had a serious problem,'' Garrett said.

''The problem is we have developed over many years a system that is almost adversarial, and at the same time it creates advocacy. It is very hard to push bad news up to the top,'' he told the committee.

In the wake of the Avenger report, Vice Adm. Richard Gentz, head of the Naval Air Systems Command, was ordered to retire. Rear. Adm. John Calvert, the A-12 program executive, and Capt. Lawrence Elberfeld, the program manager, were censured and will be reassigned.

News of Betti's resignation prompted a scathing reaction from one member of Congress, who suggested that Cheney ''put his acquisition house in order'' by implementing corrective measures.

''When abuses take place in procurement, heads should roll,'' said Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, which oversees federal procurement activities. ''One head is not enough. What happened under ... Betti doesn't address the underlying flaws in special access procurement like the A-12.''

(DEC. 13) UPI - President Bush wants to follow up on what he describes as a growing ''special relationship'' between the United States and the Soviet Union. Saying the Kremlin is facing ''tough times,'' Bush announced an assistance package to help ease Moscow's food shortage. The president gave word of the development with Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze and Secretary of State Baker at his side.

The president of the cartel opened a year-end meeting in Vienna Wednesday by saying each member will be expected to return to past production quotas once the Persian Gulf crisis is resolved. OPEC President Sadek Boussena blamed consumer nations for the dramatic increase in petroleum prices, saying those counties are pushing OPEC's output to extreme levels.

SEOUL, South Korea (DEC. 13) UPI - The third round of talks between the prime ministers of South and North Korea ended Thursday with no agreement on how to end two country's 45-year division.

South Korean Prime Minister Kang Young-hoon and his North Korean counterpart, Yon Hyong-muk, however agreed to get together again Feb. 25 in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang to continue their talks in pursuit of eventual national reunification.

Kang and Yon met for two hours behind closed doors but failed to narrow differences over what to do first to push their goal. Kang insisted on a ''basic agreement'' for improved relations, and Yon a ''declaration of nonaggression, reconciliation and cooperation.''

Following the meeting, South Korean spokesman Lim Dong-won said there should first be a basic framework governing mutual relations and other detailed measures such as a nonaggression deal can be worked out later based on that framework.

''There exists a wide chasm of distrust between the South and the North,'' Lim said. ''We propose to make sure that there is a fail-safe framework first, and then based on that framework move on to agree on and implement a nonaggression arrangement.''

He said a nonaggression deal is meaningless unless backed by deed. He said even while the prime ministers talks continue the North is pushing a campaign to slander and overthrow the South.

Lim said in 1972 the two Koreas issued a joint communique renouncing hostility against each other and pledging efforts for peaceful reunification but North Korea violated the agreement on many occasions.

He cited four North Korean underground invasion tunnels across the South-North border, the 1984 bomb attack by North Korean Army commandos in Rangoon, Burma, which killed 17 South Korean officials, and the 1987 bombing of a jetliner by a North Korean agent over Southeast Asia which killed 115 people.

Lim also said the South proposed that slandering against each other be stopped effective the new year, hotlines be installed between the prime ministers and military authorities of the two sides, direct trade be open and joint development of tourist resources be pushed. The North did not respond, he said.

North Korean spokesman An Byong-su said ''the two sides ran parallel to each other'' at the meeting and no agreement could be reached despite his delegation's ''forward-looking'' proposal.

''We said what the South had in its proposal may be added to what we offered and if there were things that the South thought should be dropped from our proposal they could be dropped,'' An said. ''The South did not react. They simply avoided discussing nonaggression.''

An said The South was becoming more ''argument-oriented'' as there were more meetings. ''Their attitude today was one of total defense, to keep our proposal from being adopted. We can not tell what their basic direction is.''

The North Korean delegation will return home Friday.

(DEC. 13) UPI - Notre Dame's worst start in 20 years has coach Digger Phelps searching for a way out of their seven-game losing streak.

The Irish, 2-7, were whipped 105-95 at home by Southern California Wednesday night as Harold Miner's 35 points led the Trojans to their fifth win in six games.

The losing streak matches the second-longest in team history and the longest by a Phelps team. The only longer losing streak a Notre Dame team has suffered was a 13-game skid in 1966.

''We've got to come back and figure out how we can play with this team and the style of game we can play,'' Phelps said. ''If that means we have to play in the 60s, then we have to play in the 60s.

''It's obvious we can't run for 40 minutes when other teams want to run with us,'' said Phelps. ''We just have to play a lot smarter than we are now in regard to the tempo of the game.''

The Trojans, 5-1, built a 46-29 halftime lead and the Irish never came closer than 10 points in the second half.

Miner scored 19 points in the second half, countering every Irish attempt at a rally and pleasing USC Coach George Raveling with his patience.

''He doesn't have to work so hard on offense,'' Raveling said. ''He can let off and let his teammates do the work. The thing with Harold is that he has started to understand patience, flow and shot selection.''

Miner was more than patient enough for Phelps.

''He's just a great scorer. He's going to be one of the greatest scorers the game has seen because he's unselfish and he's smooth the way he scores,'' Phelps said. ''He has a great release, a quick release. Whenever we tried to make a run, Miner came through with the points they needed at crunch time.''

Robert Pack, who scored 24 points, sank 9 of 11 free throws in the final minutes to keep the Trojans on top.

LaPhonso Ellis led the Irish with 28 points while Elmer Bennett added 27.

In other college games Wednesday night, No. 3 Syracuse outlasted Canisius 92-83, No. 5 Georgtown routed St. Leo's 75-45, No. 9 Ohio State pounded Wright State 90-60, No. 16 Connecticut romped by New Hampshire 85-32, No. 19 South Carolina handled Furman 93-52, and Louisville upset No. 24 DePaul 94-75.

Billy Owens scored 34 points to lead the Orangemen, who hit just 23 of 42 free throws. Dave Johnson and LeRon Ellis added 16 points apiece for Syracuse. Nixon Dyall scored 21 points and had a game-high 13 rebounds for Canisius.

At Landover, Md., 7-foot-2 Dikembe Mutombo totaled 22 points, 14 rebounds and six blocked shots to lead Georgetown. Mutombo's play made up for the loss of standout center Alonzo Mourning, who is nursing a minor foot injury.

At Storrs, Conn., the Huskies bolted to a 32-0 lead and went on a 21- 0 run in the second half. John Gwynn scored 10 of his 21 points in the game opening run.

At Columbus, Ohio, the Buckeyes failed to reach the century mark for the first time this season but had little trouble defeating Wright State. Jim Jackson led Ohio State with 20 points.

At Louisville, LaBradford Smith scored 19 of his 24 points in the second half to lead the Cardinals to their first victory. A 19-3 Louisville run to start the second half took the Blue Demons out of the game. James Brewer added 19 points and Everick Sullivan 15 for Louisville, which had played only one other game this season, getting blown out by Indiana on Dec. 1. DePaul's David Booth led all scorers with 25 points.

At Columbia, S.C., Barry Manning and Joe Rhett scored 19 points each and keyed a swarming defense. The Gamecocks, 7-1, never trailed after the opening minute and used a 22-6 run in the final 11 minutes of the first half to cruise to their sixth straight victory.

MANILA, Philippines (DEC. 13) UPI - President Corazon Aquino signed a bill Thursday that creates a powerful police force separate from the military which would take primary responsibility for internal security and the anti-insurgency campaign.

Aquino named Maj. Gen. Cesar Nazareno, chief of the Philippine Constabulary, as the head of the Philippine National Police to be placed under the revitalized and renamed Department of Interior and Local Governments.

For the first time since the late dictator Ferdinand Marcos declared martial law in 1972 and merged police functions with the military, police forces will fall under the supervision of city and town mayors, except for a month during elections.

''We have taken the final step towards cutting off the remaining vestige of the past authoritarian regime when civilian and military functions were merged to consolidate political power in support of the dictatorship,'' Aquino said during the signing ceremony.

But she said ''there is so much to be done, a renaissance of the police force is in order.''

Under the new law, local police forces numbering some 42,000 will be merged with the 50,000-strong Constabulary, formed in 1901 while the country was a U.S. colony. Eventual target strength of the PNP is 120, 000.

The move makes the Department of Interior and Local Governments more powerful than the defense department. Aside from taking control of the PNP, the department will supervise firefighting units and the national prisons.

PNP, whose creation is provided under the new constitution, will have under its wing the anti-hijacking unit, aviation security and police functions of the coast guard.

The law states that PNP will take charge of internal security, including peace and order and the campaign against communist and separatist insurgents and rebel soldiers who have tried seven times to oust Aquino.

In cases where additional firepower is needed and during national emergencies, the armed forces, under the defense department, could be called in to help.

The armed forces, including the 26,000-member Navy, the 17,000-strong Air Force and the 62,000-man Army, will be primarily in charge of external security, according to the new law.

Defense Secretary Fidel Ramos said the formation of the PNP would result in the ''continuous acceleration and intensification of the momentum of our peace and order drive.''

(DEC. 13) UPI - The Boston Celtics are back, and getting better fast.

For the past two seasons, the Celtics were mediocre - struggling at home, losing on the road and looking like a tired old team. Now, after just 21 games under first-year coach Chris Ford, Boston is up and running and back among the best.

On Wednesday night at Boston Garden, the Celtics humbled the Central Division-leading Milwaukee Bucks 129-111, shooting an extraordinary 65 percent from the floor. Boston, now 17-4, led from the opening minutes and was ahead by 36 points in the third quarter.

''In the end, we closed the gap and made it respectable,'' said Bucks Coach Del Harris. ''The truth was, it was a knockout.''

What made the victory even more impressive was that Boston's worst loss of the year came in Milwaukee, a 28-point rout on Nov. 13.

Since then, Ford has moved 6-foot-5 shooter Kevin Gamble into the starting lineup at small forward and the result has been 13 wins in the last 15 games.

''He's the difference in our team - he's a winner,'' says appreciative teammate Larry Bird, who often works give-and-go plays with Gamble, who ranks fourth in the NBA in shooting percentage.

The Celtics have also benefited greatly from the addition of quick guards Brian Shaw and Dee Brown, who give speed to the combined 38 years experience of big men Bird, Robert Parish and Kevin McHale, whose respective ages are 34, 37 and 32.

''Right now, the Celtics have a nice mix of veterans and youth,'' said Harris. ''If you're going to make changes, it's better to trade in old, short legs instead of old, long legs.''

Bird, who admits he's not the star he once was, occasionally struggles with his shooting touch; like his 15-for-51 misfiring during a recent Texas trip.

But he was on-target against the Bucks, scoring 18 of his 30 points in the first quarter - when the ball never touched the rim.

''He came out on fire tonight,'' said Milwaukee's Alvin Robertson. ''He gave his teammates all the confidence in the world and they never looked back.''

''We just try to give him the ball and get out of his way,'' said Boston's Reggie Lewis, who scored 18 points.

The Celtics took control of the game in the first half, when they shot 61 percent from the floor and committed just one turnover while building a 66-48 halftime advantage.

The Bucks, who had a four-game winning streak snapped, were paced by Frank Brickowski's 17 points.

Elsewhere in the NBA Wednesday night, San Antonio out-played Charlotte 92-81, Houston downed Philadelphia 108-100, the LA Clippers stopped Cleveland 100-90, Atlanta routed Miami 118-93, Seattle overcame Indiana 99-90 and Dallas took out the LA Lakers 112-97 in overtime.

-- AROUND THE NBA --

Spurs 92, Hornets 81

At Charlotte, N.C., David Robinson scored 24 points and grabbed 17 rebounds, leading San Antonio to its third straight win. The Spurs scored the game's first 7 points and never trailed. The Hornets, losers for the fifth straight game, were paced by Armon Gilliam's 16 points and 14 rebounds.

Rockets 108, 76ers 100

At Philadelphia, Akeem Olajuwon scored 29 points and grabbed 15 rebounds as Houston ended a 23-game losing streak at the Specturm. The Rockets had not won in Philadelphia since Jan. 2, 1974. The 76ers, winners in their previous four games, were paced by Charles Barkley's 29 points.

LA Clippers 100, Cavs 90

At Richfield, Ohio, Ken Norman scored 9 of his game-high 30 points in a decisive 21-2 run at the start of the third quarter. The Clippers won for just the second time in eight road games. The Cavaliers, who lost their third in a row, were led by Brad Daugherty's 21 points and 13 rebounds.

Hawks 118, Heat 93

At Miami, Dominique Wilkins scored 28 points and collected 17 rebounds, leading Atlanta to its fourth win in five games. Kevin Willis added 22 points for the resurgent Hawks, who led from midway through the first quarter. Miami, which lost its fifth in a row, was paced by Sherman Douglas and Glen Rice with 16 points each.

Sonics 95, Pacers 86

At Seattle, Derrick McKey and Shawn Kemp each scored 18 points and Seattle kept Indiana's road mark a perfect 0-11, the league's worst away-from-home record. The Pacers lost despite Reggie Miller's game-high 26 points and Rik Smits' 18. The Supersonics had been struggling at home, having lost four of their previous five.

Mavericks 112, LA Lakers 97 (OT)

At Inglewood, Calif., the Mavericks scored the first 13 points in overtime and ended a six-game losing streak. Rodney McCray forced the extra period with an 18-foot turnaround jumper as time expired in regulation play. For Dallas, Derek Harper, Rolando Blackman and James Donaldson each scored 22 points. The Lakers received a game-high 28 points from James Worthy.

HONG KONG (DEC. 13) UPI - The government estimated Thursday that up to 30 percent of the hundreds of thousands of Hong Kong residents emigrating ahead of China's takeover in 1997 would return to the British colony once they gained foreign passports.

Officials said a sagging global economy would bolster the return rate and based their estimate on informal surveys and an increase in the number of former Hong Kong people applying for permanent residence in the colony.

''We estimate that between 10 and 30 percent of those people who emigrated since 1985 may be returning to Hong Kong,'' said Regina Ip, deputy director of Administration. ''It takes two to three years to fulfill residency requirements in a foreign country and indications show that a number of these people are now coming back.''

The estimate followed official projections that a record 62,000 people - mostly middle-class professionals - would emigrate this year and that the exodus would remain at similar levels in 1991.

The government said the number of former Hong Kong residents applying to live in the colony again doubled in 1990. No specific numbers were released and Ip said the actual increase was very small and ''statisically meaningless.''

''But it is interesting and, taken together with household surveys we did and our informal contacts, points to an increase in those people returning,'' she said.

China pledged in a 1984 agreement with London to leave Hong Kong's liberal system intact for 50 years after Britain's 99-year lease on the colony expired but tens of thousands of disbelieving Hong Kong residents emigrate to more secure countries each year.

The brain drain has further tightened the colony's already strained skilled labor force and, according to a series of polls, has caused many multinational companies to consider relocating.

The government and the private sector have launched schemes to lure the colony's emigrants back, but officials involved in many of the programs said they achieved little success.

PARIS (DEC. 13) UPI - France's leading anti-terrorist magistrate who uncovered a network of pro-Iranian bombers in Paris died Thursday after firing a bullet into his mouth in what police said was a suicide.

Doctors fought to save the life of Judge Gilles Boulouque, 40, after he shot himself at his home in the capital. But Boulouque died from his wound around 2 a.m.

Associates said the investigating judge had been suffering from personal problems recently. But the Professional Association of Magistrates said in a statement that the judge had been hounded by enemies within his profession as well as some journalists and politicians.

The group called on ''certain judicial, governmental and journalistic circles to question themselves about the share of the responsibility coming from them.''

Such circles created ''psychological conditions that have played their role in this outcome,'' the magistrates' association contended. Boulouque was a conservative who headed investigations into numerous terrorist cases, notably the wave of Iranian-sponsored bombings that hit Paris in 1986, killing 13 people and injuring 250 others.

The bombing spree struck terror into the hearts of Parisians and led to a siege of Iranian Embassy in the capital after Iran refused to hand over for questioning an Embassy employee Boulouque suspected of masterminding the attacks.

Boulouque cultivated a tough public image and had clashed with President Francois Mitterrand's Socialist government which the judge accused of trying to undermine the independence of the judiciary.

Former Prime Minister Jacques Chirac, who owed much of his popularity in office to Boulouque's efforts to crack the Middle Eastern terrorist threat, paid homage to the magistrate Thursday.

''This has caused me much pain. He was a man of great integrity, a truly remarkable and exemplary judge who made a very important contribution to the struggle against terrorism,'' said Chirac, who is mayor of Paris.

Although authorities insisted the judge had been suffering from serious personal problems, his attorney, Francois Sarda, fueled the inevitable controversy over the apparent suicide Thursday by saying Boulouque had ''no private problems.''

''Gilles Boulouque had been hit by unjust resentments,'' Sarda said in a statement sent to the Senate. He cried for the ricochets on his family. His wounds were profound and still bleeding. His smile covered ''und and still b

Sarda said that Boulouque ''was living with a dumb interior revolt that without doubt wore down his nerves. Now he is receiving new, posthumous blows when one evokes private problems to explain his gesture when they did not exist.''

Boulouque in November 1989 indicted a pro-Iranian fundamentalist leader and 17 other people on charges of carrying out the wave of terrorist attacks in Paris in 1986.

Fouad Ali Saleh, a Tunisian, was charged with being the ''chief coordinator'' of the bombings, choosing the targets, receiving the explosives and maintaining contacts with the pro-Iranian Hezbollah (Party of God) Shiite Moslem fundamentalist movement in Lebanon.

Boulouque's death was sure to re-open a long-running debate over political interference in the struggle against terrorism. Earlier this year Mitterrand pardoned Anis Nacacche, a pro-Iranian gunman serving a life prison term for a 1982 assassination attempt against Shapour Bakhtiar, the last prime minister of the Shah. Naccache and three associates were allowed to fly to Tehran.

A state prosecutor, Bruno Cotte, ordered Thursday that an autopsy be carried out on his colleague following the suicide, judicial sources said.

COLUMBUS, OH (DEC. 13) UPI - Ohio State running backs coach Bobby Turner will join the staff of new Purdue Coach Jim Colletto as offensive coordinator and assistant head coach, it was reported Thursday.

The Columbus Dispatch said Turner, who would not comment on the move, would receive a pay raise of $25,000 per year to $75,000.

Colletto, the former OSU defensive coordinator, left last week to assume the Purdue head coaching job.

''I can't blame Bobby Turner for taking the position,'' said Ohio State head coach John Cooper. ''But I told him this morning I think he's making a mistake. I think he will have a better chance leaving the Ohio State staff and getting a head job someday than he will from somewhere else.

''You know how I feel about losing coaches to head coaching positions,'' said Cooper. ''But it bothers me to lose an assistant coach to another assistant job job.

''And I don't like a guy off my staff to leave and then hire a guy off my staff,'' he said. ''I didn't like it at Arizona State or Tulsa and I don't here. But it happens.''

Turner is the third assistant Cooper has lost in recent weeks with defensive coach Gary Blackney named to the head coaching job at Bowling Green State University, and he may lose another.

Defensive coordinator Bill Young reportedly had an interview scheduled for Thursday for the head coaching job at North Texas State.

CALHOUN, Tenn. (DEC. 13) UPI - Federal investigators worked Thursday to determine the cause of a massive wreck that smashed more than 80 vehicles, killed 13 people and injured about 50 on a fog-choked stretch of interstate highway.

A National Transportation Safety Board team was looking at a nearby paper mill as a possible source of the blinding fog bank that rolled off the Hiwassee River and onto Interstate 75 between Athens and Cleveland, Tenn., touching off the fiery crash, which state troopers called the worst in Tennessee history.

Authorities originally put the number of dead at about 15 but the local medical examiner later revised the number of fatalities to an ''estimated'' 13 with other law-enforcement and emergency agencies giving conflicting death counts.

Area hospitals, which admitted about 50 injured victims, reported about 20 still hospitalized in serious or critical condition.

Efforts to identify the victims, some of whom were ''burned beyond recognition '' centered at the Jerry Smith Funeral Home in nearby Athens, with corpses stored in a refrigerated trailer parked outside.

Rescue workers with hammers, crowbars and other equipment spent Wednesday prying open the twisted remains of cars and trucks, looking for bodies and survivors, and road crews using cranes and tow trucks struggled to clear the charred wreckage from the four-lane highway, the main artery between Knoxville and Chattanooga.

Paving crews worked to replace asphalt that was burned away by numerous fires that erupted during the crash.

The area where Interstae 75 crossess the Hiwassee has been the scene of several deadly multivehicle pileups on foggy mornings, and some officials and area residents blame the nearby Bowater pulp and paper plant, which has nine steam-spewing smokestacks and three large holding ponds near the roadway.

''This is at least the fifth multi-car pileup we've had on this stretch of road since the interstate opened in the early 1970s,'' said Calhoun Fire Chief Gary Knight.

Researchers at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville said they have traced the fog involved in earlier accidents to the paper mill, although they have been unable to prove the mill was directly responsible for any of the wrecks.

But a report issued by the university's transportation research center said the primary source of fog in a similar crash at the same spot in 1978 ''appeared to be the Bowater paper plant.''

The study was requested by the Tennessee Office of Urban and Federal Affairs because of a 62-vehicle chain-reaction collision during dense fog on the same section of Interstate 75 in November 1978.

UT civil engineer Wayne Davis, who directed the study, said a paper plant ''by its very nature'' contributes to fog problems.

''A paper plant is a process where you take wood, cook it and evaporate the water to make paper,'' Davis said Wednesday. ''A tremendous amount of water is converted into steam. If you look around the nation, you will always find the potential for dense fog around paper plants.''

The university report said factors contributing to the fog ''appeared to be split between the plant building and a series of (plant) ponds located northwest of the plant along the Hiwassee.''

TOKYO (DEC. 13) UPI - The United States asked Japan in talks Wednesday and Thursday to improve and expand a 1988 agreement that allows foreign companies to bid on 14 major Japanese construction projects.

The U.S. side asked Japan to open all public works projects to foreign construction companies, not just the 14 major projects listed in the 1988 agreement, said a senior U.S. official who requested anonymity.

A Japanese Foreign Ministry official said, ''At this moment we are not thinking of an extension. We are already seeing some achievements. Let's see how these things develop.''

The talks also took up U.S. complaints that American companies were unfairly passed over when the Kansai International Airport Co. awarded a $38 million contract for a people mover system to a Japanese company.

Americans claim AEG Westinghouse, a U.S.-German joint venture with extensive experience in constructing airport people movers, was denied the contract based on a preliminary cost estimate.

The less experienced Japanese company gave a significantly lower cost estimate. But the U.S. side maintains the preliminary cost estimate was not intended to be a firm bid and should not have been the basis for a decision.

The U.S. side wants the bidding for the people mover to be reopened and wants assurances that all future awards will be handled fairly, the senior U.S. official said.

The Japanese view is that the 1988 agreement is functioning well and needs no adjustments, the Japanese official said. He added more than $220 million in contracts have been given to American companies under the agreement.

The U.S. official said the Americans are more concerned with making sure the process is fair than whether or not U.S. companies win awards.

Only a fair process will assure U.S. companies will be willing to take the risk involved in making a bid for Japanese construction contracts, he said.

The official said the reaction of American companies is, ''Why the hell should we invest a dollar when the process is not fair.''

On the eve of the talks, the Kansai International Airport Co. awarded a baggage handling system contract to a group made up of American, German and Japanese companies.

The American official said the baggage award did not rectify the problems in the bidding process.

''Clearly they are saying the Americans did not get the people mover, but Americans got the baggage system,'' the U.S. official said. ''Our intention was to establish a fair process.''

(DEC. 13) UPI - A strong earthquake hit a coastal area of southeastern Sicily early today, causing some deaths and injuries. Officials say the quake that killed at least three and injured 30, damaged buildings and sent tens of thousands of citizens into the streets in panic.

South Korean President Roh Tae-woo left Seoul today on an historic four-day official visit to Moscow at the invitation of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. Roh is the first South Korean head of state to go to the Soviet Union.

The third round of talks between the prime ministers of South and North Korea ended today with no agreement on how to end two country's 45-year division. The two leaders agreed to get together again February 25th in the North Korean capital.

U-S officials were quoted yesterday as saying that contributions to offset the cost of Operation Desert Shield have fallen short of what was promised. They singled out Japan and Germany as having paid only one fifth of what they promised.

The United States has asked Japan to improve and expand a 1988 agreement that allows foreign companies to bid on 14 major Japanese construction projects. The Japanese say that the 1988 agreement is functioning well and needs no adjustments.

CLEVELAND (DEC. 13) UPI - Hitting a home run at Cleveland Stadium might be a little more difficult next season.

Tribe president Hank Peters says the club is considering moving the fences back to enhance the qualities of a team that will be long on speed and short on power in 1991.

In the past two seasons, the Indians have traded sluggers Joe Carter and Cory

Snyder and lost Candy Maldonado to free agency.

''We want to maximize our speed and minimize our opponents' power,'' Peters said. ''One of the best ways that can be accomplished is by moving the fences back and letting our fans enjoy a different brand of baseball.''

The current dimensions are 320 feet down the lines, 377 in left, 387 in the left field power alley, 400 in center, 395 in the right field power alley and 385 in right. The dimensions down the line could not be changed because the line runs into the seats.

''We thought about moving the fences back last season, but we really didn't know what kind of team we'd have,'' Peters said. ''Now we do. I know we've lost some power, but 80 percent of our offensive unit is back and we've developed good speed in the outfield.

''We want to take advantage of that.''

Last year, the Indians were out-homered 86-52 at home. In addition, the Cleveland pitching staff allowed a major league high 163 home runs in 1990.

''We've done a lot of work on this, studied a lot of statistics,'' Peters said. ''I'm not saying we're going to do it, but I'm leaning that way. If we do, the move will be significant. If you move an outfield fence a couple of feet, it doesn't mean much.''

Any changes must be approved by American League president Dr. Bobby Brown.

ROME (DEC. 13) UPI - The 12 European Community leaders begin a two-day summit Friday to launch historic steps toward a common currency and joint foreign policy for post-Cold War Europe.

The summit, marking the debut of new British Prime Minister John Major, culminates with the inauguration on Saturday of twin constitutional conventions, on economic and monetary union (EMU) and political union.

Heads of state arrived Thursday evening for a pre-summit performance of Puccini's ''Tosca'' featuring superstar tenor Luciano Pavarotti. Formal summit business begins on Friday morning.

EC leaders are expected to approve emergency food aid to the Soviet Union, and also will discuss the Persian Gulf crisis, South Africa and the stalled world trade talks, which collapsed in Brussels last week over the EC's program of massive farm subsidies.

The constitutional conventions, known as ''intergovernmental conferences,'' are scheduled to end late next year with profound changes to the EC's founding charter, the 1957 Treaty of Rome, including landmark moves toward forging a federal Europe out of historically warring nation-states.

''Our feeling is that Rome, with these two conferences, will be an important turn in the life of the Community,'' said Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, the current EC president, a leading advocate of creating a ''United States of Europe'' with a single currency and a common foreign policy.

The EC's halting and inconsistent response to the gulf crisis, with only Britain and France sending ground troops, showed to many the need for a unified voice in foreign affairs.

Last week, French President Francois Mitterrand and German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said in a joint letter that EC political union ''should include an authentic policy of common security which could lead in the long run to a common defense.''

France withdrew from NATO's integrated common defense apparatus in 1966, and has since insisted on strict independence in defense policy. One EC diplomat said France's joining in the letter was a ''remarkable development.''

Details of monetary union and political union will be worked out in tough negotiations over the next year, with many differences still to be resolved and precise wording to be agreed upon.

A common defense, for example, could create problems for staunchly neutral Ireland, an EC member, as well as for other neutral countries seeking EC membership such as Austria and Sweden.

Some EC governments are reluctant to undermine NATO. There are also doubts about a quick move to a single currency, from Britain as well as other quarters including Germany's powerful Bundesbank.

All eyes are on Major, who will set the tone for Britain's contribution to the debate over Europe's future. His predecessor, Margaret Thatcher, fell from power last month over her strident opposition to further EC integration.

At the last EC summit, Oct. 27-28 in Rome, Thatcher said other Community leaders were living in ''cloud-cuckoo land'' when they outvoted her 11-1 to set 1994 as the starting point for a central European bank, with a single currency to follow in several years.

Aides to Major, who also opposes a single currency, say the substance of his stand will be the same, but the style will be different. Thatcher's unyielding style toward the EC was so grating that other leaders simply stopped listening to her message.

''This one will not be an 11-1 summit,'' said a top British diplomat in Brussels.

Major, who was Britain's chancellor of the Exchequer, or treasury, before taking over the prime ministership, has proposed a parallel 13th EC currency - the ''hard ECU'' (European Currency Unit) - that would compete alongside national currencies.

Approval of $1 billion in emergency food aid to the Soviet Union is likely, but balance-of-payment assistance likely will be delayed pending a report from the International Monetary Fund.

The most divisive issue at the summit might be the 107-nation talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which adjourned in disarray Dec. 7 over a bitter dispute between the EC and the United States over Europen farm subsidies.

Some EC governments, including Britain and the Netherlands, feel the summit must make a positive statement showing some degree of future flexibility in the GATT talks. ''We would look pretty foolish if we just said that GATT is very important,'' one Brussels diplomat said.

But in a pre-summit news conference, the president of the EC Executive Commission, Jaques Delors, said U.S. expectations of steep cuts in EC farm supports were unrealistic.

''The attitude of the United States aimed at treating the Community as plague-stricken and to set all countries against us,'' Delors said.

GENEVA (DEC. 13) UPI - The 100 member countries of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) ended a short annual session Thursday without fixing a date for resuming the deadlocked Uruguay Round of trade liberalization negotiations.

GATT director general Arthur Dunkel, of Switzerland, will reconvene the talks next year ''when he feels the time is appropriate,'' said spokesman David Woods.

A meeting of trade ministers in Brussels last week was to have formally adopted a Uruguay Round package after four years of negotiations in Geneva.

But the ministerial meeting turned into an angry confrontation over demands by the United States and the ''Cairns Group'' farm producing countries that the European Community accept deep cuts in agricultural export and domestic subsidies.

The EC refused to make significant concessions and in turn charged Washington with reneging on a commitment to permit freer access to the U.S. market in the sector of services like banking and telecommunications.

At the annual session of GATT contracting parties, as members are called, permament ambassadors to the global trading arrangement managed to avoid potentially more damaging recriminations over the Uruguay Round stalemate.

''That in itself was quite an achievement given the bitterness at the Brussels ministerial,'' one ranking participant said.

Instead, the session Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning stuck mainly to routine matters, hearing reports from various trade dispute panels.

Action was delayed pending continued bilateral talks and the Uruguay Round outcome on U.S. complaints against Canadian restrictions on imported ice-cream yoghurt and liqor, and a Canadian complaint against U.S. duties on frozen pork imported from Canada.

A waiver from GATT free trade rules until the end of 1992 was accorded to the eastern part of Germany, so that trading partners of the former East Germany could adjust to dealing with Bonn and vice versa.

Brazil's representative to GATT, Rubens Ricupero, was elected to the rotating chairmanship of the contracting parties, succeeding John Weekes of Canada.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos, who resigned abruptly Wednesday, was forced out of the Cabinet after White House chief of staff John Sununu gave him his walking papers, administration officials confirmed Thursday.

Cavazos, 63, the first Hispanic American to serve in the Cabinet, met with Sununu on Tuesday and was told that President Bush wanted him to quit by the end of the month, The New York Times reported.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater told United Press International that Cavazos ''just got in his car and drove away'' following his meeting with Sununu. Fitzwater said Cavazos called his top aide and asked him to inform the White House that he was resigning.

''He did have a meeting with Sununu,'' Fitzwater said, ''and he and Sununu talked about his future. Clearly something happened.''

''He worked hard, was loyal and dedicated. I don't want to be the one to dump on him. He did a good job,'' Fitzwater said.

Bush announced the resignation at a Cabinet meeting Wednesday morning that Cavazos did not attend.

Bush said he accepted Cavazos' resignation ''with deep regret,'' adding, ''For more than two years, and under two presidents, you have distinguished yourself through your devotion to improving the education of our nation's children.''

Bush, the self-described ''Education President'' called Cavazos ''my good friend'' in a speech to a governor's leadership group Wednesday afternoon, but administration officials indicated that Cavazos, a low key operator, was not aggressive enough for the White House.

Officials said that Sununu was playing his designated role as ''enforcer'' in delivering the bad news to Cavazos. The White House announced the resignation to the public by issuing an exchange of letters between Bush and Cavazos.

Undersecretary Ted Sanders was named acting secretary until a successor is nominated.

Dissatisfaction with Cavazos was long rumored in the White House. He was first appointed by President Reagan in August 1988 to succeed William Bennett and was held over by Bush. Cavazos had been president of Texas Tech University when he joined the Reagan administration.

During his tenure, critics complained he did not use his office as a ''bully pulpit'' to encourage educational improvement and that student achievement actually got worse.

Even Cavazos called the most recent Nation's Report Card, using 1988 data, ''a compendium of disappointment.'' It found that most students cannot analyze what they read, cannot handle moderately challenging math problems and have a limited understanding of American history.

''I think what they (the White House) probably realized was that Democrats are going to attack Bush on his infamous pledge of being the education president and use it, in part, during the 1992 re-election campaign,'' said Bob Beckel, a Democratic consultant. ''Cavazos was not a very aggressive guy ... and one thing is for sure: Things have gotten worse.''

Ginny Terzano, spokeswoman for the Democratic National Committee, contended the administration has gotten ''intellectually tired'' on domestic issues.

''The level of commitment on domestic and education issues is horrendous. He has failed miserably on this,'' she said. ''Just look at the statistics on children's achievement and illiteracy.''

But an administration official defended Cavazos, calling him a "gentle persuader."

''Lauro Cavazos is a trained scientist. He has the mind of a steel trap. He does his homework and has a remarkable ability to remember things,'' said the official, who did not want to be identified.

Keith Geiger, president of the National Education Association, the nation's largest teachers' union, said, ''If there is one area that I would give him the most credit ... it is in the whole area of bilingual education.''

Rumors of his resignation have persisted, even after Cavazos's high- profile role at Bush's ''education summit'' last year in Charlottesville, Va., where the president convened the nation's governors for a first-time discussion of national educational goals for the year 2000.

Recently, Cavazos has been a strong advocate of educational choice - allowing students to decide which school to attend. He argued that school choice would make schools compete to be the best.

But he was hit with strong criticism by teachers' unions and others, who said it effectively avoids the difficult task of improving the schools - usually located in the inner-city - where students do not want to attend.

''I feel that we wish the administration had something other than choice on its mind, because we don't think that's the answer to plummeting test scores '' said June Million, spokeswoman for the National Association of Elementary School Principals, adding she thought Cavazos was a ''friend'' of early childhood education programs.

Some suggested replacements for Cavazos - although none has been officially announced - include former New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean, now president of Drew University, and former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander, as well as Rep. Lynn Martin, R-Ill. who lost her bid to unseat Demoratic Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois, and Rep. Patricia Saiki, R-Hawaii.

The resignation leaves two vacancies in the Bush Cabinet. Elizabeth Dole resigned as labor secretary last month and a successor is expected to be named to her post before the end of the year.

(DEC. 13) UPI - Tens of thousands of Italians ran into the streets in panic today when a powerful earthquake shook a coastal area of southeastern Sicily. Officials say the death toll is at least three, but that number could rise. In towns and villages all over the area, people fled their homes and spent the night in cars and open spaces.

Researchers say a series of medium-size tremors may indicate the coming of big earthquakes in California. They say the pattern might be used to improve predictions of when devastating quakes will strike.

STOCKHOLM (DEC. 13) UPI - Paavo Nurmi, the ''Flying Finn'' who accumulated 10 Olympic gold medals in the 1920s, took performance-enhancing drugs during his legendary running career, the Swedish daily Dagens Nyheter reported Thursday.

Nurmi, who died in 1973 at the age of 76, used a German drug called Rejuven containing the male hormone testosterone.

''I have used Rejuven and I have been surprised over its extremely stimulating effect on the system,'' Nurmi said in an advertisement dated March 12, 1931, in the Swedish sportspaper Idrottsbladet.

''I believe especially sportmen during a long and hard season will have great use for Rejuven, which strengthens and increases the vitality. From my own experiences I strongly recommend Rejuven,'' said Nurmi, who at one time held 20 official middle and long-distance world records.

Three Swedish athletes were in the same advertisement promoting the drug sold by the company ''The Elephant's Drugshop.'' They claimed it improved their spirit and made them endure hard training without getting tired.

Anabolic steroids, including testosterone, weren't banned until 1975.

''There were a lot of drugs being used in the 1930s,'' said the now 94-year-old Edvin Wide, who was Sweden's leading runner in the 1920s. ''Amphetamine was commonly used in the 1930s. Athletes took it and even old ladies used to take it to brighten themselves up.''

TOKYO (DEC. 13) UPI - The Soviet Union has ordered 18 freighters worth about $307.7 million from Japan in an apparent move to improve distribution of commodities in the country, a Japanese trading firm said Thursday.

Mitsubishi Corp. said the order was received from Sovkomflot, formerly a state-run shipping company which was privatized in July 1988 in line with President Mikhail Gorvachev's economic reform policy.

The order included eight 9,500-ton class freighters and 10 6,100-ton class vessels for delivery between July 1991 and March 1993, Mitsubishi said.

Payments will be made in a combination of cash and leasing in consideration of the country's foreign exchange shortage, the company said.

Sovkomflot currently operates a fleet of 178 vessels, the company said.

MEIRINGEN, SWITZERLAND (DEC. 13) UPI - More than half a foot of fresh snow and a bank of stubborn clouds forced cancellation Thursday of two training runs for a women's World Cup downhill due to be raced Friday.

Mountain crews using six snowcat tractors worked overnight in this alpine resort in central Switzerland to clear the new snow from the 2.4- kilometer Weltcup Strecke.

But the all-night effort, which continued in the morning with an additional 150 snow packers, was in vain as fog and more snow made speed training impossible.

''We will try again on Friday, with a single training run at 9:15 a. m. and the race at 11:45 a.m.,'' said press chief Nils Glatthard. ''We're certainly not having any luck with the weather.''

The ill-starred downhill is part of a three-race series through Sunday at the resort made famous by a Sherlock Holmes novel of the last century. In the book the fictional British detective and his archrival Moriarty fall to their deaths over a waterfall near the village during a struggle.

Weather conditions should improve for Friday, according to organizers. A super-giant slalom is set for Saturday and a giant slalom is due to be held Sunday.

With all of the fresh snow, the course, which drops 680 meters through 37 gates, should be much slower than normal. The conditions could give an advantage to later starters, who stand to benefit from a slicked-down track flattened by first-seed starters.

But the relatively easy course also holds some problems. Mistakes, for instance, will be critical, since time lost is almost impossible to make up.

''It's going to be a hard course to win on,'' said Canadian Kerrin Lee-Gartner third in a downhill last weekend in Austria. ''If you make one small mistake it will be with you the entire way down.

''The person who has the cleanest, most perfect run is definitely going to win this one.''

World Cup points leader Petra Kronberger of Austria, second behind teammate Katrin Gutensohn in last Saturday's downhill in Altenmarkt, Austria, should certainly widen her margin in the standings when the series ends here.

The defending World Cup holder has 95 points from three victories and a second place. Well back in second place is Austrian Sigrid Wolf with 35.

BOSTON (DEC. 13) UPI - Federal investigators Thursday checked reports that an Amtrak train driven by an apprentice engineer on the job only two days was speeding 40 mph above the limit when it derailed and smashed into a commuter train inside a station, injuring more than 260 people.

Reports said the Amtrak Night Owl from Washington, D.C., apparently was going 70 to 75 mph in a 30-mph zone when it hit a sharp curve during rush hour Wednesday morning. The train derailed and skidded into the seven-car commuter train on another track inside Back Bay Station, creating a scene that one fire official said looked ''right out of hell. ''

''We're still checking into everything from speed to track to crew,'' MBTA spokesman Howard Robertson said. ''Anything that could have contributed to the crash.''

Crews worked Thursday morning to untangle the wreckage of three locomotives as investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board prepared to interview crewmembers aboard both trains, including the engineers.

Amtrak officials late Wednesday said Richard Abramson, 41, of Trumbull, Conn., was at the controls when the accident happened. Abramson was an apprentice engineer in the third year of an engineer- training program.

Abramson had started working regular Amtrak routes only two days before the crash, the Boston Globe reported Thursday. He was being supervised by veteran Willis Copeland, 53, of Bethany, Conn., who had been involved in a previous fatal train wreck.

Both were seriously injured, officials said.

Abramson was removed from intensive care and was upgraded to fair condition Thursday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital with several broken bones. Copeland remained in intensive care at Boston City Hospital in stable condition with head, spinal and abdomenal injuries.

An Amtrak spokesman said Abramson had been an apprentice since 1987 and was fully qualified to be running the train. He was being supervised by Copeland, an engineer with more than 25 years experience, the spokeman, D.J. Beatty, said.

Copeland had been involved in a 1984 crash in New York City that killed one man and injured 115 people. That crash was blamed on a faulty signal.

Investigators have removed monitoring tapes, similar to those used in airliners, from both trains.

One doctor at the scene of Wednesday's train crash said it was ''a miracle'' no one was killed. A total of 264 people were taken to seven Boston hospitals for treatment, transit officials said. Most of the injuries were minor, but 10 people were listed in serious condition.

The crash occurred at 8:23 a.m. Wednesday just after the MBTA train carrying about 900 commuters stopped in the station to discharge passengers.

The Night Owl, which originated in Washington, was arriving about the same time on an adjacent track with about 190 passengers and was rounding a curve when its locomotive derailed.

The train traveled about 1,200 feet along the trackbed before smashing into the locomotive at the rear of the MBTA train, sending screaming passengers and luggage flying about on both trains, officials said.

''The impact was so strong that everyone's seat came off the floor, so we were all sandwiched,'' said Will Weyell, 22, of Carver, who was on the overnight Amtrak on his first train trip. ''Everything went flying - people, seats, luggage. I will never ride a train again.''

Two transit police and two city medical workers, who were overcome by heavy smoke from the fire as they tried to rescue panicked passengers, also were under intensive care, officials said.

Dr. Melvin Glimcher, who raced to the accident scene from a nearby medical clinic, said, ''It was a miracle, a miracle that no one was killed. If you could have only seen the wreckage.''

Some passengers said they crawled out of train windows to escape the wreckage.

Passenger Charlotte Craven said there was a loud crash, then the lights went out and people started screaming.

''It tipped over at a 45-degree angle,'' passenger Scott Shulman said of one train. ''There was smoke, a lot of smoke.'' The Bay Back station was filled with heavy smoke from burning diesel fuel from the crash.

MBTA spokeswoman Nancy Sterling Gleason said transit personnel involved in the crash would undergo alcohol and drug tests, which is routinely done after a train accident.

Commuters who normally use the line involved in the accident found round-about ways to getting into the city Thursday. The MBTA reported no problems.

VAL GARDENA, ITALY (DEC. 13) UPI - Last year's training for the Val Gardena classic World Cup downhill was a costly affair. At least five skiers fell over the legendary ''Camel Bumps'' jumps and suffered serious knee injuries.

The reasons were varied, but much of the blame was laid on the deadly combination of an icy natural snow base, topped with artificial snow in a year when race spectators stood on the grass and snow was scarce.

The ''Camels'' - where racers who choose to fly the jumps must have nerves of steel and perfect timing - had barely 5.9 inches of icy surface. Peter Mueller of Switzerland was finished for the season following his accident, while Gerhard Pfaffenbichler of Austria ended up a guest at the Innsbruck University Hospital, and soon retired from ski racing. Three other members of the Swiss, Italian and Austrian teams tore knee ligaments when they made errors and lost control of their skis.

This year, following modifications to the course, it should be different.

''We have made some changes which should not make the race any less spectacular from a visual point of view, but should mean there will be no more injuries,'' Sepp Messner, the safety expert for the International Ski Federation, said.

''We have modified the 'Looping' (a section 30 seconds out of the start gates) and set back the first of the Camel bumps another 15 meters. Also the jump going into the finish is not there any more. We can't have courses which cost a lot of serious injuries.''

In opening training Wednesday, Swiss Franz Heinzer was the fastest and there was only one fall resulting in injury. Austrian Peter Rzehak injured his elbow and doctors reported he would wear a cast for the next three weeks. But not all of the racers opted for the Camel Bumps on a day when many said the course was not sufficiently prepared.

Canadian Brian Stemmle, hailed as a hero for his comeback to downhill racing after life-threatening injuries at Kitzbuehel in 1989, was also on the course. Stemmle amazed the critics by placing 10th last weekend at the Val d'Isere, France, downhill.

''I haven't decided whether I will race all the downhills this season yet,'' Stemmle said after an inspection of the Val Gardena course. ''I am feeling really great and will just take it day by day.''

Apart from the standard Austrian and Swiss lineup, favorites for Friday and Saturday's races include three Norwegians - Atle Skaardal, second in the downhill competition last season, Lasse Arnesen and Jan Elnar Thorsen.

DETROIT (DEC. 13) UPI - The tail emergency escape cone of a Northwest Airlines jet involved in a runway collision that killed eight was not released externally by firefighters, as required in training procedures, an airport official said Wednesday.

Federal investigators said earlier the cone was not deployed by an interior release mechanism after the Dec. 3 collision between a DC-9 and a Boeing 727 at Detroit Metropolitan Airport. Two victims were found dead in the tail cone of the DC-9 near the release handle.

Dan Kerber, deputy director of airport operations, said releasing the tail cone externally is ''definitely part of the training procedures.''

''The firefighters are trained in aircraft familiarization,'' Kerber said. ''They are made awared of where the emergency exits are on teh aircraft at the airport. They are trained on how to utilize those emergency exits, both inside and outside.

Northwest had said bodies of passenger Kingsley Brown, 30, of Pittsburgh, and flight attendant Heidi Joost, 43, of Dearborn, Mich., were found within feet of the tail exit.

Airline spokesman Doug Miller said they apparently had reached the rear of the passenger compartment and removed a hatch allowing them to step onto a catwalk that took them to the tail cone. Miller said a red release handle in that area is designed to pop the tail cone off the DC- 9 and alow passengers to use an inflatable slide to safety.

John K. Lauber, who led the on-site investigation by the National Transportation Safety Board last week, said Wednesday the stem of the interior release handle was found to be broken.

''Examination of the DC-9 tail cone is continuing,'' Lauber said. ''Investigators have found, after extensive testing, that the interior tail cone release mechanism failed to separate the tail cone and deploy the emergency slide. When the exterior tail cone release was pulled, the tail cone promptly separated and the slide deployed as designed.

Lauber said the interior release handle was found partially raised from its stowed position during the safety board's initial examination.

''Investigators inspected the interior release handle and have found the stem of the handle broken,'' he said. ''The entire tail cone release mechanism is undergoing a complete metallurgical examination at the NTSB laboratories in Washington.''

Miller said it may never be known whether Joost or Brown tried to use the lever.

The airline checked the tail-cone release system on all of its 139 remaining DC-9s and found no problems, Miller said.

HONG KONG (DEC. 13) UPI - Northern Irishman Ronan Rafferty shot a 2-under-par 69 Thursday to take a one-stroke lead at the halfway stage of the inaugural $350,000 Johnnie Walker Classic at the Royal Hong Kong Golf Club.

Rafferty had a 36-hole total of 136 - one stroke ahead of Ryder Cup teammate Ian Woosnam of Wales, who shot a 68.

Five players were grouped at 138, including American Todd Hamilton, Canadians Rick Gibsona and Richard Zokol and Scotland's Colin Montgomerie.

Pre-tournament favorite Nick Faldo of Britain moved back into contention with a 68, leaving him tied for ninth at 140.

Britain's David J. Russell, who shared the opening round lead with Rafferty, skied to a 78, which included a left-handed air shot when his ball was lodged against a tree.

The best round of the tournament was posted by Swede Anders Forsbrand, who shot 66, 10 shots better than his first-round effort.

Rafferty's round was made up of three birdies and one bogey.

''It was fairly dull,'' he said. ''I'm still a little rusty after three weeks off.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - Retailers are looking to healthy holiday shopping to reverse the Commerce Department's report Thursday that retail sales slipped 0.1 percent in November, the first decline in six months. Retail sales declined to $151.6 billion last month after gaining a revised 0.2 percent in October, the government said.

The sales decline was the first in six months, the government said. Excluding automobile sales, November's overall retail sales would have gained 0.2 percent.

Economists said the report shows some weakness in consumer buying patterns, but is not yet troublesome enough to cast a pall over the lucrative holiday buying season.

"The world didn't end in November," said Robert Dieli, an economist at the Northern Trust Co. in Chicago. "Consumers apparently are still planning to have a Christmas."

Dieli said the forecast for the holiday season remains mixed. Fearing poor consumer confidence in the declining economy will keep shoppers away from stroes, retailers have engaged in prices wars to attract customers.

"From what I hear, sales traffic is pretty good. People are responding to promotions," Dieli said. "People are buying but not buying at prices that will allow merchandisers to make a profit.

November's sales were 3.4 percent above year-earlier sales and sales between September and November were 3.6 percent greater than during the same period last year, the government said.

Sales of durable goods, those big-ticket items designed to last three or more years, fell 1.4 percent in November. Non-durable goods sales increased 0.5 percent from October and 6.1 percent from year-earlier levels. Higher food and gasoline prices accounted for the increase.

Grocery sales increased 5.4 percent in November from year-earlier levels while sales at gasoline stations soared 21.6 percent during the same period. Gasoline stations reported sales of $11.9 billion in November, up from $11.8 billion in October.

The government's advance estimates show sales decreased slightly at general merchandise stores during November from October, but gained at apparel stores and restaurants.

Car dealers reported slightly lower sales during the past month as did sellers of building materials. Sales at car dealerships slid 1.4 percent last month from the month before but were 0.1 percent higher than year-earlier sales levels.

The sluggishness in the nation's construction industry continued to hammer sellers of building supplies, where sales were down 2.6 percent in November and 5.2 percent from year-earlier levels.

TOKYO (DEC. 13) UPI - Reflecting the recent market slump, trading volume on the Tokyo Stock Exchange this year is certain to hit a five-year low of an estimated 128 billion shares for a daily average of about 480 million shares, the market said Thursday. The previous low of 118 billion shares for a daily average of 410 million shares was set in 1985.

The Tokyo Stock Exchange has been affected throughout 1990 by the yen's weakness against the dollar, higher interest rates and uncertainty of the U.S. economy in the future. The Gulf crisis added to the market slump.

The key Nikkei Stock Average of 225 selected issues fell nearly 48 percent from its high of 38,915.87 points last Dec. 29 to the year's low of 20,221.86 points Oct. 1. The market will go into its year-end and New Year recess after a half-day session Dec. 28.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - Retailers got some disappointing news Thursday when the Commerce Department reported that retail sales slipped 0.1 percent in November for a soft start to the holiday buying season. LONDON (DEC. 13) UPI - The government reported Thursday that unemployment in Britian rose for the eighth consecutive month in November, another sign analysts said that the long-expected British recession had arrived.

More than 57,000 people lost their jobs, the largest monthly increase in nine years, bringing the official number of unemployed to 1.7 million. The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate climbed to 6.2 percent from six percent in October. The figures surprised many economists, who had predicted unemployment would grow by about 34,000, the October increase.

"It really does indicate the depth of the U.K. recession," said Albert Edwards an economist with Kleinwort Benson Group PLC, who predicted the jobless rate would top two million next year. "We're still on the slide down," Edwards said. "It's pretty grim."

The increase will add to pressure from the opposition Labor Party and British industry on the government to cut interest rates, which at 14.5 percent are the highest in the Group of Seven industrialized countries.

"It's very bad news indeed. I'm afraid it's proof positive that the recession is biting deep," John Smith, the Labor Party's economic spokesman, told the British Broadcasting Corp. "There's quite a bit of human misery in the train of this recession."

The figures are likely to raise questions about the government's course as the economy worsens, particularly in view of the tight monetary policy pursued by Prime Minister John Major when he was Chancellor of the Exchequer.

However, the current Chancellor, Norman Lamont, Wednesday ruled out an interest-rate cut until the pound strengthened in the European Exchange Rate Mechanism, which ties sterling to the values of other currencies within a narrow band. Lamont also rejected devaluation of the pound in the ERM, a move which would enable Britain to cut interest rates.

The pound has recently been trading at the lower end of its permitted range within the ERM. Britain is now confronted with a dilemma: the weakness of its domestic economy normally would call for lower interest rates, but lower interest rates would further weaken the pound by lowering its value against other European currencies.

Lamont told the Parliament Thursday he would give priority to maintaining the value of the pound "however strong the pressure (is) for lower interest rates based on other indicators."

Britain entered the ERM in October in the hope that the discipline of the semi-fixed exchange rate system would bring down its inflation rate, which is the third-highest of the 12-nation European Community.

Michael Howard, the employment secretary, said the unemployment figures needed to be put in context. Howard said Britain has one of the lowest unemployment rates in the European Community with half of the British workers laid off finding work within three months. He also said unemployment was rising throughout the industrialized world.

He urged employers and employees to "recognize the need for realism in pay negotiations." British wage unit costs are growing faster that its competitors in Japan, Germany, France, and the United States, he said.

Howard said Britain's entry into the ERM required British workers to accept lower wage hikes in order to bring down inflation and make Britain competitive with other countries.

"By entering the Exchange Rate Mechanism we have joined a club of lower inflation. The United Kingdom's inflation will come down but if the growth in earnings is slow to adapt to the new environment, more unemployment will be the consequence," Howard said. During the last decade, unemployment peaked in July 1986 when more than 3.2 million people or 11.7 percent of the work force, were jobless.

DECATUR, IL (DEC. 13) UPI - The Bridgestone-Firestone Inc. said Thursday its tire plant in Decatur will be shut down for three weeks in the next three months because of sluggish car sales, a move that will idle around 1,800 workers. Plant Manager John Boettner said most of the workers will go on unemployment for the weeks beginning Dec. 31, Feb. 4 and March 4.

Orders "have dropped off in the original equipment business in the next few months," Boettner said. "General Motors and Ford are idling their plants during the holidays. That, combined with our projections of after-market sales indicates a need to control our inventories. "Most of the companies in our industry have been doing the same thing during 1990," he said.

The Decatur plant had unexpected shutdowns this year in April and November. Boettner said no employees were laid off this time because the outlook for the second and third quarters of 1991 is more favorable. "We do not want to lose our work force," Boettner said.

Workers at the plant manufacture radial passenger and radial light truck tires. One of the central Illinois industrial city's largest employers, the plant has a weekly payroll of about $1.1 million and the average wage is about $16 an hour. Maintenance and shipping personnel will still be employed during the shutdown so the plant can make deliveries, Boettner said.

Another Decatur plant will have a two-week winter shutdown instead of the usual one-week closing for maintenance. Most of the 800 workers at Wagner Castings Co., a foundry business, will be affected by the shutdown but they will receive holiday pay for some of the days they will be idled. Slow auto sales are also blamed for the shutdown at Wagner Castings.

Secretary of State Baker yesterday rejected suggestions that one- BILLION dollars in agriculture export credits to ease the Soviet food shortage came in exchange for Moscow's support during the Persian Gulf crisis. The question irritated Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze , who noted that the United States and the Soviet Union were on the road to improved relations months before the gulf crisis.

Rescue efforts are under way in southeastern Sicily today after a strong earthquake shook the area. At seven people were killed and 30 injured. Rescue officials said the dead included five members of a family in their collpased home, and an 86-year-old woman and a former town mayor, who died of heart attacks. Officials say the number of dead could rise as the search continues for more victims of the quake.

News reports from Moscow say that troops were rushed to a troubled area of Soviet Georgia after ethnic clashes left at least three people dead and the republic's legislature imposed a state of emergency. An independent news service says one of three people shot to death was a bodyguard for the newly elected Georgian president.

Police say leading French anti-terrorist Judge Gilles Boulouque died today after firing a bullet into his mouth. Boulouque headed investigations into numerous terrorist cases, notably the wave of Iranian-sponsored bombings that hit Paris in 1986, killing 13 people and injuring 250 others. Associates said Boulouqe had been suffering from personal problems recently.

The prime ministers of North and South Korea met again today in the third round of talks intended to bring the two nations closer together. However, there was NO agreement as the third round of negotiations came to a close. The two leaders agreed to meet again February 25th in North Korea. JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (DEC. 13) UPI - Oliver Tambo, the exiled president of the African National Congress who guided the movement during its three decades outside the law, returned home triumphantly Thursday for the ANC's first congress since it was legalized.

The frail, 73-year-old Tambo stepped purposefully from the plane that flew him Lusaka, Zambia, smiling but still showing affects of a stroke he suffered in August 1989.

He embraced several ANC officials on the tarmac of Jan Smuts Airport, said he felt ''wonderful,'' then appeared with his deputy, Nelson Mandela, at the front of the airport before a hysterically cheering crowd of nearly 5,000 supporters.

From the second level-ramp overlooking the crowd, Tambo raised clenched fists and with a smile acknowledged chants of ''Long live Tambo'' and ''Long live ANC.''

Tambo did not speak to the crowd, but Mandela said he would address supporters at a rally Sunday in Soweto, the nation's largest black township.

''The day for which we have waited has come,'' Mandela told the throng over a megaphone. ''We and his comrades have fought for the right for him to be here today. We have won that fight. We welcome him with open arms as one of the greatest leaders of Africa.''

At least four people were bitten by police dogs earlier, ambulance officials said, when scores of officers forced the surging ANC supporters behind rope barricades.

The crowd had begun gathering from early in the morning, dancing and singing in parking lots and open concourses. By the time Tambo arrived, after a two-hour delay in his flight, supporters wearing the ANC colors of green, black and gold thronged the area in front of the main terminal.

Tambo's return from exile was hailed as another important marker in the country's racial reform process.

''As the year began, his friend and colleague Nelson Mandela was released,'' the Johannesburg Star said in an editorial. ''Now as it draws to a close, Oliver Tambo himself returns to the ANC's first congress since being unbanned. Progress is being made.''

The government has granted Tambo temporary immunity from prosecution, and he is expected to remain in the country for about three weeks.

The relationship between Tambo, the ANC's major voice while in exile in Lusaka and Mandela dates back to the late 1940s. In 1952, the two men opened the first black legal partnership in South Africa.

Increasingly active in ANC politics, Tambo left the country in 1954, staying away for two years, and again went into exile in 1960 shortly before the ANC was outlawed.

Tambo returned to address the ANC's three-day conference, which opens Friday. It is the first such meeting since President Frederik de Klerk re-legalized the movement in February as the first step of his reform program on South Africa's apartheid policy of racial separation.

Some 1,611 delegates are expected to develop the ANC's position on power-sharing negotiations with the government, as well as ANC policies, including its suspension of a 29-year limited guerrilla war against white rule and post-apartheid constitutional guidelines.

With Tambo sidelined because of his stroke, Mandela has emerged as the central figure in the ANC. He has been named deputy president of the movement but for all practical purposes will be its most important figure.

There has been widespread speculation that Mandela will formally replace Tambo but an ANC spokesman in Lusaka, Tom Sebina, said Tambo would not relinquish the presidency, the black daily Sowetan reported Thursday.

''It is not true that Tambo is going leave the presidency as has been claimed '' said Sebina, noting that the ANC conference does not have the authority to implement leadership changes. A national congress empowered to change the leadership is not scheduled until June 1991.

MOSCOW (DEC. 13) UPI - South Korean President Roh Tae Woo arrived in Moscow Thursday, the first South Korean head of state to visit the Soviet Union.

Roh, accompanied by his wife and a 15-person entourage that included Foreign Minister Choi Ho Jung, landed in the Soviet capital Thursday afternoon and had an evening meeting with President Mikhail Gorbachev.

''At my several summit meetings scheduled with President Gorbachev at the Kremlin, we intend to intensively discuss the ways our nations should work together to end the Cold War once and for all, and to achieve peace and unification on the Korean Peninsula,'' Roh said before leaving Seoul.

Gorbachev, with a fresh promise of U.S. aid, was expected to make a pitch for greatly expanded economic cooperation with South Korea. Roh said Monday that the bilateral $1 billion trade this year could reach $18 billion by the mid-1990s.

The South Korean ministers of trade and industry, and science and technology, were part of Roh's delegation, as were leading business representatives from Seoul.

Pravda, the official newspaper of the Soviet Communist Party, ran a full page of ads from the South Korean conglomerates Hyundai and Daewoo along with a greeting to Roh, who was to spend three days in the Soviet Union.

Roh told reporters in Seoul his trip would ''finally put an end to the separation between our two nations, which was punctuated by unfortunate occurrences, and usher in an era of good-neighborliness.''

The Soviet Union and South Korea had been adversaries since the end of World War II, when Russian troops remained in the northern half of the Korean Peninsula in an occupation that led to its formal division into two rival countries.

Gorbachev and Roh had a sudden meeting in San Francisco six months ago and their governments announced Sept. 30 that they would establish diplomatic relations.

As Roh flew to Moscow, the prime ministers from South Korea and North Korea ended a third round of talks with no evident progress on ending the peninsula's 45-year split.

Roh, however, said improved Soviet-South Korean relations would help remove the artificial Korean partition at the 38th parallel.

''Forging a friendly and cooperative relationship with the Soviet Union has a direct bearing on peace and unification on the Korean Peninsula,'' he said.

The official Tass news agency said: ''The Soviet Union has always supported the Korean people's will for a peaceful reunification.''

Gorbachev and Roh were expected to sign agreements for increased trade and economic cooperation. Roh said in Seoul that his country would like to import natural gas, timber and coal from the Soviet Union as well as technological expertise in exchange for electrical appliances, cars and other consumer products.

Roh was scheduled to speak at Moscow State University, go sightseeing in the capital and also visit Leningrad, the country's second-largest city.

HARRISBURG, PA. (DEC. 13) UPI - A federal judge Thursday refused to order the removal of four handmade crosses from the Christmas tree in the state Capitol rotunda.

U.S. District Judge William Caldwell rejected arguments that the crosses represent the establishment of Christianity as the state religion.

The American Civil Liberties Union, which filed the federal suit Wednesday, said it would seek a permanent injunction at a later date. The judge's order was not appealable, said ACLU Legal Director Stefan Presser.

''The courts have struck down public displays whose primary purpose is to promote one religious group at the expense of another,'' Caldwell said, reading from notes from the bench in the Federal Building in Harrisburg.

''The inclusion of a few small decorations symbolic of a religion does not convey support for Christianity,'' Caldwell said. ''I do not believe the Supreme Court requires that every trace of Christianity or some other religion be banished.''

Caldwell said he tried to view the tree but when he went to the Capitol late Wednesday the building was locked.

During arguments, Presser contended that any display of a religious symbol such as the cross could make a non-Christian feel excluded from society.

He said members of the ACLU have been so shocked by what they viewed as an establishment of religion that they changed their routes for walking through the Capitol to avoid the Christmas tree in the rotunda.

John Knoor, the lawyer for the state Department of General Services which erected and maintains the tree, ridiculed the ACLU's suit.

''I have never seen a case whose objective was so trivial and whose merits are so close to frivolous,'' Knoor said. He argued that the Supreme Court has barred Christmas displays whose total context conveys support for a religion, saying the rotunda tree does not meet that test.

The 24-foot-high fir tree is covered with ornaments made by senior citizens around the state. Among them are at least three crosses, the largest of which is about 8 inches high and located near the top of the tree.

KANSAS CITY, MO (DEC. 13) UPI - H&R Block Inc. said Thursday it has reached a definitive merger agreement to acquire temporary help company Interim Systems Corp. of Clifton, N.J., for $45 million in cash.

A Block subsidiary would offer $1.66 a share for Interim's common stock in a tender scheduled to begin next week. Under the agreement, all shares not purchased in the offer would be acquired in a subsequent merger transaction for the same cash price, Block said.

Interim Systems, a provider of clerical, light industrial, and health care personnel under the names Victor Temporary Services and Professional Nurses Bureau, would become part of Block's Personnel Pool of America subsidiary.

"We are pleased, through this very important strategic acquisition, to contribute to the long term growth of Personnel Pool of America, enabling it to strengthen its position as a leader in the temporary services industry," said Henry W. Bloch, Block's chairman and chief executive officer.

Personnel Pool Chairman Allan C. Sorensen said the merger allows Personnel Pool to increase its market presence and competitive position through a single acquisition.

Block said it also has reached an agreement with Interim Chairman and President Fred Sullivan, who owns 13.8 percent of Interim's common shares, to purchase his stock for $1.66 a share in cash.

The tax preparation company said the acquisition would have a minimal effect on earnings for the remainder of the fiscal year. In the year ended Dec. 31, 1989, Interim reported earnings of $4.6 million on revenues of $218.5 million.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - A delegation of seven Democratic senators, led by Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine, left for a week-long visit to the Middle East Thursday to get a first-hand assessment of the diplomatic and military situation in the Persian Gulf.

Mitchell said the senators will meet with the heads of state and other top government officials in Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Israel as well as Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, commander in chief of U.S. Central Command, and other military leaders of American forces taking part in Operation Desert Shield in the gulf.

Besides Mitchell, the delegation includes Sens. Paul Simon, D-Ill., Bob Graham D-Fla., Charles Robb, D-Va., Richard Shelby, D-Ala., Richard Bryan, D-Nev., and Herb Kohl, D-Wis.

Mitchell said the senators hope to obtain ''a detailed briefing on the status of American forces in the region, and what may be - what may occur in the event of an outbreak of hostilities.''

''We also hope to receive from the officials of the three governments in the region, our allies, their assessment of the current situation, the possibility of a resolution of the crisis with compliance with the U.N. resolutions, and the prospect for achieving that by means other than resort to offensive military action, and other aspects of the situation,'' Mitchell said before leaving from Andrews Air Force Base near Washington, D.C.

Mitchell said he had consulted in recent days with a number of senators, including Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas Wednesday night.

''I hope to meet with Secretary of State (James) Baker upon my return from the Persian Gulf, as well as with other administration officials,'' Mitchell said.

Mitchell left open the possibility of Congress being called back into session before Jan. 22.

''I believe that the planned period of (congressional) recess between Jan. 4 and Jan. 22 must now be considered tentative, subject to change and likely to change depending upon events over the next several days,'' Mitchell said.

RICHMOND, VA. (DEC. 13) UPI - Twelve hours before he was scheduled to be executed Thursday, Buddy Earl Justus said he had forgiven himself for raping and murdering a pregnant nurse.

Barring involvement from Gov. L. Douglas Wilder, Justus, 38, was set to be electrocuted at 11 p.m. for the Oct. 3, 1978, rape and murder of Ida Mae Moses a Montgomery County nurse who was more than 8 1/2 months pregnant.

Justus also was under death sentences in Florida and Georgia for a four-day crime spree in October 1978 that included the murders of Moses, a saleswoman in Tampa, Fla., and a housewife in Moun tain Park, Ga.

His lawyer says Justus suffers from brain damage but in an interview with Roanoke radio station WFIR, Justus accepted responsibility for the crimes, while citing his history of drug use and an abusive father.

''I was able to forgive myself. I'm at peace with myself. I'm ready to go to a better place,'' he said. ''In order to be forgiven, you've got to forgive others.

''I still take the responsibility solely for myself because I wasn't strong enough to turn away'' and avoid drugs and handle the child abuse, he said. ''I hold responsibility for my actions because I should have been strong enough to resist those drugs.''

He also said he was prepared to die in Virginia's electric chair though he opposes capital punishment.

''We are supposed to be a society that's supposed to be caring ... and that to continue capital punishment is taking steps backward. There's better ways to deal with it than to take lives.''

He said he tried to commit suicide at Mecklenburg Correctional Center several months ago because he felt no useful purpose any longer.

On Wednesday, attorney James Copacino said he persuaded Justus, who has refused to continue his appeal, to allow him to petition the governor for clemency. The petition is based on new tests that reveal the killer suffers from organic brain damage.

''It's a real outside shot,'' said Copacino, a Georgetown University law professor. ''A lot of people disagreed with my decision not to file anything in court on Buddy's behalf.''

Earlier this week, Wilder, who has refused to intervene in two previous executions this year, indicated he would allow the execution to proceed unless some startling new evidence emerged.

Copacino extended an invitation to Wilder to witness the execution at the State Penitentiary if he were to deny clemency, but the governor rejected it.

Justus, the oldest of seven children, was beaten repeatedly by his alcoholic father. At age 13, officials say he intentionally stole a pistol, bicycle and a truck so that welfare officials would remove him from his home.

Justus would be the 11th person executed in Virginia and the 143rd in the United States since the Supreme Court lifted a ban on capital punishment in 1976.

The execution is scheduled to be the last at the aging penitentiary in downtown Richmond. The prison will be closed at the end of the month and the electric chair moved to the newly constructed Greensville Correctional Center.

Justus, who planned to spend his final hours meeting with a handful of clergymen, ordered steak, French fries, salad, garlic bread and iced tea for his last meal.

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA (DEC. 13) UPI - Albanian President Ramiz Alia reaffirmed his government's decision to allow independent political parties in the tiny Marxist-ruled Balkan nation, but warned that abuses of the new reform could lead to ''anarchy'' and ''incidents no one would desire.''

His comments appeared to indicate that there could be limits to the tolerance of opposition groups by the Albanian Party of Labor, which has ruled since 1945 what was the only orthodox communist enclave to survive the pro-democracy wave that swept Eastern Europe in 1989.

''Democracy and pluralism, be it ideological or political, should lead toward the peoples' national unity, not toward division,'' Alia told the nation Wednesday night in a television address, the text of which was carried Thursday by the official Albanian Telegraphic Agency.

Alia's speech came only hours after thousands of people rallied at Tirana's Enver Hoxha University for the founding meeting of the first opposition party permitted since the establishment of the Stalanist- style police state at the end of World War II.

Organizers of the new Democratic Party, reached by telephone, said it plans to contest Feb. 10 elections for the national Parliament, called by Alia under a program of limited reforms that restricted participation to officially sanctioned groups.

In his address, Alia appeared to be launching the ruling party's re- election campaign. ''We are convinced that our people, cherishing the same beliefs until now, will stand united around the party to forge the country forward,'' he said.

''The party has already voiced its opinion that the creation of independent political organizations, certainly of those that observe the laws in force ... is to the benefit of the country's further democratization,'' Alia said.

Saying he had a ''preoccupation which I want to share with you, dear communist and non-communist brothers and sisters,'' Alia warned Albania's 3.2 million people that they should not misuse a right most have never known.

''Some people might seek to impose on the people their opinions and views without taking into account the general interests. If such stands and acts increase and expand, then the country threatens to be destabilized and cast into anarchy. Under such situations, there might occur incidents no one would desire,'' he said without elaborating.

''A political party should be evaluated neither from the slogans, nor from the hue and cry it raises about them, but from the sincerity of the aims, the justice of opinions, the respect for the people's aspiration,'' he said.

The decision to permit political pluralism was made Monday at a plenum of the central committee of the ruling Albanian Party of Labor after three days of student protests that were prompted by poor dormitory conditions but were used to vent demands for democracy.

The move was the most significant step taken by Alia since he launched his program of limited reforms, prompted by the collapse of authoritarian Marxist regimes across East Europe in 1989 and a need for Western aid to stem growing dissatisfaction over the country's dire economic conditions wrought by 45 years of self-imposed isolation.

The reforms have included a lifting of restrictions on foreign travel and religious practices, legalizing foreign investment and pledges to respect international human rights accord.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 13) UPI - Most of the Jerusalem Post's editorial staff walked out last week but the newspaper's strong-willed, controversial publisher pressed on with a core of journalists.

Israel's only English-language daily, once heavily relied upon by diplomats, journalists and tourists, emerged as a shadow of its former self during the first week of the labor dispute. With fewer pages than usual and more articles from news agencies instead of its own correspondents, The Jerusalem Post resembled a poor college-run newspaper.

''The decision I have as a publisher is whether to close the paper down, or rebuild it the way I want it to be, or to continue in a limited way as we have '' Levy said in his sparse office as dozens of striking journalists stood outside The Jerusalem Post.

Levy chose to fight on against the strikers and calls for an advertisers' boycott against The Jerusalem Post, founded in 1932 as The Palestine Post. He dismissed 30 journalists and argued a boycott would put the jobs of more than 300 workers, including unionized administrative and press workers, at risk.

The fight between management and the 90 editorial workers revolved around the issues of personal contracts and dismissal procedures. Underlying the dispute is whether the journalists' union at The Jerusalem Post will survive.

''I have nothing against unions. It's not a philosophy or an ideology that we have'' to do away with unions, said Levy, a retired military officer and former travel agent.

Levy said management spent ''the longest time and the hardest time'' on negotiations with the journalists' association during the past six months that led to an agreement Oct. 30 on dismissal procedures and other issues. But Levy cited several instances he said showed the union's lack of good faith.

Levy criticized the union's release of a list of proposed dismissals management provided it confidentially in accordance with the Oct. 30 memorandum. He also said the strike notice came ''out of the blue sky.''

For their part, journalists who walked out said they believed management's preference for personal contracts rather than union agreements would make the workers ''slaves.'' They criticized Levy's management style and said the publisher declined to negotiate with them after the walkout to try to find common ground.

''He's outlawing the union at the Post,'' reporter Larry Dufner told colleagues a day after the walkout as they stood in front of The Jerusalem Post building. ''He's saying there can be no union at the Post.''

The strike capped a series of labor-management disputes since Levy came to his post after the Toronto-based Hollinger Inc., owned by leading Canadian businessman Conrad Black, bought the newspaper in June 1989 for about $17 million. The Canadian consortium owns more than 200 newspapers in North America and England, including London's ultra-conservative Daily Telegraph.

At that time, journalists at the left-leaning Israeli newspaper feared the new owners would move The Jerusalem Post more to the right. The newspaper had been owned in part by Israel's Histadrut union federation-affiliated Koor Industries Inc., which relieved its mounting financial burders by selling off numerous assets.

The first major dispute at The Jerusalem Post after the sale erupted along more political lines. Jerusalem Post journalists complained of Levy's lack of journalistic experience and his decision to leave out an editorial from the newspaper's international edition because it promoted press freedoms and defended the newspaper against complaints by Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

Levy's only brush with journalism before the Post came during Israel's invasion of Lebanon when he was an army spokesman.

The newspaper's editor of nearly 14 years announced his resignation in late December 1989. By early January, The Jerusalem Post ordered several key editors and top journalists to leave the newspaper's offices a day after they asked to be ''released form their employment,'' complaining of editorial interference.

They were given 30 minutes to clear out their desks.

After the Dec. 3 walkout by The Jerusalem Post editorial staff, most journalists believed the newpaper would not publish the next day's edition. They were wrong.

Levy, with a handful of editors, came out with an eight-page edition and a small note on the front page apologizing to readers for the ''shortcomings in today's issue caused by a staff walkout.'' In addition to nearly 30 journalists who had been scheduled to be laid off, management sent dismissal notices to 30 others, most actively involved in the union.

The letters said in part the journalists were dismissed because they were ''a factor causing work interruption and serious damage to the newspaper and its future.'' They were given 30 days notice.

MOSCOW (DEC. 13) UPI - A popular Soviet television journalist known for his aggressive reporting on crime was shot and wounded in Leningrad, reports said Thursday.

Alexander Nevzorov, anchorman of the daily ''Six Hundred Seconds'' news program from Leningrad, was shot around midnight in the Soviet Union's second-largest city, Soviet television said.

Soviet television said that Nevzorov was shot in his left forearm, but the independent news agency Interfax said he suffered a chest wound. Both sources said he was in satisfactory condition at the Leningrad Military Medical Academy.

Interfax said Nevzorov, one of the country's first independent journalists under President Mikhail Gorbachev's glasnot reforms, was refusing to comment on the incident.

Nevzorov received a phone call late Wednesday after his evening broadcast, and the caller promised to give him important documents if the journalist came alone to a remote part of Leningrad, the reports said.

Nevzorov went to the meeting site with two associates but agreed to talk with the stranger alone.

''When the stranger took him aside, there was the sound of a shot,'' Soviet television said.

Nevzorov became an overnight sensation several years ago when he created ''Six Hundred Seconds'' and went on the air as its main announcer, wearing his trademark leather jacket His fast-paced news broadcasts were marked by a clock ticking off 10 minutes behind him.

The program, carried on Leningrad's main channel and received in Moscow and throughout much of the western part of the Soviet Union, has earned Nevzorov legions of fans for his bold reporting on crime and corruption.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - For the first time, the Pentagon has activated an emergency civilian blood collection program to prepare for fighting in the Persian Gulf, blood bank officials said Thursday.

The American Red Cross and American Association of Blood Banks received notification from the Pentagon to activate an emergency blood supply contract called the Armed Services Blood Program, officials said.

Beginning Monday, each association has been asked to begin sending 375 units of blood to the McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey each week and were told to prepare to supply a minimum of 800 units of blood per day if fighting breaks out, officials said. A unit equals about one pint of blood.

The military usually collects most of the blood it needs for transfusions from military personnel, but faces the possibility of shortages because so many troops have been sent to Saudi Arabia for Operation Desert Shield, officials said.

''The problem is they just deployed a lot of troops and are implementing this contract to cover themselves - to make sure their needs are met,'' said Marcia Lane of the American Association of Blood Banks, which operates 2,400 blood centers nationwide.

''They have had some planning ongoing and they have determined how much blood they need at this point and how much they will need if hostility breaks out, she said.

Although the military has had an agreement with civilian blood centers to supply blood in emergencies since World War II, the plan has never before been invoked, even during the Vietnam War, officials said.

''This is unusual because the military didn't need to ask us for it during Vietnam. My guess is Vietnam was a long, drawn out, low-level conflict whereas if conflict does occur in the gulf it will be much more intense and therefore require much more blood at once to treat the wounded soldiers,'' said Elizabeth Hall of the American Red Cross.

The United States has sent some 400,000 troops to Saudi Arabia as part of the Operation Desert Shield, which was sparked by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. The United Nations has authorized the use of force against Iraq Jan. 15 if Saddam Hussein does not pull all of his troops out of Kuwait.

In addition to compensating for the lack of military donors, the activation of the contract is aimed at making sure any problems with the system are worked out before blood is needed urgently for wounded soldiers, officials said.

''It's sort of a preparedness measure for both the Red Cross and military to ensure smooth shipment if needed,'' Hall said. ''Just in case they need us they want to make sure the system is working to get it to them.''

The request for 375 units of blood weekly will not put a strain on the civilian blood collection system and neither association plans to call for more donations immediately, officials said.

But Lane noted that donations typically drop off during the holiday season and urged Americans to continue to donate. However, if the need escalates to 800 units of blood per day or more, extra measures would be needed.

Currently the Red Cross collects about 4.2 million units of blood per year, which represents about half the nation's blood supply.

''I think the patriotic response of people in this country for the need for blood in the gulf would be tremendous and they only problem would be maintaining that at levels that would be needed for a long period of time,'' Hall said.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (DEC. 13) UPI - Oliver Reginald Tambo, the president of the African National Congress who returned to South Africa from 30 years in exile Thursday, welded the ANC into the country's foremost anti-apartheid organization and kept it together through its darkest days.

The scholarly and soft-spoken Tambo, 73, is ailing from the affects of a stroke and lacks the charisma of his deputy, Nelson Mandela. But from bases abroad Tambo held the ANC together through three decades when Pretoria knew it only as a terrorist group.

The ANC need no longer hide and Friday begins its first internal congress since Tambo went abroad. Despite having suffered a stroke in August 1989, Tambo is expected to address the congress and appear at a rally Sunday and ANC officials stress he will be more than just a figurehead.

Tambo was forced to flee South Africa in 1960, the year the ANC was banned for plotting to undermine white minority rule. Through pragmatism and coalition-building, he kept the movement united in exile.

Even when finances were shot, when activists at home and abroad weredemoralized and the Pretoria government was heading off international pressure to end apartheid, Tambo was hopeful.

''At least politically, the ANC is yet a force - it may be ill- managed, poorly directed and badly led - but still a force,'' Tambo said in 1975.

When President Frederik de Klerk legalized the ANC at the launch of his racial reforms in February and released Mandela from more than 27 years in prison, Tambo was almost forgotten in the euphoria.

But it was Tambo who did most of the work abroad that made Mandela the world's most celebrated political prisoner.

Mandela himself said just one day after his release, ''I am a disciplined member of the ANC ... I am a disciplined follower of Comrade Oliver Tambo.''

In 1952, the two young lawyers opened the first black legal partnership in South Africa.

Since then, Mandela and other ANC officials have firmly respected Tambo's astuteness as a leader and Tambo consolidated his power in 1967 on being elected acting president of the ANC.

He had long insisted that the government make the initial concessions before the ANC would agreee to preliminary talks on ending apartheid.

Tambo emphasized in 1987 that the movement would abandon its guerrilla war against white rule, begun in 1961, only if Pretoria's actions merited such a course.

''If the key to negotiations were in our hands, we would long have used it to open the door,'' he said. ''Such measures as have been proposed for us to adopt, namely the cessation or suspension of our armed struggle ... will do nothing to bring about negotiations.''

In August, after de Klerk promised to accelerate his reforms, Mandela announced the ANC had suspended its armed struggle.

Tambo, periodically hospitalized since his stroke, did not want to return to South Africa too soon and give the government premature credit for reforms.

''But he is ready to come back now ... enough has been done to warrant it,'' an ANC spokesman said this week. Tambo has not returned permanently, ''but this can be regarded as the end of his exile,'' the spokesman said.

Born to a peasant family in the Eastern Cape Province village of Bizana on Oct. 27, 1917, Tambo lived much of his pre-exile adult life in the Transvaal township of Wattville and had expressed a desire to go back there.

''The accommodations available there are, unfortunately, no longer suitable,'' the spokesman said. ''It must be understood, Mr. Tambo is now our president.''

(DEC. 13) UPI - A State Department spokeswoman in Washington said late last night that Iraq has so far failed to propose a date for a visit to Baghdad by Secretary of State Baker. The United States rejected Iraq's first offer of a meeting between Saddam and Baker on January 12th, saying it was too close to the Janfuary 15th U-N deadline for Iraq to get out of Kuwait.

Energy executives attending a meeting in Houston believe that a peaceful Iraqi withdrawl from Kuwait is the most likely outcome of the Persian Gulf crisis. A survey conducted at the Arthur Andersen and Company oil and gas symposium shows that 53 percent of the executives attending the conference believe NO military action will be needed to get Iraq out of Kuwait. 29 percent predict Iraq will be removed from Kuwait by military action... and five percent believe Iraq will retain its captured territory.

Federal investigators are working today to determine the cause of a massive wreck in Tennessee that smashed more than 80 vehicles, killed 13 people and injuring about 50 on a fog-choked stretch of interstate highway. Area hospitals, which admitted about 50 injured victims Tuesday, report that about 20 still are hospitalized in serious or critical condition.

Oliver Tambo, the exiled president of the African National Congress, returned to South Africa today to attend the A-N-C's first congress since the government lifted a ban against it. The 73-year-old Tambo stepped from a plane from Lusaka, smiling but still showing the affects of a stroke he suffered last year. He embraced a number of A-N-C officials on the airport tarmac as several thousand supporters waited at the airport entrance to greet him.

In Bangladesh today, three former government ministers suspected of corruption during the reign of ousted President Hussein Mohammed Ershad were arrested. Police continue to search for at least eight other officials wanted for alleged abuse of power. The arrests came one day after police and army troops detained Ershad, his wife, and his eight-year-old son.

The 12 European Community leaders begin a two-day summit in Rome today to launch historic steps toward a common currency and joint foreign policy for post-Cold War Europe. WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - The Treasury Department said Thursday it has settled a year-old lawsuit filed by Capital Cities/ABC Inc. regarding royalty payments to Cuba in connection with the braodcast of the 1991 Pan American Games.

Terms of the settlement allow ABC Sports to make limited payments to Cuba for goods and services provided by Cuban nationals during the broadcast of the games next year.

Such payments have been prohibited under a comprehensive U.S. economic embargo against Cuba.

The government said ABC's proposal for live coverage of the games included an indirect royalty payment of $6.5 million to Cuba for the exclusive U.S. broadcasting rights.

The Treasury's Office of Foreign Assets Control had rejected ABC's application to broadcast the games because of the proposed royalty payment.

ABC sued the government last December, asserting that a 1988 amendment to the Trading with the Enemy Act, which prohibited the President from regulating imports of various informational materials, also prohibited the regulation of international telecommunications transactions.

In June, a federal judge ruled that telecommunications transactions were not covered by the amendment. The judge also ruled that the government's denial of ABC's application to broadcast the games did not violate the network's First Amendment rights.

The network appealed that ruling in July and settlement discussions began shortly thereafter, the government said.

The Treasury said the settlement agreement is similar to the terms offered originally to ABC Sports last summer.

HERRIN, ILL. (DEC. 13) UPI - The collapse of an abandoned mine shaft damaged houses and forced city officials to drain a water tank as a precautionary measure in an area recently targeted by earthquake predictions, officials confirmed Thursday.

A collapse at Franklin County Coal Co. Mine No. 3, in a shaft abandoned early this century, severely damaged three homes Wednesday, said Bob Gibson, a spokesman for the state mine subsidence office. The homes were removed from their foundations Thursday in a bid to save their superstructures.

The collapse occurred about 120 feet below the ground and affected an area 300 feet in diameter. The surface dropped 3 to 3 1/2 feet, Gibson said.

''These are not engineer-designed tunnels,'' Gibson said. ''These are natural materials that simply fatigue and give way. There's no known triggering mechanism.''

The subsidence occurred in an area near the New Madrid Fault where New Mexico climatologist Iben Browning predicted a 50-50 chance of an earthquake occurring last week. No quake occurred.

''It didn't have anything at all to do with the New Madrid Fault but I guess Mr. Browning can take credit for it,'' Herrin City Water Department Superintendent Terry McEvers said.

McEvers ordered workers to drain the community's 750,000-gallon water tower, which is next to the three damaged homes, as a precaution.

McEvers said workers have determined the water tower is stable and city officials plan to put it back in service as soon as possible.

''The water tower is outside the affected area,'' Gibson said. ''For it to become in jeopardy a different area would have to fail.''

''We're completely picking up houses and put them on beams. We let damage take place to foundation. We're going to capture the three homes in jeopardy and save them. That removes the hazard,'' Gibson said.

Maxine Smith said she first noticed something was wrong with her house, built in 1962, when she returned from Christmas shopping.

''When I got out of the car, I noticed a crack in the concrete (driveway),'' she said. ''Then I saw the concrete walls separating from the garage floor.

''Then I got inside and heard the house popping.''

Abandoned mineshafts honeycomb some 750,000 acres of subterranean Southern Illinois and parts of central Illinois. Gibson said filling in the shafts to prevent subsidence would cost ''something approaching the national debt.''

''It's much easier to treat symptoms as they occur,'' Gibson said. ''It's a tragedy. But from a larger perspective it's not that significant.''

Mine subsidence was one of the concerns during the recent earthquake scare. Gibson said he could not estimate how many incidents of subsidence occur annually.

NEW YORK (DEC. 13) UPI - R.H. Macy & Co. Thursday received government approval for its largest shareholder to increase its stake in the company, marking the completion of federal clearance for a $100 million equity offering by the retailer.

The Federal Trade Commission waived any antitrust concerns associated with GE Capital Corp. contributing to the offering, as it did earlier for three other major shareholders who have agreed to raise their stake in the company.

The $100 million is part of a previously announced $150 million equity offering, which Macy's has said will be used to pay off debt. The company aims to raise the other $50 million through a shareholder rights offering.

Macy's previously announced that FTC clearance of two other investments had achieved the minimum $70 million required for the offering.

The other investors involved in the offering are Loews Corp., Taubman Investment Co. and Mutual Series Fund. A spokesman for Macy's declined to put a value on the contributions of the individual investors.

The FTC said in a statement that it cleared the GE Capital investment by early termination of a waiting period under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Act. That law requires investors to notify the FTC if they intend to acquire at least 15 percent of a company's outstanding shares, or stock or assets valued at a minimum of $15 million.

PITTSBURGH (DEC. 13) UPI - A national survey released Thursday found a majority of U.S. manufacturers believe the nation's economy is in a recession, although 75 percent of respondents predict their 1991 profits will equal or exceed current levels.

Grant Thornton of Pittsburgh conducted telephone interviews last week with 250 manufacturers with annual sales between $10 million and $500 million.

Sixty-seven percent said a recession had arrived; 22 percent said the country is not in a recession but will enter one in 1991; 8 percent said a recession will not occur in the next 12 months; and 3 percent said they didn't know or refused to answer the question. The survey had a margin of error of plus or minus 6 percent.

Despite feelings about the overall economy, only one in four said they expect their 1991 profits to decline. More than one-third expect profits to stay the same and four out of 10 - 40 percent - said they expect profits to increase next year.

''In response to more than a year's warning of a possible recession, many manufacturers took appropriate steps to prepare for a slowdown,'' said Charles Collins, a Grant Thornton partner. ''These measures will keep profit levels steady, if not improve them.''

Many wary manufacturers have buffered their companies from a recession's negative effects by reducing inventories and receivables, making cost-effective investments and implementing programs Collins described as generating ''very high or short-term payback.''

The Grant Thornton survey found 46 percent of the manufacturers feel inflation will stay about the same. But 39 percent said it likely will increase. Only 13 percent believe inflation will decrease.

''A lot of concern about inflation results from a general uncertainty regarding the Iraqi crisis and how it will affect the price of oil and related derivatives - gasoline, naming one - in the next year,'' Collins said.

EFFINGHAM, Ill. (DEC. 13) UPI - Officials at Fedders Air Conditioning USA's plant in Effingham, Ill., said they will recall about 500 of the 1,000 workers who were laid off in the last six months.

The company had 1,300 employees in July but layoffs pared the firm down to 300. Company officials blamed the cuts on cool summer temperatures that reduced sales nationwide.

Human resources manager Roger Huttes said Wednesday production of 1991 model room air conditioners will resume Jan. 7, a move that will require more employees.

Huttes said the recalls would begin next week.

ABBOTT PARK, Ill. (DEC. 13) UPI - Abbott Laboratories Thursday announced a new, quick test to diagnose strep throat infections that takes just six minutes instead of standard testing that can take two days.

While rapid strep testing has been available in doctors' offices for several years, Abbott said the accuracy of the TestPack Plus Strep A test is comparable to the ''gold standard'' of strep testing - a specialized type of culture that could take as long as two days to complete.

''Most strep throat infections are mild and can be readily treated by antibiotics if diagnosed at an early stage,'' said Dr. Stanford Shulman, head of the Infectious Diseases Division at Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago and a pediatrics professor at Northwestern University.

Doctors say the quick testing is more essential now since the Centers for Disease Control recently reported a resurgence of acute rheumatic fever, which results when strep infections are untreated. Rheumatic fever usually affects children between the ages of 5 and 15.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS. (DEC. 13) UPI - The chief editor of the Dead Sea Scrolls, ancient Old Testament texts discovered in 1947, has been removed for describing Judaism as ''a horrible religion'' and a ''Christian heresy.''

John Strugnell, a professor in the Harvard Divinity School, was relieved of his supervisory duties on the project not only because of poor health but because of views expressed Nov. 9 in the Tel Aviv newspaper, Haaretz, The Boston Globe said Thursday.

Strugnell, 60, who is in an unidentified hospital, said in the interview that he was not against the Jewish people, just their religion.

Asked what ''annoyed'' him about Judaism, he said in the interview: ''It's the subsistence of the group, of Jews, of the Jewish religion. It's a horrible religion. It's a Christian heresy.''

''I believe that the answer for Islam, and Buddhism, and all other religions is to become Christian. Judaism disturbs me in a different sense, because, whereas the others became Christians when we worked hard on them, the Jews stuck to an anti-Christian position.''

Mark Edwards, the acting dean of the Harvard Divinity School, said in a statement Wednesday: ''I find the statements ascribed to Professor Strugnell personally repugnant, and Harvard Divinity School in now way shares his views.''

However, the school said Strugnell will remain on the project deciphering the ancient texts of the Old Testament.

The leadership of the project will be taken over by three remaining editors headed by Emanuel Tov of Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

Hershel Shanks, editor of the Biblical Archaeology Review, which is publishing an account of the Haaretz interview, told the Globe that ''anyone whose views are anti-Semitic and so violently anti-Israel should not be working on these Jewish cultural treasures. When he touches them, he stains them.''

The scrolls are the property of the Israeli government. The Israeli Antiquities Authority has set a 1997 deadline for finishing the translations.

Strugnell previously had been accused of an unreasonable delay in publication of the scrolls that were found in caves at Qumran on the dead Sea in 1947.

Parts of the early texts of the Old Testament have been dated at 250 B.C. and A.D. 68 and are considered important keys to the evolution of the Bible.

A colleague on the project, Eugene Ulrich, a Notre Dame University researcher, said he knew Trugnell had a pro-Arab position on modern Middle East politics, but ''never heard him say any of the things about Judaism that he was quoted as saying. It didn't sound like the man I have known for 20 years.''

Students and colleagues blamed Strugnell's statements on his poor health, the Globe said.

University of Chicago Professor Norman Golb said Thursday he hopes Strugnell's removal will opens the door to full scholarly study of the ancient manuscripts.

Golb charged Strugnell denied access to the scrolls to scholars who differed with his view of their content and signficance.

Golb said he and other scholars have been denied access to the scrolls because their finding could prove the manuscripts show early Christianity was far removed from mainstream Judaism during the period in which they were written, about 200 B.C. to A.D. 50.

''I've published 50 articles and several books on Hebrew manuscripts and Strugnell, who has yet to publish his assigned portion of the scrolls, denies me access,'' Golb said.

The scrolls, a collection of parchment and papyrus texts, provide the earliest handwritten link to the age of Jesus. They are housed primarily in the Rockefeller Museum and the Shrine of the Book in Jerusalem.

Strugnell was in charge of the Rockefeller material, considered the more significant information.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 13) UPI - The egg-laying queen ant at the National Zoo was accidentally decapitated by worker ants but her loyal subjects are still tending to her as if she were alive.

The worker ants - all daughters of the queen - lopped off the queen's head apparently by mistake while trying to squeeze her through a small hole in their nest, said Ed Smith, the man who cares for the leaf- cutting tropical insects housed in the zoo's glass-fronted display case.

''The ant's head and four of her legs were removed in an effort to get the queen from her chambers to a better location,'' Smith said Thursday.

The mishap occurred a few days ago but the worker ants still are administering to the queen, whose headless body hangs suspended from the ceiling of the royal chamber.

''It's not time to mourn yet,'' Smith said. ''It's still early for the colony. As far as the ants are concerned, the queen is still there.''

But in a widening royal mystery, the queen's head is missing.

''I don't know where it is but I'm sure the ants are taking good care of it,'' Smith said.

The future of the ant colony is now in question. Without the queen, the working ants will lose a sense of purpose.

''We are going to keep them and watch,'' Smith said.

The colony now consists only of sterile worker ants.

''Male ants are only associated with the queen during mating done in the air '' Smith said. ''After the mating occurred, she would fly back to the ground and chew off her wings. Her remaining life would be spent under the ground. She would continue to lay eggs up to 15 years after the last sexual act. In a small colony like this, she would give birth only to females.''

Smith said that ants survive through taste and smell, which explains why they are still tending to the queen.

''It seems that her odor remains,'' he said. ''When you chop the head off of an insect, it can still breathe through the abdomen. This ant is missing only her head. The bulk of the body goes on functioning for a while. But she is going to rot away in the next few days.

''It's been a week. But as of today, they are still looking after the remaining portions of the body with the same keen interest they have always shown.''

OTTAWA (DEC. 13) UPI - Canada's Supreme Court ruled Thursday that laws prohibiting hate messages outweigh the guarantees of free speech contained in the Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

The Supreme Court, in a narrow 4-3 ruling, upheld the 1985 conviction of James Keegstra, a teacher from Eckville, Alberta, who taught his students that Jews were ''treacherous, subversive, sadistic, money- loving, power-hungry and child killers.'' Keegstra also taught that the Jews created the Holocaust ''to gain sympathy'' and were ''secretive and inherently evil.''

Students who did not reflect his teachings on exams were given low marks.

Keegstra was dismissed in 1982 after complaints from the mother of one student and charged two years later with promoting hatred.

Essentially, the Supreme Court ruled that combatting hate propaganda is more important than freedom of expression.

The Charter of Rights and Freedoms guarantees free speech, but says it is subject to ''reasonable limits'' that can be justified in a free and democratic society. The Criminal Code provides for up to two years' imprisonment for anyone convicted of making public statements that ''willfully promote hatred against any identifiable group'' unless they can prove the statements are accurate.

Former Chief Justice Brian Dickson, in one of his last written opinions before his retirement two months ago, said the Criminal Code restricts free speech but the restriction is justified because hate propaganda contributes nothing to a vibrant democracy or the search for truth.

He said hate propaganda in Canada is ''sufficiently substantial'' to cause concern and had resulted in grave psychological and social damage.

Dickson also said it was necessary to take a different position from the United States where free speech is paramount. He said Canada differs from the United States in recognizing an international commitment to eliminate hate propaganda and the nation's specific commitment to equality and multiculturalism.

''If values fundamental to the Canadian conception of a free and democratic society suggest an approach that denies hate propaganda the highest degree of constitutional protection, it is this approach which must be employed,'' he said.

David Bercuson, professor of history at the University of Calgary in Alberta, said the ruling would give rise to more prosecutions against white supremacists and those who knowingly spread hate literature.

But Bercuson predicted that within 10 years the court would shift to greater protection of individual rights rather than protection of the community.

Dissenting justices argued that guarantees of free speech protect any non-violent form of expression, no matter how offensive, and should not be confined to statements that have ''redeeming value'' or are consistent with accepted values.

They also said the law violates an accused's presumption of innocence because it requires him to prove his statements were true.

ARLINGTON, VA. (DEC. 13) UPI - Irish President Mary Robinson, Boston Herald sportswriter Lisa Olson and comedian Nora Dunn are among 13 winners of the Feminist Majority Foundation's first Feminist of the Year Awards, the organization announced Thursday.

Foundation president Eleanor Smeal said the awards, which will be given annually, are intended to honor those who ''risked their jobs, made personal sacrifices or used their high-ranking position for women's equality over the past year,'' as well as to encourage people to actively support feminist causes.

Robinson, who last month became the first female elected president of Ireland, was selected by the foundation for ''having the courage to run as a feminist and showing the world it pays off,'' Smeal said.

Olson, who covered the New England Patriots for the Herald until she was sexually harassed by several players, was selected for ''having the courage to speak out against sexual harassment in the male-dominated locker room, Smeal said.

Dunn, a regular cast member of NBC's ''Saturday Night Live,'' was chosen because of her refusal to participate in a broadcast in which comedian Andrew Dice Clay was guest host.

Women's rights groups have accused Clay of making anti-female remarks during his comedy routines.

Smeal said the awards reflect ''the incredible outburst of spontaneous grassroots feminist action taken in 1990.

''The awards are a special recognition for people who took bold action to raise feminist issues,'' Smeal said. ''Four award winners jeopardized their jobs, several challenged violence against women, and many more demonstrated tremendous courage, creativity and conviction in publicly standing up for women.''

Other award recipients are:

-ABC news correspondent and anchor Carole Simpson, for speaking out for better opportunities for women and minorities in the media.

-Harvard Law School Professor Derrick Bell, for refusing to teach classes at the law school until a woman of color is hired as a tenured professor.

-University of Iowa Medical School Professor Jean Jew, for suing the medical school for ''ignoring repeated sexual and racial harassment.''

-Saudi Arabian women protestors, ''for having the courage to undertake an unprecedented protest against the law restricting women from driving in Saudi Arabia.

-Ms. magazine editor Robin Morgan, for ''taking the helm at Ms. magazine and giving feminist everywhere an advertising-free journal of their own.''

-Des Moines Register Editor Geneva Overholser and rape victim Nancy Ziegenmeyer, for ''taking a bold editorial position to eliminate the stigma of rape by revealing the survivor's name if granted permission.''

-Texas Gov.-Elect Ann Richards, for ''standing up for feminist issues throughout a grueling campaign.''

-Los Angeles City Councilwoman Gloria Molina, for leading the fight to pass a resolution requiring ''gender balance'' in mayoral appointments in that city.

-Southwest Missouri State University student Traci Bauer, for suing the university for the right to have campus crime statistics published.

-Brown University student protesters, for protesting violence against woman and ''taking creative action'' by writing the names of alleged rapists on school bathroom walls and demanding better administrative reponse to rape victims.

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN (DEC. 13) UPI - The United States and Pakistan held talks Thursday on U.S. fears that Islamabad is developing nuclear weapons, an issue that has cooled relations between the two allies and led Washington to suspend aid to the South Asian nation.

A brief government statement said Foreign Minister Yaqub Khan and U. S. Ambassador Robert Oakley held a two-hour ''discussion on the nuclear issue.''

''Oakley .. undertook to convey the Pakistan government's views to Washington '' it said. ''It is expected the discussions would proceed after the U.S. government has given its considered views on Pakistan's position.'' The statement said ''both sides affirmed their desire to maintain the traditional mutually beneficiaL relationship.''

It gave no further details, but Foreign Secretary Sheharyar Khan said Wednesday that Pakistan would ''reaffirm our position, which is that Pakistan's nuclear program is not weapons-oriented.'' But he said the ''results of non-certification and the cutoff of U.S. aid on a long-term basis are bound to affect our relations.''

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said the meeting was part of an ''ongoing dialogue'' on the nuclear issue.

Washington suspended aid to Pakistan on Oct. 1 because President Bush was unable to certify to Congress that Islamabad was not developing nuclear weapons.

Pakistan is the third largest recipient of U.S. assistance after Israel and Egypt and had been expecting $538 million from the Washington next year as part of a $4.02 billion military and economic aid package.

The 6-week-old government of Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif has so far refused to accept Washington's terms for a resumption of the aid and has defiantly called for economic self-reliance.

Pakistan is suspected of pushing ahead with a nuclear weapons program after the flare-up in January of a dispute with arch rival India over the Kashmir region, which is claimed by both countries. India exploded a nuclear device in 1974.

Pakistan's strategic value to Washington diminished sharply with the Soviet withdrawal from neighboring Afghanistan last year and the end of the Cold War. The United States supports the Pakistan-based Islamic guerrillas fighting the communist regime in Kabul since 1978.

Thursday's talks coincided with the arrival in Islamabad of Assistant Secretary of Defense Henry Rowen for a 4-day visit. The embassy spokesman said the official would hold high-level discussions on ''the military assistance program and the overall regional situation,'' but said the nuclear issue was ''not the focus of the visit.''

Rowen's arrival followed a 4-day trip to Pakistan last week by Assistant Secretary of State Teresita Schaffer for talks on a variety of issues, including nuclear weapons.

TORONTO (DEC. 13) UPI - A majority of Canadians are no longer in favor of the two-year-old free-trade agreement between Canada and the United States, according to a Gallup poll released Thursday.

Results showed 52 percent of those questioned said they were not in favor of the trade agreement in a November poll of 1,033 adults across the country.

Another 31 percent said they supported the deal, while the remaining 17 percent expressed no opinion.

The poll of 1,033 adults from across the country conducted Nov. 7-10 is the first to indicate a majority against the bilateral trade deal.

The results come at a time when Canada's economy is in recession and the number of unemployed workers in increasing. Many economists forecast the country's unemployment rate, currently at 9.1 percent, will top 10 percent in 1991.

Labor leaders and opposition parties blame the trade deal for layoffs caused by plant closings and the shifting of production to the United States and Mexico.

The trade deal recently has become the target of renewed criticism after the Canadian government opted to discuss the possibility of a participating in talks on a North American trading zone with the United States and Mexico.

Among Canada's five geographical regions, the poll indicated that the French-speaking province of Quebec was the only one where more people, 40 percent, voiced support for the agreement than opposed it.

Some observers say Quebecers support free trade with the United States because they believe it will give the province the economic strength it needs to secede from Canada.

In Ontario, the country's manufacturing core, 62 percent of the poll's respondents were against the deal, with 26 percent in favor and 12 percent having no opinion.

The latest poll indicates a change in attitudes when compared to results of a similar poll taken in December 1988, a month before the Canada-U.S. trade deal took effect. The 1988 poll showed that 44 percent of Canadians favored the deal, 38 percent were against it and 19 percent had no opinion.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 13) UPI - A former deputy military commander of Israeli forces in the Gaza Strip was convicted Thursday in the 1989 death of a 16-year-old Palestinian, military sources said.

Col. Ya'acov Sadeh was in charge of dispersing rioters after Palestinians stoned a military bus July 31, 1989, near the Bureij refugee camp in the Gaza Strip, Army Radio reported. Sadeh fired a plastic bullet toward Mohammad Saraj after he identified the 16-year-old as a riot leader, the radio reported.

Saraj could only been seen from the waist up when Sadeh fired and hit him in the neck. Israeli army firing procedures prohibit firing plastic bullets toward rioters above the waist.

A military court Thursday found Sadeh guilty of causing Saraj's death by negligence, military sources said. Sentencing is scheduled for January but Sadeh appealed his conviction.

During the past week, the military has cracked down on Palestinian stone-throwers in the Israeli-occupied territories and military sources said Israeli soldiers had wounded seven Palestinians who attacked vehicles with stones.

''All were hit by the special Israeli Defense Force units while in the midst of throwing rocks at vehicles'' traveling in the West Bank, one military source said.

In the latest crackdown on the movement of Palestinians from the occupied territories, the military issued special green identification cards to three senior Arab union leaders Wednesday and Thursday, Palestinian sources said. The special cards forbid their holders from entering Israel and Arab East Jerusalem.

Thousands of the special cards have been issued to Palestinians in the past two weeks, the sources said. The crackdown comes amid fears of escalating violence between Arabs and Israelis after Israeli police killed at least 17 Palestinians Oct. 8 on the Temple Mount.

The Interior Ministry also has issued an order forbidding Palestinian intellectual Sari Nusseibeh, an East Jerusalem resident, from going abroad, Army Radio reported.

TORONTO (DEC. 13) UPI - A majority of Canadians no longer favor the 2-year-old free-trade agreement between Canada and the United States, according to a Gallup poll released Thursday.

Results showed 52 percent of those questioned opposed the trade agreement in a November poll of 1,033 adults across the country. Another 31 percent said they supported it and the remaining 17 percent expressed no opinion.

The poll conducted Nov. 7-10 is the first to indicate a majority against the bilateral trade deal.

The results come as Canada's economy is in recession and the number of unemployed is increasing. Many economists forecast the country's unemployment rate, currently at 9.1 percent, will top 10 percent in 1991.

Labor leaders and opposition parties blame the trade deal for layoffs caused by plant closings and the shifting of production to the United States and Mexico.

The trade deal recently became the target of renewed criticism after the Canadian government opted to discuss the possibility of participating in talks on a North American trading zone with the United States and Mexico.

Among Canada's five geographical regions, the poll indicated the French-speaking province of Quebec was the only one where more people, 40 percent, voiced support for the agreement than opposed it.

Some observers say Quebecers support free trade with the United States because they believe it will give the province the economic strength it needs to secede from Canada.

In Ontario, the country's manufacturing core, 62 percent were against the deal 26 percent in favor and 12 percent having no opinion.

The latest poll indicates a change in attitude compared to results of a similar poll in December 1988, a month before the Canada-U.S. trade deal took effect. The 1988 poll showed that 44 percent of Canadians favored the deal, 38 percent were against it and 19 percent had no opinion.

CHICAGO (DEC. 13) UPI - Auto accident rates have declined, but personal injury claims have increased sharply, largely due to increasing involvement of lawyers, the Insurance Research Council reported Thursday.

"We're seeing real improvements in car safety and a reduction in actual auto accidents, but we're not getting the safety dividend because the changes in claim behavior are gobbling up the savings," said Donald Segraves, executive director of the nonprofit group, which is funded by the insurance industry.

Segraves Thursday released a study showing the number of personal injury claims paid for every 100 property damage claims increased dramatically between 1980 and 1989 - particularly in California, Arizona, Louisiana and South Carolina and in certain urban areas, most notably in Philadelphia, Los Angeles, and Chicago.

"When we look at claim files in states and cities with high injury claim frequencies, we don't find any larger numbers of serious injuries than in areas with low claim frequencies," Segraves said.

"What we see are more people with attorneys, and more people reporting neck and back sprains - so many more that these cases now account for nearly half of all the auto insurance dollars paid for highway injuries," he said.

Asked if the nature of the injuries - which are the easiest to feign - indicates an increase in exaggerated or fake claims, Segraves told United Press International, "I think you'd have to come to that conclusion, because there's no othe rational explanation of it." "You either have to conclude that people in California have more tender necks or that they're making claims people don't make in other places," he said.

The study, entitled "Trends in Auto Bodily Injury Claims," found that the ratio of injury claims to property damage claims has increased to around 30 to 100 nationwide - up 30 percent since 1980.

California, which has more lawyers than any other state - in fact, more than any country ourside the United States - had the highest injury-to-property damage claim ratio: 55.7 per 100, an increase of 79.1 percent over 1980. Arizona ranked second, at 42.9 per 100, followed closely by Louisiana and 42.7 South Carolina at 41.4.

Among cities, Philadelphia had the highest ration - with an average of 75 injury claims awarded per 100 property damage accidents for the 1985-87 period. Los Angeles ranked second at 60.6, and Chicago third at 52.1.

"It's interesting that there's a perfect corolation between areas where you've got consumer activism and moves to limit insurance rates and the areas where you're seeing these increasing injury claims," Segraves said, noting moves to legislate auto insurance limits in all California, Arizona, Louisiana, and South Carolina.

"Their insurance rates are being inflated by these excessive claims," Segraves said. He said lawyers seek to build up claims by sending clients to doctors and chiropractors.
